The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. Swearing in of new members.

Mr. J. P. Brander, Mr. D. R. H. Browne, Mr. C. S. C. Harrison, Mr. H. L. Painter and Mr. R. D. Bell then made the prescribed oath of allegiance to His Majesty the King-Emperor, and took their seats in the Council.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. I have now to nominate four Chairmen for this session and I do so by nominating the following honourable members to serve as chairmen for the current session:

1. Mr. J. B. Petit.
2. Mr. G. R. Winterbotham.

3. Mr. Noor Mahomed,
4. Dr. B. R. Ambedkar.

I have next to announce the list of Acts which His Excellency the Governor-General has given his assent to since the close of the last session. They are as follows :

(1) An Act to amend certain enactments and to repeal certain other enactmets.

(2) An Act further to amend the Bombay Local Boards Act, 1923.

(3) An Act further to amend the Bombay District Police Act, 1890.

(4) An Act further to amend the Bombay City Municipalities Act, 1925.

(5) An Act further to amend the Bombay Children Act, 1924.

(6) An Act further to amend the Bombay Port Trust Act, 1879.

(7) An Act to amend the Bombay Primary Education Act, 1923.

(8) An Act to amend the Mahul Creek (Extinguishment of Rights) Act, 1922.

(9) An Act to provide for the establishment and the better regulation of Cotton markets in the Bombay Presidency.

As the House is aware His Excellency is going to address the Council at 2-30. I propose that the House will adjourn till His Excellency arrives and after his address, I propose that the House should adjourn for tea in order that office may have an opportunity to put the central table in, and to make other arrangements. According to my proposal, therefore, we adjourn for tea till 3-30, and then I propose, if honourable members are agreeable, to take up the Question List for half an hour and to carry it on till 4, when the Honourable the Finance Member will introduce the Budget. The House will, therefore, now adjourn till 2-30.

His Excellency the Governor was met by the President on his arrival. A procession of chobdars, His Excellency's staff, the President of the Council (the Honourable Mr. A. M. K. Dehlavi) and His Excellency the Governor passed slowly up the Hall to the dais at 2-30 p.m.

His Excellency's staff stood in a semi-circle at the back of the dais behind the two chairs, His Excellency the Governor being on the right and the Honourable the President on the left.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order. His Excellency will be pleased to address the House.

HIS EXCELLENCY'S SPEECH

Rising to address the Council, His Excellency said :

GENTLEMEN,

For the fifth time during my period of office as Governor of Bombay, I welcome you at the opening of the Budget Session of the Legislative Council.

The year through which we have passed since I last addressed you has been, in many ways, an important one for the Presidency, but I think I am justified in saying, and that honourable members will agree with me, that the most important event, dealing with occurrences outside our own domestic concerns, has been the visit to Karachi and Bombay of Their Majesties the King and Queen of Afghanistan. India was the first country outside the boundaries of his own State that His Majesty visited, and it must be a matter of keen gratification to all in the Presidency that we had the honour of being the first to welcome His Majesty on the start of his long and important foreign tour. It is also a matter of great pleasure to realise that His Majesty expressed himself so much gratified by the warmth of his reception, and by the arrangements in general which were made for Their Majesties and their party, both in Karachi and Bombay.

As usual, the main business before Council at this session of the year is the consideration of the Budget. I do not desire, in any way, to anticipate the Budget speech to be delivered by my honourable colleague the Finance Member, but there are one or two general observations I would wish to make.

It is a matter of great regret that the agricultural season of the past year turned out even worse than we had expected, and in consequence, the collections of land revenue were smaller than we have had for many years. The opening balance of the current year was therefore considerably less than we anticipated when I last addressed you. Part of the deficiency has indeed been recouped in the present year owing to very favourable rains ; but this increase in the land revenue has been discounted by the continued fall in the revenue from excise and stamps. The long continued depression in trade has caused my Government much anxiety, and we welcome the signs that are at last appearing of a renewal of activity in world trade, and look forward with renewed hope that we are at last about to pass out of the slough of depression in which we have so long struggled. The current year has been marked by a calamity heavier than has befallen this Presidency for many years, namely, the floods in Gujarat and Sind, due to excessive rains and tempestuous weather.

Apart from the unforeseen expenditure occasioned by this calamity, the totals of revenue and expenditure, for which we provided in the Budget, have departed little from the estimates. Our general financial position, therefore, remains much the same as last year, except that our savings in the Famine Insurance Fund and in our ordinary balances have been seriously depleted ; but we trust that the major portion of the loss will, in due course, be recouped by repayment of the loans advanced for reconstruction, particulars of which will be given you by the Finance Member. It is, however, idle to pretend that our financial position is satisfactory. We have indeed, by the exercise of rigorous economy and retrenchment, managed to balance our revenue and expenditure, both in the current year and in the estimates of the next year, on the assumption that the Government of India will again be able to remit the provincial contribution. But the Budget which has been placed before you shows, if we disregard mere changes in accounting, that our total revenue has slightly fallen, while our expenditure, which, as in any normally healthy organism must be expected to grow a little year by year, has also been curtailed below the figure of the current year; and many new demands, which the departments have rightly regarded as of the utmost urgency, have perforce been omitted.

There are definite obligations to which we are committed: for example, I may refer to those under the Primary Education Act, and the additional recurring charges which will fall on the provincial revenue under the Hospital Scheme which bears my name, to meet which some expansion in our revenue is absolutely essential. In these circumstances I can only repeat what has been said so often in the past—that, unless there is a revision of the Provincial Settlement in favour of the industrial provinces, I can see little hope of the continued progress to which this province is entitled. There is nothing more disheartening than having, year after year, to exclude or to curtail necessary expenditure on services so essential to the educational, health, and economic progress of the Presidency, and I sincerely trust that the day is not far distant when a fairer share of the revenues raised within our borders will be at our disposal, to enable us to provide money where it is so badly needed. In the meanwhile, it is incumbent on us to do what we can with the resources at our disposal. Bills will be placed before you for the continuation of the Stamp duties and Court Fees which are at present in force; and the Budget has been framed on the assumption, which I earnestly hope the Council will endorse, that these Bills will be passed. The loss in revenue if the Bills are thrown out will be very considerable, and would force upon us the necessity for making further inroads into the provision for essential services.

With reference to the calamity in Gujarat and in Sind of which I have made mention, this was caused, as honourable members are aware, by torrential rains falling at the end of July in north Gujarat, and in the southern portions of the Hyderabad and Thar Parkar Districts of Sind, and floods of an unprecedented character overwhelmed the country. It was difficult at the outset to ascertain the extent of the damage done owing to the breakdown of communications, but I am glad to have this opportunity of acknowledging that the officers of Government, of all ranks, lost no time in grasping the situation, and in doing all that they could to relieve the immediate distress; and I further take this opportunity of thanking all non-official gentlemen and organisations that contributed to this charitable work. I do not propose to enter into any detail about the remedial measures which Government have taken for the rehabilitation of the affected areas, but honourable members will remember the debate on the subject which took place at the second Poona session, when the proposals of Government were laid before the House. I desire to take this opportunity of acknowledging the fact that our proposals were welcomed as being conceived in a generous spirit, and were accepted with practical unanimity.

In connection with our schemes for relief, a bill will be laid before you to give Government powers, similar to those under the Land Revenue Code, to recover loans for the reconstruction of houses in the areas affected from persons not holding agricultural land. I am confident that the Council, being, as it is, the guardian of the public revenues, will assist Government to pass this bill into law during the present session, particularly as the absence of such a provision must necessarily make it more difficult for Government to give such loans so quickly or so freely.

I now come to the departments of Government which are included in the portfolios of my honouable colleagues, the Ministers. I regret that, owing to the continuance of the financial stringency which has prevailed throughout my tenure of office, less expansion has been possible in these departments than I could have wished. I can only repeat to you the advice which I gave you last year when I addressed the members of this Council, namely, that progress in these departments is impossible without funds, and that the provision of adequate resources to build up and expand their work can only be obtained by taxation, which this Council alone has the power to impose, and by a re-adjustment of our financial position with the Central Government. I think, however, that any impartial critic who reviews what has been done in the past two or three years to promote the public welfare in the Presidency, and what is proposed to be done during the coming year, will admit that, in spite of the grave financial difficulties with which my Government have had to contend, steady progress has been, and still is being made. Government have, since the passing of the Primary Education Act in 1923, made an additional allotment of nearly 24 lakhs of rupees a year for primary education in the Presidency. It has also been found possible during the current year to sanction 16 schemes of expansion under the Primary Education Act of which four schemes are on a compulsory basis. Owing to lack of funds it has not been possible to sanction all the schemes submitted so far by the Local Authorities, but if this House passes the extra provision of Rs. 5,47,000 made in the coming year's budget for schemes under this Act, we may hope to see still further development of primary education among the masses, the urgent need for which is so generally admitted.

Two committees have recently been appointed to consider the revision of standards in secondary and primary schools, and the provision of increased facilities for physical training in these institutions, and in Colleges. I trust that their recommendations will be found to be generally acceptable, and will lead to improvements in the curricula of these institutions, and the adoption of the best forms of physical training—a subject in which I personally am very greatly interested.

I am glad to find that the special needs of the depressed classes have not been forgotton, and that the Budget contains a provision for a grant-in-aid to a scheme for hostels which has been put forward by two of the honourable members of this council.

In the Medical Department you will see that steady progress is being made in developing and expanding the Hospitals and the Medical Schools in the Presidency. With the aid of the Hospital Fund, it has been possible to undertake schemes for the development of the J. J. group of hospitals in Bombay which will bring them up to the standard of modern requirements, and I am grateful to the members of this Council for the manner in which they have co-operated with the Committee of the Fund in the past in providing their share of the funds, and trust that they will continue to do the same till the schemes reach completion. I should like to add that, while efforts are being made to improve the hospitals and medical schools in Bombay, the medical needs of the mofussil have not been forgotten, as will be seen from the provisions made in the Budget for the various medical institutions in the Presidency. My only regret is that, owing to the paucity of funds available, it has not been possible to do more in a field where the scope for expansion is almost limitless.

In spite of the small provision made for the Industries Department in the current year's Budget, it is satisfactory to find that provision is being made for special enquiries into the hand-weaving and tanning industries, with a view to discover the best means of assisting these two important village industries in the Presidency, which are of particular benefit toward the employment of the depressed classes. I am confident that the members of this Council will welcome the steps which are being taken to re-organise this Department, which has been more or less in a state of abeyance during the last two years. In accordance with the recommendations of the Industries Committee which sat last year, provision is also being made in the Budget for the appointment of a whole-time Director, and for a Deputy Director as soon as the need for the latter appointment arises. It is true that, owing to lack of funds, the provision for this Department remains at too low a figure to enable it to function as actively as is desirable, but it is clear that the new Director will require time to look around and take stock of things before he can make definite recommendations to Government on the directions in which development should be undertaken.

In accordance with the decision of the Legislative Council, taken at the Budget session in February-March 1927, the Back Bay Reclamation Scheme has now been definitely restricted to the completion of Blocks 1, 2, 7 and 8, and the linking of Blocks Nos. 2 and 7 with a road and a promenade along the foreshore. During the course of the current year the work of filling Block No. 1 at the northern end with wet filling has progressed satisfactorily, and the operation of dredging into this Block is expected to be finished before the end of this season. After examining the figures of output up-to-date during the current year, and considering the nature of the material obtained, the Advisory Committee has recommended that dredging operations should be continued next year for the purpose of filling Block No. 2.

At the southern end of the Reclamation, all works has been concentrated on completing the murum topping of Block No. 8. A portion of this Block measuring over one lakh of square yards, which the Military authorities desired to take over in advance of the rest of the Block for the purpose of a recreation Ground, was handed over to them at the end of November 1927, and the cost, amounting to nearly 21 lakhs, has been adjusted by a reduction of the loan borrowed from the Government of India in 1922-23. An endeavour is being made to speed up the murum topping of the remainder of the Block, so that it may be completed as soon as possible.

Referring briefly to the Irrigation work in the Presidency proper and Sind, honourable members will be glad to know that the Lloyd Dam at Bhatgar, which forms a storage lakh of 24,000 million cubic feet capacity for the Nira Right and Left Bank Canals is practically completed. Good progress has been made on the Right Bank Canal Works, and irrigation has already commenced in the upper reaches.

In the south, a scheme to utilise the waters of the Markandeya River in the Gokak Taluka of the Belgaum District is under investigation; and in Gujarat survey work in connection with the proposed storage reservoirs on the Panam and Watrak rivers and the weir across the Meshwa, to which I referred last year, is making satisfactory progress.

Work on the Lloyd Barrage and Canals Scheme is being pushed forward vigorously. The actual construction of the Regulators for the canal heads, which form the flanks of the Barrage proper, was commenced in the autumn of 1926, and the first season's programme of permanent works on the river was carried out with complete success. Since then, much headway has been made, and the cofferdams for this season's work on the Barrage itself on both banks of the river have been completed and masonry work commenced inside. Excellent progress has also been made with excavation of the main canals and branches, and with embanking the Eastern Nara, the quantity of earthwork done to the end of December 1927 being 103 crores cubic feet, or a little less than one-fourth of the total quantity contemplated in the scheme. The construction of masonry works on the canals system has commenced, and the general progress of the work in all its branches is most satisfactory. If equally good progress can be maintained, it is hoped to commence irrigation in the new canals in 1931.

A resolution was passed by this House last year approving of the acquisition of the Sailors' Home and the plans for the New Council Hall, and recommending that the construction of the Hall should be proceeded with subject to a limit of expenditure of Rs. 8,30,000. The work has been started, and it is hoped that the Council will have its own Hall for the next Budget session.

The question of road development, the need for which has been felt by Government and the public for some time past, has now become a matter of great interest all over India. Honourable Members are doubtless aware that the Government of India have appointed a Road Development Committee which has now finished its work of examining witnesses, and we await with interest its recommendations. It is hoped that India will, in the near future, make much progress towards securing a good net work of roads suited to modern traffic requirements.

Aviation is a branch of science in which vast and rapid strides are now being made, and this Presidency may congratulate itself on having in Karachi the first city in India to be equipped with facilities for modern commercial aviation. Besides the very large R. A. F. aerodrome at that place, a modern airship base with all up-to-date facilities is being provided. The early provision of a somewhat similar base close to Bombay is under the consideration of the authorities who deal with Civil Aviation.

Honourable Members will naturally expect me to say something about the Statutory Commission, and I think it only right that I should do so. Within the course of this year, the honourable members of this House will have opportunities of discussing the question arising out of the part which the Legislative Council of Bombay will be asked to play in the work of the Commission. I notice resolutions already before Council, and I want honourable members to realise at once that, while it would have been possible for me to disallow such resolutions under the Legislative Council Rules, I certainly do not propose to do so, as I welcome the fullest discussion on a matter of such import to the future of India in general, and of this Presidency in particular.

In the first place let me say that I appreciate the sincerity of those, many of whom have rendered and are still rendering great public services to India, and whose opinions must carry much weight, who have publicly declared their opinion that the Commission is unwelcome because no Indian is a member of it. I notice that the question is often asked by them and others, whether there are no Indians fit to sit on such a Commission, so vital to the interests of India. That, I venture to say, is a question which cannot be seriously addressed to anyone with any knowledge of India or of the work of Indian politicians and statesmen who have already shown their worth in so many spheres of public life and political activity. I would suggest that any such idea in considering the personnel of the Commission should at once be put on one side, and that the real point to be considered is the appointment of the Commission from a strictly constitutional point of view.

At the moment it is a fact that this great Empire of India is governed by, and in the name of, His Majesty the King Emperor of India, which means that the Secretary of State, responsible to the British Parliament, controls all concerns relating to the government of this country. The Act of 1919, in its first clauses, very clearly states this fact. As this is so, it is obvious that any alteration in the existing system of government here can be made only by Act of Parliament, and, to enable any such alteration to be made, the British Parliament must have advice given to it as to what changes are desirable in order to advance India a further step on the road to responsible self-government, with the ultimate aim of that complete self-government which is enjoyed by other of the partners in this great commonwealth of nations we know as the British Empire. Is it, therefore, entirely unreasonable, as suggested by some, that the Houses of Lords and Commons should appoint a body representative of themselves to undertake such a task ? I fully realise the difficulties under which such a body would work, and the well founded criticism which would have found expression, if, at the same time, it had not been decided to associate representatives of Indian political thought with it. That, however, has been done, in the committees to be elected, if the representatives of the people in India so desire, by the Central and Provincial Legislatures. I have heard one criticism to which, at this point, I should like to refer, namely, that the report of such Committees will not be, like the report of the Statutory Commission, presented direct to the House of Parliament. I do not understand why any criticism should be directed against the Commission on these grounds, for it is obvious that any Commission or Committee, whether appointed by a Corporation, an Association, or a Legislative Body, would ordinarily report, in the first place, to that body which brought it into being. In the case of the report of a Legislature in India, it would be transmitted in the ordinary constitutional manner through the ordinary channels to the Secretary of State and so to Parliament in England; and it has been decided that such a report shall receive equal consideration before the Joint Committee to be set up by the Houses of Parliament with the report and the recommendations of the Statutory Commission; and, moreover, that—and this is, to my mind, most important—Parliament shall express no opinion on the report of the Statutory Commission until the Joint Committee has had an opportunity of considering both reports, both from the body set up by itself, and that elected by the Indian Legislature.

These are the facts as I see them, and, after studying very carefully the procedure proposed by Sir John Simon to be followed with regard to the close association of the Committees set up by the Indian Legislatures with the Statutory Commission, I feel sure that the proposals offer the foundations of an understanding on terms which could be acceptable to both sides; and I therefore would urge those friends of mine who are of opinion that the Commission should be boycotted to reconsider the position which they have taken up, in the best interests of the country for which they have done so much, and for which they can do so much more.

I pass now to another aspect of this question, and you will allow me to say something on this, as I can speak with some experience of Parliament. If I admit that India and the aspirations of India are misunderstood, and are not fully realised by British politicians, I ask myself how much more will they be misunderstood if the representatives of all three political parties in Britain, appointed with the full approval of the respective leaders and following of those parties, are handicapped in their work by a decision on the part of responsible politicians in India to have nothing to do with the work for which they have been appointed? I cannot help feeling that there will be, among the British elected representatives of all parties, a feeling of keen and not unnatural disappointment—and of the effect of that feeling I confess myself anxious indeed with regard to the political advance of this country. At the risk of being personal in anything I may say, I hope you will believe that I am one who sees for India a great future under the control of Indians with such assistance as India may desire from, and which will be willingly given by, Europeans who have done so much to set her on the path of self-government. I am anxious, above all things, that the clock of progress shall not be set back—that there shall be no unnecessary obstacle placed in the way to impede that progress; but I confess that, to my mind, any such action as is contemplated by a boycott may retard the fulfilment of the natural aspirations of those with whom I am in close sympathy, and towards whose patriotic ambitions I have endeavoured, in my time out here, to give what encouragement lay in my power. With my knowledge of Parliament, I am fully assured myself that no sort of affront was intended to Indian sentiment, such as is suggested, and I can only express the sincere hope that it is not too late for some mutual understanding to be arrived at, which must of course be in consonance with the Constitution under which we act now, whereby the representatives of the British Parliament and the representatives of Indian political opinion can give each of their best to recommending such proposals as will have the result of evolving a Constitution satisfactory to both, and one which will advance the happiness and prosperity of the millions who live in this land.

Gentlemen, I now leave you to the discharge of your important duties. When proroguing the second session of the Legislative Council in August 1926, I claimed—and I think with justification—that considerable progress had been made in the Presidency during the life of that Council due in a large degree to the work of honourable members themselves, who had, by fair criticism, assisted Government in its financial and its statutory proposals. The work of this Council, now about a year old, encourages me to believe that the high record held by the Legislative Council of Bombay among all other such Councils in India, will not only be maintained, but strengthened and that all members will consider, in the future as they have done in the past, the proposals of Government not with any idea of destructive opposition, but with every desire to give constructive assistance to my honourable colleagues, both members and Ministers, who have but one aim—an aim which I feel sure is shared by you all—namely, to do all that is possible, even under circumstances of great financial difficulty, for the true interests of the people of the Presidency. (Applause).

After the conclusion of His Excellency's address a procession was formed, and His Excellency left the Hall in State.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House will now adjoin for tea and meet at 4 p.m.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. Before we proceed to the next business of the day I think it is but right that we should express our deepest regret at the sad demise of an eminent leader of this presidency, I mean Mr. Harchandrai Vishindas of Karachi. He was an old member of this House and was my personal friend, as he was of several honourable members of this House. His career was marked by eminence and great activities. I am sure the House would wish me to convey the sympathy of this Honourable House to the bereaved family.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Sir, on behalf of this side of the House I associate myself with the sentiments expressed by you. I knew Mr. Harchandrai Vishindas as an old member in the pre-reformed Council; and I found him always devoted to his duty just as he died in the performance of his duty.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI (Western Sind): Sir, I beg to associate myself with the sentiments expressed by you and the Honourable the Leader of the House. He was one of us and we know him as one of the most experienced leader. Sind has sustained a great loss in his death.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD (Central Division): Sir, as the oldest member of this House and as one who belonged to the first Council after the Minto-Morley reforms to which Mr. Harchandrai Vishindas was first returned, I heartily associate myself with the sentiments expressed by you, Sir, and by the Honourable Leader of the House.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District): Sir, on behalf of the non-Brahmin party I fully agree with the sentiments expressed in this House. I have not had the honour and pleasure of knowing Mr. Harchandrai personally, but I have been watching the services he had been rendering to the country. His death is a great loss to the country.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District): On behalf of the Liberal Party I associate myself with the sentiments expressed in this House.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. Questions.

POLICE OFFICERS IN CENTRAL DIVISION: TRANSFERS AND POSTINGS

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD (Central Division): Will the Honourable the Home Member be pleased to give in a tabular form the following information:—

(a) the names of Police Inspectors and Sub-Inspectors, Brahmins, Non-Brahmins and Muhammadans at the headquarters and in the talukas of the Central Division;

(b) whether there are any rules with regard to the minimum period of residence of these officers at any particular place before they can claim their transfer;

(c) by whom the transfers are made;

(d) whether it is a fact that there are some places in which all the police officers above the rank of Havildar belong to one community only? If so, whether he proposes to take any action in the matter?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: (a) The names and postings of the Inspectors of Police are to be found in the Quarterly Civil List. As regards Sub-Inspectors, the following table gives a summary of the information desired by the Honourable Member. The details for which he asks in the question would cover several pages of print, and would not, as far as can be seen, be of any general interest.

District	Brahmins	Non-Brahmins	Muhammadans
Ahmednagar	6	11	5
Nasik	10	16	9
East Khandesh	9	11	10
West Khandesh	9	8	3
Poona	5	25	3
Satara	7	13	9
Sholapur	7	7	5

(b) General rules on the subject of transfers will be found in Rule 72 on pages 31 and 32 of the Police Manual. No officer can "claim" a transfer.

(c) Transfers are made of :

(i) Inspectors by the Inspector General of Police,

(ii) Sub-Inspectors from one Police Station to another in the same District by the District Superintendent of Police,

(iii) Sub-Inspectors from one District to another in the Range by the Deputy Inspector General of Police, and (iv) Sub-Inspectors from a District in one Range to a District in the other Range by the Inspector General of Police.

(d) Communal differences have not arisen among the Police and any person who attempted to lay stress on communal questions within the force would be doing a grave disservice to the country. Ordinarily, in the Police as in all other Departments of Government, endeavours are made to secure a suitable mixture of several castes and creeds in every office ; if by chance all the superior officers in one Police Station belong at any time to the same caste, the occurrence is casual and temporary only.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : With regard to part (a) of the answer may I know whether the figures are in proportion to the population of the community ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : Not in exact proportion.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : If not the names, may I know whether the Honourable the Home Member will be in a position to give the number of inspectors ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : Both are to be found in the Civil List to which any member can refer.

SUKKUR BARRAGE : CONCESSIONS UNDER FALLOW RULES

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI (Kaira District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) what concessions under the Fallow Rules are at present given to the occupants of lands in the areas commanded by the Sukkur Barrage Irrigation Scheme ;

(b) whether it is a fact that they are subject to the same concessions as the rest of Sind. If the reply be in the negative, what are the concessions given in these Barrage areas at present ;

(c) whether these concessions will be continued after the Barrage schemes come into operation ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) and (b) Under the Fallow Rules, assessment on an occupied survey number is leviable only for the years in which such number is cultivated wholly or in part, subject to the following two conditions :—

(i) if a number is not cultivated but its occupant makes a profit out of it by the sale of fish, grass, fodder, timber, fuel, etc., a part or the whole of the assessment according to the circumstances of the particular case is leviable ;

(ii) if a number has not paid one full assessment for four consecutive years, either because it was not cultivated or because full assessment was not levied under condition (i), it is liable to assessment in the fifth year even if it is not cultivated in that year.

The enforcement of condition No. (ii) has been suspended with effect from the year 1924-25 in the Barrage area and in the case of such lands in the non-Barrage area as are dependent on canals on which a restriction on the grant of land has been imposed on account of the deficiency of water.

(c) This question will not arise for some years, and Government can express no opinion on it at the present time.

PROVINCIAL SERVICE : AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI (Kaira District): Will Government be pleased to state the names of persons holding or acting in the provincial service in the Agricultural Department with their qualifications and length of service in that Department ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: A statement containing the information desired by the Honourable Member is placed on the table.

SUKKUR BARRAGE COMMITTEE REPORT

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI (Kaira District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the non-official committee appointed by them to inquire into the Sukkur Barrage works have submitted their report to them ;

(b) if so, whether they will be pleased to place a copy of the report on the table ;

(c) the terms of reference on which the committee was appointed ;

(d) whether it is a fact that they were not given full opportunity to investigate the whole question of the Barrage ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: (a) The honourable member presumably refers to the visit of inspection to the Lloyd Barrage and Canals Construction works by ten non-official members of this House. A report from one of these members has been received by Government.

(b) A copy of the report referred to is placed on the table.

(c) The members were invited to obtain first-hand information as to the general progress and cost of the works and to forward to Government any remarks they might have to offer.

(d) It is not a fact.

"BEACH VIEW"
CADELL ROAD, MAHIM,
Bombay, September 30th, 1927.

The Chief Secretary to Government, Public Works Department,
POONA.

Dear Sir,

Sukkur Barrage

Not only is an apology necessary for the long delay in submitting a Report as a member of the Committee appointed by Government in April last to inspect the Sukkur Barrage, but I also feel it necessary that some explanation for this long delay should be conveyed to you.

2. Shortly after my return from Sukkur the impressions I formed, as a result of the visit, were published in the "Times of India." As a result of this publication I was publicly criticised by another member of the Committee for having expressed any opinion as to the success or otherwise of the Barrage Scheme until all the figures, which had been called for by members of the Committee, were available. Previous to this criticism I had received all the figures which, to my knowledge, had been called for and I doubt if any member of the Committee has received any figures since.

3. In view of the fact that it was generally expressed during the visit that a collective Report should be submitted, I waited until the July session at Poona to give me an opportunity of approaching members on this matter. I then mentioned the question of a collective Report to most members of that Committee, but nothing further was done in the matter. Not having heard anything since, and being fully desirous of giving each member ample time to consider the suggestions I placed before them in Poona, and also to avoid any feeling that I might be attempting, to score over them by submitting, an individual Report, I have waited until now.

4. Regarding my visit to the Barrage I might say, in the first place, that misunderstandings which had been created and misconceptions raised, during Council debates, by members who, I now feel inclined to say, are not conversant with the facts or who, if conversant with them do not employ their knowledge to the best advantage—had fixed themselves to a certain extent in my mind, and I fully expected, as a result of the inspection, to be in a position to point out some serious defect in the scheme, or the management or the organisation in connection with same.

5. The tour commenced on Friday, April 22nd, with the inspection of Right Bank Wharf and Right Bank Regulators. Here it required nothing more than ordinary observation to note the difficulties which have had to be overcome, and the constant fight day and night against the enemy, the river Indus, until every pile is driven home and the huge mass of masonry completed. I came to the conclusion that the constructional work there was in very capable hands indeed and there was nothing whatever which suggested, to my mind, criticism so far as this portion of the work was concerned. On the other hand, after being down in that Cofferdam for fully two hours, nothing but praise and encouragement should be given to those, from the highest to the lowest, whose duty it was to work almost day and night to complete the construction before the river rose to the dangerous level.

6. Next the Committee members inspected the Power House and, though I am not an engineer, I certainly felt the Electric Plant was no more than necessary for the success of the huge scheme and for the comfort of those who have to live and work through the trying climate of Sukkur.

7. A visit was then paid to the Quarries on the Right Bank, the Lime Kilns and the Store Room. In connection with the Quarries and the Lime Kilns I was most impressed with the efficiency with which the material necessary for constructional work was being produced.

8. The following day took us across the river to the Left Bank, when the Regulators and Stone Dressing Plant were inspected, also the Mechanical Workshop and Store Room. Here again my impressions were that everything undertaken was by most efficient and up-to-date methods. A visit to the Quarries on this side of the river impressed me even more fully when I saw the economical manner in which those huge blocks of stone were being obtained, and conveyed on the Barrage railway to the Stone Dressing Shop. In connection with the Stores held I felt that those responsible for the supply of stores were carrying a minimum stock.

9. A tour of inspection of the townships buildings, from the officers' bungalows to quarters for menials, and a visit to the Hospital, well staffed and provided with up-to-date medical appliances necessary to deal with accidents of the most serious nature, prompts me to congratulate Government in providing adequate accommodation for the workers, and every facility for the sick, and also to congratulate the Public Works Department for a well laid out township at such a small cost.

10. Two days were devoted to the inspection of several of the main Canals, and those great Excavators at work, cutting a way through the desert land to the necessary depth and width required to carry the water of the Indus and its fertilising silt for distribution over 5½ million acres.

11. There is no doubt about it in the least, remarkable progress has been made and which reflects great credit on those engineers in charge of the work, and especially in view of the fact that men require months of training to control those Excavators efficiently.

I was indeed very favourably impressed and the questions put to officers concerned elicited answers which satisfied me every engineer engaged in this great undertaking knew his job.

12. An inspection of the Dredgers and the work they were doing satisfied me that whatever these Dredgers had cost they were doing the work most essential to the complete and successful construction of Wharves and Regulators. I do not hesitate to say that was it not for the work the Dredgers were carrying out the engineering difficulties would have been so far increased as to seriously jeopardize the successful construction of the Wharves and Regulators.

13. Previous to my visit to Sukkur I had often heard alarming rumours and disquieting statements, both in the Legislative Council and from the man in the street I have heard it said that an enormous amount of money has been sunk which will never be recovered and also that when the Barrage is erected and in use the river will be driven to change its course and the Barrage will thereafter remain simply a monument of Government's folly. I have heard these statements repeatedly in Bombay. I heard them in Karachi on my way to Sukkur and I heard similar statements even in Sukkur. It is no doubt true that the great Barrage scheme, to bring it to a successful issue, requires an enormous amount of money, but from my observations I am prepared to state at once that no scheme could have been better thought out in every detail than the Sukkur Barrage has been and that no money has been sunk which is not absolutely essential to the successful completion of the Barrage.

14. Every step in the direction of expenditure certainly appeared to me to have only been taken after full and complete consideration of every detail, and to be working so near the Project Estimates reflects, in my opinion, the greatest credit on the Chief Engineer and his officers.

15. The organisation established is, I say without hesitation, marvellous.

16. Yes ! an enormous amount of money has been sunk, but on what ? A very necessary Power House, miles of railway with the necessary rolling stock, dredgers, up-to-date quarrying and Stone Dressing Plant, Mechanical Workshops, Lime Kilns, Excavators, and a township which at least gives ordinary home comforts to those whose duty it is to live and work in one of the most trying summer climates in the world.

17. I am firmly of the opinion that when the Barrage is completed and water flows along those Canals, and when 5½ million acres of now semi-desert and desert land are irrigated, the Barrage scheme will prove to be one of the greatest, if not the greatest asset, not only to Sind alone but to the entire Presidency of Bombay and, in fact, to India generally.

18. In conclusion I would like to place on record my appreciation and thanks to those Public Works Department officers with whom I came in contact during the tour of inspection, for their extreme courtesy and their very willing assistance rendered.

Yours faithfully,
(Signed) J. ADDYMAN.

(i) Forty per cent. Europeans to be appointed by the Secretary of State in England.

(ii) Ten per cent. Indians to be appointed by the Secretary of State in England.

(iii) Fifty per cent. Indians to be appointed in India (inclusive of promotions, if any, from the Bombay Service of Engineers).

(b) This Government contemplate the complete separation of the two Branches; hence the above recommendation does not apply to the case of the Indian Service of Engineers in this Presidency. The matter is still under the consideration of Government.

(c) One or two appointments are made by the Secretary of State in England and one appointment every year (with a second one every third year) is being made jointly from the Engineering Colleges at Poona and Karachi. In addition to these, one appointment is also made every alternate year by promotion from the Bombay Service of Engineers.

	1924-25	1925-26	1926-27

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN on behalf of Khan Saheb A. M. MANSURI (Ahmedabad and Surat Cities): Will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that Mr. N. J. Tamane, Sheristedar of the District and Sessions Court of Broach, is being given repeated extensions?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: The District Judges have the power to give extensions to members of their establishments up to the age of 60 years. This is not a matter in which Government ordinarily interfere with the discretion of their officers.

(e) whether it is a fact that in the District and Sub-Courts of Broach and Panch Mahals there are only twelve and half per cent. Muslim karkuns instead of 50 per cent.?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: (a) No.

(b) Yes.

(c) There are five.

(d) 28.

(e) The proportion is about 13 per cent. The honourable member is mistaken if he supposes that Government have issued orders directing that 50 per cent. of all appointments should go to Muslims in Gujarat. The orders which he appears to have in mind include all the classes described as backward in their scope.

POSTAL WORK IN NORTHERN DIVISION

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN on behalf of Khan Saheb A. M. MANSURI (Ahmedabad and Surat Cities): Will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that postal work is not entrusted to the munshis in the Northern Division except Broach?

(a) whether they are aware of the fact that there is not sufficient accommodation for passengers in the shed both at Ellis Bridge and Dholka stations;

(b) whether they are aware of the fact that the passengers suffer a great deal of hardship and inconvenience owing to the want of sufficient accommodation at these two stations;

(c) what steps they propose to take in the matter in order to relieve the inconvenience and hardship mentioned in (b)?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: (a) Yes.

(b) and (c) The existing sheds at Ellis Bridge and Dholka stations provide accommodation 1,040 and 640 square feet in area respectively. Government are informed that it is now proposed to extend them so as to provide sufficient accommodation for passengers, and that the work will be carried out in the near future.

Mr. G. I. PATEL: May I know why work has not been proceeded with in spite of a similar reply made during the last year?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: I do not know. I require notice of that question.

Mr. G. I. PATEL: I would refer the Honourable Member to a question asked and a reply given last year in this Council. It was stated then that the work was under contemplation. Then same reply is being given now.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: I do not understand what question the honourable member is now asking.

Mr. G. I. PATEL: The same question that has now been answered by the honourable member.

(No reply).

PROMOTION OF PRIMARY TEACHERS

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN on behalf of Khan Saheb A. M. MANSURI (Ahmedabad and Surat Cities): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) how many primary teachers have been promoted to the selection grade from amongst (1) third year, (2) second year and (3) first year teachers in the Ahmedabad, Kaira, Panch Mahals, Broach and Surat districts;

(b) how many of them are Gujarati teachers and Munshis respectively in each district;

(c) whether it is a fact that in the five districts mentioned above out of hundred and sixty teachers promoted to the selection grade there are only six Munshis who are promoted to that grade?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: (a) and (b) The accompanying statement gives the information required.

(c) No. The total number of teachers from all the five districts promoted to the selection grade, was 232 out of which 14 are Munshis.

(b) 18th May 1925.

(c) The owner of the property has given notice of a suit in the District Court of Ahmedabad against its acquisition.

(d) Under section 6 of the Land Acquisition Act Government, on the 24th August 1927, issued an order for the acquisition of the property.

CIVIL HOSPITAL, AHMEDABAD: REMOVAL OF DEAD BODIES

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN on behalf of Khan Saheb A. M. MANSURI (Ahmedabad and Surat Cities): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware of the fact that the existing arrangements for carrying dead bodies from the Civil Hospital, Ahmedabad, to the burial ground are very crude and that in most cases the bodies are carried in a more or less uncovered condition through the public streets emitting foul smell;

(b) what steps they propose to take in the matter ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: (a) It is unavoidable that certain unclaimed dead bodies should give an offensive odour while being carried away from the Civil Hospital on account of the fact that some of them have been dead for some days and have been handed over by the Police for post-mortem examination. In such cases bodies are carried in hospital chudder soaked in phenyle. In other cases, bodies are handed over to relatives where such exist for burial.

(b) Government are of opinion that no action is called for.

Mr. G. I. PATEL: Is it a fact that they are carried in a more or less uncovered condition through the public streets ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahdur HARILAL D. DESAI: They are carried in a chudder soaked in phenyle.

Mr. G. I. PATEL: Am I to understand that they are not carried in an uncovered condition, as is stated in question (a) ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: Yes.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Is that chudder thrown away or used over and over again ?

(No reply.)

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Before we proceed to the next business of the day, I should like to express my very warm appreciation, on my behalf and on behalf of the Council, of the services of Mr. N. J. Wadia as the Secretary of the Council. Mr. Wadia's services have been requisitioned by Government in another Department and he is transferred. The duties of a Secretary are many and varied and by no means easy. While strictly maintaining the technicalities of the constitution, he has also to show and practise broad-mindedness and entire sympathy for the ideal which we are all striving to reach. Mr. Wadia, throughout his association with me, has exhibited that spirit to the fullest extent and has thereby gained my confidence and warmest appreciation. I am sure I shall be echoing the feelings of the House if I say that his relations with the honourable members of the Council have throughout been courteous and considerate. I take his transfer as my personal loss and, I think the loss of the Council. With these brief remarks I wish to convey to Mr. Wadia our greatest regret to part with one who was proving in every way to be an ideal Secretary. He is succeeded by Mr. Rajadhyaksha, and relying on the usual acumen and capacity of members of the Indian Civil Service, I have every hope that he will prove a worthy successor.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Sir I wish to associate myself with the sentiments expressed by you as regards the services of Mr. Wadia.

[Sir Chunilal Mehta]

PRESENTATION OF THE BUDGET

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Mr. PRESIDENT : Before I present the Budget of the Government of Bombay for the year 1928-29, I must at the outset explain that the Auditor-General has issued new rules for the exhibition of revenue and expenditure in the Government accounts with effect from next year in accordance with which recoveries up to now treated as deductions from expenditure are to be credited to their respective receipt heads. The result of this classification will be that both the revenue and the expenditure heads will be swelled to the extent of these recoveries. It is necessary to mention this for a correct appreciation of the accounts and also for the purpose of comparison with previous years. For facility of reference a new Statement F is added in the Blue Book to show items of recoveries transferred from expenditure to revenue heads amounting to nearly 24 lakhs in the next year.

2. I will first deal with the completed accounts of 1926-27. The year 1926-27 opened with a balance of 664 lakhs of which

195 lakhs was in the Famine Fund,

81 lakhs was the loan balance, and 388 lakhs was the ordinary balance.

At the time of the Budget discussion we anticipated that we should close the year with a balance of 474 lakhs, the difference between the opening and the closing balance being made up of a revenue deficit of 75 lakhs and a withdrawal from our balances on loan account of 115 lakhs. The closing balance in the accounts of 1926-27 has however been reduced to 459 lakhs of which 242 are in the Famine Fund, 57 lakhs represent our loan balances, the ordinary working balance being therefore 160 lakhs. The original revenue deficit of 75 lakhs was raised to 78 lakhs in the revised estimates as adopted in the Final issue of the White Book, without taking into account the special subvention of 28 lakhs which we received from the Government of India. We have however closed the year 1926-27 with a revenue deficit of 92 lakhs. Details of the variations between the revised estimates of 1926-27 and the accounts have been explained in the Finance Secretary's note in the Blue Book.

3. The agricultural season turned out to be considerably worse than the unfavourable anticipations already made by Government at budget time with the consequence that the collections of land revenue were the lowest on record since the Reforms. In the uncertain conditions of last year, it was difficult to frame an accurate estimate even so late as January ; and the House was informed that the situation was being carefully watched by the Honourable the Revenue Member. Suspensions and remissions were freely given, both in the Presidency proper and in Sind, the collections showing a drop of 56 lakhs. This heavy decrease gives little justification for the fear that has sometimes been expressed that the local revenue officials are merciless in their collections and relentless in screwing them up to the estimates which they have reported to Government.

4. In Excise the fall in revenue amounted to 11 lakhs below the estimate in the final issue of the White Book. Of this 8 lakhs is attributed chiefly to lower consumption of liquor, counterbalanced by an increase of one lakh under other heads, and the remainder is due to the commercial profits of distilleries for part of the year being credited to the accounts of the subsequent year, viz., 1927-28. It has now been decided that profits from commercial concerns on account of any particular year should be adjusted in Government accounts in the succeeding year. What has actually happened is that about 4 lakhs, representing nearly half the profits for the year 1926-27, were credited in that year. In 1927-28, that is in the current year, only one-half of what was anticipated will be credited; while the whole profits of 1927-28 amounting to 8·23 lakhs will go into the accounts of 1928-29. Thus in the revised estimates of the current year there is a decrease of about 4 lakhs on this account.

5. There is also a fall of 18 lakhs in Stamps owing to slackness of trade. Of these 18 lakhs, 10 lakhs is accounted for by non-judicial stamps and 8 lakhs by Court-Fees stamps. I will deal with this a little later when examining the revenue estimated under this head in next year's budget.

Scheduled Taxes also, apparently for the same reason, failed to come up to our anticipations by 2·65 lakhs. The loss is almost wholly under the Betting Tax.

We lost 11½ lakhs under the head 'XIII—Works for which capital accounts are kept; and one lakh in miscellaneous adjustments.

There were minor improvements of 2·4 lakhs in Forest due to better sales of timber: one lakh under Police, a lakh under Public Health, 3½ lakhs under receipts in aid of superannuation, one lakh in extraordinary receipts.

6. The decrease in revenue was counterbalanced by a decrease in expenditure of 51 lakhs. Almost all departments contributed to this decrease, the largest savings being under Civil Works amounting to 17½ lakhs. Administration of Justice and Forests showed small increases of Rs. 37,000 and Rs. 21,000 respectively. The increase of 1¾ lakhs under Excise was due mainly to higher cost price of opium.

7. I come now to the revised estimates for the current year and the budget estimates for next year.

Under Land Revenue there is an increase of 15 lakhs which the revenue officers hope to collect owing to the heavy arrears of last and previous years.

It is usual to give a brief review of the character of the last monsoon; but I propose to dispense with it partly because after the monsoon season is over the crops have still to pass through various risks, such as frost, locusts, and other insect pests and partly because the intensity of the rainfall and the consequent floods in Gujarat and Sind practically overshadowed everything else. Happily these risks are not of frequent occurrence but they badly upset estimates when they do occur. The serious effect on our revenue in the past year has already been referred to. In the current year the damage done by floods to Kharif crops in Gujarat and Sind was so serious that resowing was found to be necessary over a large area. In several places in Sind water stood for such a long time that even resowing was not practicable. Locusts again made an attack in Thar Parkar and Nawabshah districts.

Had conditions in Gujarat not improved after the middle of August, the prospect would have been dark indeed. It has been reported that the damage to land in Gujarat owing to silting, etc., has fortunately not turned out as serious or as extensive as originally feared and the deterioration is not likely to be permanent. 4,000 acres were reported as affected. About half of this area has been carefully inspected and surveyed and it is found that less than one-third of that has been damaged and that not badly. The classification of these lands has been lowered, on an average, by about two annas.

8. The effect on our finances owing to the unprecedented calamity of the floods was explained to the Council in October last when a demand for supplementary grant was made. The terms of free grants, tagavi advances for restoration of land and for the purchase of seed and cattle, and of loans for the reconstruction of houses are now well-known as well as the concession as to the lowering and remission of interest on tagavi and reconstruction loans. There has been, as the Council will realise, a very serious draft on our balances, both famine and other, by the provisions which have been freely made.

9. A sum of over 10½ lakhs is being spent on free grants.

For advances the Council sanctioned a sum of 80 lakhs from the Famine Fund and a sum of 63·53 lakhs from the balances.

Later figures received show that the amount required from the Famine Fund will be 85·22 lakhs of which 69·82 lakhs will be for Gujarat and 15·40 lakhs for Sind.

Under the Provincial Advance and Loan Account the total sum will amount to 71·15 lakhs of which 38·64 lakhs will be for Gujarat and 32·51 lakhs for Sind.

The excess amounts have been necessitated by the relief required in Sind where, in addition to the large sums advanced as tagavi for seed and agricultural purposes, money for housebuilding and repairing has been allotted through the Revenue Department amounting to 12½ lakhs and through Co-operative Societies amounting to 14 lakhs.

In addition to the above sums for Flood relief work, we have had to spend over 3½ lakhs for repairing roads and buildings and over 2½ lakhs for tanks and embankments: and demands for assistance have been received and are still coming in from District Local Boards. Rs. 75,000 have already been sanctioned as a grant to the District Local Boards of Hyderabad and Thar Parkar for roads. Other grants for repairs or reconstruction of school buildings have also been recently sanctioned in Gujarat and Sind.

It has been represented that village sites in a number of villages in Gujarat have been washed away, that some are in a precarious position being too low-lying and close to the river, and that it is necessary to provide new sites on a higher level. The new sites are to be laid out on modern lines. In some cases the acquisition of lands under the Land Acquisition Act is involved. It is not always easy to find suitable sites and people are very unwilling to part with their land, agricultural or other, as only some are called upon to sacrifice their lands. Government are earmarking a sum of Rs. 25,000 for this purpose. The Central Relief Committee is also contributing an equal amount. Free village sites will be provided for in necessitous cases only. Elsewhere the usual contribution will be recovered from the villagers.

Loans on such an extensive scale to a very large number of persons have not been given before in the case of those who have no agricultural land to offer as security and to whom loans cannot be granted under the Agriculturists' Loans Act. I think it will be agreed that Government should be properly secured and that they should not be in the position of ordinary lenders or be under the necessity of having recourse to law courts as in the case of ordinary mortgages. The Honourable Member, Revenue Department, proposes to introduce a Bill in the current session for the recovery of such loans as arrears of land revenue. This legislation, if passed, will place such persons on the same footing as agriculturists receiving loans under the Agriculturists' Loans Act.

10. And here I may be allowed a little digression. The manner in which the flood calamity, which was as widespread as it was unexpected, was met is a tribute to the well-known charity and public spirit of this Presidency. In a tract of comparatively light rainfall a veritable deluge descended for three or four days causing destruction to people's possessions, their food supply and their houses. Streams and rivulets became raging torrents: roads, bridges and railways were destroyed. The immediate work of relief required courage, promptness and resource. Bands of enthusiastic volunteers carried help to the distressed and the stranded, in some cases prevented possible loss of life, arranged for the conveyance of food and clothing with a cheerfulness and promptitude which excite admiration.

Business-absorbed Gujarat, till a few years ago, could scarcely boast of self-sacrificing social public work. It must be an intense satisfaction to Mahatma Gandhi that his labours for the creation of a band of selfless workers to be pioneers of missionary social activities particularly in the rural areas have met with an ample response, and that the volunteers mostly drawn from the Vidyapith should have acquitted themselves so creditably in the absence of their beloved leader in the face of an unforeseen calamity. How the mantle was at once taken by Mr. Vallabbhai Patel and with what energy he carried out his plan of work is now well-known. These workers belong to the old school of no-changers: and it is gratifying that they felt that this was no time to oppose or keep aloof from Government. I trust that their experience has not been unpleasant; and I am sure that it is only through the understanding of each other's point of view that the work both of relief and of reconstruction has been so successful and the interests of the people have not been sacrificed in an atmosphere of suspicion and bickering. It is natural that on the first occasion of joint effort like this the exact limits of executive responsibility, which every Government must observe, may not be fully understood; but on the whole it is a relief for me to say that the occasions of disagreement have been very few and that officers who have themselves striven zealously in the work of relief, have welcomed the assistance and have endeavoured, as far as they possibly could, to meet the requests of the non-official workers. It is my sincere hope that the atmosphere for missionary service created by Mahatma Gandhi will be permanent and that there will be many occasions, but not of this unfortunate character, for Government and non-officials to work for a common purpose; for it is by this alone that the true interests of the people can be properly served.

The Central Relief Fund Committee have also looked at all questions with the utmost sympathy and it is due to the joint effort of all these that relief was so promptly given and funds for reconstruction distributed on so large a scale. And I should be guilty of a serious omission if I did not refer to the courage, faith, cheerfulness and resource of the ryot in Gujarat in the face of this dire calamity. Nothing struck me more forcibly than this remarkable fact in my early visit to the affected areas.

Adequate relief has also been provided in the stricken areas of Sind. Non-official Committees tried to do their best in their different conditions and circumstances. For reconstruction of houses a great deal more is being done in Sind through the agency of Co-operative Societies, both housing and the ordinary agricultural Credit Societies, than in Gujarat.

11. Coming back to Land Revenue, it is difficult to forecast with any accuracy what the collections are likely to be a year and a half hence, since the estimates are framed by the district officers some months before the Budget is presented, and the full monsoon season has to intervene. Attempts have been made in the past to strike a sort of normal average but owing to the extensiveness of the Province while the rainfall may be normal in one division it may be very different in other divisions; and in any case the revenue in Sind depends entirely on the state of inundation which is solely controlled by the behaviour of the Indus. Estimates have to be framed with a view to past arrears and on the assumption that the succeeding year will be normal in all parts of the presidency. On this basis we have adopted for next year a figure of 538 lakhs.

12. In regard to Excise, the anticipations made last year have not been realised, the revenue having gone down from 400 lakhs to 386 lakhs. It is difficult to assign any specific reasons; but there is no doubt that consumption has gone down. Vend fees have also been affected by the experiment tried in the previous year, for the first time, of holding simultaneous auctions at all places on the same day. It is true that this experiment was abandoned in the current year; but the decision was taken so late that there was hardly sufficient time for notice of this change to reach the prospective bidders and it is quite likely that competition in the auctions was on that account less keen than it might otherwise have been. It is difficult to reconcile on any other hypothesis a drop in the Vend Fees with the theory that successive decreases in the rationed allotments lead only to less consumption because the profits of the shopkeepers are greater owing to enhanced prices. If that is really the effect, shopkeepers, assuming there is proper competition, ought to be willing to pay more for their shops and Vend Fees ought to go up.

The estimate for the next year has been placed at 391 lakhs and is 5 lakhs more than the revised estimate of the current year, though it falls short by 9 lakhs of the budgeted figure of the current year. It is hoped that the Vend Fees will improve.

The Report of the Prohibition Committee dealing with the financial aspect of the question has been submitted to Government. It raises many interesting and far-reaching questions. The Honourable Minister expects to issue orders shortly upon it.

13. In regard to our other big revenue-earning head—the Stamp Revenue—we have again to record a drop from 187 to 174 lakhs for which the unsatisfactory state of trade appears to be responsible. As the drop is substantial I have examined the figures of other Provinces to see whether any other reason can be found which can be dealt with by Government.

The Finance Member of Bengal in his speech last year stated that the fall under stamps was likely to be as much as 28 lakhs in the revised estimates of 1926-27; and he gave as the reasons general trade depression, fall in the price of jute and to some extent the effect of the riots.

That the depression in trade and commerce seems to be the cause of the decline in Stamp revenue is also borne out by the fact that it is in the industrial provinces that the estimates have declined while in the agricultural provinces there seems to have been indeed some slight improvement. Thus, Madras showed an increase of one lakh, Assam of 1¼ lakhs, Bihar and Orissa was stationary, while the decrease of 1 lakh in the United Provinces was explained by the Finance Member to be mainly due to the uncertainty caused by recent rent and revenue legislation owing to which cases were being held back. The decrease of 10 lakhs in the Punjab was in a great measure due to a reduction of taxation.

As the House is aware, in the current year the stamp duty on cheques was abolished and we have lost 1¼ lakhs being about half the revenue of the year. For next year we have estimated a revenue of 170 lakhs for stamps on the assumption that the present rates will continue. The estimate is below the revised figure for the expiring year, though one may hope for some improvement in trade after such a long spell of trade depression. The abolition of stamp duty on cheques will cost us nearly 3 lakhs in future.

[Sir Chunilal Mehta]

14. The question of the exchange of stamps in lieu of a share in the Income-tax was further considered this year at the Finance Members' Conference; but it was not possible to arrive at an agreement amongst the provinces some of whom rejected the proposals of the Government of India as constituting a major change in the Meston Settlement to which they were not prepared to agree. On the figures presented by the Government of India some advantage appeared to accrue to this Province, and we were prepared to accept the proposals under certain conditions. The sister presidency of Bengal, who has suffered under the Meston Settlement equally with us, was also likely to derive some benefit though to a much less extent; but they refused to accept the proposals in view of the appointment of the Statutory Commission who must examine the whole question of the Meston Settlement.

The objection of some provinces was that Bombay was surrendering less in Stamp revenue than she would receive by a pie-rate on the Income-tax. Under these circumstances the Government of India have held their proposals in abeyance. The Government of India and all the provinces agree that the recommendation of the Taxation Enquiry Committee that certain items of the Stamp revenue should be Central revenue must be given effect to and that the provinces should be compensated by a share of the Income-tax. It is therefore clear that it is advisable to maintain the level of Stamp revenue. The exigencies of our financial situation, as Honourable Members will easily see from the Budget, also make it essential that the existing rates of Stamp and Court Fees should be continued. The two bills will in the ordinary course be placed before the Council and I trust they will receive the approval of the House.

15. We have suffered a loss of 2½ lakhs in Forests in the revised estimates due to a fall in the price of timber and the consequent smaller realisations. The revenue under this head is liable to fluctuations but the Chief Conservator expects better realisations. The next year's estimate practically repeats this year's budget estimate at 73·94 lakhs.

Registration fees have suffered to the extent of one lakh and the lower figure of 11·94 lakhs has been adopted for the next year.

Under the head XIII-Works for which Capital Accounts are kept, we have suffered in revenue to the extent of 7½ lakhs due to a reduction in the rate of water supply in the Deccan canals for the cultivation of sugarcane, deficiency of water supply in some of the Sind canals and remissions granted to cultivators in Sind on account of damage done to crops by locusts and floods. This rate, i.e., sugarcane rate, was raised to Rs. 66 per acre: but on a careful examination of the state of the sugar growing industry and the price of gur, the rate was put back to the original figure of Rs. 45 per acre. The same figure has been adopted for next year.

We have lost 3·58 lakhs in Miscellaneous Adjustments between Central and Provincial Governments on account of the decision of the Government of India not to allow us refund of customs duties which has been a matter of contention between the two Governments. The question will still be pursued but we have taken no credit for this sum either in the revised estimate of this year or in the budget of next year. Council are aware that this decision of the Government of India adversely affects this province only as the major portion of the refunds came back to us.

There is an improvement of 6 lakhs under 'Extraordinary Receipts' on account of the sale by the Official Assignee to the depreciation fund of the Nasik and Khanapur distilleries and to the Bombay Development Sinking Fund of securities in which unclaimed dividends in his hands have been invested. As the name of this head indicates it connotes receipts which are not likely to recur and the next year's estimate has been put down at Rs. 23,000 only.

Under the head XVI-Interest, there is an improvement in the current year of one lakh due to the extraordinary receipts from the Government of India for interest on balances outstanding on account of loans in the Kathiawar Agency of three lakhs, counterbalanced by a drop in the receipts of interest from loans to cultivators and also from the Government of India on the deposits of our balances which had to be withdrawn for famine and other purposes. The estimate for next year has been reduced by nearly 7 lakhs from 109 lakhs to 102 lakhs.

16. Paragraph 3 of Secretary's note in the Blue Book shows that in the current year there is likely to be a net increase of expenditure over revenue of 12 lakhs. If we exclude the Industrial Housing Scheme and the Famine Relief transactions, the ordinary revenue in the current year is likely to fall by 26 lakhs counterbalanced by a fall in expenditure of 21 lakhs. The decrease in expenditure has been shared by most departments, the principal ones being: Irrigation 6 lakhs, General Administration 3 lakhs, Transfers from the Reserve 7 lakhs. These 7 lakhs were utilised in meeting the following additional expenditure: Administration of Justice one lakh, Forest Capital Outlay three lakhs, Other Heads three lakhs. In the current year we had provided a sum of 3 lakhs on capital outlay which was intended to be met from loan money, as mentioned in the Blue Book last year. To this head are debited principally Roads and Communications. They are distinctly revenue-earning. There are many tracts in our extensive forests where exploitation of timber is not possible without the building of roads. The returns of such extraction are likely to be several times the cost of these roads and it is consequently a legitimate charge upon loan funds. But the hard and fast rules for borrowing purposes in regard to schemes costing less than 5 lakhs of rupees prevent this being done. The question has now been taken up with the Government of India. The matter is important because not only does the restriction throw an unnecessary burden on ordinary revenues but the development and exploitation of forests will otherwise be very much hampered. It would clearly not be possible to provide from revenues money for schemes which are necessarily scattered in our various forest regions and cannot therefore come up to the 5 lakh limit. Liberal provision for amortisation should of course be made and we suggest that the period should be fixed at not more than 15 years. For the present, however, both in this year and the next the charge has been debited to ordinary revenues.

17. The net result is that we expect to close the current year with a balance of 254 lakhs as follows :—

Famine Fund	..	181 lakhs
the ordinary balance being	..	73 lakhs.

It must be remembered that, as mentioned last year, the sum of 123 lakhs invested in the Sukkur Barrage will continue to be so invested; but it will be open to us at any time to replace this sum in our balances by additional borrowing for the Barrage Construction. To all intents and purposes it is an addition to our ordinary balances.

I am sorry that a note stating this amount clearly in the Blue Book, which I had ordered to be made, has been omitted by oversight. It will be shown in the future as a distinct note.

18. Statements D and E in the Blue Book show the capital commitments of this Government and its debt charges.

It is proposed to borrow 272 lakhs for the Sukkur Barrage in the next year, which includes 14·35 lakhs for interest on the advance of 123 lakhs for three years since it was made,—the advance of the Sukkur Barrage.

Other Irrigation Schemes will cost us 24·7 lakhs.

For the Development it is intended to borrow 77 lakhs inclusive of 2 lakhs for advance to private individuals under the State-aided building Schemes and one lakh as loan to Co-operative Housing Societies. The interest and sinking fund charges for that department will amount to 92·44 lakhs out of which, as explained later, general revenues will give a subsidy of 32½ lakhs, to write off the loss on the Back Bay, the Suburban Schemes and the Housing Schemes.

For other purposes we shall require 49·91 lakhs mostly for civil works.

The total borrowings for the next year will therefore amount to 423·5 lakhs.

19. Let us analyse our debt position. Our total debt borrowings up to the end of the next year will have amounted to 28·9 crores.

Of this sum 898 lakhs, or about one-third, is for the Sukkur Barrage and is expected to be recouped by sales of land.

Thirteen crores are for the Development Department to be recouped mostly by land sales, the anticipated loss being amortised by a subvention of 32½ lakhs from the general revenues.

Expenditure on other Irrigation Works will have amounted to 244 lakhs; and this sum has to be repaid by equated payments of principal and of interest—productive on a 60-year, unproductive on a 30-year basis.

The total debt under "Other Purposes" will have gone up to 437 lakhs and is mostly for Civil Works, Public Health, Forests, etc. This amount is also being repaid by equated payments of principal and interest mostly on a 30-year basis.

[Sir Chunilal Mehta]

The total advances taken from the Government of India on behalf of the three Bodies, Port Trust, Improvement Trust and the Bombay Municipality, will at the end of the next year be as follows :—

Port Trust	..	..	..	2·5 crores.
Improvement Trust	..	..	..	4·3 „
Bombay Municipality	..	..	.	8·2 „

Excepting the loan for development taken by the corporation, in respect of the interest on which we are negotiating with the Government of India, these bodies have agreed to repay their loans in 30 years.

Under an arrangement made in 1921 for joint borrowing from the Government of India, this Government is responsible to the Government of India till these debts are discharged.

In addition there is a pre-Reform debt of 8·9 crores which is not to be redeemed and on which a favourable rate of interest is payable.

Under Devolution Rules all advances which the Government of India had made to the Provincial Governments from the Provincial Loan Account were treated as advances to the Local Government as from the 1st of April 1921, and were to carry interest at an average rate. In addition to the interest the Local Government were required to pay equal instalments spread over 12 years. In 1921 this debt stood for this province at 316 lakhs. The balance now owing by us is 132 lakhs which will be reduced to 103 lakhs at the end of the next year, that is to say, we will have repaid 213 lakhs.

20. On the 1st of April 1927 the Famine Fund stood at 242 lakhs.

In the current year, as the Council is aware, we provided an assignment of 33·60 lakhs.

Honourable Members will notice that in the next year's budget no provision has been made for assignment to the Famine Insurance Fund and that the usual sum of 10 lakhs for interest on the Sukkur Barrage debt is being met from ordinary revenues.

In 1926 at the Finance Members' Conference at Delhi the general question was raised whether the contributions to the Fund, which were fixed on the basis of 1908 figures, were not excessive in present circumstances. The Government of India examined the whole question in detail for all provinces and in September 1927 addressed a letter to the various Governments in which they said :

" The present scale of contributions fixed in rule 1 was based on the average famine expenditure in the 20 years previous to 1916. The averages for a similar period ending 1925 under greatly improved conditions due to the development of irrigation and of communications and the general advance in the well being of the community as a whole indicate that a considerable reduction could be effected in the existing scale without endangering the ability of provincial finances to meet such demands for relief as now seem likely to fall upon them."

I attach the following statement of their findings :—

Provinces	Present contribution to the Fund	Average expenditure on famine relief in years 1905-25	Highest expenditure on famine relief in any one year from 1910 to 1925	Highest amount spent in any two consecutive years since 1910	Balance at end of 1926-27 (as per Budget, 1926-27)
Madras	6·61 (4·87)	2·78	38·8	38·79	30·13
Bombay	63·60 (35·46)	9·62	40	67·25	233·55
Bengal	2·00 (1·18)	2·74	12·6	12·99	12·68
United Provinces ..	39·60 (25· 2)	16·43	35·8	54·71	14·14
Punjab	3·81 (3·79)	1·86	12·5	21·18	16·18

Assam	·10 (·07)	·09	·18	·18	·67

Note.—Figures in brackets represent that portion of the total contribution which is equal to the average expenditure on famine relief in 1896-1916. The balance represents outlay on protective measures.

The proposals of the Government of India were scrutinised by a sub-committee of the Conference in Delhi and were also fully discussed at the Conference and the unanimous opinion was that the Secretary of State should be approached to amend the Devolution Rules so that the contribution to the Fund should stand as in the following table :—

Province	Present contribution	Proposed contribution	Present minimum balance	Proposed minimum balance	Present balance in fund
1	2	3	4	5	6
Madras	6·61	3	39·6	40	30·13
Bombay	63·60	10	381·6	65	233·55
Bengal	2	2	12	12	12·68
United Provinces ..	39·60	16	237·60	55	14·14
Punjab	3·81	2	22·86	20	16·18
Bihar and Orissa ..	11·62	2	69·72	12	72·14
Central Provinces ..	47·26	4	283·56	45	189·24

The figures in columns 3 and 5 have been rounded off to suitable amounts the former represent the average expenditure on famine relief during the years 1905-25 and the latter the highest amount of expenditure in two consecutive years in the period 1910 to 1925.

One important change that has been made in the rules is that the Famine Fund, so long as it is not in excess of the prescribed limit, shall be used for direct relief only and the existing practice of meeting from it expenditure on protective irrigation shall no longer be allowed. Doubt has been expressed by the Auditor-General as to the correctness of several debits of this nature to the fund and in future its use will be strictly restricted to direct relief only. Any schemes of this nature will be placed before the Council and voted by it like any other item of expenditure. I may inform the House that every Provincial Government was anxious for reduced contribution so that a welcome relief may be given to their budget and expenditure may be released for other objects. There will also be the opportunity of a saving in interest of fr m 1¼ per cent. to 1½ per cent., since accumulations in the Fund beyond the prescribed limit may be used to replace borrowings for other purposes which would otherwise have to be found by a loan from the Provincial Loans Fund the rate for which is 1¼ per cent. or 1½ per cent. higher than that given for the Famine Fund according as it is used for productive or for unproductive purposes. I may mention that the Government of India proposed as our annual contribution to the Fund 10 lakhs and as the minimum limit of accumulations 65 lakhs; at our request these were raised to 12 lakhs and 75 lakhs respectively. The New Rules were discussed by our Finance Committee and were approved by them before the sanction of the Secretary of State was applied for.

21. Next year we propose to meet a sum of 7·9 lakhs from the Famine Fund mostly for Mr. Lowsley's establishment and his works. We are also meeting from the Fund expenditure on irrigation works amounting to 6¾ lakhs out of which 2¾ lakhs is due to floods in Gujarat and Sind while the remaining 4 lakhs will be spent towards completing the Visapur Tank, a protective irrigation work, for which this year we have already provided 5 lakhs. Mr. Lowsley's own appointment and that of his establishment has always been regarded as temporary. His special duty is to investigate how far small irrigation schemes such as bandharas, tanks, etc., are sound proposition from the irrigation and protective points of view and he is to examine feasible schemes. I trust he will have completed his investigations before long and that the schemes will be carried out as finances permit by the ordinary P. W. D. establishment in each district.

I regard the construction of minor irrigation works as fraught with the utmost possibilities of benefit to the rural population, especially in precarious tracts. Liable as our Presidency is to the frequent onslaughts of famine and scarcity, there can be no greater boon to the cultivator than the provision of water which he can utilise just when he needs it most, when the rainfall is unevenly distributed. This would make all the difference to him between a year of scarcity and one of fair crops. There was a volume of evidence before the Royal Commission on Agriculture on this subject and on the building of tals and embankments in the cultivators' fields for the conservation of moisture with the object of making even a low rainfall go a long way. There is immense scope for work in these directions and I trust that it will always be possible to find funds in the future for a well ordered and continuous policy in this regard.

22. At the Budget session last year, the Council sanctioned an aggregate sum of 23·28 lakhs on expenditure during the current year on Back Bay. By a supplementary estimate in October 1927 a further sum of 9·6 lakhs was voted by the Council.

[Sir Chunilal Mehta]

In accordance with the recommendations of the Mears' Committee, a representative Advisory Committee has been appointed. It is anticipated that the dredged filling of block I will be completed before the end of the current dredging season. Upon the advice of the Committee it is proposed to continue dredged filling next year as it is found to be considerably cheaper than dry filling.

Dry filling in Block 8 is attempted to be speeded up in order that the land may be handed over to the Military authorities as soon as possible to save interest charges; but it will not be completed by the end of May this year. A portion of the Block admeasuring 104,000 square yards has, by arrangement with the Military authorities, been handed over to them in advance of the rest as a recreation ground. The price thereof, viz., 20¾ lakhs, has been adjusted by a corresponding reduction of the loan borrowed by this Government for the Development Department during the year 1922-23.

23. The House is aware that a new head was opened in the current year for recording revenue receipts and expenditure of the Industrial Housing Scheme of the Development Department, as stated in the demand for a supplementary grant in October last. Up to the end of 1926-27 the accumulation of the Rupee per bale Cotton Cess enabled the losses on Housing to be debited to that Fund. At the end of 1926-27 there was a balance of 1·84 lakhs which was paid into the sinking fund as a prepayment and the account closed. The balance having thus been exhausted, we shall have to draw on general revenues to the extent of 3·86 lakhs this year. The real deficit is larger by 1·49 lakhs which, but for the prepayment last year, would have been paid this year. For next year we shall have to pay from general revenues a sum of 5·05 lakhs; but this sum is also short of the true deficit by ·34 lakhs which represents the balance of prepayment into the sinking fund last year. With the payment of 5·05 lakhs the total subsidy from general revenues to the Development Department will be raised to 32·55 lakhs next year.

24. The position with regard to occupancies is shown in the following table:—

Locality	No. of chawls constructed	No. of rooms provided	Tenancies (including shops)		Increase since April last	P. C. of the number of actual tenancies
			March 1927	Week ending 31st December 1927

DeLisle Road ..	32	2,560	1,855	1,887	32	73·71
Worli ..	121	9,660	1,840	2,948	1,108	30·52
Sewri ..	12	960	766	896	130	93·33
Total ..	207	16,524	5,965	8,234	2,269	49·83

[Sir Chunilal Mehta]

The numbers of tenancies for the week ending 31st December 1927 were the maximum at Naigaum, Sewri and for the total occupancies. In the fortnight that followed there was a set back of 143 tenancies owing to the Mill strike, which may perhaps be considered as temporary.

Out of the 207 Chawls constructed, 123 Chawls have been occupied of which 31 have been newly opened since April last. 84 Chawls are entirely vacant: 5 at Naigaum, of which one has been reserved for peons of the Customs Department, 4 at DeLisle Road and 75 at Worli.

In April 1927, rents at Naigaum were reduced to Rs. 7 per room on all floors and at Worli to Rs. 5 per room. At Sewri rents on top floor were raised by eight annas in August last, while those at DeLisle Road remained unchanged. Government further sanctioned a proposal that Chawls should be let en bloc at reduced rents to large employers of labour, or to Societies operating on behalf of considerable sections of the public. A special scale has been fixed for this purpose, equivalent to an inclusive rent of Rs. 4, Rs. 5-11-0 and Rs. 7-11-0 per room at Worli, Naigaum and DeLisle Road respectively. Under this arrangement, 5 Chawls have been taken over by the B. B. and C. I. Railway at Worli, one at Naigaum by the G. I. P. Railway Police, one has been leased to the Bombay Municipal Corporation for housing the menial staff of the King Edward Memorial Hospital and one has been reserved for peons of the Customs Department.

The current demand for the 8 months, April 1927 to November 1927, aggregated Rs. 4,39,900 as against Rs. 3,21,200 for the corresponding period of 1926. The outstandings on the 1st of December were Rs. 71,900 against Rs. 1,01,900 on the same date the year before.

25. The disposal of land in the Suburban Schemes has not been as satisfactory and is not on the same scale as in the previous year, as will be seen from the following table:—

Scheme No.	Land disposed of during 1926-27		Land disposed of during 1927-28 up to the 31st January 1928

I also sub-join a statement showing the percentage of developed land disposed of and the land still remaining in our hands on the 1st of February 1928.

[Sir Chunilal Mehta]

In view of the slackness of demand for land, further development work is being proceeded with very cautiously.

In the Indust ial Schemes at Kurla-Kirol undeveloped land measuring 152,500 sq. yards has been disposed of to the G. I. P. Railway for about Rs. 32,000.

26. The Kurla-Trombay Railway has been handed over to the G. I. P. Railway.

In May 1927 this Government accepted the conditions laid down by the G. I. P. Railway for working the Central-Salsette Railway, also called the Salsette-Trombay Tramway, under the Indian Tramways Act of 1886, for a period of two years only, this Government meeting the interest charges on past and future capital expended on the tramway and also expenditure required from time to time for new capital works and renewals. The G. I. P. Railway will bear the cost of ordinary revenue maintenance, subject to the Development Department meeting such expenditure during the first six months after taking over as may be incurred in completing a work which was not finished (or was in disrepair) when the line was taken over and also subject to the condition that this Government should bear the cost of exceptional maintenance charges when such charges exceed Rs. 1,000. Under this agreement the amount of future liability on account of capital expenditure to be incurred by this Government is estimated by the Superintending Engineer at Rs. 61,000 for which provision has been made in the next year's budget. The Superintending Engineer has further intimated that in addition to the amount stated above, it will be necessary to incur an expenditure of Rs. 3,200 in connection with the transfer of the Central-Salsette Railway to the G. I. P. Railway administration. The Railway has only just been started. The whole position will be reviewed after the experience of two years' working.

27. Last year it was stated in the Blue Book, that the amount of the subsidy for the Development Department, so far as the Suburban Section of its activities is concerned, was liable to change from year to year according to the forecast of the financial position of the various schemes. Judging from the rate of disposal of land and the receipts, I am afraid the subsidy of 7½ lakhs will have to be raised considerably. This question has been referred to the special Advisory Committee on Suburban Schemes; and the further amount that would be required as a subsidy to the Development Department will be settled after the consideration of the matter by the Committee.

28. A special Committee of the House visited the Sukkur Barrage last year after the Council Sessions. They went carefully over the whole works. On behalf of the Finance Department I put at their disposal the services of the Financial Adviser Mr. Dalal. One member of the Committee has sent in his remarks to Government; but the report of the whole Committee has not yet been received. Government are awaiting it with interest. Reports from the officers show that work is progressing as well as may be expected.

The anticipated expenditure for the current year is 206·7 lakhs and is 14½ lakhs more than the budgeted figure. Up to the end of 31st March 1928 we will have spent 740·8 lakhs. These figures are exclusive of interest charges which are met from capital and are as under :—

Budget 1927-28	.. ..	24·2 lakhs
Revised 1927-28	.. ..	24·8 ,,
Total up to the end of 1927-28	..	49·6 ,,

The superstructure of the canal head regulators, started during 1926-27, has been carried above flood level; the remaining superstructure has been taken in hand in the current year.

The above work involves the construction and removal of cofferdams and sumps. The cofferdams on the right bank gave considerable difficulty to close, but this has been surmounted: and it is now hoped to complete both end portions of the barrage up to flood level and remove the two cofferdams by the end of May 1928. Masonry work on the Barrage proper was started in the cofferdams on the 21st of January this year.

Disposal of lands will commence, it is expected, from next year, where rectangulation operations are well advanced.

The Honourable the General Member placed before the House last Budget session the position with regard to the estimates of the total cost. In the light of recent experience a revised recapitulation Statement is being prepared; and he will explain it to the Council who will be able to apply their mind to this question in the discussion on the Honourable Member's statement. I have heard only this morning that the revised recapitulation statement has just been received. I have not yet seen it, nor have Government had time to consider it.

29. The Council will observe that the number of new items has been strictly limited to those that are urgently necessary. They amount to :—

Charged to Revenue :	Recurring	..	2·44 lakhs.
	Non-recurring	..	5·77 ,,
Charged to Capital :	Non-recurring	..	1·35 ,,

This is merely a fraction of the proposals that were put forward by the various Departments even though they were aware that the state of our finances is such as will not permit launching out into new schemes, however useful, or incur additional expenditure however justifiable it may be. The departments have all been goaded to extreme economy and retrenchment and as last year been severely rationed. We have had to allow 4 lakhs more under Excise towards the compensation to Indian States which is an obligatory expenditure. Every department has been allowed less than in the previous year except Education five lakhs and Administration of Justice 1½ lakhs.

30. I am happy to say that it has been found possible to provide 5 lakhs more under Education (transferred) beyond the ration claimable by that department. I wish it had been possible to provide more: for the demand, especially on account of the Primary Education Act, is insistent; but I hope the Council will recognise that there is no alternative. Indeed I must extend my regret to all departments—transferred as well as reserved.

31. I am specially glad that in the new items the Honourable Minister has been able to provide a small recurring sum of Rs. 9,000 as grant-in-aid for the establishment of hostels for Depressed Classes, a scheme for which has been prepared by their representatives Drs. Ambedkar and Solanki.

Government maintain a special hostel at Poona at an annual cost of Rs. 12,000 accommodating 50 boys belonging to the backward classes (I am using the term "backward" for what is generally known as depressed). No grants-in-aid are, as a rule, given towards the expenditure on the maintenance of hostels; but as a special case Government have sanctioned for the benefit of these classes grants-in-aid on certain conditions for the hostels at Poona and Parel maintained by the Depressed Classes Mission Society. A similar grant is also sanctioned for the Hostel maintained at Nasik.

I do not think the further amount provided in the next year's budget is nearly enough; but I hope it will be welcomed as an earnest of more to come with better times.

This special provision for the education of backward classes is of course in addition to their share in the preferential facilities enjoyed by the intermediate and educationally backward classes in regard to scholarships, admission, etc., in primary and secondary Schools and arts and professional Colleges.

32. I should also like to draw attention to a small amount of Rs. 2.000 for Pensions to Government Servants in inferior service. Under the Civil Service Regulations the maximum pension admissible was Rs. 4 per month. Since 1921, this maximum has been provisionally raised to Rs. 6 per month. So far, it was not possible to do anything more as this Government had no power in the matter. Under the new Delegation Rules each Government can regulate the conditions of service of Government servants in the Provincial and Subordinate services; and under these Rules Government have now decided to remove the limit and to grant to inferior Government servants pension equal to one-half of their pay at the time of retirement. It is estimated that the ultimate recurring cost of this measure will amount to one lakh per annum ; but I am sure the House will welcome any step which improves the lot of these servants.

33. Honourable Members must be aware of the great success that is attending the admirable efforts of His Excellency Sir Leslie Wilson and of Sir Nusserwanji Wadia's Committee in providing better hospital accommodation in this city. The Scheme for the co-ordination of the efforts of Government, the Bombay Municipality and the public, in order to wipe out what was undoubtedly a blemish on the fair name of this City owing to the inadequate hospital accommodation, was explained in detail to the Council by the then Minister of Education three years ago. The Scheme was expected to cost about 72 lakhs of rupees and the share of Government in providing 300 beds in Government hospitals as against Municipal hospitals was estimated to cost one-half of the total amount or 36 lakhs. Of this, the public were to raise 18 lakhs and the Council accepted the liability of finding a rupee for rupee of the public contribution and of meeting all the recurring and maintenance charges.

In June 1926 the Surgeon General put up a scheme for the extension of the J. J. Hospital Group, in connection with the Sir Leslie Wilson Hospital Fund, costing about 29 lakhs of rupees in building and equipment spread over four years. Government shared the cost with the fund excepting a sum of Rs. 2,87,000 which was wholly borne by them, i.e., by Government as it was required for replacing existing servants' quarters. In addition to this last item Government have up to now sanctioned proposals costing 13 lakhs as Government share. These will involve a recurring liability of Rs. 3,63,000 and when the whole programme as submitted by the Surgeon-General is completed in four years from the date of commencement, the recurring liability will rise to 4·34 lakhs. Government have provided 5 lakhs in the current year and 5 lakhs next year for building grants and also the necessary recurring charges amounting to Rs. 20,000.

This is exclusive of the maintenance charges of the pavilion being built out of the bequest of the late Rao Bahadur Ellapa Ballaram, and named after him, consisting of about 100 beds which will in future involve a recurring liability of approximately Rs. 1,55,000.

34. Last year I referred to the question of the separation of Audit and Accounts, and informed the Council that the system, which was in operation in the United Provinces, was stated to have been working successfully in that Province. Since then the Auditor-General has reported that the experiment conducted in the United Provinces is sufficiently successful to warrant the investigation of its possibilities by this Government, as the Auditor-General has been much impressed by the improvement of the financial control and the closer approximation of expenditure to the budget provision. A change in this direction is more or less inevitable with the extension of constitutional reforms and the growth of financial autonomy. And if the best results are to be secured, it is desirable that the details of the separation should be worked out well in advance and the requisite additional staff recruited and trained properly before a scheme of this character is launched. On the advice of the Auditor-General, we requested the Government of India at the end of September last to depute an officer to investigate the possibilities of the scheme for this Province and he is at present working in the Accountant-General's office. The cost of this investigation will be borne by the Central Government.

I said last year that I was somewhat struck by the wide variations between the budget estimates, the revised estimates and the accounts. Another year has confirmed that experience. I do not think that the officers of Government are much to blame under the present system. These variations specially occur when abnormal circumstances intervene. When that happens, it is not possible, of course, to prevent wide fluctuations; but ordinarily a closer approximation ought to be possible. That will only be the case when Audit and Accounts are separated and we get earlier information of the income and the expenditure.

35. Mr. President, we have budgeted for a total Revenue of 15,26 lakhs and a total expenditure charged to revenue of 15,23 lakhs leaving a small surplus of 3 lakhs not taking into account the Provincial Contribution. For the current year the Honourable the Finance Member of the Government of India, in his budget speech last year, remitted the contributions from all the Provinces. So far as this Province is concerned there was a permanent remission of 19 lakhs. It is hoped that this year the rest of the 37 lakhs will be permanently remitted. If this is done, there will no longer be any contribution payable by the Provinces and the Meston Award which unduly favoured some Provinces, though it evoked strong protests from others and gave satisfaction to none, will have been carried out to the letter. To all our representations and protests for an equitable readjustment the answer has been that full effect must be given to the Devolution Rules until the whole question came to be reviewed by the Statutory Commission. With the contributions wiped out let us hope that the Government of India will be induced to take a juster view and that there will be no more lions roaring in the path of our Pilgrim's Progress towards our own estate.

In that suggestive little book "India to-morrow" published by the Oxford University Press last year, and written under the appropriate pseudonym "Khub Dekhta Age," the Meston Settlement is described as an open sore, and is placed in the forefront of the financial problems requiring attention in the enquiry into constitutional reforms. It may become a thing of the past; but with its extinction will not pass away the inequalities which it was designed to redress. Let us hope that the anomaly pointed out by the author, of the Central Government drawing so large a proportion of its financial resources from two of the Provinces, will be remedied. It is only by recognising that this Province had not a clean slate to write upon that a true appreciation will be made of its difficulties and of its wants. A just division of resources will then be possible which will enable her to free herself from the strangling bonds of stagnation and to release funds for all those nation-building activities which are clamouring to go forward and on which true progress will depend. With these words, Sir, I present the Budget. (Applause.)

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The House is adjourned to 2 p.m. to-morrow Tuesday, the 21st February 1928, for the general discussion of the Budget.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. Questions.

ROAD COMMUNICATION : SHOLAPUR TO PANDHARPUR

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN (Poona and Sholapur Cities) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) how many motor cars run every day from Sholapur to Pandharpur and vice versa ;

(b) how many motor cars run during the Ashadi and Kartiki fairs ;

(c) whether it is a fact that the motor cars with pilgrims in them cannot cross the Bhima river at Pandharpur which generally rises above the top of the causeway owing to floods at the time of the Ashadi fairs ;

(d) whether it is a fact that the pilgrims have therefore to cross the Bhima river by ferry boats during the Ashadi fair ;

(e) whether it is a fact that the motor cars with pilgrims in them on the way to and from Pandharpur have to wait very long before they are able to cross the flooded Sina river at Lamboti ;

(f) whether they are aware of these inconveniences and troubles caused to the pilgrims during the Ashadi fair ;

(g) whether they intend to take any steps to remove the present inconveniences by building bridges over the Sina and Bhima rivers ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN :

(b) About 50 to 60 daily.

(c) and (d) The high level causeway over the Bhima river at Pandharpur is liable to become impassable for motors for a few days at a time during floods. On such occasions the pilgrims have to cross the river by a ferry.

(e) When high floods occur it is necessary to cross the Sina river by ferry, and some delays to pilgrims occurred during the last monsoon owing to the washing away of the ferry. A new ferry has been ordered and will be working next monsoon.

(f) Yes, but Government do not consider the inconveniences referred to are very great and they have been already considerably reduced by the construction of a new and improved causeway at Pandharpur.

(g) Government do not consider that a high level bridge is necessary on the Bhima river at Pandharpur. The question of constructing a bridge or high level causeway across the Sina river at Lamboti is under the consideration of Government.

EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS FOR MUHAMMADANS

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD (Central Division) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the names of educational institutions maintained by provincial funds specially for Muhammadans ;

(b) the names and salaries of the staff in each of them ;

(c) the total amount of annual expenditure in connection with all these institutions ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) to (c) The accompanying statement giving the required information is placed on the Council Table.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: With regard to 1, may I ask, with regard to the remarks in the remarks column "These schools will shortly be transferred for management to the district local boards concerned," if the transfer will be for finance or for management?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: For management; and then, of course, they will be under the obligation of the finances also.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: Will the finance be conducted by the financial board?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: I should think so.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI: It is stated that these teachers get special allowance, head master's allowance, personal allowance, duty allowance, special pay, over and above the ordinary pay that they get: What are the reasons?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: If my honourable friend wants reasons for each, then I will require notice.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI: Are similar allowances given to other teachers in ordinary schools?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: Yes: they are, in some cases.

MOSQUES: TRANSFER TO MOSLEM COMMUNITY

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD (Central Division): Will the Honourable the Minister of Local Self-Government be pleased to give the following information:—

(a) The names of the mosques that have been handed over to the Moslem community at Ahmednagar in accordance with the pledge given to the House two years ago:

(b) the reasons for the delay in handing over the remainder of the mosques, especially the Kamani mosque, which is badly required by the community;

(c) what progress has been made in connection with the proposal to hand over to the Moslem community the ruins of the mosque and the compound at Nandurbar?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: (a) The mosque in the compound of the Collector's bungalow at Ahmednagar.

(b) The following four mosques are yet to be handed over to the Mahomedan community:—

(1) Mosque in which the City Police Sub-Inspector's office is located;

(2) Soneri Masjid.

(3) Mosque (Kamani) in which the Civil Jail and record office for the District Judge are located.

(4) Mosque in which the City Magistrate's office and the Collector's vernacular office, etc., are located.

Plans and estimates for constructing buildings for the offices, etc., at present located in mosques Nos. (1), (3) and (4) have been prepared and are under consideration. Plans and estimate for constructing quarters for nurses and a store room which are at present located in mosque No. (2) have been prepared, but the work has not been approved by Government owing to financial stringency. These mosques will be handed over to the Mahommedan community when the plans and estimates are sanctioned, funds allotted and the buildings are ready for occupation.

(c) On the 9th August 1926, the Honourable Member was informed that the old ruins of the Masjid and tomb in the compound of the old Mamlatdar's kacheri at Nandurbar were not used by the Mahomedans as a place of worship but they could conveniently be handed over to the Mahomedan community if they wanted to have them. As no communication has since been received from the Honourable Member no progress could be made in the matter.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: With regard to the Kaman mosque, may I ask whether that cannot be transferred for a short time at least?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: There is no established association. The Ahmednagar people have not yet fulfilled the conditions required.

23 ,, M. C. JAVLE.
24. Mr. R. K. VAIDYA.

The first consideration was the closure of country liquor shops.

Mr. Baria said that since the rationing of country liquor began in 1921-22 the consumption of liquor had gone down about 50 per cent. He said that the reduction of shops would throw the business into the hands of large capitalists. He then read the remarks of the then Assistant Collector of Excise, Ahmedabad, in paragraph 4 of his letter A/1317 of 7-5-1919 printed at page 435 of the Excise Committee's report, Volume II. The prices of country liquor in Bombay were Rs. 2-4-0 to Rs. 2-8-0 while those at Ahmedabad were Rs. 2-12-0 to Rs. 3. There should be no reduction in the number of shops.

Mr. Murzban stated that the object that the Committee should have in view must be the reduction in drunkenness. By reducing country liquor shops they would force the people to drink foreign liquor which is more injurious and harmful to the people as much inferior liquor is being imported from Germany and other places. He was therefore against closure as a rule.

Mr. Gilder states that there are many shops in places where there is no legitimate public demand.

Mr. Asawale stated that although the consumption of liquor has been reduced generally it has not gone down in the localities where the labouring classes reside, viz., E, F and G Wards. He therefore proposed that 10 per cent. of country liquor shops should be closed in E, F and G Wards.

Dr. Javle was against the reduction but in favour of widely separating shops.

Dr. Viegas thought shops should be closed by refusing all application for transfer.

Mr. Vaidya stated that there are too may country liquor shops in Bombay, e.g., on Fergusson Road and suggested a minimum distance of 200 yards between shops.

The following proposals were then put to vote and lost :—

(1) There should be a 10 per cent. reduction of country liquor shops in Bombay as a whole.
(2) There should be a 10 per cent. reduction in E, F and G Wards.
(3) There should be a 5 per cent. reduction in Bombay as a whole.
(4) No country liquor shops should be within 200 yards of another.

The members were then asked if they wished to specify any particular shops as objectionable. It was agreed that there should be no reduction in " A " Ward. In " B " Ward Mr. Asavale stated that there were five shops on Jail Road East from Noorbagh to Umarkady, and that so many shops are not required in the locality. He therefore proposed that two shops be closed out of these five shops. This proposal was put to the vote and accepted by 15 to 4.

Mr. Vaidya then proposed that country liquor shop No. 83 near the Byculla Station which is to be removed from its present site after the end of March be permanently closed. The proposal was put to vote and was carried by 10 to 4.

Mr. Silam then proposed that a shop in Kamathipura Central Road, opposite the Tuberculosis Hospital, should be abolished. This was carried by 9 to 5.

Mr. Silam then proposed that country liquor shop No. 137 should also be permanently closed. The proposal was carried by 10-5.

The meeting then adjourned till 4-30 p.m. on Saturday, 25th instant.

Minutes of the adjourned General Meeting of the Excise Advisory Committee held on Saturday, the 25th September 1926, at 4-30 p.m. at the office of the Collector of Bombay, Old Customs House, Fort, Bombay.

The following members were present :—

1 The Collector of Bombay, Chairman
2 Mr. J. ADDYMAN.
3 ,, A. N. SURVE.
4 ,, M. B. BABIA.
5 ,, D. B. PADVAL.

6 Mr. R. S. ASAVALE.

9 „ P. J. MURZBAN.
10 „ K. K. PAREKH.
11 „ VITHALDAS D. GOVINDJI.
12 Dr. K. E. DADACHANJI.
13 „ M. N. BALSARA.
14 Mr. S. L. SILAM.
15 Dr. S. S. BATLIWALA.
16 „ M. C. JAVLE.
17 Mr. R. K. VAIDYA.

The Committee passed the following resolution :—

While not making any recommendation for the reduction of specific shops or a specific number on percentage of shops, the Committee are of opinion that there are so many shops in Bombay that a reduction can be made without running the risk of creating monopolies or encouraging the substitution of foreign for country spirit. They also think that the continuance of progressive rationing makes the reduction of shops desirable. They consider that this reduction should affect shops which are in prominent localities or near Mills or places of public worship or very close to other shops. Where the question lies between any two or more shops, that shop should be closed the present licensee of which holds by himself or his relations an interest in other shops.

Advice was then invited from individual members as to what shop should be closed in their wards. Mr. Vaidya stated that in "G" Ward shops 29 and 196 were close together and owned by one man and 29 should go as 196 was a good shop. He also suggested that shops 238 and 149 (privileged shop) on Fergusson Road and 32 at the entrance of Sorab Mills should be transferred. It was decided to refer these questions of transfers to the Ward Sub-Committees for disposal.

"F" Ward

Mr. Vaidya thought that shops 221 and 33 were too close together and that shop 221 being at the entrance of Tata Mills should be closed, also that at least one of the shops in Kalachowki road should be closed.

General

It was generally agreed that three or four shops should be closed in each of the wards "C" and "E" in addition to one or two in each of the wards "B", "F" and "G" or about 11 in all.

Toddy shops

It was decided (10-4) that no toddy shops should be closed.

Time

The Committee were generally in favour of an earlier closing hour. As the present closing time of 9 p.m. had been fixed experimentally they were not in favour of making it still earlier at present (10-6). They were of opinion that no ill results had come from that alteration of the hour from 9-30 to 9 p.m.

Mr. Silam thought that it would be preferable to open the shops at 6 a.m. and close them at 6 p.m.

Strength

Mr. Baria was in favour of increasing the strength of country liquor to make a better competition with foreign liquor.

Eventually it was decided by 9-6 to recommend no alteration.

Refreshment Rooms

Mr. Murzban proposed that the closing time of Refreshment Rooms and Hotels be allowed to remain as it is at present.

Mr. Gilder moved an amendment that the ordinary refreshment rooms be closed at 9 p.m. and the Hotels be allowed to serve liquor up to 11 p.m as hotels only catered for the well-to-do while refreshment rooms often simply sold drinks without food or with a near pretence of selling food. This proposal being put to vote was carried by 9-4.

Mr. Baria then proposed that there should be no reduction in the number of foreign liquor shops and Mr. Chowna seconded.

Mr. Asawale moved an amendment that 5% of foreign liquor shops should be closed, Mr. Silam seconding this statement.

The amendment being put to vote was lost, 6 being in favour and 9 against.

Mr. Baria's proposals that no foreign liquor shops should be closed was therefore carried.

Collector and Chairman, Excise Advisory Committee.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: (a) Nine.

(b) One crossing, viz., a vented causeway at Savroli near Khalapur.

(c) Negotiations are still going on with the Tata Hydro-Electric Power Supply Company.

(b) Information regarding elected and nominated members excluding officials is contained in the accompanying table. Information with regard to nominated officials is not given because on account of their transfer an officer of a particular caste is succeeded quite frequently by another officer of a different caste.

SCHOOLS, MALWAN : ADMISSION TO CLASSES

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that boys admitted to a certain standard in the high school and middle school at Malwan after they are duly examined by the school authorities are made to sit in the lower standard by the authorities of the Educational Department ;

(b) whether it is a fact that some of the boys had passed their vernacular final examination and completed their three standards in one year ;

(c) whether some boys examined by even such a qualified person like Mr. Parulekar, the headmaster of the Desai High School, and admitted in standard IV are made to sit in the III standard ;

(d) whether they are aware that such interference on the part of the educational authorities causes great hardship to the students especially of the backward classes ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) to (c) Yes.

(d) Managers are often found to be slack in the admission of boys. The educational inspecting authorities have therefore to interfere with a view to preventing such slackness and have to investigate particularly the cases of boys coming from unrecognised schools. In the present case, out of the 15 boys admitted to a lower standard, only one was of the backward class.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Does the Honourable Minister mean by " backward classes " the depressed classes or the Marathas and allied castes ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : As ordinarily understood.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : It is not stated here what is ordinarily understood ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : It is true that the backward classes also include the depressed classes.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM : Are depressed classes included in the backward classes ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Yes ; they are.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : Are the intermediate classes included in the backward classes in the answer given ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : No.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Has the Honourable Minister got the information by collecting statistics ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : The information has been given for this purpose.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : My information is that the number of the Maratha and allied caste students was 14, while the depressed class student was only 1.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Perhaps the honourable member's information may be incorrect. Mine is correct.

SHAPURJI BHARUCHA MILLS : ASSAULT ON MANAGER

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether their attention has been drawn to the death of the Manager of the Shapurji Bharucha Mills on the 6th September 1927 ? If so, will they make a statement narrating the events which led to the sad occurrence ;

(b) whether their attention has been drawn to the police and newspaper reports that the Manager of the Mills wanted to dismiss without notice no less than 200 women workers and had brought the new workers into the mill compound before he asked the Naikin of the old workers to quit the mill premises ;

(c) if so, whether such a practice of summary dismissal of workers is common in the textile mills in Bombay ? If they have no information, will they collect it and place it on the Council table. If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : (a) and (b) Government have no information beyond what was reported in the Press.

(c) It was observed during the recent enquiry regarding fines conducted by the Labour Office that the rules of several textile mills provided for the summary dismissal of the workers for certain offences, but it was stated that in practice this form of punishment is rarely inflicted.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Is the statement " in practice this form of punishment is rarely inflicted " made on the basis of any statistics ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : I am not prepared to give a definite answer to that question, but I should think not ; it must be based on the general reports that the Labour Office may have received.

Mr. G. I. PATEL : Does the Honourable Member know that statistics are already printed in the Labour Gazette ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : I do know that.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM : May I know whether the enquiry was made just after Government knew of this matter or after the question was submitted to them ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Which enquiry ?

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM : The answer says " It was observed during the recent enquiry "..... .

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : The honourable member must read the second part of the question.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM : But I would like to know whether the Government have made any enquiry regarding the question asked.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : If my honourable friend sees, he will find that the two parts of the question are rather different. The first is in connection with the death of a mill manager ; the second part of the question is with regard to the enquiry made by the Labour Office some time ago.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM : I refer to the first part of the question.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : The first part of the question is answered by saying " Government have no information beyond what was reported in the press." That is to say, the press had the complete information, so far as Government are aware.

Mr. G. I. PATEL : Is it not a fact that the Government of India instituted the enquiry and after receiving reply from the local Government the information was printed ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : I do not quite follow the honourable member.

Mr. G. I. PATEL : The enquiry was made by the Government of India and the opinions were already collected by the local Government ; and is it not a fact that they were printed in the Labour Gazette ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : I think those facts as stated are correct, as far as I understood them.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : May I know the figures given in the " Labour Gazette ?"

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : I am afraid I cannot carry the " Labour Gazette " in my mind. The honourable member can see the " Labour Gazette " for himself.

IRRIGATED VILLAGES IN THE DECCAN : SALE PRICES

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI (Kaira District) : Will Government be pleased to state the maximum and minimum sale price per acre as recorded in the record of rights of villages irrigated by the Nira, Pravara and Godavari canals during 1924-25, 1925-26 and 1926-27 ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : The accompanying statement furnishes the information required.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : Are they all sugarcane villages ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Yes, I think so.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : Is Rs. 40 and so on charged for irrigation fees on these lands ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Not necessarily. Some of the lands are obviously very inferior, judging by the sale prices, and they would not be under sugarcane cultivation.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the names of talukas in the Presidency in which the announcement of revision survey rates was made in July 1926;

(c) whether Government have cancelled Government Resolution No. 1447 dated 27th February 1901;

(b) the names of talukas in which the remission of these new rates was written off after such an announcement and also the names of those talukas in which such remission was not written off?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: (a) The accompanying statement furnishes the information required.

(c) Yes. The old practice of introducing a new settlement before the land revenue of the year of introduction was collected and then "remitting the increase (if any) over the old rate has now given place to the more convenient and rational method of waiting till after the instalments of the year of introduction have been collected and then making the introduction. Thus there is no excess to "remit." If however the new rates are lower than the old, the excess collections are refunded by deduction in the ryots accounts. These refunds have been made in four talukas of the Panch Mahals district in cases in which the new rates were lower than the old ones.

(b) This remission was granted in all talukas without exception.

Note.—In these inam villages the original settlements are still current, and have not been revised, because partial measurement and classification is necessary owing to the original settlement being very old. As this would take time, provisional settlements have been introduced whenever so desired by the inamdars.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE: As regards the answer to (b), may I know whether the various inamdars in the villages, to which these provisional temporary settlements have been applied, had applied to Government for such application ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: Yes, that is a fact.

KARAD MUNICIPALITY: WATER WORKS

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that Government at one time asked the Karad municipality to take up the water works in their possession;

(b) if so, why were the water works not handed over to the municipality then;

(c) whether Government have now asked the municipality to hand over their ownership of the water works to them (Government);

(d) whether before any settlement is arrived at the municipality has been asked to pay the charges of water on the assumption that the work belongs to Government?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: (a) and (b) It was the intention of Government to hand over the works to the Municipality on completion and with that end in view the Municipality was asked in 1920 to engage an adequate staff. This the Municipality failed to do, and Government, therefore, continued to manage the works.

(c) In 1920 the Karad Municipality was offered the alternative either to purchase water at 5 annas per 1,000 gallons (revisable after 10 years), Government to retain control over the works, or to take over the water works on re-payment to Government of the amount of the loan plus interest and agreeing to maintain a depreciation fund.

(d) Yes, pending the decision of the question by the Municipality.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE: As regards the reply to (c), may I know whether the same conditions were repeated in 1925?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: I want notice.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE: Is the year 1920 correct or is it 1925?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: As far as I remember it is 1920?

PUNITIVE POLICE: KUNDALWADI

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether Punitive Police were imposed on Kundalwadi, a village in the Walva Taluka, District Satara;

(b) whether it is a fact that the charges incurred are collected from persons who do not reside at the village and who earned their livelihood by Government service;

(c) whether it is a fact that one Madhav Vishnu Kulkarni has been held liable for the payment of the Punitive Police charges simply because his father had landed property at Kundalwadi and that he was a member of the undivided family though the son had definitely stated that he was divided and lived separately from his father;

(d) whether it is fact that the said Kulkarni's pay was held liable for the Punitive Police charge?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : (a) Additional police were posted at the village of Kundalwadi in the Walva Taluka of the Satara District under section 25 of the Bombay District Police Act, IV of 1890.

(b) The charges incurred were ordered by Government, under section 25 (2) of the said Act, to be collected from the male adult inhabitants of the village of Kundalwadi with the exception of those specially exempted by Government. For the purposes of such recovery the word " inhabitant " has been defined in the explanation to clause 2 of section 25 of the Act, and the charges were collected according to their share from all male adults who by themselves or by their agents or servants occupied or held land or other immoveable property at Kundalwadi notwithstanding that they did not actually reside in the village and earned their livelihood by Government service or otherwise.

(c) Madhav Vishnu Kulkarni has been held liable for a share of the charges because he is a member of an undivided family which holds land in Kundalwadi. He failed to claim exemption during the period of one month allowed by a public notice issued by the District Magistrate, Satara, in April 1926, for objections. At a later date he applied to the District Magistrate for exemption on the ground that he held no land in the village, but he failed to prove that he was not a member of the undivided family which owns the land.

(d) The pay of Madhav Vishnu has not so far been made liable for the additional police charges.

Dr. M. D. GILDER: In spite of the fact that there were nine European and Anglo-Indian sisters attached to the Goculdas Tejpal Hospital, will the Honourable the Minister for Education be pleased to state why four European and Anglo-Indian sisters were again appointed? Is it because no Indian sister has been found to be fit to be appointed to this hospital?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: I will inquire.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: When this amount was sanctioned, did not the Honourable Minister give an undertaking that he would make every effort to appoint Indian sisters ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: Yes.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: What efforts were made then for the fulfilment of that undertaking ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: I will find out and, if the question is asked, will give an answer.

(b) whether there is any difference as regards eligibility for resident appointments (formerly called registrarships, now named house physicianships, etc.), between the male and female students after graduation ;

(c) whether he is aware that such resident appointments are considered very valuable for post-graduate training ;

(d) whether it is a fact that no female students have been given any of these appointments within the last four years ;

Dr. M. D. GILDER: My question in (b) referred to resident appointments.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: It was not understood in that sense.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: Does the Honourable Minister exercise his own mind in deciding such matters ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: Yes, as usual.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District): Will Government be pleased to state--

(d) the number of students who read Marathi at the college in B.A. and M.A. classes since the appointment of the Marathi professor was made;

(e) the corresponding numbers for Gujarati and Marathi at the same college?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: (a) The answer is in the negative.

(b) Yes.

(c) Yes.

(d) and (e) The subjoined statement gives the information required :—

Year	Number of students reading
	Gujarati		Marathi
	M.A.	B.A.	M.A.	B.A.
1921-22	2	5	..	5
1922-23	2	9	1	7

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : Have Government decided to abolish the post of the professor of Marathi ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Yes, the students will have to go to another college.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : And not the post of Professor of Gujarati ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Because the number of students for Gujarati is more.

IRRIGATION TANKS : HIRE-KERUR TALUKA

Rao Bahadur S. T. KAMBLI on behalf of Mr. V. N. JOG (Dharwar District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) how many irrigation tanks there are in the Hire-Kerur Taluka of the Dharwar District and how many of them are first class and how many second class ;

(b) what is the irrigation revenue as distinct from land revenue in the Taluka and what is the land revenue as such ;

(c) how many tanks are in repairs and how many are out of repairs ;

(d) what steps are taken or proposed to be taken to put the latter in good repairs ;

(e) whether it is a fact that several tanks in the said Taluka were damaged long ago, and are not repaired and do not hold water sufficient for wet crops ;

(f) whether they are aware that several rayats below the tanks in the taluka have ceased to raise Tari-crops though their lands are assessed at Tari-rates which they have continued to pay, though they do not get sufficient water ;

(g) whether they intend to take early and adequate measures to put the tanks in good repairs ;

(h) if they cannot do so in the near future, whether they intend to convert the Tari-rate into dry crop assessment on such lands as do not get sufficient water ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : (a) There are in all 579 irrigation tanks in the Hire-Kérur Taluka of which only one is first class and 578 are second class.

(b) As the water issued from the first class tank for irrigation is assessed at crop rates, the irrigation revenue from this tank varies every year. The irrigation revenue and the land revenue during the year 1926-1927 amounted to Rs. 1,922-13-2 and Rs. 1,193-7-3 respectively. The revenue derived from lands irrigated by second class tanks is as under :—

Irrigation share			Land share
Rs.	a.	p.	Rs.	a.	p.

(c) and (d) Out of 579 tanks mentioned above applications from ryots for certain repairs in case of only 44 second class tanks have been received. The remaining tanks are in good order. Plans and estimates for repairs of some of the tanks have been prepared and those for others are under preparation. The repairs will be taken in hand and completed as soon as possible.

(e) and (f) This is not correct except in the case of three tanks under which Tari-crops have ceased to be grown. The present condition of these tanks is mainly due to the fact that the irrigators have not fulfilled the obligation to carry out petty repairs imposed on them by section 84 of the Bombay Irrigation Act.

(g) The Irrigation Department is taking every possible care to repair tanks whenever any complaints are received from the ryots.

(h) Does not arise.

VILLAGE OFFICERS : RECEIPTS

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that village officers do not pass any receipt for applications for copies of village records made to them or for documents presented before them for entering in the record of rights ;

(b) if so, whether they are aware that poor ryots suffer on account of this practice on the part of the village officers, and whether they intend to take steps to remedy the grievance ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) The orders are that receipts for documents presented for entry in the Record of Rights should be given when asked for. It is not the practice to give receipts for mere applications for copies.

(b) Government are not aware of any specific complaints on the subject, but they are considering what action, if any, can be taken to ensure so far as possible that copies are given promptly and without any illicit charge being made.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : Why are not receipts given without being asked for ? Is it necessary for the ryots to ask for receipts ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I do not see any necessity ; if the person presenting the document does not require a receipt, why should a receipt be given ?

MUNICIPAL TECHNICAL SCHOOLS

Rao Bahadur S. T. KAMBLI (Dharwar District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the names of municipalities which maintain technical schools in the Presidency ;

(b) the nature and quality of instruction given in each of such schools ;

(c) the annual maintenance charges of each of these schools ;

(d) the capital cost or non-recurring cost incurred when each of these schools was started ?

The Hononurable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a), (b), (c) and (d) The appended statement gives the information required.

Rao Bahadur S. T. KAMBLI : Are any grants made to any of these municipalities for technical instruction ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I require notice of that question.

TIGER AT RUSTOMPURA

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN on behalf of Khan Saheb A. M. MANSURI (Ahmedabad and Surat Cities) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether their attention has been drawn to the fact that of late a tiger has been visiting the village of Rustompura, Thasra Taluka,

Kaira District, at night and has carried away several she-goats and sheep after killing them on the spot and has also killed several dogs and one bull ;

(b) whether they are aware that this has caused great panic amongst the villagers who are afraid to stir out at night ;

(c) what steps they propose to take in the matter ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : (a) Government are informed that about April last a panther visited the village of Rustompura and killed three goats, two calves and one pony. Mr. Maxwell, the then Collector of Kaira, and Mr. Gidney, the then Excise Superintendent, Kaira and Panch Mahals, visited the neighbourhood and endeavoured to shoot it, but were not successful. The animal then disappeared. No alarm of uneasiness now exists.

(b) and (c) Do not arise.

BOMBAY MEDICAL SERVICE : APPOINTMENT OF MOSLEMS

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN on behalf of Khan Saheb A. M. MANSURI (Ahmedabad and Surat Cities) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the Surgeon General with the Government of Bombay maintains a register of applicants for the Bombay Medical Service. If not, why not ;

(b) the total number of posts in the Bombay Medical Service and how many of them are occupied by Moslems ;

(c) whether it is a fact that though the number of Moslems in the Bombay Medical Service is far below what is required by the Government Resolutions, two Hindus of the advanced classes, Messrs. K. B. Lele and R. H. Hiranandani, M.C.P.S., have been taken up in May 1927. If so, why ;

(d) whether the vacancy, created by the death of Dr. Petigara, has been filled up by Government ;

(e) whether the vacancies that are to be created by the retirements of Drs. Shikhare and Cordeiro in January and June 1928 will be advertised for being filled up ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) Vacancies in the Bombay Medical Service are filled up (1) by direct recruitment and (2) by promotion of selected Subordinate Medical Service officers of approved service and qualifications. In the case of (1) the vacancies are invariably advertised and hence it has not been considered necessary to maintain a register of applicants.

(b) 58 (56 permanent and 2 temporary) of which 2 are held by Moslems.

(c) The appointments of Messrs. Lele and Hiranandani were not made by direct recruitment but in pursuance of the policy of Government of promoting to the Bombay Medical Service a certain number of selected Subordinate Medical Service officers of approved service and qualifications.

(d) It is not proposed to fill up this vacancy as one post in the Bombay Medical Service has recently been abolished.

(e) Rao Bahadur Shikhare's vacancy is not proposed to be filled up as one of the lecturers' posts at the B. J. Medical School, Poona, reserved for the Bombay Medical Service has recently been abolished and it is doubtful also whether Mr. Cordeiro's vacancy will be advertised, as there is likely to be a further reduction in the number of Bombay Medical Service posts owing to the contemplated withdrawal by Municipalities of Bombay Medical Service officers from their dispensaries.

SALE OF CERTAIN SURVEY NUMBERS OF VADRAD, TALUKA PRANTIJ

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN on behalf of Khan Saheb A. M. MANSURI (Ahmedabad and Surat Cities): Will Government be pleased to state-

(a) what action has been taken by them regarding survey numbers 632, 634, 635, 636, 637, 638, 639, 647, 648, 649 of Vadrad, taluka Prantij, whose re-auction has been ordered by the Commissioner, Northern Division;

(b) what action has been taken against the Circle Inspector concerned for his suspicious conduct in connection with the sale of the above survey numbers;

(c) whether the sale was found fraudulent and benami;

(d) in whose possession the said survey numbers are at present;

(e) whether they will be pleased to place on the Council table the papers relating to the sale of the said survey numbers?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: (a), (c), (d) and (e) Replies have already been given.

(b) The Circle Inspector's conduct in this transaction was considered suspicious. No legal action was, however, considered desirable as the charge against him had not been definitely proved, but departmental action was taken. The Circle Inspector is a permanent Talati and was only acting as a Circle Inspector in the present appointment. As a punitive measures, his claim to confirmation in a vacancy of Circle Inspector was passed over. The Circle Inspector has since been transferred from Prantij Taluka to North Daskroi Taluka.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: If the conduct of the Circle Inspector was considered suspicious, why was no legal action taken against him?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: No prosecution was instituted, because nothing could be proved in a court of law, but departmental action was taken.

TRAINED TEACHERS, SURAT DISTRICT

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK (Surat District): Will Government be leased to state—

(a) the percentage of trained teachers to the total number of teachers in the local board schools of the Surat district;

(b) whether Mafi-certificated teachers who have not studied in the training college are included in the percentage of trained teachers;

(c) if so, the reasons for including them in the class of trained teachers;

(d) the percentage of trained teachers who have actually undergone training in training schools and colleges?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: (a) 57 per cent. for all kinds of teachers (Urdu, non-Urdu and women) on the basis of figures as they stood on 31st March 1927.

(b) Yes.

(c) It was the practice to award the maphi or the First year concession certificate to untrained teachers for their continuously approved service of ten years and over. These teachers have been treated as equal to regularly trained First year teachers for all practical purposes, and are, therefore, included in the class of trained teachers. The practice of issuing this kind of certificate has, however, been discontinued since 1923.

(d) Forty-eight per cent.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI: Why was this practice discontinued?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: Because it was considered that only those who are regularly trained should be considered as trained teachers.

PRIMARY EDUCATION, SURAT DISTRICT

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK (Surat District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the items of expenditure incurred from the saving of 23 teachers reduced from the total staff of the Local Board Primary schools of the Surat district after the passing of the Primary Education Act of 1923, so as to show how the savings were totally utilised;

(b) whether they are aware that the total recurring and non-recurring expenditure of the local board primary schools of the Surat district has been gradually going down after the year 1923-24;

(c) if so, the reasons therefor?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: (a), (b) and (c) The statement placed on the table will show that no reduction has been made in the total number of posts of teachers in the Local Board Primary Schools of the Surat District after the passing of the Primary Education Act, 1923, and that except during the year 1925-26, there was no decrease in the recurring expenditure of the Local Board Primary Schools of the Surat District. The decrease in the recurring expenditure during that year was mainly due to the retirement and death of some highly paid teachers and their places being filled by fresh trained or untrained teachers. The decrease in non-recurring expenditure is due to less provision for original works and special repairs owing to want of sufficient educational balance with the District Local Board.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: Is the Honourable Minister aware that the district local board of Surat had a large surplus balance at its disposal before the Compulsory Primary Education Act was passed?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: I am not aware of it.

POLICE STATION, SILAVTA PARA, HYDERABAD

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED (Hyderabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that the police outpost, situated in Silavta Para of the town of Hyderabad, is going to be rebuilt, remodelled or is in any manner to be altered or extended;

(b) if the reply be in the affirmative, what will be the total expenditure on this rebuilding, remodelling, alteration or extension and under what authority and under whose sanction is such expenditure going to be incurred;

(c) whether it is a fact that the expenditure on the above is to be incurred almost immediately?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: (a) The police outpost in Silavta Para is being rebuilt. The new building will include quarters for a Sub-Inspector of Police as well as a police station.

(b) The total expenditure will amount to Rs. 9,966, which has been sanctioned by Government.

(c) The expenditure is being incurred during the current financial year.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED : Was the sanction of the Council obtained for incurring this expenditure ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : I presume it was included in 41—Civil Works. I shall have to get notice of that question.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED : I ask you, Sir, whether the honourable member can demand fresh notice from me for this question. Part (b) of the question clearly asks " if the reply be in the affirmative, what will be the total expenditure on this rebuilding, remodelling, alteration or extension and under what authority and under whose sanction is such expenditure going to be incurred."

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : It has been sanctioned by Government. I have not got the detailed information here. I did not expect to be asked this question. The ordinary procedure has been observed in connection with this work, and there is no reason to suppose that there has been anything irregular.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED : Pending the decision of Government whether this is a new item or not requiring the sanction of this House, do Government intend to stop the further construction of this work ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : No, there is no intention to do so, but if the honourable member desires to have further information, if he gives me further notice, I will enquire into it.

" MOTHER INDIA : " ASSISTANCE GIVEN BY BOMBAY GOVERNMENT

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they gave any assistance to Miss Mayo in the production of her book " Mother India," and, if so, what was the nature of that assistance ;

(b) whether any of their officers in the Secretariat or in the Districts gave her any such assistance ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : (a) and (b) No.

EDUCATION MINISTER : CANCELLATION OF SIND TOUR

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District) : Will the Honourable the Minister of Education be pleased to state the reasons which led him to cancel his tour to Sind fixed for November 18 onwards ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : On return to Bombay after the tour to Sholapur, Bijapur, Hubli, Dharwar, Belgaum, Karad and Satara, important work at the Head Quarters of Government made it inadvisable to allow of a fortnight's further absence on tour to Sind.

OFFICERS : PREMATURE RETIREMENT SINCE REFORMS

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District) : Will Government be pleased to lay on the council table a statement showing—

(1) the names of the European officers who have retired prematurely since the introduction of the reformed constitution in 1919 ;

(2) the cause or causes that led to such premature retirement in each case ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Government regret they are not prepared to furnish the information asked for.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : Why do Government regret ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Because it is confidential.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Is the information asked for in part (1) of the question, regarding the names of the European officers who have retired, also confidential ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : I think the names are confidential.

KALYAN CREEK : CLEARING AND WIDENING

Mr. SHANKARRAO JAYARAMRAO ZUNZARRAO (Thana and Bombay Suburban Districts) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware that in the Thana District the Kalyan Creek which receives water from the rivers Ulhas, Bhatsa and Kalu swells in the rainy season and causes heavy damage to the houses, fields and cattle of the town of Kalyan and the surrounding villages of the Kalyan and Bhiwandi talukas and to trade in general ;

(b) if the reply is in the affirmative, what steps they have thought of taking for preventing the same ;

(c) if the reply is in the negative, whether they propose to look into this question of such vital importance ;

(d) whether it is a fact that the place known as Gaimukh Bundar between the Bassein and the Salsette talukas has been choked up on account of the getting in of the hills on both the sides hard by, and thus causing an obstruction to the free passing of the monsoon flood water and the tide water ;

(e) whether they have considered the question from an engineering point of view and, if not, whether they propose to do so ;

(f) whether they are aware of the fact that in the high floods of 1921 many houses, cattle, men and goods were carried away, and if so, whether they have taken any steps for preventing a recurrence ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : (a) In the rainy season the water level in the Kalyan Creek rises, but only in years of abnormal rainfall is the height sufficient to cause damage to the town of Kalyan and the surrounding villages and to trade in general.

(b) and (c) During abnormal floods, which occur once in several years, some damage is liable to occur as is the case in many other places. The matter is, however, being further investigated.

(d) No.

(e) Government are doing so.

(f) No definite information is available as to the extent of damage caused by the heavy floods in 1921. See replies to (b), (c) and (e) above.

COTTON CULTIVATION, SURAT DISTRICT

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK on behalf of Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI (Surat District): Will Government be pleased to state, for each taluka of the Surat District—

(b) the date when the first picking of cotton takes place in each of the talukas;

(d) whether it is a fact that the cultivators of some of the talukas find the present arrangement of instalments inconvenient;

(e) whether the cultivators of Jalalpur taluka have through their "Khedut Mandal" asked for the postponement of the dates of revenue instalments by about a month;

(f) if so, what have Government decided in this matter?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: (a), (b) and (c) The accompanying statement furnishes the information required.

(d) There has been no complaint from any of the talukas except Jalalpur.

(e) Yes.

(f) The date of the first kharif instalment has recently been changed from 5th January to 5th February in Jalalpur taluka.

PRIMARY SCHOOL, SATEM VILLAGE

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK on behalf of Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI (Surat District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether there was a Government Primary School in Satem village in Jalalpore Taluka in the Surat District;

(b) the year in which the school was opened;

(c) when was the school closed and why;

(d) what was the number of pupils in this school when this school was closed;

(e) what is the population of the village;

(f) how many pupils would attend the school if the school is re-opened;

(g) whether the people of the village have petitioned for re-opening the school;

(h) what decision Government have come to on this petition;

(i) if Government have decided to re-open this school, from what date will the school be re-opened;

(j) if Government have decided not to re-open the school, what are their special reasons for refusing to re-open the school?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: (a) No, there was a Local Board school in the village.

(c) It was closed on 1st April 1922 on account of non-co-operation.

(f) 50 pupils as estimated in March 1927.

(g) Yes.

(h), (i) and (j) The school cannot be re-opened because the District Local Board, Surat, refuses to bear its own share of the additional expenditure involved.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: Further, I have to say that a short time ago the school has been opened.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: The reply is that the school cannot be re-opened because the District Local Board, Surat, refuses to bear its own share of the additional expenditure involved. Has the District Local Board now agreed to agree to the conditions laid down by Government?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: I cannot say definitely now under what terms the school has been re-opened.

OVARAS FOR TANKS, SURAT DISTRICT

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK on behalf of Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI (Surat District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that in most villages in the Surat District where there are tanks they are used for watering their cattle by the village people;

(b) whether it is a fact that the embankment of the tank gets weakened and broken if there is no Ovara (pacca slope) for cattle to go to the tank;

(c) whether it is a fact that as a result of this the cost of the repairs to the tank is greatly increased ;

(d) have Government considered the advisability of constructing such Ovaras ;

(e) if so, what decision have they arrived at ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : (a) Yes. It is presumed the Honourable Member refers to the 2nd class irrigation tanks in charge of the Public Works and Revenue Departments.

(b) and (c) Not if the obligation regarding repairs imposed on the villagers by section 84 of the Irrigation Act is regularly and punctually fulfilled by them.

(d) and (e) If the villagers give timely attention to repairing the bund, Government do not consider pacca Ovaras to be necessary and they would be most expensive.

TALATIS' CHARGES, SURAT DISTRICT

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK on behalf of Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI (Surat District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that the distribution of villages in the Surat District into Sazas (talatis' charges) has not been made on a system and scientific basis ;

(b) whether in fact there is no system underlying this distribution which has been made in a haphazard manner ;

(c) whether it is a fact that as a result some talatis have too much work and others too little work ;

(d) whether they propose to distribute the villages into Sazas on some systematic basis ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) and (b) It is not a fact.

(c) No.

(d) Does not arise.

DOLIYU TANK, RANKUVA VILLAGE

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK on behalf of Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI (Surat District) : Will Government be pleased to give the following information about the Doliyu Tank in the village of Rankuva in the Taluka of Chikhli in the Surat District—

(a) the area of the tank ;

(b) the area of the land assessed to it for Himayat ;

(c) the Himayat assessment on the tank ;

(d) whether the embankment of the tank is in good condition ;

(e) the number of pipes on the tank and the condition in which each is at present ;

(f) whether the tank is at present deep enough ;

(g) when was the tank last repaired, what repairs were done to it at the time and what was the amount spent on those repairs ;

(h) what is the condition of the tank at present ;

(i) have complaints been received from the people about this tank ;

(j) have Government decided to put this tank in a good state of repair ;

(k) if so, when will they repair the tank, and what repairs will be done to the tank, and how much amount will be spent on these repairs ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : (a) 27 acres 6 gunthas.
(b) 71 acres 23 gunthas.
(c) Rs. 135-2-10.
(d) Yes, the bund of the tank is in fairly good order.
(e) There are two pipe outlets, 6" diameter. They require overhauling. Water can be taken at present through them for irrigation.
(f) Yes, the tank holds sufficient water for irrigation purposes.
(g) It was last repaired in 1918-19 at a cost of Rs. 255. The repairs consisted of renewals of outlets.
(h) On the whole the tank is in fairly good condition.
(i) Yes.
(j) and (k) Plans and estimate for the necessary repairs to the tank are under preparation. The repairs, which will approximately cost Rs. 1,150, will consist of (1) raising the bund where necessary, (2) overhauling the existing outlets and (3) repairs to the abutments and wings of the waste weir.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : It is stated that the plans and estimate for the necessary repairs are under preparation. When will the repairs be carried out ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : I am afraid I cannot give a definite answer to that, but most probably it will be as soon as the plans and estimates are ready, and the money being available, it is sanctioned.

PRIMARY SCHOOLS IN GOVERNMENT CHARGE : GOVERNMENT POLICY

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK on behalf of Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI (Surat District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) what is their policy with regard to primary schools so long as they continue to be in their charge ;

(b) what are the reasons of Government for refusing to open primary schools in villages where a sufficient number of pupils is forthcoming ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) In the absence of a clear indication of the particular matters in respect of which the Honourable Member desires an enunciation of the policy of Government, it is regretted that Government are unable to make any statement.
(b) Unless the Honourable Member specifies the villages to which he refers, it is not possible to answer his question.

Mr. G. I. PATEL : With regard to (b) are there any villages of the type mentioned, in the list of the Honourable Minister ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Government have no information.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : Are there such villages in the Surat District ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: Several of them.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: Have they requested Government to open schools there ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: I do not think we have received any particular request of the kind.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV: Has the District Local Board of Surat taken any action in the matter ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: No.

EDUCATION OF DEPRESSED CLASSES

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI: Will Government be pleased to state the number of students belonging to the depressed classes per lakh of their population in (i) primary schools, (ii) secondary institutions, (iii) in arts colleges, (iv) in professional colleges, (v) in technical and mechanical institutions from the following districts, viz., Ahmedabad, Broach, Kaira, Surat and Panch Mahals ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: The accompanying statement gives the information required.

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI: Is the information given here after sufficient inquiry ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: Certainly, all answers are given after sufficient inquiry.

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI: The information given here is not correct in the light of the information I have got ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: That is a statement. What is the supplementary question which the honourable member wishes to ask ?

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI : Are Government aware that in a dispensary at Jalalpore in Surat District a member of the depressed classes was refused to be examined by a Hindoo doctor and that the man had to go to another doctor and unfortunately pay fees ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Government have no information.

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI : Will Government make inquiries in the matter ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : If the honourable member gives any specific instance, Government will gladly make inquiries.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Does it not show that the inquiry is incorrect ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : No.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE : Does the expression " depressed classes " include aboriginal tribes also ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I am doubtful if they are included in the expression " depressed classes."

Rao Saheb R. V. VANDEKAR : Do depressed classes include aboriginal tribes also ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Lists are published by Government mentioning who constitute the depressed classes. Honourable members are expected to know it or can find out for themselves without wasting the time of the House.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : Depressed classes do not include but backward classes include the aboriginal tribes also.

MEDICAL HELP TO DEPRESSED CLASSES

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware of the fact that in very many instances orthodox Hindu Doctors in charge of Public, Government and Charitable Dispensaries and Hospitals in this Presidency refuse to touch and examine sick persons of the Depressed and untouchable classes and refuse admission in the Hospital and Dispensary wards as In-patients with the result that many of these unfortunate people die miserably without timely and proper medical aid ;

(b) if so, whether they intend to make thorough and detailed enquiries in the Medical Department in the mofussil to see that such treatment is not meted out to the unfortunate depressed and untouchable class people in future ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : An inquiry has been made into the matter by the Surgeon General who reports that no sick members of the depressed and untouchable classes have ever been refused examination or admission in any Public, Government or Charitable Hospital or Dispensary in this Presidency, and that all persons whether of the depressed or higher classes are given equal treatment without any distinction. If the Honourable Member can quote any specific instances where members of the depressed classes have been refused admission to Hospitals, etc.. or not given proper treatment by the doctors in charge of them, further enquiries will be made.

HOUSING AND EMPLOYMENT OF DEPRESSED CLASSES IN BOMBAY

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI: Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the total number of depressed class people in the City of Bombay;

(b) the number of men, women and children of these classes engaged in the textile industry in local mills;

(c) whether they are aware of the insanitary and overcrowded condition of their habitations in Bombay City;

(d) what steps they intend to take to improve their residential quarters so as to give them more space, fresh air and light which are essential for healthy life?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: (a) and (b) No separate statistics of the depressed class people are compiled in the Census of India, 1921.

(c) Yes.

(d) Steps have been taken by the Development Department to improve the residential quarters of the depressed classes. Members of these classes have taken rooms in the Development Department chawls and the Development Department is prepared to accommodate more of them at the sanctioned rents ranging from Rs. 5 per room per month at Worli to Rs. 9-8-0 at Delisle Road if rooms are taken singly. A large number of vacant rooms, especially at Worli and Naigaum, are available. The areas in which the chawls are situated are open and healthy and well provided with open spaces. Whole chawls are also offered at reduced rents to any institutions, societies and similar organisations or bodies, and to private individuals on behalf of any community or section of the public and the depressed classes could take whole chawls at the reduced rents of about Rs. 4, Rs. 5-11-0 and Rs. 7-11 0 per room per month at Worli, Naigaum and Delisle Road, respectively. The chawls are very popular with the depressed classes. There is no discrimination against them. There is plenty accommodation for them still at Worli, Naigaum and Delisle Road.

2. The Body in Bombay which has since its creation in 1898 been mainly responsible for the demolition of buildings in slum areas, for improvement schemes and for rehousing displaced members of the working classes is the City of Bombay Improvement Trust.

Since 1898, the Trust has demolished 29,973 tenements and in their places new tenements to the number of 42,780 have been provided.

Four-fifths of the new tenements consist of one room only.

Only 3,600 contain more than two rooms.

At 4 persons per room, the new tenements provided are sufficient for the rehousing in sanitary dwellings of 1,85,000 persons or rather more than one-sixth of the population of the City.

The City Improvement Trust have been and are fully aware of the insanitary and overcrowded condition of the habitations of the Depressed Classes in Bombay City, and have from time to time set apart blocks of chawls for their special accommodat n and have also reserved portions of the Trust's semi-permanent camps for the same purpose.

In pursuance of this policy the Trust in the year 1920 completed and set apart 4 blocks of chawls in East Agripada containing 320 rooms for the special accommodation of Mahars.

Separate blocks will be provided, where required, in all new Chawl Schemes of the Improvement Trust Board, and negotiations for the reservation of 2 blocks containing 160 rooms in the Board's New Foras Road Chawls are in progress with the Municipality for the housing of part of its conservancy staff.

In all, accommodation for 7,498 persons of the Depressed Classes has been provided for in 1,710 rooms in the Board's Chawls and semi-permanent sheds.

TEACHERS IN NORTHERN DIVISION

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether there is a training college in the Northern Division ;

(b) if the reply be in the affirmative the proportionate number of depressed class teachers in the first, second and third years to the total number of teachers in that division ?

Dr. B. R. AMBEDKAR : Does he intend to increase the percentage ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Certainly.

Dr. B. R. AMBEDKAR : How soon ?

CITY WALLS, AHMEDABAD

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state whether they are aware that many mill labourers stranded by the recent flood outside the city used walls for reaching their homes in the city?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: The local officers report that no such cases have come to their notice.

* Peons for Organisers.

THEFTS BY CHHARAHS AT ELLIS BRIDGE

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the police authorities of Ahmedabad are aware that itinerant nomadic tribes called Chharahs living on the west bank of the Sabarmati river near Ellis Bridge are in the habit of pilfering corn, grass, wood from the carts passing on the Ellis Bridge in the early hours of the morning;

(b) if so, what steps the police authorities of Ahmedabad have taken to prevent the mischief?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: (a) No complaints of this nature have been received either by the Police or by the District Magistrate.

(b) Does not arise.

Mr. G. I. PATEL: Will Government please reinstitute an enquiry and find out from their police officers the actual cases that have been recorded?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: I do not remember exactly when this answer was compiled. With reference to the date of this question and answer the statement here is correct. If the honourable member gives any specific instance to the contrary or any later instance I will be glad to inquire into it.

Mr. G. I. PATEL: There are instances on record lately and if Government institute an inquiry they will be able to place the information before this House?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: If the honourable member quotes instances, it will be possible to make inquiries; otherwise I am powerless.

FOREIGN LIQUOR SHOP, AHMEDABAD: STOCK VERIFICATION

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the balance stock of the foreign liquor "off" license shop of Messrs. E. R. Fanibanda and Sons of Ahmedabad which was closed on the 31st March 1927 was examined, counted and sealed by the local authorities of Ahmedabad;

(b) if the answer to (a) is in the affirmative, what was the quantity and price of the balance stock on hand on the night of 31st March 1927 in the foreign liquor "off" license shop;

(c) if the answer to (a) is in the negative, what were the reasons for not examining and counting the balance stock on 31st March 1927, although the "off" license was ordered by Government to be closed from 1st April 1927?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: (a) The balance stock was examined and counted but not sealed as no license is necessary for the possession of foreign liquor :—

(b)

	Quantity			Value
	Doz.	Qts.	Pints	Rs.	a.	p.

FOREIGN LIQUOR SHOP AHMEDABAD: ADDITION TO STOCK

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether any consignments of foreign liquor have been ordered and received or are about to be received after the date of the revival of the foreign liquor "off" license of Messrs. E. R. Fanibanda and Sons;

(b) if the reply to (a) is in the affirmative, what part of those consignments has been added to the stock of the "off" license revived for a period of six months only ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: (a) Yes.

(b) The whole consignment received for the "off" shop has naturally been taken into account under that license.

Dr. M. D. GILDER: The question is:

"Whether any consignments of foreign liqour have been ordered and received or are about to be received after the date of the revival of the foreign liqour 'off' license.... ?"

The answer is "Yes." Are we to take it that the order was placed before the revival of the license, which was only meant for six months ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: I want notice of that question.

Dr. M. D. Gilder: The question is there and the answer is there. Where is the difficulty of the Honourable Minister ? I do not think that he would once again say that he did not understand the question.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The Honourable Minister would have said so, if he did not understand the question.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Why was a fresh stock allowed to be brought if the revival of the license was only for six months ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: The same question was asked by the honourable member Dr. Gilder, for which I required notice. The honourable member really repeats the question.

Mr. P. J. MARZBAN : Was it one of the conditions of the renewed license that all the stock should be sold off and no new stock should be bought ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : No, there was no such condition. But it was expected that all the old stock should be disposed off.

THAKOR OF SANAND : ROYALTY ON BRICKS

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that the tank of Nidhrad, a village of Sanand Taluka of Ahmedabad District, belongs to the Local Board of Ahmedabad District and is kept in regular repairs by the said Local Board ;

(b) whether it is a fact that the Thakor of Sanand took 9,000 bricks as royalty by threats and intimidation from Patel Shivabhai Jividas who caused bricks to be manufactured in the tank of Nidhrad by Mohan Ramji, a potter of Viramgam, in the month of January 1926 ;

(c) if the answer to (b) is in the affirmative, the grounds on which the Thakor's action of charging a royalty on bricks, manufactured in a tank of the Local Board, was taken ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) No. The tank is the property of the Thakor Saheb of Sanand and stands in his name in the settlement register. Being useful to the public, it is kept in repair by the District Local Board of Ahmedabad.

(b) It is understood that the Thakor did take 9,000 bricks from this individual, on the strength of an agreement, as a royalty for the removal of earth and the use of firewood from the land belonging to the estate. No complaint has been filed in a criminal court for the alleged use of threats or intimidation on the part of the Thakor in demanding the bricks.

(c) Does not arise.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : If the Local Board keeps the tank in repair, how can it be a private tank ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : The facts are as I have stated.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Can the Local Board spend money on private tanks ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : The honourable member may inquire from the Honourable Minister for Local Self-Government on that point.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether " Sea View " Bar license at Chowpati, Bombay, was abruptly ordered to be closed on or about 16th December 1926 ;

(b) if so, what arrangements were made for the disposal of the balance stock of that licensee ;

(c) the quantity and price of that balance stock of the said license on the date of closing the license ;

(d) what were the reasons for not allowing the licensee any extension of time for disposal of his balance stock ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : (a) Yes.

(b) The license was not cancelled, but the particular site on which the Bar was located was disallowed, and the licensee was asked to select a new site which would be free from objection. This he did soon after. The question of arranging for the disposal of the balance of the stock did not therefore arise.

(c) The information is not available. No arrangement was made to estimate the quantity and price of the balance stock, as the license was not cancelled.

(d) The question does not arise in view of the reply to clause (b).

FOREIGN LIQUOR SHOPS : ACCESSES

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the 12th paragraph of the license form for refreshment room foreign liquor license requires that

> " The doors and windows of the refreshment room not opening on to a public road shall be securely closed with iron bars and wire-netting unless for special reasons exemption is allowed by the Collector in writing " ;

(b) if the answer to (a) is in the affirmative, what are the reasons of the back door on the western side of the " Fanibanda Building " in which the refreshment bar license of Messrs. E. R. Fanibanda and Sons is situated, having been kept open and not securely closed with iron bars and wire netting ;

(c) whether the Collector has given Messrs. E. R. Fanibanda and Sons any exemption in writing for keeping the said back door open ;

(d) if the answer to (c) is in the affirmative, what were the special reasons which actuated the Collector in giving the exemption in writing to the said licensee ;

(e) if the answer to (c) is in the negative, why is the back door allowed to be kept open in spite of the paragraph No. 12 of the license quoted in (a) ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : (a) Yes.

(b) Because the door referred to opens on to the public road.

(c), (d) and (e) Do not arise in view of the reply to clause (b).

SABARMATI JAIL : WORK BY FETTERED PRISONERS

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that some prisoners of the Sabarmati Jail are made to work with iron fetters on their legs on the railway lines of Sabarmati Station of the B. B. & C. I. Railway ;

(b) if the answer to (a) is in the affirmative, what precautions have been taken to prevent accidents to those prisoners in the Railway

Yard while they are working with fetters on their legs and are consequently unable to run and save themselves from running and shunting trains in case of emergency ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : (a) The prisoners employed at Sabarmati Railway Station do wear chain fetters on their legs, but do not have to work on the lines. They are usually employed on loading and unloading waggons which are placed in a siding so that the prisoners work on a platform or open space.

(b) Every possible precaution is taken to guard against accidents. In addition to the warders in charge, a Head Warder is detailed to see that the prisoners are not made to work on the line.

(c) how many periods per week the supernumerary Professor of Economics works ;

(d) whether it is a fact that vacancies occurred in the Chairs of Economics in the Educational Department after the appointment of the supernumerary Professor of Economics ;

(e) whether it is a fact that instead of abolishing the supernumerary post on the occurrence of vacancies, fresh men were appointed in those vacancies and the supernumerary Professor was also continued ;

(f) the reasons why the heavy expenditure of a supernumerary post is incurred by Government in these days of financial stringency which is complained of by them on all occasions ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) There is a "Supernumerary Professor of Economics" in addition to a "Professor of History and Political Economy" (who teaches Pass and Honours History and Political Science) and a lecturer who teaches History and Indian Administration to the Intermediate Arts classes and also Economics to the B.A. classes.

(b) From 1st March 1926. To strengthen the Economics staff of the College.

(c) The Supernumerary Professor lectures for the following periods per week :—

General Principles of Economics ..	3	periods
Indian Economics (Hons.)	2	,,
History of Economics Doctrines (Hons.)	2	,,
Total ..	7

In addition to these lectures (which require considerable preparation) the Supernumerary Professor is also Principal of the College.

(d) and (e) Since the appointment of Mr. Findlay Shirras on 1st March 1926, there has been no vacancy of a post in Economics.

(f) In the opinion of Government the expenditure is economical in view of the work necessary for the new course in the B.A. pass and honours degrees and of the results that are being obtained and they are not prepared to subordinate efficiency in such circumstances. It may be pointed out that the number of students in 1927-28 reading Economics has reached a new high record and are very high as compared with years preceding 1926-27.

B.A. Pass	33	46

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: The Honourable Minister says: " It may be pointed out that the number of students in 1927-28 reading Economics has reached a new high record and are very high as compared with years preceding 1926-27. " Does the Honourable Minister perceive that in the Honours class where the subjects are taught by the Principal there has been a reduction in the number of students from 34 to 29 ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: Compared with previous years 29 is a high figure.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: On his own showing there has been a reduction from 34 to 29.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: Compared with previous years the number of students who took up the Honours course for these subjects in 1926-27 and 1927-28 is high.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Does not the Honourable Minister perceive that there is a reduction in the number of students reading for the Honours course in 1927-1928 as compared with the year 1926-27 ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: It may be so for that particular year.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Does not the Honourable Minister perceive that there has been an increase in the case of subjects which are taught by other professors ?

(No reply.)

Mr. G. I. PATEL: Will Government be pleased to enquire whether this reduction is due to the Principal teaching the subjects ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: If the honourable member will give me notice, I will enquire.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT GOVERNMENT RESOLUTION No. 2883 DATED 1ST MAY 1901

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to place Government Resolution, Revenue Department, No. 2883 dated 1st May 1901 on the Council table ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: Government are not prepared to place a copy of the Government Resolution on the Council Table.

Mr. G. I. PATEL: Are Government prepared to take into their confidence non-official members who have to frame resolutions in regard to these questions and to enlighten them on these Government resolutions ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: That question does not arise.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Will the Hon'ble the Revenue Member state his reasons for withholding even Government Resolutions from the knowledge of this House ?

(No reply.)

Mr. G. I. PATEL: Was this particular resolution printed in the Government Gazette at that time and in that year ?

(No reply.)

(No reply.)

SARDAR G. N. MUJUMDAR: May I know the subject matter of the resolution referred to here ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: I am unable to say. This reply was given sometime ago: I cannot now remember the exact subject of the resolution.

Mr. G. I. PATEL: Mr. President, for a whole series of questions on this subject the same reply has been given. These resolutions are kept confidential even from the hon'ble members of this House. May we know the source from which we can get information regarding them to enable us to ventilate the grievances of the public ?

(No reply.)

(a) whether they were approached with a request to grant permission to Mr. V. D. Savarkar to attend the Depressed Classes Conference at Delhi during the year 1927 ;

(b) whether it is a fact that the said permission was not granted by Government ;

(c) if so, the reasons for not granting the permission ;

(d) how long Government intend to continue such restrictions on the activities of Mr. V. D. Savarkar ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : (a) and (b). Yes.

(c) Permission was refused in the public interest.

(d) For so long as the conditions on which he was released remain in force.

MUNICIPALITIES ACT AMENDMENT BILLS OF MR. SWAMINARAYAN : SANCTION OF GOVERNOR GENERAL

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether there was any correspondence between them and the Government of India on the subject of the Governor General's sanction to the Municipal Amendment Bills of Mr. Swaminarayan, M.L.C., which had for their objects, the restriction of the slaughter of useful milch and agricultural cattle in the municipalities of the Bombay Presidency during the months of September and October 1927 ;

(b) if so, whether they would place the said correspondence on the Council table ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : (a) Yes.

(b) if so, when the said resolution was made and from what date it was brought into force ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : (a) No general orders have been issued by Government. The amount of pay and pension to be given to a pensioner on re-employment in Government service is regulated by the Civil Service Regulations.

(b) Does not arise.

KADVA CANAL : INCREASED WATER CESS

Rao Saheb R. V. VANDEKAR (Nasik District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they have increased the water cess of lands under the Kadva Canal in Sakora in the Niphad Taluka of the Nasik District ;

(b) if so, what are the reasons for this increase ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : (a) Yes, with effect from 15th February 1927.

(b) There has been a general rise in prices all round during recent years and the working expenses and maintenance charges of the canals have, therefore, been considerably increased. On the Kadwa Canal the revenue realised is not sufficient to cover the working expenses and the interest charges on the capital invested. The revised rates in question are based on the profits made from the various crops receiving irrigation. While on the one hand, they are considered to be not too high, on the other hand, though not expected to bring in an adequate return on the capital cost of the irrigation work concerned, they are considered equitable for the prevailing conditions.

DIRECTOR OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION'S OFFICE ESTABLISHMENT

Rao Saheb R. V. VANDEKAR (Nasik District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the number of new hands employed or taken into the Director of Public Instruction's office during the last three years ;

(b) whether they are aware that it is in a shaky state ;

(c) whether they intend to rebuild it or to build a causeway, in its stead.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : (a) The bridge was constructed in the year 1852. It has been repaired on two occasions in recent years. Information as to the number of times it was repaired previously is not available.

(b) The bridge cannot be described as being in a shaky state. Traffic over it is limited to ordinary cart and motor traffic ; it is a timber topped bridge and not intended for heavy traffic.

(c) No.

CHANKAPUR DAM AND GIRNA LEFT BANK CANAL

Mr. G. A. D. WASIF (Central Division) : Will Government be pleased to state the rate of interest received by Government on the capital outlay on the Chankapur Dam and Girna Left Bank Canal in the Nasik district ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : It is presumed that the Honourable Member requires the percentage rate of net revenue on the capital spent on the Chankapur tank and the Girna Left Bank Canal. The return on capital outlay during the years 1923-1924, 1924-1925 and 1926-1927 was 0·89, 0·47 and 0·43 per cent. respectively. In 1925-1926 the works did not yield any net revenue at all as the working expenses exceeded the gross receipts by Rs. 28,000.

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO (Larkana District) : Sir, may I ask my question at page 49 of the second list ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Yes.

FEMALE TRAINED TEACHERS, SIND

	Trained	Qualified
Hindu women teachers	123	31
Muhammadan women teachers	52	24

Mr. V. A. SURVE (Ratnagiri District) : Sir, I request your permission to ask my questions on pages 54 and 55 of the First List.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I am afraid I cannot allow the honourable member to ask those questions, because the hon'ble member was not present in the hall yesterday when his name was called out. I do not know what his absence was due to. I therefore do not allow it.

Order, order. The next item is the general discussion of the Budget, and I have to fix a time-limit for that. As usual I shall begin with

[The President]

20 minutes and that is the highest limit. But that does not mean, I may repeat, as I did on the last occasion, that the 20 minutes allotted to each honourable member need be exhausted; because if there is a large number of honourable members, who wish to take part in the discussion, it is but right that each individual member should have consideration for the other member who may follow. I, therefore, begin with 20 minutes, and leave the discretion to myself to reduce the limit, as circumstances may arise during the three days of discussion.

Mr. LALJI NARANJI (Indian Merchants' Chamber): Sir, the Budget, that has been presented yesterday by the Honourable the Leader of the House, has been declared by himself and by the Head of the administration to be very unsatisfactory. That relieves this House of the responsibility of declaring its opinion as to the nature of the Budget that has been presented.

The question is how it is unsatisfactory and why it is unsatisfactory? And if it is unsatisfactory, what are the remedies that the different honourable members of this House would, according to their light, would suggest for the evil effects of the unsatisfactory Budget? Sir, every one will admit that with the progress of science in the world, the whole world is now becoming one large unit instead of separate small units, as they were before. We cannot, therefore, help feeling, as the other parts of the world feel in this direction. It may be that all the other rights may be denied to this country owing to its peculiar position, but this right of thinking — the right of expressing the opinion as other units of the world — on the economic question, cannot be denied. Besides, as I have told you, communications have also been improved and owing to this fact, we are getting information very soon and very quick about what is happening in the world. Sir, what I am referring to is what other countries discuss, when such Budgets are presented to them. It is a great responsibility of this House, as also of the other countries, to discuss the aspect of a Budget. I always try to read such Budgets when they are presented in different parts of the world, and try to observe certain big broad facts in them. These broad facts are: whether the country, for which the Budget is presented, is agricultural or industrial, or partly both. I think, our presidency is agricultural as well as industrial, or partly both. As such I expected that all the questions relating to agriculture and industry would be referred to in the speeches, when taking into account the situation of the year by the Head of the Administration as well as by the Honourable the Finance Member. But I regret to find that this was not done by them. I hope that in future the Honourable the Finance Member will make it a practice to refer to all such questions in his Budget speech. If he refers to these questions in a little more detail, the House will be in a position to know the real aspect of the economic conditions of both the agricultural as well as industrial population of this presidency. It is just possible that all the honourable members cannot claim to know the whole situation, as the Government or the Executive Members of the Government may claim to know. I now wish to say "How have we faced the year which has just closed and how are we going to face the year which is going to come " ? In referring to this point, I would only refer you to the broad headings which I should like Government to throw light on. These are : conditions regarding the agricultural purchasing power. We want to know whether the purchasing power of our presidency has increased or decreased or has remained stationary. We also want to know whether our trade has improved, whether our industry has improved, and if so, by what way ? In all such speeches we would also like that a reference be made to our industrial situation as well. We all know that Bombay is a very important industrial centre and as such I should have certainly expected some more detailed references in that respect than the brief references that were made in the speeches that we heard here yesterday. However, that is a matter for the Government to consider. I shall not try to put before you all such circumstances that are applied to countries which are in a more favourable condition, but I shall only put the circumstances with which I am concerned. I mean the agricultural prosperity. I may tell you, Sir, that so far as the purchasing power of the agriculturist is concerned, I think it is diminishing. I am telling you this from my own experience of the volume of business that is done in this presidency. I may say that if there is anything which requires the attention of the industrialists, I should certainly say that it is the question about agriculture and Government should pay attention to that question. I find a reference has been made in one place which is very important to businessmen and which I shall read for your information. It is this :

" Knowing that keen competition is an ordinary condition of business, the majority of businessmen do not shrink from a contest of wits and resourcefulness with their competitors. All they ask is the assurance that fundamental conditions be sound and such as to guarantee a fair degree of stability, so that each one may strive for success without fear of general complications arising in the business situation which may set his best efforts to naught."

That is the consideration that, in my opinion, Government should take into account. Government should try to find out whether there is anything wanting on the point of the trade or whether there is anything fundamentally wrong that has resulted in bringing the trade depression. If they find that there is something wrong in one part or the other, Government should try to remedy it. That should be the first thing that Government ought to take into consideration.

I shall now come to the Budget that has been presented to us. I read the Budget very carefully and studied it. I also tried to find out how it was unsatisfactory. I will refer, according to my light, to page 8, Roman Character in Blue Book, Statement II wherein Chief items of Revenue (ordinary) of the Government of Bombay have been given. I would also refer you to page 12, Statement III wherein chief items of expenditure (charged to revenue) are given. From these two statements you will find that the total of the chief items of revenue comes to 13 crores 38 lakhs whereas the total of the chief items of expenditure is shown as 12 crores and 22 lakhs. These are the amounts which Government has thought fit to bring to our notice.

[Mr. Lalji Naranji]

And I really agree with that, that these are the important items. And what does the reading of these show us ? It shows that our chief sources of revenue are 5,38 from land revenue and 55 from irrigation. I take the total of this and so it comes to Rs. 593 lakhs. Against that, the expenditure comes to, land revenue Rs. 65 lakhs, irrigation Rs. 111 lakhs and agriculture Rs. 29 lakhs, the total of which will come to about Rs. 205 lakhs. Then, another source of revenue is excise, Rs. 391 lakhs. The expenditure is Rs. 52 lakhs. The third is forest, Rs. 74 lakhs, for which the expenditure is Rs. 45 lakhs. The total of these items comes to Rs. 1,058 lakhs for revenue and Rs. 302 lakhs for expenditure, leaving a surplus of Rs. 756 lakhs for the administration. Another item is Rs. 170 lakhs revenue from stamps and Rs. 12 lakhs from registration. If you take the total of these two, it is Rs. 182 lakhs, and the expenditure against that is Rs. 99 lakhs, which is composed of Rs. 74 and Rs. 25 lakhs —viz., administration of justice and jails and convict settlements, which leave again a balance of Rs. 83 lakhs. Then, there are receipts by civil departments, and civil works—80 plus 18, that is, Rs. 98 lakhs, and the expenditure over civil works is Rs. 125 lakhs which creates deficit of 27 lakhs. Total of the above figures leaves 812 lakhs.

Now let us see how is the amount spent ? It is spent in the following way : Rs. 393 lakhs is spent for the administration ; Rs. 223 lakhs for general administration, and Rs. 170 lakhs for police. Again, Rs. 293 lakhs is spent for the nation building departments. The total of these comes to Rs. 686 lakhs, and that leaves again Rs. 126 lakhs as the balance. Now, Sir, this will show how the money that is recovered by the Government from different taxation sources is utilised. For two crores of population only Rs. 293 lakhs is spent for nation building departments, which hardly comes to Rs. 1½ per head, against Rs. 2 for the expenditure of civil administration. It means Government receives Rs. 7½ per head and spends 1½ for his welfare, also Rs. 2 though extravagant for administration, and wastes Rs. 4 on future hopes and miscellaneous other expenses. About the other things, I will refer a little later on when we refer to the capital expenditure.

Then, on page XV of the Blue Book, a statement is given of the total receipts and disbursements, both of capital receipts and ordinary revenue. I have taken the total of all these figures given from 1921-22 up to 1928-29. It comes on the revenue capital or receipts side to Rs. 86·77 lakhs and on the expenditure side to Rs. 82·94. I have tried to understand this, but I have not been able to understand it, because 82·94 lakhs has been spent since the pre-reform days according to the statement that is given to us, in which they say " expenditure charged to capital," that is, capital expenditure since 1921, and I will refer to the statement on page 24 of the Blue Book, in which it is said " Balance required in future " for commitments as are made till to-day—to be borrowed—the liability to borrow is 11 crores and odd. That is the total capital that we shall have to borrow including future borrowings. I find that this includes about 8 crores and 9 lakhs which was pre-reform debt. But the other items that I have taken from the speech of the Honourable the Finance Member show that there is Rs. 898 lakhs for Sukkur Barrage, Rs. 13 crores for Development, Rs. 244 lakhs for irrigation, Rs. 437 lakhs for other purposes, which comes to about Rs. 36,88 lakhs. I do not understand how this 93 crores is charged to capital account and I should like the Finance Department to explain about this. When I take the total item charged to capital, it comes to Rs. 82·94 lakhs, and when I see the speech of the Honourable the Finance Member, it is a very detailed speech and he has covered everything since we commenced borrowing, including the pre-reform debt of 8 crores, which has been included in this. In the foot-note it is said it is included.

[Mr. Lalji Naranji]

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: What page is the honourable member reading ?

Mr. LALJI NARANJI: I am referring to page XV, Statement IV. I have made a total of the amount charged to capital and the receipt side. On the receipt side the total comes to Rs. 86·77 lakhs, and the total expenditure comes to Rs. 82·94, and 11 crores you are going to borrow further. How and for what purposes it will be spent, I have not been able to understand. And that is what I am asking the Honourable the Finance Member to explain, if it is possible.

Now, I am just putting facts without any colour as to why this budget is unsatisfactory. In spite of the 37 lakhs supposed to be remitted, the budget has been with great difficulty balanced and only a surplus of 3 lakhs is shown. We must not forget that we have not provided any thing for famine as is usually done. Otherwise, it would have shown a greater deficit. There is nothing abnormal, for this reason that our interest charges are increasing. That can be seen from page 10 of the Honourable the Finance Member's speech. After giving all the figures, I explain that though the budget is unsatisfactory there is nothing abnormal in this budget. In spite of 37 lakhs supposed to be remitted and 30 lakhs not taken for famine grant, 32½ lakhs is provided for Development Department, which is stated on page 9, and 10 lakhs more is provided for Sukkur Barrage from revenue, which used to be supplied from Famine Fund. So, when we look at that figure, there is nothing abnormal for this year.

Now, Sir, on page 12 the history of the Development Department begins in paragraph 22, which will show that this department has the monopoly and the privilege to always give a lie when the budget is presented. I say so deliberately, because you will see in your budget, Blue Book for 1927-28, when the budget was presented, the figures were given that they will recover money and they showed you minus 158 on page 9. On page 9 there is a minus of 183·13 lakhs, but you will see that the minus goes away and there is an addition of 24·24 thousand. Minus meant recoveries from development Block No. 8. As no recoveries were made expenditure of 24·24 was incurred. This is not the first time that we see this but since the beginning it appears to have been so and I do not know when it is going to end.

[Mr. Lalji Naranji]

This House was told that 2 crores would be recovered and for the last three years I have been hearing here that that money is going to be recovered. What is wrong with Block No. 8 that makes Government say lies about this recovery to reduce interest charges. We are still continuing to pay, moorum is not yet finished, the Lloyd Barrage is still going on and not sold off. Why, I ask, present such a budget at all and why irritate people who have already lost so much by spending 13 crores already on this work ?

You will find on page 13 of the speech of the Honourable the Finance Member that although this House was asked to contribute 20 lakhs towards that deficit, there was a further contribution of 7½ lakhs and now there is yet another contribution of 5½ lakhs, making a total contribution of 32½ lakhs. And yet the Honourable the Finance Member gives us a warning that this is not sufficient and that Government will ask for more. Why not give us real facts ? I say " real facts ", because you will see from page 23 of the Blue Book that the interest on Development Loan is 86·32 thousand and the note (d) states that 23·04 thousand is to be met from general balances and note (e) says that 4·46 thousand is to be met also from general balances. And 32 lakhs (27 plus 5) is written off. The revenue that we are getting from the Development Department is not their revenue, but really speaking it is revenue coming from the agriculturists in the shape of the cotton cess, which has really been the greatest cause of complaint from cotton merchants and industrialists alike, as this tax is driving the trade from Bombay to Karachi. A rupee tax means a lot as the cotton goes to the cheaper port of Karachi. The honourable member representing cotton interests will no doubt have something to say about this aspect of the matter. It hurts not the agriculturists only but also the cotton trade. It is like robbing Peter to pay Paul.

Another point I wish to touch upon without the slightest exaggeration or colour is that the Honourable the Finance Member has very plainly said that it will take from 30 and 60 years to meet part of our liabilities. What is the meaning of that ? It means that the resources of this presidency for a number of 30 and 60 years, so far as a part of the income to the extent of 2½ crores is concerned, is mortgaged. I challenge the Honourable the Finance Member to dispute my statement that Government have mortgaged the progress of this presidency by launching this scheme against the continuous criticism by the public. Yet we find that it is being continued. I do not know for whose benefit they intend to go on with it. By persisting in their attitude, Government are reducing the purchasing power of the agriculturists, reducing the capacity of the merchants, reducing the volume of trade. After that where will Government recover the money from ? After all, Government is not a concrete body but an abstract body and has to depend on others, and if they do not make the others fit for producing revenue, it will not be the fault of those other bodies but of the executive Government themselves. On this subject I will do nothing better than quote our ex-President, Sir Ibrahim Rahimtoola, for whom both Government and the House have expressed great admiration.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member's time is nearly up.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: I beg you, Sir, to allow the honourable member a little more time as he is the principal speaker of the Opposition.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: If two or three members would take fifteen minutes only, I will allow it.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE: I will require fifteen minutes.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I do not know whether the honourable member will catch my eye to be able to do so.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE: Anyhow, the honourable member Mr. Lalji Naranji should be allowed more time.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I will do so and give him a little more time, but he must be brief now.

Mr. LALJI NARANJI: This is what Sir Ibrahim Rahimtoola says:—

Taxation and Savings

"You are all aware that taxation in India was substantially increased as a result of the Great War. India, although but a minor belligerent associated with Great Britain has had to bear additional taxation. Britain was one of the principal belligerents and had to make great sacrifices to carry the war to a successful conclusion with the result that her standard of taxation rose to a very high level. After the war it has been the constant endeavour of Britain and other western nations to reduce the extent of taxation prevailing in their countries. Public opinion has been insistent and has had to be given effect to by democratic countries including Britain, in which administration is regulated by the voice of the people. In India we have heard of any mention of reducing the heavy burden of taxation imposed upon this country as a result of the war. Taxation has been raised in some cases to a point where the stage of diminishing returns has been reached. This makes it evident that the standard of taxation is in excess of the economic capacity of the people.....The essential need of the moment is, therefore, a thorough inquiry as to the standard of taxation maintained in this country."

What does he suggest? That Government ought to look for reduction on taxes. I agree with him in no more taxes.

In another place in the same speech (delivered at the fifth session of the Indian Industrial and Commercial Congress held at Madras towards the close of the year just ended), Sir Ibrahim Rahimtoola says:—

Sacred Trust

"You are all aware that Britain seriously claims to hold this country as a 'sacred trust' for the people of India....."

Towards the end of his speech he says:—

"Let Britishers in India put themselves in the position of their countrymen in the British Dominions, regarding their adopted motherland as a first consideration and extending to their mother-country only such overflow of prosperity as they can conveniently spare. Britishers do not come to India on a mission of philanthropy or for the benefit of their health. I will ask them to drop the pretence of holding India as a 'sacred trust' and boldly to acknowledge the fact that they are here for promoting their trade interests."

This is what Sir Ibrahim Rahimtoola, for whom both Government and this House have expressed great respect and admiration, said in his presidential address to the last Indian Industrial and Commercial Congress held at Madras during X'mas week of 1927.

Now, what is our remedy? The remedy seems to me to be the Sukkur Barrage Scheme. The Honourable the Finance Member has already referred to it in his speech. I do not know that any mandate was given to the committee that was appointed to visit the Sukkur Barrage works to make a report, but one of its members has taken upon himself to send a report to Government. I can, however, say very frankly that the work that is going on there is, possibly as a result of our Back Bay experiences, of a more businesslike fashion. I am glad that Government have become a little wiser after their sad experiences of the Back Bay Scheme, and I hope that the Sukkur Barrage scheme will not prove disappointing but that it will be a saviour of our finances only if sales of all land was carried out very carefully and properly.

The very serious question of remedies, namely, our economic adjustment, has been referred to in the speech of the Honourable the Finance Member who evidently puts great faith in the Simon Commission. May I ask him, without considering the position I have taken up in another place with regard to this Simon Commission, what is his authority about saying anything about the adjustment of the Meston Settlement? Does he think that the Simon Commission is going to consider this Meston Settlement? What does the Simon Commission know of it? Is there any one on it conversant with high finance? The Chairman of the Commission is only a lawyer. There is no member on the Commission who is well versed in our finances. The Commission consists of some members of the Labour Party and some members of the Conservative Party. Sir Ibrahim Rahimtoola's statement clearly shows that you can never rely on their claim for trusteeship, and you may be sure that they are here not for their health, but to make money from trade. Their only justification for holding India under subjection is trade and exploitation of the country. I want to warn honourable members of this House not to allow themselves to be led into their snares for any consideration, and let them not be deceived by the belief that the condition of anybody or of the country is going to be bettered by the visit of the Commission to this country. In this connection, I will refer to an article which has been contributed by Mr. Ramsay Macdonald about Russia. He says that because Russia is independent Britain cannot afford to ignore Russia, in spite of Russia doing so much harm. He says that Russia is too big a unit and it cannot be ignored. But in the case of India, our appeals are ignored and our cries are unheard, because we are not independent, and yet some of us earnestly believe that the country will be bettered by false promises. I want to ask them, what interest is the Commission going to take in the economic position of the country? We should be careful against their snares, and we should always take care that the whole House must work in unity, and let the different interests be adjusted. It has always been said by Government as well as by those who represent the public that this Council has been very wise and sound. What I want to say is that if we are wise, let us see that the economic future of the presidency, which is the chief consideration, is not imperilled. So far as that future is concerned, a good deal of harm has already been done, and we must see how that future is going to be taken care of by the people who make a claim for trusteeship, when we know very well that they are here to make money. What are the considerations of those who are offering in advance to co-operate with the Simon Commission. What does this Government feel themselves about the matter. Taking the present budget, do they think that there is any justification for them to co-operate with the Commission which has been so high-handedly appointed ? We know very well that the representations of the Bombay Government, so far as financial adjustments are concerned, have been entirely ignored ; we have been told that the Meston Settlement is not going to be revised. It can be seen from the financial statements of the past years that we have been accumulating big balances, and as people say we are now living on our past balances, and that is nothing but the truth. But how were these balances created ? They were created as a result of heavy taxation, which we have willingly paid from our pockets. But how have we been treated by the Government of India ? Because we were able to accumulate large balances by very heavy taxation, we have been most shabbily treated as compared with Bengal. Bengal has been given remissions heavy and continuous of its contributions by the Government of India because they declined to tax themselves further, but Bombay has been ignored in spite of the repeated representations that we have made, and it was only last year, I think, that a remission of Rs. 19 lakhs was given to us. That being experience, do you think that the condition of the presidency is going to be bettered by our co-operating with the Simon Commission ? Why should anybody say that we should co-operate with the Commission when our claims have been ignored. We have willingly taxed ourselves, and our claims have not been considered, but other provinces, for instance Bengal, who have refused to tax themselves have been given remissions. We have been repeatedly asking for a just share in the income tax revenue, but our cry has been unheeded. The Finance Member of this presidency may be a European or an Indian, but all the same the Government of India is adamant, working as a subordinate Government under the orders of the Secretary of State and Whitehall. What are you going to expect from such commissions ? Do you know the history of any country where such commissions have benefitted the country ? Look at the present budget. Out of a total revenue of Rs. 15 crores, Rs. 10 crores are allotted for expenditure on the reserved side, and only Rs. 5 crores are given for the transferred side. Is it not very disappointing to those who represent us in the Cabinet for the transferred subjects, as representatives of the taxpayers ? Is it not a disappointment to them that their control is confined to Rs. 5 crores, while the reserved side gets double that amount ? And yet they are told " Come into your house which I have occupied and co-operate with me in parting and sharing your property." Under these circumstances, it is useless to expect co-operation from any man of self-respect. We have been crying for 10 years, we have waited for 10 years, and yet no relief is forthcoming. I am only referring to the financial aspect, and I say, let any of the Ministers who represent us in the Cabinet come forward and show that there is any justification for co-operating with the Commission. I can challenge them to show that they have any justification for co-operating with the Simon Commission. What is the use of such a Commission, and how are they going to help us ? I can understand those who are out to co-operate with the Simon Commission if Simon on his landing had announced that there will be nothing of transferred or reserved subjects but every pie that taxpayers pay will be spent according to their wishes and by them alone and not by government officers and their nominated members. Some people seem to think that Sir John Simon is a big man and he will be our saviour. But I ask, how is he going to be our saviour ? I would appeal to those Honourable Ministers who represent the transferred subjects and to the Indian Members of the Executive Council to maintain the dignity of India, to maintain the honour of India ; I would appeal to them not to sell India by doing anything which may be regarded as a compromise in this matter. If they do anything of that kind, certainly India will look upon them with great disappointment ; I would appeal to them not to sacrifice the financial interest of India. The financial interest is the most important point. We have patiently relied so far upon promises, but the Government of India and the Secretary of State have repeatedly ignored those promises, and there is not yet any prospect of the financial relations being adjusted. During the last nine to ten years the position of Bombay financially is deteriorating every day ; we have lost revenue to the extent of Rs. 22 crores, and yet Bombay is asked to continue to lose its prosperity. I would appeal to the Honourable the General Member that it is his most sacred duty to fight for the cause of this presidency, and I am quite sure he can put up a better fight than the Honourable the Finance Member. I would also make a similar appeal to the Honourable Ministers in charge of the transferred subjects. With these remarks, I hope that better financial treatment will be given to Bombay, and Bombay will be restored to its condition of past prosperity.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI (Kaira District): Sir, the budget, as is usual with this Government, is a disappointing feature. Since the last seven years, this side of the House has, in season and out of season and in session after session, represented to the Government the advisability of cutting down their expenditure. But the response that has been given is ever increasing expenditure on the part of Government, and the ever increasing expenditure was incurred not after any beneficial objects, but after objects and after schemes that have proved ruinous to the finances of this presidency. I had hoped that when the present Finance Member took charge, he would carry the traditions of the non-official side of the House to the reserved side, but unfortunately he has failed to make the necessary retrenchment in the expenditure. He himself has admitted that the expenditure in salaries alone has gone up by more than Rs. 3 crores, but I ask him whether he has taken the trouble to make sufficient reductions in the budget which his predecessors increased inordinately. Again the balance of Rs. 169 lakhs is mostly from the Famine Insurance Fund. I do not know whether he intends to permanently absorb that amount also in the ordinary balance so that it might be used on objects other than Famine next year as if we deduct this balance of Rs. 169 lakhs of the Famine Insurance Fund, the real ordinary balance is only 7 lakhs. Now, is it not time to consider seriously the financial position of this presidency. My honourable friend from Bombay has unfortunately not shown the way. He has criticised the budget and the debt of this Government but unfortunately he has not shown the way for retrenchment. I, who from the very start had opposed every exorbitant expenditure on the part of this Government consistently and persistently, now come forward and say " For heaven's sake come down by the same ladder by which we have gone up." That is the only way by which the finances of this presidency can be placed on a sound footing ; otherwise it will be a mere whitewashing as it has been done by the Honourable the Finance Member. and I am afraid your successor will curse you for not having taken enough courage in both hands and cut down the expenditure.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The honourable member is addressing the Finance Member direct.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : Sometime it happens.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : That should not happen.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : The expenditure has absorbed the additional taxation which this House has willingly allowed this Government to have for education and other purposes. It has absorbed, I am very sorry to say, a very large part of our famine insurance fund. It has absorbed Rs. 19 lakhs which the Government of India after all conceded to us. Where has all that gone ? We have been clamouring for increased expenditure on education, sanitation, medical relief and other activities of the transferred departments. The expenditure instead of going to the transferred side has mostly gone to the reserved side ; and a very little bit is doled out to the Ministers. In the General Administration alone, I may point out, the expenditure has very much gone up. In 1917-18, the expenditure on Land Revenue and General Administration was 2 crores of rupees. Exactly ten years after what was the condition ? The expenditure on these two departments has gone up to Rs. 2·85 crores. Rs. 85 lakhs more have been absorbed by these two departments alone. This expenditure must come down. I shall give one instance from the General Administration. In pre-war time the expenditure on the Secretariat was Rs. 6·41 lakhs and now in the year 1928-29 the expenditure is Rs. 19 lakhs. How is this poor presidency to bear such a heavy burden on the headquarters staff ? Can you not reduce the salaries of the staff ? If Government are only sincere, which I very much doubt, they should consider this question. I hope by this they will be able to dispense with additional taxation and to devote more amounts for the nation-building departments. Take one more instance—the Police Department. In the pre-war days, that is, in the budget of 1912-13 the total police expenditure came to Rs. 1 crore and the expenditure on the city police never exceeded Rs. 12 lakhs. In the budget for 1928-29, the expenditure on the city police is put down at Rs. 32 lakhs ; and the total expenditure is put down as Rs. 1·74 crores. Cannot the Member in charge see his way to make a sufficient reduction in that department ?

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Will the honourable member point out the way ?

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : The same way by which it has increased.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : What is that ?

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : I cannot say ; that is for you to do. Government have always represented that they are the best judges. I think that if they are the best judges they can reduce the expenditure.

I come to our debt charges. My honourable friend from Bombay was a little bit mistaken as regards that question. Personally I think that if the Sukkur Barrage Finance goes on all right which I doubt very much as we will not realise as price of land 12½ crores of rupees, then our presidency will be in new debt to the tune of about Rs. 40 crores. For this Rs. 40 crores the Development Department will be responsible to the extent of about 13 or 14 crores of rupees and that money will be gone. That is to say, the interest on loans and the other charges will be more than the little amount realized now and then, and the losses will have to be met from the ordinary revenue. I do not think that the Development Department is going to give anything to this Government except a few rupees which will be absorbed in the interest charges.

Now speaking about the Famine Insurance Fund I am sorry to say that that fund has dwindled to Rs. 21,23,000. Out of that Rs. 14 lakhs is being spent as real famine.....

Mr. G. WILES : Where did the honourable member get the figure from ?

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : From the Blue Book.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : Twenty-one lakhs, twenty-three thousand.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : What is the 21 lakhs ?

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : That is from the Famine Relief Fund. That is still worse. That means that no amount has been provided from the ordinary revenues for famine relief, and the little that is taken (21 lakhs) is from the Famine Fund. I thank the Honourable the Finance Member for his correction. I forgot that the whole of the Famine Relief Fund has been wiped out. And even from that 21 lakhs of rupees, Rs. 2,54,000 has been spent on irrigation works damaged by the recent floods, Rs. 7,91,000 on the scheme of Mr. Lowsley and 4 lakhs on the Visapur tank. I think that the expenditure of Rs. 2,54,000 should not have been debited to the Famine Fund. That expenditure was on works which were to all intents and purposes irrigation works. The Visapur tank is a large irrigation work and expenditure on that also ought to have been borne by the Irrigation budget ; it should not have been charged to the Famine Fund.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The honourable member's time is up.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI: I would like to have two minutes more.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I cannot give two minutes to every one.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI: Sir, is my time up ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Only few minutes more.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI: The Honourable the Finance Member has grown very eloquent on the benevolence of Government in Gujarat. But if we paraphrase their achievement in figures, what does it come to ? After all, about 10 lakhs has been given as free grant in Sind and Gujarat and 85 lakhs has been lent on interest at a rate which enables Government actually to make a profit on that loan business in Sind and Gujarat. I think, Sir, that when Government can afford to spend sums from the Famine Fund on works which are not meant to be purely famine works, they cannot consistently with the policy regulating the Famine Fund charge interest on the loans issued from that fund to persons whose houses have been destroyed by the recent floods and make a profit out of it. I fail to understand the reason behind the position of Government (the position of charging interest on the loan issued to the agriculturists in Gujarat).

Again, a statement has been made that the land has not been spoiled. I would like to remind the Honourable the Finance Member that he was once Minister for Agriculture. From his own experience he must have found that when the waters rush with a great velocity over the land, then naturally all the manurial ingredients in the land are washed away. That is the usual experience of all except this Government which is not prepared to face facts. Those who know anything about agriculture do know that when the waters rush with great velocity over the land, all the manurial ingredients are washed away from the soil. The Honourable Member says that the fears regarding crops have proved groundless. I say they have proved to be true. The crops have given yields which are far less than was anticipated even under these circumstances. Even the rabi crops have suffered. If the Honourable the Finance Member will consult the Agricultural Department he will come to know that the rush of water over the land has affected the lands. If he finds that, I hope he will be inclined to remit the interest charges now imposed on the shoulders of the agriculturists in Gujarat.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Sir, the budget has been after all balanced and an attempt has been made to present it in as good a shape as possible. Really speaking great efforts must have been made to bring out a budget that could adjust itself. For that purpose they have tried their best to avoid even the legitimate provision for famine insurance grant which this Government was making in former years and which has proved very useful during the recent floods and calamities which took place in Gujarat and Sind. The assignment of Rs. 63,60,000 that used to be made to the Famine Relief Fund has proved to be very useful, because if that accumulated saving had not been there, we should not have been able to meet such a calamity so promptly. Let us see what they have done in this budget. They say that if the Government of India give them 37 lakhs, they will have a poor surplus of 3 lakhs of rupees. Really speaking, however, the deficit is much greater than it is presented to us. If the Government of India do not remit the provincial contribution of 37 lakhs, then the deficit will be 34 lakhs. Then, towards the contribution of Rs. 63,60,000 for the Famine Fund not a pie has been provided. If that provision has to be made, the deficit will be 34 lakhs plus 63 lakhs, or 97 lakhs. At the same time the deficit in the Development Department has been put down as 41,72 lakhs, and this should not be lost sight of.

Sir, you will find on page 15 of the Blue Book the deficit on the Bombay Development Department. This deficit has been put down as Rs. 41,72 lakhs. That is to say, the total deficit under this head will be Rs. 63 lakhs plus Rs. 34 lakhs, which comes to Rs. 97 lakhs plus Rs. 41 lakhs, making the total of Rs. 1 crore, 38 lakhs in all. The interest charges on the Development Department are Rs. 86,32 lakhs plus Rs. 3,44 which comes to Rs. 89,76 lakhs. Besides, you will find a note given in the Development Department memorandum, at page 22 of the Blue Book, which says "Including 23,04 for Development Department (Interest on Ordinary Debt) to be met from General balances." In this way an attempt has been made to ignore or to lose sight of the deficit in the Development Department. Attempt has also been made to state that the present Budget will be a balanced budget, if the Government of India would extend the usual help of Meston Award, which would be to the extent of 37 lakhs. We have been told that the reason for all this state of affairs is that the expenditure is far more than the receipts. It is quite natural that expenditure will be there. Government are prone to undertake expenditure. But Government must take precaution to spend money. To them expenditure is natural while retrenchment is unnatural. When they want to spend money, they should think twice before spending, and then do so. Our experience is that when Government think of spending money on a certain item, they do so without paying attention to the question. For instance, take the case of the Simon Commission that has been appointed. This House has not yet come to any decision whether it should co-operate with that Commission or non-co-operate with it. And still what has been done by Government? They have appointed a Reforms Secretary and they have made a provision of Rs. 50,000 in the budget to meet the salary and establishment charges of this Secretary. You will find that item on page 101 of the White Book. Further, this appointment is a new one, still I am astonished to find that no mention has been made of it under the new items. I have carefully gone into the new items of General Administration and I do not find this item there. What I find is that there are only three new items which do not include this. The rules state that if any item is a new one, that is, an item which was never in existence before, that should be shown separately. But this has not been done. So you will see that such items are rushed through by Government without proper care; the result is that Government come to grief but really taxpayers come to grief; thus the poor ryot has to suffer for the acts of Government ; poor taxpayers have to suffer and the Government is in no way suffering at all.

Sir, I shall now come to Land Revenue. Government have put down the realisation from this source as Rs. 5,38 lakhs. If they go back to the year last but one, namely, 1926-27, they will find that the realisation under this head in that year was only Rs. 4,67 lakhs. When that is the case, how could they expect to get realisation during this year at this figure ? In the year 1926-27 the crops were somewhat good, and still they received land revenue of Rs. 4,67, lakhs ; and now when the times are bad, how could the Government expect to get more than that year ? Government ought to have thought very carefully on this point also. They should have drawn a margin of the average realisation, and then put the figure. But what we find is that Government always put a very high figure in anticipation, so that there should be no retrenchment in the high level of expenditure. Government think that if a higher figure of revenue is shown in the budget, no retrenchment in expenditure will be pressed by the other side of the House. That is their wish. Further, they tell us that there are arrears of revenue and those will be collected. Such an assurance has been given by the Revenue Officers. But I say that this idea of taking into account the arrears of revenue is very serious indeed. In the speech of the Honourable the Finance Member, he has paid compliments to the Revenue Officers. But I personally wish to differ from his view in this respect. Revenue Officers deserve no compliments at all. They have thrown to the wind all the new regulations and are not going by those new regulations. You are aware, Sir, that a Committee was appointed by this House and that Committee brought into being the new rules in respect of annewari valuations for assessing land revenue. But those rules are not observed by the Revenue Officers. The same old state of affairs still continues. The new regulation requires the necessity of starting enquiries for fixing annewari valuation for the collection of revenue by means of village punchas in every village and the Mamlatdar of a taluka took an opinion of the Village Panch on the question of land revenue. This Panch expressed its opinion in certain respect, but that has also been thrown to the wind. So, I submit, Sir, that the desire of collecting arrears of revenue on the part of these subordinate officers is too great. It has been already admitted by the Honourable the Finance Member in his speech yesterday that the kharif crops had been damaged very severely and resowings had to be done. But the villages in which this has taken place have to suffer much at the hands of these Revenue Officers. These villages were visited by His Excellency the Governor and His Excellency the Governor-General with a view to ascertain the damages due to floods at first hand ; in these very villages we find the subordinate officers more enthusiastic on the question of assessment and are endeavouring to realize even arrears. That is the true state of affairs. I, therefore, would ask Government not to put the figure of land revenue after taking into account the recovery of arrears. I say it is very dangerous to fleece the poor agriculturists who contribute the bulk of revenue of this presidency. It is no use putting such a high figure under the head of land revenue. The Honourable the Finance Member, on the one hand, pays compliments to Mahatma Gandhi and his disciple Mr. Vallabhbhai Patel, but on the other Government do not try to remedy the grievances of the poor agriculturists of Bardoli Taluka by paying attention to what the same person says about the oppressive character of the increase in the land revenue of that taluka. At present, times are very hard. The whole country is passing through a period when there is a trade depression ; at such a time it is very difficult to find money and Government should, therefore, take into account this state of affairs.

Government also rely much on the Meston award. They have taken into account this figure in anticipation. But if in the end they find short of money, where do they go ? They go to the taxpayers and the agriculturists and the whole burden lies on the shoulders of these poor people. Government expect the poor agriculturists to undertake the burden of tax, whenever they are in need of money.

Now, what is going to be the result ? The exchange of 1*s.* 6*d.* is telling its own tale. Prices are going down like anything. Rice this year is sold at Rs. 1-8 a maund and in certain cases it was sold even for Rs. 1-4. Then, wheat I expect to be selling at Rs. 2 per maund. Now these prices are going down. The producers have to get much less money for what they produce, and still they have to pay land revenue in cash. How will they ever be able to pay land revenue in cash when the prices are going down as a result of the policy of Government regarding exchange ? At that time, when this policy was being introduced, many honourable members of the Assembly pointed out that " you would be ruining the agriculturists by this artificial raising of the exchange ratio, by artificially raising the exchange, and the fears are realised in the form of prices and the agriculturists get much less for their produce and they will have to pay land revenue increased by 25 per cent., 40 per cent. or even 50 per cent., and we do not known where it will end. In olden times the governments of those days were taking great care of the agricultural population and tried their best to find out the actual capacity of the agriculturists to pay. They used to repair their position by granting remissions. Just now, three resolutions to-day that were refused to be placed on the Council table referred to the question of remissions granted by the former governments when they realised that the people were unable to pay anything. But, unforunately, these resolutions were withheld from the Council. Sir, I have, therefore, to bring this prominently before the Honourable the Finance Member that in grinding the agricultural population you will be grinding your own people, namely, the urban population. You realise that Bombay is passing through heavy depression. If the agriculturist is even able to spare something, then he will be able to purchase some of your articles. Then, if he purchases, your cities will prosper ; not otherwise. So, in ruining the agricultural population, you will be ruining the urban population, for whom you have spent crores and crores of rupees and do not realise anything. It is for urban Bombay that you have spent on development schemes and you shall have to pay

[Mr. J. C. Swaminarayan]

32 lakhs as subsidy for meeting the loss on these wild cat schemes, for a period of 60 years and even you are not to stop at 32 lakhs ; the subsidy may have to be increased. Even now we have not got the actual subsidy that the provincial Government will have to pay as a result of the wild cat schemes that have been taken up by Government because the Honourable the Finance Member says that the subsidy will have to be increased. Sir, I have to point out also in other directions that revenues from other sources are also evincing the result of the depression. They do not get sufficient from scheduled taxes. How will people be able to go and see cinemas and dramas in theatres when they have nothing to eat ? In registration they have less receipts and revenue, and everywhere else, when you ruin the agriculturists, the result is to be seen in all its fearful aspects in other directions also. Sir, the way in which Government are dealing in other matters is that they are glad to part with money when they have to deal with big people. As for example, I have got personal experience of the way in which the excise department is dealing with Indian States. There is a proposal that they are going to provide Rs. 4 lakhs as compensation to Indian States. But I do not know why. The note says the amount is entirely to be given away to the Indian States ! We manage the excise department and give away the entire revenue to the Indian States. This is mentioned on page 39 of the Blue Book. We do not get anything from managing the excise department for them. I have experience of Mahi Kantha, for instance. They will find this excuse or that excuse. Even though the receipts might be growing less, they use their influence and try to get the same compensation, and still Government would manage this excise department in those places and would pay the compensation ! I do not know the earthly reason why you are managing their department and pay away all the revenue to them and pay compensation from the income of this presidency.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : What was your experience ?

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : My experience was that a Thakor was an owner of two small villages. He said " If you will cut off my excise compensation, then I will not be able to manage my taluka." Sir, what I want to point out is that Government have got different scales for acting or dealing with the public. If they have to deal with wealthy people, they have got one scale ; when they have to deal with the poorer people, they suppress people who are very poor and who are living from hand to mouth and who are at the mercy of the Government. They are increasing burdens on the poor cultivators to such an extent that whenever a calamity befalls these people, they are not able to resist that calamity. They would like to take any amount of money from the poor people and would like to part with money generously in any way they like when they have to deal with big people. Therefore, I would ask Government to change this treatment of making this difference between the rich and the poor.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District) : Sir, I had no mind to speak just now, but as I feared I might be ignored, I have got up....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: What is that remark? Please repeat it.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE: You said, Sir, that I might not catch the eye of the Chair and so I got up just now. Sir, the budget that has been presented by the Honourable the Finance Member shows that there is likely to be a surplus of Rs. 3 lakhs provided the contribution to the Central Government is remitted. But this is, after all, a speculation, as has been pointed out by a good many of my predecessors. I will take one head for example. The revenue that is expected from so many heads is never realised. I will show marked differences of figures. You will find that even the figures of the original budget and the revised budget differ very much. For instance, we find under V—Land Revenue in the revised estimate for 1927-28 that there has been an increase of Rs. 15 lakhs, whereas there has been a decrease of Rs. 14 lakhs under Excise.

There is a decrease of 13 lakhs in Stamps, 11 lakhs under XIII—Irrigation, 4 lakhs under head 15. Under 40, there is an increase of 6 lakhs instead of the original 2 lakhs as the revised estimate shows 8 lakhs. Under 60—Civil Works, instead of 44 lakhs in the original budget you have 38 lakhs in the revised budget. With such marked difference between the original and the revised estimates, we cannot take the original budget that is now presented to us as representing the correct figures. Even under the Stamp Act, 20 lakhs has been shown as receipts in addition to what was originally received by the increase of stamp fees and yet we find that 18 lakhs has been received less.

The principal thing to be seen in the budget is, as pointed out by the honourable member Mr. Lalji Naranji, that 10 crores are going to be spent on reserved subjects as against 5 crores to be spent on the transferred subjects. I would like to know how this allocation has been made. Whether any arrangements had been come to between the two halves of the Government as regards the spending of the money and if there was no such agreement, whether His Excellency the Governor has apportioned the respective amounts....

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: I think the honourable member has already tabled a question to that effect and I have given the answer that His Excellency has made no apportionment and there has been no disagreement between the Reserved and the Transferred halves of Government.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE: I presume that under Devolution Rule 35 the allocation is going on on the basis of the previous years and no special effort was made by either of the sides to have their revenues fixed. The ordinary revenue is charged very heavily, nearly 47 lakhs have been debited to ordinary revenue. Leaving aside 27 and 5 lakhs for Development, a further sum of 20 lakhs has been debited to ordinary revenue and though the sum of 10 lakhs was paid from Famine Insurance Fund under the orders of the Government of India up till now, Government have this year come forward and debited the whole amount to the ordinary revenue.

Again, we find a sum of Rs. 1,25,000 under 34—Agriculture which is for Lloyd Barrage purposes. Similarly, a sum of Rs. 20,000 is given under 5-Land Revenue for Lloyd Barrage purposes. Another sum of a Capital nature debited to a Capital head under Forest– Capital 52-A and the sum of Rs. 2,98,000 is spent from ordinary balance. It is stated in the note that Government could not spend the money from the capital account as under the existing rules the Government of India would not allow them to spend that money. So there is a difficulty of Government rules but there is no difficulty of ordinary revenue being taxed to its utmost. The works of a capital nature should necessarily be met from the capital account and if the rules do not permit this, it is better that those works should be dropped rather than that they should be done at the cost of ordinary revenue.

Another thing which can be noticed from the current year's budget is that there is an additional expenditure of 7 lakhs for expenditure in England. On page 17 of the Blue Book you will see that Rs. 37,71,000 has been allotted for expenditure in England whereas in 1923-24 only Rs. 22,58,000 was allotted. In 1926-27 there was an allottment of Rs. 32,61,000 as against 37 lakhs provided in this budget.

Similarly the budget does not provide for money paid for exchange. For the year 1926-27 there is a total of Rs. 12 lakhs for exchange, and I do not know if no provision has been in the budget made for payment of exchange, how it will be met. In 1926-27 under 5-Land Revenue Rs. 8,000 was spent on exchange, under 22-Administration Rs. 1,63,000 and on Police Rs. 1,07,000, under 45 Rs. 2,77,000, under 47 Rs. 1 24,000 and on 41-Civil Works, Rs. 1,24,000. All these amounts have been shown in the accounts for 1926-27 whereas in the budget for 1928-29 not a single item is shown against exchange.....

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: The accounts are made at 1s. 6d. while last year the rate was 2 shillings.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE: The sums are shown on different heads such as, for instance, under 26-Police the total budgeted estimate for 1928-29 is shown as Rs. 1,70,27,000 and a sum of Rs. 1,72,000 has been deducted from this amount because of the anticipated savings due to separate provision for leave salary on account of the High Commissioner's budget, but this sum is increased in the High Commissioner's budget also. On page 120 of the Blue Book the High Commissioner's budget for 1928-29 shows Rs. 3,50,000 under head Police. Similarly, this year, a further charge of pension contributions on irrigation works is made. The adjustment of pension charges on irrigation works has been raised from 9 per cent. to 14 per cent. There is no special Irrigation Department as such, except that of the Lloyd Barrage, and what is done is that the cost, at the rate of 24 per cent. on the works is taken as irrigation charges and the pension charges have been raised from 9 per cent. to 14 per cent., but it is not known how this Government has been made to pay this additional charge and to whom.

The correct figures of debit heads are also not understood from the figures of various heads. For instance, Rs. 18 lakhs are shown under 22-General Administration, and they are debited to Land Revenue, but the pay of mamlatdars and other officers is not debited to Land

[Mr. L. M. Deshpande]

Revenue. Moreover, the pay of talatis, which amounts to nearly Rs. 17 lakhs, is shown under General Administration. Now, talatis are the principal workers who recover land revenue, but their pay is shown under General Administration. In reply to a question of mine, I was told that in one district alone Rs. 57,000 more than under Kulkarni system were spent for the pay of the talatis. I say, really speaking, there is no need for Government to incur an expenditure of nearly Rs. 17 lakhs, merely because they want to do away with the services of kulkarnis. I do not know what benefit Government derives by the introduction of the talati system.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : The ryots derive much benefit from it.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : That is also a question. I know what the ryots feel, and it is really very hard in the present financial stringency that this sum should be unnecessarily spent on the talatis.

There is one more thing, and it is that the revenue under V-Land Revenue is steadily increasing. We find that the rates have been increased in one district and another every year, and still we find that it is always said that the receipts under Land Revenue are steady. In spite of the fall in prices and in spite of the precarious rains, the revenue, though it has actually increased, is not so clearly seen and the reason for that is that a large portion of this amount is credited to XIII-Land Revenue. I have not exactly understood the position, and I would like to know it from the Honourable the Finance Member. In the year 1920-21, the accounts show that Rs. 16 lakhs was the portion of land revenue due to irrigation, while in the current year's budget we find that it is Rs. 69,88,000. There is a steady increase in the land revenue under irrigation, and this portion of the land revenue has been deducted from the revenue side and again credited to the irrigation side. If we look to the figures of the irrigation side, we will see that most of this revenue is from Sind. From the budget of Sind under head XIII, the direct receipts are Rs. 2,72,000, whereas the indirect receipts for a portion of the land revenue are Rs. 49,90,000. The total expenditure on XIII so far as Sind is concerned is Rs. 47 lakhs. The amount of land revenue, has increased every year and why it is debited to XIII is not known, and why the working expenditure is so high in Sind is also not understood.

(Bell rung, and the honourable member resumed his seat.)

After Recess

Mr. B. T. DESAI (Bombay City, South) : Sir, what all these budget debates lead to ? We have been from time to time criticising the budget and making suggestions as to the ways in which the nation-building departments can be fed properly. To our great disappointment we find that none of the suggestions have been accepted and adopted by Governmens None of the recommendations have been adopted. Last year there were certain suggestions made as to how retrenchment could be erffected. May I ask the Honourable the Finance Member what has been done with regard to those suggestions in order to satisfy this House ? What I find on the part of those who are concerned with the budget is : " You go on talking anything. We will not pay any attention to what you say. We will do what we like. " That is I find the attitude taken by Government, which is deplorable. If this discussion is to have any substantial effect it must be by way of adopting either wholly or partially the suggestions made from this side of the House. All these budget discussions appear to me to be of no utility. We come here, study the figures, and say conscientiously what can be done, which is not adopted by Government. Another feature which I am glad to see is that the Honourable the Finance Member has this time spared the Swaraj Party. Last year he was very hard upon them. Now, as he has got the lesson that he required, he will not any more attempt any such recrimination against that party which has got a particular conviction and action. This time he has even congratulated the non-changers because he has seen their good training. He goes on to say that there may be other occasions not like that unfortunate one, when people would give such co-operation. I may assure him that so long as Government would not reform their ways, so long as Government are what they are at present, you cannot expect any co-operation from the people, because popular suggestions and popular wishes have been slighted. How can you expect people to co-operate with a full heart ? On account of certain influences people may co-operate. But so long as there is no change in the attitude of Government, so long there can never be a change of heart on the part of the people. We can see that in the recent occurrences.

Coming to the budget business I may say that one would really be surprised at the figures that have been given. The figures given for 1928-29 are all speculative. The Honourable the Finance Member has stated that there is a great deal of difference between the estimate and the actuals for the year 1926-27. In the year 1926-27 the deficit estimated was Rs. 75 lakhs but the actual deficit was Rs. 92 lakhs. For the same year the estimated total balance was Rs. 474 lakhs which dwindled in the actuals to Rs. 459 lakhs —a difference of Rs. 15 lakhs. Further the Honourable the Finance Member has stated that it is very difficult to prophecy as to what is going to happen for a year and a half hence. If that is so then the system that has been followed is a system which ought not to be accepted. Here in this budget the figures are given and the deficit is shown. The Honourable the Finance Member suggests that these deficits can be made up by the renewal of the stamp-fees and court fees, and that if these two bills are not sanctioned by the House there will be a further deficit. What I want to say is that these are not actual deficits that are given here ; they do not come even near the actuals and that they are bloated largely. My submission, Sir, is that the system under which the budget is presented is a faulty one and is also a misleading one.

The next point is that although everybody admits that we have reached a limit where there should be no further taxation—it would be folly to tax the people of this presidency any further—still what are the means adopted to reduce taxation ? Of course one would smile when I talk of reducing taxation when the Finance Member presents a budget with a deficit of 34 lakhs in the ordinary budget, and 42 lakhs in the Development budget. But I see that so far as capital works are concerned, 32½ lakhs for loss on development and 10 lakhs interest for Sukkur Barrage, etc., in all 42½ lakhs, are paid from the ordinary revenues. That ought to be stopped. I do not know in what circumstances Government came to the resolution that loss on capital expenditure or interest on capital expenditure should be met from ordinary revenues. I think in doing so they have trespassed upon one of the most vital principles of budget policy not to take from ordinary revenues to meet expenditure which ought really to be debited to capital. My suggestion to Government is, do not try to debit to ordinary revenues expenditure on capital account. When the capital works become productive, when they give you proper profits, deduct your expenditure with interest from those profits. Do not try to defray capital expenditure from ordinary revenues.

Then again, what have Government done ? In the first place they admit that so far as trade is concerned there is depression. That means all round people are poorer their purchasing power has been reduced. Yet they load them with the same amount of taxation as before. A man who has an income of Rs. 50 may willingly pay Rs. 5,—I am not giving any exact ratio, or any idea of the capacity of the people to pay taxation—and he may not feel the pinch. But if a man has only an income of Rs. 10 it would be criminal on your part to make him pay Rs. 5. According to the Finance Member's prophecy, trade is not going to improve very soon and he has provided for this contingency in his budget. That being the case in the case of trade, in the case of the agriculturist who has been reduced to a poor condition on account of the floods, how is it that Government is going to exact the same amount of taxation from them ? Is it not right that they should consider that the same amount of taxation cannot be taken from the agriculturists ? There has been a suggestion that so far as General Administration is concerned, and other departments are concerned, there is good scope for retrenchment, but that retrenchment has not come about. The argument that is thrown in our face, is, there is the Imperial Services, we cannot touch them, there are so many things which are untouchable, we cannot touch them. If they are untouchable go and see the Government of India and make them touchable. That is no reason why the poor ryot should suffer ; that is no reason why people already taxed to their utmost capacity must be reduced to poverty. No steps are taken ; the only step so far taken is to get a revision of the Meston settlement. They feel that there is some injustice in it. Although everybody feels that that injustice should be removed, that has not yet been removed. If Government care for the welfare of the people they must try to save the people from the economic thraldom. It is the economic thraldom that has brought us to this position. The Bombay Government ought to have approached the Government of

[Mr. B. T. Desai]

India and told them that the 1/6 ratio ought not to be maintained, as it has brought crores of loss to this presidency. Industry after industry has been adversely affected, and the trade depression is mainly due to this ratio. It is this ratio again that has brought into being this frightful demon of unemployment. Has any step been taken by this Government to approach the Government of India in regard to that ? On the contrary they would try to defend that ratio and say that nothing has taken place. It has been admitted by all India that the 1/6 ratio is really at the bottom of the trade depression, and I think of all the provinces of India, Bombay has been most adversely affected by it. Still the same amount of tax is to be exacted from the people of this presidency. Then, what is Government really doing to ameliorate the condition of the people of the presidency ? I say None. There are certain things for which the Central Government is responsible—for example, the Imperial Services and the 1/6 ratio and as regards those things representation ought to have been made to the Central Government. The Bombay Government says : " We will tax the people. " The Honourable the Finance Member has proposed that the Stamp Act and the Court-fees Act should stand for ever. Those Acts were opposed by this House from time to time, and last year they were extended on the specific promise given by Government that they were going to be in force only for one year. One is really surprised that, having given that promise, Government are attempting to put them permanently on the statute book. I think this will be resented by this House, and surely the House will ask Government to keep their promise. If Government do not keep their promise, this House will be justified in throwing out the proposal of Government. I think that is the thing that ought to be done.

The next remedy that I would suggest to the Government is to adopt the suggestions made by this House. I would advise honourable members to organise themselves and, when they find that Government are not giving proper heed to their suggestions, refuse the grants that Government ask for. Let them tell Government " You adopt our suggestions otherwise you will go without a grant. " Let the Governor certify if he likes : we do not mind. That ought to be the real position.

Then, we have so many irons in the fire, and the moneys that have been taken as revenue have been dissipated in various ways. Take land revenue, for instance. The Honourable the Finance Member says : " Oh, after the floods conditions have improved ; although crops were washed away and crops had to be re-sown, everything is all right. Not only can you have the whole assessment of the year but also a part of the assessment of the previous year. " Those who have come into contact with the people, those who have moved in the villages, know that that statement is not correct. People have suffered immensely, people have been deprived of their properties by the floods, and nothing is left to them except to remain on the charity of the outside people. Yet, the Finance Member says that everything is all right, the crop is all right and you can have revenue. In certain of the villages of Mehmedabad wherefrom it has been resolved by Government to take the full assessment plus the assessment of the last year, people have had no crop whatsoever, they have suffered immensely, and yet they are made to pay the assessment which under ordinary circumstances they ought not to have been made to pay. Even the ladies appealed to His Excellency to remit and suspend revenue. When the calamity was acute, everybody felt that there ought to be remission of land revenue. What do we find now ? What is the real situation ? We find that orders are sent to the Collector to collect revenue. And the result is that the poor ryot suffer in this way. What I submit, Sir, is that Government should try to find out the real state of affairs and then collect revenue from the ryot. But what do we find ? We find that the Government are trying to exact as much money as they possibly can. We should, therefore, put a stop to such things. It is the duty of this honourable House to make Government reduce the land revenue assessment. My honourable friend, Mr. Swaminarayan, just now told us that people were made to pay assessment in defiance of the new regulations. We should try to stop such "Zulum" from being practised by Government. That is the real state of affairs and we should not only rest satisfied by merely saying that the budget is not satisfactory. We must take action to avoid the presentation of such an unsatisfactory budget in future.

Another item that I find in the budget is the provision of Rs. 30,000 made for the Simon Commission. I am not going to say anything at this stage with regard to the Simon Commission, but I would say this much that Government ought not to have made that provision without ascertaining the wishes of this House in regard to that provision for the Simon Commission. From what has happened in the whole country and what has happened in different quarters, Government ought to have known that practically the whole Indian opinion is combined against the Simon Commission, which Commission, I am sure, no sensible and respectable Indian will ever try to associate with. Under these circumstances, Government ought to have thought twice before making this provision in the budget. They have done so without consulting this honourable House as to what they are going to do with the Commission. But they have already made this provision without caring for what decision this Council may arrive at. I may submit, Sir, that if this House had the power of throwing out the budget in toto, it would have done so, but as it is, we must express our feeling that this is not a body which should be exploited in any way Government may like.

Dr. B. R. AMBEDKAR: Sir, the budget is no doubt an unsatisfactory budget in so far as it is really a deficit budget. But if it was only unsatisfactory on account of the fact that it discloses a deficit, I do not think it would have been necessary for me to take any serious notice of it. The budget however is not merely unsatisfactory but it is, I think, Sir, a deplorable budget and the state of affairs is indeed a very serious state of affairs.

You know, Sir, that we are practically coming to a close of the first decade of the Montagu-Chelmsford Reforms. That being so, it is certainly worth our while to take stock of the situation as from the year 1921 up to now. Now, Sir, these Reforms were introduced in order that the transferred subjects may receive greater consideration at the hands of the Government than the subjects which are called "Reserved." But, Sir, if you analyse the expenditure of this presidency from the year 1921 up to now, what do we find? We find that the hopes that were entertained, that under the new regime objects of expenditure which help progress will receive preference over subjects which merely help the maintainance of law and order, have failed to come true.

[Dr. B. R. Ambedkar]

I shall now show how it is so. I have collected some figures of expenditure incurred in various provinces on the "transferred" and "reserved" departments and with your permission, Sir, I beg to present those figures to this House, so that the House may know how deplorable the situation is. The figures I am giving show the percentage increase or decrease of expenditure in 1925-26 as compared with the year 1921-22 over the transferred and reserved departments in the various provinces. These figures are as under :—

	Reserved Department		Transferred Department
	Increase, per cent.	Decrease, per cent.	Increase, per cent.	Decrease, per cent.
Madras	1·21	..	14·26	..
Bombay	6·33	..	5·82	..
Bengal*	..	..	6·11	..
United Provinces* ..	..	..	12·57	..
Punjab	10·40	..	29·41	..
Burmah	34·36	..	6·44	..
Behar and Orissa ..	5·89	..	44·66	..
Central Provinces ..	6·24	..	18·15	..
Assam	8·24	..	12·75	..

* (Decrease of expenditure on Reserved Department)

Sir, if we look at these figures what do we find? I am sorry to find, and I am sure every one in this House will be sorry to find, that such an important province as Bombay should occupy the very lowest place in the order of its relative expenditure on the reserved and transferred departments. Even the province of Burma, which appears to have been so badly managed, stands higher than Bombay in this respect. I, therefore, submit, Sir, that that is a grave scandal. Surely this is not the way in which the finances of an important presidency like the Bombay Presidency should be managed. I wish the Honourable the Finance Member had paid more attention to the "transferred" departments than he seems to have actually paid to them. From the figures it is evident that the reserved departments are systematically over-fed and the transferred departments are systematically starved. Sir, what good is an Indian Finance member if he is not to respond to the wishes of his countrymen. There is a general clamour for progress on all hands. The Honourable the Finance Member knows how very insistent the clamour is. But unfortunately he has so far done nothing to lead us to hope for anything at his hands in the future.

Then, Sir, not only are the finances badly managed, but I submit that the financial position of this presidency is indeed very serious. Sir, if you examine the financial position year by year from 1921-22 to the present day, you will find that every year there is a reduction of the surplus; so much so that instead of having surplus budgets we have exhausted our surpluses and we have now reached a period where the budget discloses a series of deficits. In 1922-23 there was a surplus of Rs. 64 lakhs. In 1923-24 the surplus came down to Rs. 29,38 lakhs. In the year 1924-25 there was a further reduction of Rs. 26 lakhs. In the year 1925-26 the year was closed with a deficit of Rs. 91 lakhs; and we know what has been the state of affairs since then. You see, Sir, from these figures that the financial position of this presidency is deteriorating year by year, and I submit, Sir, that having regard to the commitments made by Government, the position in time to come is indeed going to be very serious. Sir, you know the loans borrowed by the Government under the provincial loan arrangements will have soon to be paid off. Some arrangement shall have to be made for the repayment of that loan, and if you do make an arrangement for repayment of the loan, that is bound to cast a heavy burden on the already exhausted finances of the presidency. Sir, this Council and the Government have been committed to universal compulsory primary education. This Council and Government are also committed to the carrying out of the policy of prohibition. These three items, I do not think any honourable member of Government is going to deny, are going to make a very heavy call upon the finances of this presidency. And when our finances are deteriorating year by year even without these three items, I cannot quite imagine what will be the state of affairs when we begin to give these items a practical shape. Finding myself in this situation what surprises me most is that all this does not seem to trouble the Honourable the Finance Member at all. He does not disclose that he is aware of all these commitments. In the financial statement he has submitted he does not show that he is conscious of these obligations. He is merely, if I may say so, carrying through a hand-to-mouth policy, a policy for the day without any thought for the morrow. There is no outline of a general policy which will improve the future exigencies of the situation. After me the deluge seems to be his watchward. He is merely trying to meet the deficit of the budget. He is calculating upon what he might be able to gain out of the reduction in the famine insurance grant, and in the Meston contribution. But I ask him in all seriousness whether these small, paltry gains, as I call them, are going to really take us a long way in the financial stabilization of the presidency?

[Dr. B. R. Ambedkar]

I think, Sir, it would be a mistake to suppose that they can. Either the Honourable the Finance Member must assure us that there are sufficient possibilities of economy in the administration of this presidency which will carry us through, or he should tell us definitely that we shall not get what we want unless we have recourse to taxation. I respectfully refer to the speech made yesterday by His Excellency the Governor. In that speech His Excellency pointed out that the Legislative Council was entirely responsible for taxation, that it was within its powers to impose such taxation as was necessary. I admit that the Legislative Council has the power of taxation. But I also submit that the initiation in the matter must come from Government. It is the Government that must suggest what taxation it wants. Has the Government done so ? The Government on the contrary is absolutely sitting silent. It does not propose to tell us what it is going to do. It cannot be said that Government has not got the data to work out a plan. We all know that the Taxation Enquiry Committee has submitted a most exhaustive report, with endless recommendations which ought to suffice for the initiation of a new and adequate financial policy. These, I am sure, are lying on the table of the Honourable the Finance Member, but nothing seems to have been done in the matter at all. I say, Sir, that the situation is indeed very serious and it is high time the Honourable the Finance Member make up his mind to deal with it in a statesmanlike manner.

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI (Bombay University): Mr President, I rise to join in the mournful chorus which is dignified by the name of general discussion on the budget. In doing so, Sir, I must congratulate the Honourable the Finance Member for the extraordinary cleverness which he has shown in introducing before this House a budget which appears to be nicely balanced. His position, perhaps at the time when he is presenting to us his last budget, appears to be invested with tragic grandeur. Since the reforms he has served this presidency in many offices with great distinction. Though he has very often defied public opinion and criticism—very often openly, equally often, very slyly,—one thing is certain that he has always retained the respect of this House and has never forfeited the confidence of the presidency. By his presence in the Executive Council of this Presidency, most of us have always felt that the Executive Council consists of public men and not of mere officials. And this is a meed of praise which for any Indian who accepts office under this constitution is really great praise indeed. But it appears his abilities and energies have been wasted in all these years in trying to balance a budget which from its very nature is unbalanceable on account of causes over which this provincial Government has very little control and circumstances for which certainly he cannot be held responsible. His efforts are, therefore, heroic and we must admire them. But the situation which has called forth those efforts is certainly very grave and this House is perfectly justified in giving a warning not to him, for he will soon be out of office, but to the Government of Bombay, as to the very very serious situation which stares in their face.

[Mr. K. M. Munshi]

Before I say a few words on the budget, I may say, with great respect, and with the hesitation of an amateur, a few words on the form in which the budget is presented. Sir, I do not know the mystifying peculiarities of public finance. But looking at this budget I wish a little clearer statements, ampler comparative statements, were given for the edification of the uninitiated.

I will only give one instance. I daresay that the experts behind the Honourable the Finance Member can give twenty-seven valid reasons for the existence of statements which I am pointing out. But look at page iv and you will find the interesting item, viz., "the ordinary revenue 13,99 lakhs." Look at page 15. I do not say the statement there is inaccurate, but I say that surely some mercy could be shown towards a man who is not initiated into the mysteries of high finance. On page 15 you find that the ordinary total revenue is 15,25 lakhs. Then come to page 29 the report of the Secretary. It shows that ordinary revenue as 14·36. Surely there must be some reasons other than mysterious references which should be given in these places to indicate why these figures fluctuate in this interesting manner.....

Mr. G. WILES: They are there.

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI: They ought to be made clearer. We ought not to be made to waste an hour and half to find out what the reasons are. A comparative study becomes impossible. A little more printing expense is all that would be necessary. I am not conversant very much with the ways of this House but I am afraid in the case of a statement prepared in the High Court and placed before a Judge, the man who submits such a statement will have to bear his own costs and pay the costs of the other side.

I will now deal with the situation as regards this presidency as disclosed by this budget. It has already been dealt with and dealt with, as I said, in a very mournful manner. I do not want to add any further tinge of sadness if I can help it, but it strikes me that if you will look at it, as you would look at an ordinary financial concern, this presidency is tottering on the very verge of bankruptcy. You may call it by a polite name; as it is a Government it is not liable to be taken into compulsory liquidation; but there are all possible materials appearing in the budget which, in the case of a joint stock company, would fully entitle it to that privilege. I will mention just a few figures that I have taken partially from the elaborate speech of the Honourable the Finance Member and partially from the budget. In 1926-27 we opened with a balance of 664 lakhs. Then we spent 92 lakhs in revenue deficit, a deficit which ought to have been made up from the ordinary revenues of the presidency. Then we spent 115 as ordinary loans which certainly ought to have been met from the general receipts of the presidency. In this way 207 lakhs are taken away and the result is that we had an opening balance on 1st April 1927 of 5·08 and the closing balance on the 31st March 1928 as given by the Honourable the Finance Member is 254. So in this way in one year 254 lakhs disappear. As regards 156 lakhs the Honourable the Finance Member explains in paragraph 9 that the expense has been the result of the extraordinary floods in Gujarat and Sind. But the balance of 98 lakhs is the revenue deficit. In this way the result is that on the 1st April 1928 we will have the opening balance of 254 lakhs and in the budget before us 169 will be the closing balance on the 31st March 1929. Looking at the fact that we started with an opening balance of 664, four crores have been used up from this balance. Out of that expenditure the real expenditure for unforeseen contingencies is only 156.

The Government of India has prescribed the maintenance of certain credit balances by the provincial Governments. The object of it is really two-fold, first, the preservation of some kind of minimum financial strength in the provinces and the second is to create a fund to meet extraordinary and unforeseen contingencies. I can understand that where a case arises of really great need to meet an extraordinary contingency, the balance may be drawn upon. But what we have done is that, in order to make up the deficits of the ordinary expenses, we have swallowed up a considerable part of the balance which was at our disposal in 1926-27. What is the position ? The position therefore is this, that in 1926-27 we had locked up as credit balance certain mobile liquid capital of the presidency and a considerable part of it is gone in meeting the ordinary deficits of the presidency and not in meeting any extraordinary deficit arising from an unforeseen contingency. That is against the policy of this credit balance.

In addition to this we have also got the benefit of remissions. Again and again we were told in past years that the contributions remitted by the Imperial Government would be used for the purpose of nation-building departments. What we really find is that we have taken advantage of the remissions but instead of using them for nation-building departments, we have used them for the ordinary expenditure of the presidency.

In the same way we have also tried the experiment of additional taxation. As has been mentioned before in this House, there is no margin for further expenditure. Take the head of Land Revenue : we find that there is a progressive decline in Land Revenue. We further find that revised settlements have been fixed on the basis of inflated prices. Already protests are being made whether the question of protests is one which the Government is inclined to listen to or not is a different matter, but the fact remains that the resentment which is being felt at these revised settlements is sure to result in a further decline of this heavy taxation.

Then, take the next head Excise. It is the acknowledged policy of Government that taxation from this source should diminish in the future. So far as we know, it is impossible to ever introduce prohibition of any sort or kind in this presidency and to carry out that policy. If the promise which has been so often given in this direction is to be carried out, this heavy taxation will also diminish to a considerable extent.

Then there is the entertainment-tax. There is also the proposal of the Government to have perpetual taxes on court-fees and stamps. When the proposal for these taxes comes before the House, it will be time enough to consider what grounds are made out by Government for making these taxes permanent. But Sir, we have taxed the presidency to the utmost limit to which it could be taxed. Of course the present Finance Member has not, like his predecessor, flirted with the Inheritance Tax and the Estate Tax, and not introduced extreme socialism, as it was thought was going to be introduced into this presidency.

An Honourable MEMBER : Who did it ?

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI : Sir Henry Lawrence did it. That is the one thing left,—estate duty and inheritance duty. If you levy it, it does come to this, that you are taxing the one and only source left to this presidency for replenishing its treasury, and there is no further margin of taxation left.

Then, let us turn to the expenditure. Is there anything to show that in the coming years expenditure will be brought within such limits as to put the finances of this presidency on a decent financial footing, apart from a flourishing basis. My honourable friend Dr. Ambedkar has pointed out the difference between the expenses incurred for the reserved and the transferred departments. But let us take the expenditure of this presidency which has been growing every year. In 1921 Rs. 8 crores was the expenditure on the reserved side and Rs. 4,53 lakhs for the transferred departments. In the revised estimate for 1927-28, the figure has increased to Rs. 9·43 crores for the reserved departments and Rs. 5·48 crores for the transferred departments. Now, you find again a rise, Rs. 10·85 crores for the reserved departments and Rs. 5·64 so far as the transferred departments are concerned. The increase is, therefore, roughly 40 per cent. in the reserved departments and 25 per cent. in the transferred departments. Now, if the expenses grow in this way, when are we going to attain position when the finances can be considered stable ? Therefore, unless this expenditure is controlled in some way, the future offers gloomy prospects. I know full well that the question of curtailing a considerable part of the expenditure is not in our hands, but still it is a case which does require very serious consideration, and it is no use the present Finance Member or any Finance Member coming before the House for additional taxation, unless an effort is made to curtail the expenditue. The honourable member who preceded me (Mr. Balubhai Desai) stated that Government is at fault. Unless the Provincial Government makes a heroic effort to see that this expenditure is kept down and the pressure of taxation is relieved to a certain extent, the position will be worse year after year.

Sir, only one word more and I have done. A reference was made in this connection by His Excellency the Governor as well as the Honourable the Finance Member to the Meston settlement. I only wish to add this. I am sure, whatever we do the Government is sure in its executive capacity, to go before the Simon Commission, and therefore it must make up its mind to fight on this question, because unless the Meston settlement is revised, we will be very soon not only on the verge of bankruptcy but in bankruptcy itself. That is all that I have to say.

Mr. N. R. GUNJAL (Poona District) (Addressed the House in Marathi): Sir, in considering the budget that is placed before us for our consideration, I wish to bring to the notice of honourable members last year's budget and the speech of the Honourable the Finance Member in introducing it. At that time honourable members in giving expression to their opinions on the matter, stated that the budget is not prepared in the way it should be done. It was then stated that consideration ought to be given, in the preparation of the budget, to the conveniences and the opinions of the people who pay the taxes, but that has not been done. Since the year 1923, I have been repeatedly bringing to the notice of Government this fact, and I am sorry it has remained unheeded.

If we look to the figures of revenue for the last five years, it will be seen that the major portion of the revenue is from land revenue. Now, if we see how much of that revenue is spent for the benefit of the people who pay it, we can get an idea as to how the budget is prepared. We have been complaining that there is wastage of expenditure, and if we examine how this income from land revenue is being spent, we will have a fair idea of the wastage. Instead of spending money for the benefit of the agriculturists, it is wasted on the Sukkur Barrage and the Development Department. If we compare the balances at our disposal five years ago with those that are estimated in this budget, it will be seen that our balances are getting less and less. It is a well known fact that no consideration is paid to the needs of the people who pay the taxes.

Taking the Revenue Department, we have been saying for the last three or four years that the expenditure in this department is growing, and that the salaries of the European officers should be reduced, but nothing has so far been done in this direction.

With regard to the Irrigation Department, I say that the new rules for distribution of water should be revised. The charges for water are also being increased, and yet the income is shown as less and the expenditure as more. I fear that in the khudda (pit) of the Development Department and the Sukkur Barrage the whole of our revenues will be swallowed up. As regards forests the income from the forests should be increased by improving the forest produce and realising the full value for it. Instead of that the Government have gone the wrong way in levying more grazing fees and putting obstacle in the way of the agriculturists using the forest produce for their agricultural implements and manure. In the Mawal Taluka there is a vast area of forest. The agriculturists are being put to great hardship for want of facilities for grazing and for utilizing the forest produce for their agricultural purposes. Government appointed the Forest Grievances Committee which made enquiries and submitted a report. Government have issued a resolution on that report which has not in the least solved the difficulties under which the agriculturists are suffering. Government are incurring expenditure very heavily in directions which will not in any way improve the condition of the agriculturists, for whose benefit, it is stated by the Honourable the Finance Member, this budget has been framed. Like myself other representatives from rural areas will represent their grievances which I hope will be heard and redressed by Government.

I now come to sanitation, on which the Honourable the Finance Member has stated a large expenditure has been incurred. In the city of Bombay there is a very big hospital known as the J. J. Hospital. There if people go in ragged clothes they are not allowed to see the medical officer in charge and are forced to come better clothed which we cannot expect poor agriculturists to do. If that is the condition in Bombay, I leave the condition in the districts to be imagined by honourable members. It has been time again represented to Government to encourage Ayurvedic dispensaries in the rural parts so that medical aid may reach the remotest villages. In Madras they have already adopted this method and opened many dispensaries. But the Bombay Government have not taken any steps so far and they do not seem to adopt this method of giving medical relief by opening Ayurvedic dispensaries.

Now, I come to education. An Act has been passed by this House that every child of this presidency should be educated and primary education must be made compulsory. Only the Act is there and nothing fruitful has been done so far. The Honourable the Finance Member has stated that they cannot provide more money for education for want of funds. Only when the question of providing money for education comes Government plead want of funds. What we find is that they are able to provide money for Sukkur Barrage and other big schemes. Government have appointed a physical training committee which I hope will submit its report shortly. Even if the report is submitted without delay Government will take at least 50 years to give effect to their recommendations. These are the ways of Government.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMED: The honourable member is dealing with physical training. Is he in order, Sir ?

The DEPUTY PRESIDENT: I think he is in order.

Mr. N. R. GUNJAL: Government must take up the subject of physical training seriously and give effect to the recommendations of the committee without any undue delay. In the Kedgaon taluka there is a great need for English education. At present an institution known as Saraswati is carrying educational work in the rural areas in the Poona district. There may be similar institutions in the other districts also. If Government give them financial help they will be able to do much better work.

Mr. G. 1. PATEL (Ahmedabad Millowners' Association): Sir, looking at the figures presented to this House in the two big budget books, and taking into account the fact that this is the last budget to be presented to us by the present Finance Member, we are rather tempted to offer our congratulations to him with one hand and at the same time to withdraw these congratulations with the other hand. That is the position in which, Sir, this side of the House finds itself to-day. We very much appreciate the energies, the abilities and the keen sense of adjustment which are possessed by the Honourable the Finance Member Sir Chunilal Metha, but at the same time we feel aggrieved over the manner in which the whole case has been placed before us and summarized by him in his budget speech delivered yesterday.

Sir, as a businessman I will refer to the general principles of drawing up and settling budgets. The items which one has to consider consist of the revenue side, the expenditure side, the debt position, and the surplus or deficit or what a businessman would call profits or losses incurred in conducting this "political business." Scrutinizing the budget on its revenue side, we find from the introductory note in the Blue Book that our ordinary revenue which was 12 crores in the year 1921-22 has gone up in the estimates for 1928-29 to 14 crores. Now as to the ordinary expenditure, it is mentioned that in 1921-22 it was 14·84 crores. What do we find ? In the budget for 1928-29 the figure is practically the same, 14·62 lakhs. So, as a businessman I would appeal to the Honourable the Finance Member to consider whether when our ordinary revenue has increased from 12 crores to 14 crores, it is proper to keep the standard of ordinary expenditure at the same level of 14 crores. This is a very clear point in which we find ourselves justified in levelling serious criticism against the expenditure side of Government. Government have not been able to reduce expenditure to any extent, although enhanced revenue has been realised by way of taxation from the public; the revenue has gone up by 2 crores from 1921-22 to 1928-29, while the expenditure side has remained practically stationary at 14 crores. Hence, the position is this: that our revenues have increased while Government have failed to rise to the occasion and reduce their unprecedentedly heavy expenditure incurred from 1921-22 to this day. Therefore, there is a strong case for us to ask Government on the lines of my resolution to retrench or to satisfy this side of the House as to why expenditure has remained stationary so far. Unless this side of the House is satisfied on that issue, it will not be possible under any circumstances to allow Government to run into the gamble of always suggesting and imposing taxes and even continuing those which have been temporarily levied.

Secondly, after examining the "revenue" and "expenditure" side of the budget, we have to take into consideration the "debt" position. What do we find from the statement which has been placed before us in regard to our debt position ? At page 25 the Statement E clearly shows that the debt outstanding on 1st April 1927 was Rs. 46,46,00,000, that is about 50 crores of rupees, and the estimated borrowing during the year 1927-28 was about 3 crores, and the accumulations up to 31st March 1928 are mentioned as Rs. 78·70. Now, I would ask the Honourable the Finance Member to consider whether when our sources of revenue remain uniform and our expenditure is at the highest top level, it is possible for us to maintain this policy of incurring heavier and heavier debts running into crores and crores ? If we do so, what will be the position of the Bombay Government when they are called upon to pay up those debts with interest and sinking fund ?

[Mr. G. I. Patel]

Now, Sir, I shall try to discuss a few points which have been touched by the Honourable the Finance Member in his budget speech yesterday. He says :

" There is also a fall of 18 lakhs in Stamps owing to slackness of trade."

Here the Honourable the Finance Member refers to the ' trade depression' that has been rampant in this presidency for the last two or three years. He further says :

" Of these 18 lakhs, 10 lakhs is accounted for non-judicial stamps and 8 lakhs by Court-fees stamps."

If that is the situation, I do not see the reason why the Honourable the Finance Member should come forward for the sanction of additional taxation. If he admits that there is serious trade depression, why should he have additional expenditure ? When we proceed further, in paragraph 6 of his budget speech we find " the decrease in revenue was counterbalanced by a decrease in expenditure of 51 lakhs." These are the crucial words of the Honourable the Finance Member. When there was a decrease in revenue, Government thought it wise to make a decrease at a stroke in expenditure by 51 lakhs. But I submit, Sir, that we very much doubt the bona fides of Government in this respect. It is most surprising that Government, who were never willing to accept a single cut in their demands for grants, have accepted a decrease to the extent of 51 lakhs in the expenditure. I can cite many instances where Government have refused to meet the demands of this side (non-official) of the House in regard to any cuts. There was practically no occasion when Government have accepted our suggestions to reduce the high level of expenditure. We, therefore, doubt the bona fides of Government. I say that only when they are in the light corner, they themselves make it convenient to decrease the expenditure. But when they are asked to do so by the non-official side, they do not see their way to accept any of their proposals. I, therefore, request the honourable members from the Government side to take into their consideration these facts and figures and to try to effect retrenchment as may be possible for them by a mutual understanding. If that is not possible, I may say that one section of this House will always be opposed to any action of Government in regard to new taxation, may it be to-day or year after year hereafter. If this presidency is to be launched into a sound financial condition, this Government ought to try to review and re-organise the whole situation as it stands to-day. We all know that a very heavy loss has been suffered by this presidency with regard to the Back Bay scheme and we are compelled to bear that burden for 60 years. Such acts ought to be avoided in future. We also find that the Honourable the Finance Member admits that during this year there has been serious damage by floods to crops in Gujerat and Sind. Although this has been admitted, what do we see ? We find that there has been a campaign started at some places against the heavy assessment levied on the agriculturists. At present, I cannot see where that campaign will lead us to. Government admits, on one hand, that the agriculturists have suffered much owing to the floods and they have been also granting loans to them, but, on the other hand, Government Officers have been pressing for the recovery of assessments from the agriculturists in a very merciless manner. I am afraid that the movement started in the Bardoli Taluka may result in the end in the loss of revenue to Government and the people. I am glad to find that the Honourable the Finance Member has paid compliments to Mr. Vallabhbhai Patel and some other people. I wished the the Finance Member had consulted Mr. Patel in respect of granting loans before he made a reference to him. I know it for certain that Mr. Patel has many grievances in regard to the method of granting loans adopted by Government officers. I would ask the Honourable the Finance Member to lay on the Council table the amount of loans granted by Government. If the figures are placed on the table, this House will be in a position to know how much money has been actually distributed by Government out of the amount originally sanctioned.

[Mr. G. I. Patel]

On going further we find it mentioned in the speech of the Honourable the Finance Member—a reference to the depression in trade. He says :

"That the depression in trade and commerce seems to be the cause of the decline in Stamp revenue is also borne out by the fact that it is in the industrial provinces that the estimates have declined while in the agricultural provinces there seems to have been indeed some slight improvement."

Here he admits, Sir, that Bombay is an industrial province. He also admits that there is trade depression. If that is the case, I do not understand how he maintains the same level of taxation in an Industrial Province where there is continued trade depression. On the one hand he admits that there is, no doubt, trade depression in Bombay, but on the other, he wants to keep up the same level of expenditure. That is, in my opinion, quite contrary to each other. These two things are diametrically opposite to each other. I, therefore, say that Government should, in the circumstances, better reduce further the level of taxation than to maintain it at such a high figure.

The Honourable the Finance Member further adds :

"For the Development it is intended to borrow 77 lakhs inclusive of 2 lakhs for advance."

He also states :

"General revenues will give a subsidy of 32½ lakhs, to write off the loss on the Back Bay, the Suburban Schemes and the Housing Schemes."

I may tell the Honourable the Finance Member that these figures will go up year by year. We do not know whether the figure of Rs. 32½ lakhs may not go up to 50 lakhs after three or four years. That is a question of great apprehension and fear to us. This very system of miscalculating the loans and adjusting the deficit by way of subsidy will one day lead this presidency into a heavy loss of crores and crores of rupees and which loss this presidency will find it difficult to meet ultimately. I, therefore, warn Government against this proverbially wrong system of miscalculating our debts, loans and losses. On the presidency as a whole he admits the present debt to be to the extent of over 50 crores, and the total expected borrowings will make it 78 crores, as has been stated in Statement E of the Blue Book. Now, may I know whether a presidency with an ordinary regular revenue of 15 crores on an average is likely to keep up its level of borrowings to such a high figure ? And when is the presidency going to be able to pay back its borrowings with its ordinary revenue of 13 crores ? I am referring to the last column " Accumulations up to 31st March 1928—78,70."

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : That is the statement of debts. What is 78,70 ? Crores or lakhs ?

Mr. G. I. PATEL : Yes ; it is 78 lakhs not 78 crores. Sir, as stated in the Statement E, the total outstandings are 50,72,18 thousand ; annual charges for interest are 2,96,25 thousand. So, we have already at present the debt to the extent of 50 crores on the one hand with our liability to pay interest to the extent of 3 crores as annual charges. I think I am correct ; at present we have already a debt of 50 crores.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : First of all, it is not 78 crores. That, I presume, the honourable member now admits. Secondly, the 50 crores contains borrowings by the local bodies. These are all detailed above on the same page in the note, and they amount to :

Port Trust 2,47,84 thousand

Bombay Improvement Trust 4,34,50 thousand.

Bombay Municipality 8,22,30 thousand.

That comes to over 15 crores. So, the total debt is 50 minus 15, that is, 35 crores. Out of this again the Development loan taken on behalf of the same bodies amounting to about 7 crores shown in the note below on the same page has to be deducted. So the total debt is reduced to about 28 crores.

Mr. G. I. PATEL : This much can be adjusted against the debts to be recovered from these other bodies. I do understand that. Is not the presidency liable for these debts also ? Then, why do you include.....

(Interruption from Government Benches).

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Will the Honourable member proceed ?

Mr. G. I. PATEL : Very well Sir. I will speak on the statement mentioned by my honourable friend Sir Chunilal. The figure he gives is 50,72,18 thousand with annual interest charges of 2 crores 96 lakhs, and he has separated all these debts. By analysing the position he says our total debt borrowings up to the end of the next year will amount to 28 crores 9 lakhs. I think he will further admit that when Government will complete their other schemes, it will go to the extent of 50 crores or much above that.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : The honourable member will find that on the previous page the balances required in the future are also stated. They do not amount to anything like 78 crores. They are 11 crores.

Mr. G. I. PATEL : The honourable member may also very well know that we have no faith in these figures, because last time the figure given as subsidy was 27½ lakhs ; this time it is 32½ lakhs. Thus we can always discount the correctness of all these camouflaged figures.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The honourable member's time is up.

Mr. G. I. PATEL : I want only two minutes more, if you can kindly give them. I will refer to one point which the Honourable the Finance Member refers to on page 17, where he says " The departments have all been goaded to extreme economy and retrenchment and as last year been severely rationed." This sentence very clearly shows that once having resolutely determined he has been able to reduce expenditure. May I ask him why did he not take up the same position two years back, and why did he not save 2 crores to this presidency, by reducing expenditure as he has tried to do this year ? Is it because he finds at the fag end of his career that he has to present his last budget this year ? I may very honestly tell him and the House that because we strongly insisted on " no-taxation " and " rigid economy " that he was compelled to practise these by retrenchment from every source. Therefore, I again charge him that the same acumen ought to have been used by him two years ago, in which case we would have saved the presidency another crore of rupees.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : The honourable member forgets that I was not the Finance Member two years ago.

Mr. G. I. PATEL : At least last year he was the Finance Member. With this compliment, I would again congratulate my honourable friend for his best efforts and I further urge that he will apply his mind to the problem with a view to reduce the debt charges, the high level of taxation and the abnormal expenditure. As has been pointed out by me, 14 crores by way of expenditure have remained stationary from the year 1921-22 up till to-day, despite all the so-called retrenchment so far effected by Government.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK (Surat District) : Mr. President, sufficient has been said by the honourable members who preceded me about the unsatisfactory nature of the budget, and, therefore, I will not trouble the House with figures given on the various pages of the budget. I only want to bring one or two points to the notice of the honourable members, that the highest pitch of taxation has been reached in this presidency and that there is no further scope for making any further enhancement in taxation.

Now, Sir, since the year 1921-22, that is after the introduction of the reforms, people have been expecting, and I think rightly expecting, that the transferred departments, the nation building departments under the Ministers, would be adequately served with funds to carry on the departments under their charge. My honourable friend Dr. Ambedkar has already given the figures to show what percentage of increase has been given to the nation building departments in last ten years, and by my association with the local bodies, I know something about this. During the last five years no progress has been made. I will take one instance of my own district, Surat district - it was admitted by the Honourable the Education Minister this morning that the expenditure on primary education in the district of Surat has been on the decrease during 1924-25 and 1925-26. That is, after the introduction of primary education

[Rao Bahadur B. R. Naik]

Act the expenditure on primary education has decreased ! Sir, if you will find the figures of taxation of this district, you will find that it is paying a revenue of Rs. 11 per head to the provincial Government, and that the district local board is getting, for primary education, communications, medical relief and everything, only Rs. 1-1-0 per head !

The Honourable the Finance Member and his predecessor were repeatedly requested by this side of the House to retrench. He says that he has tried his utmost to do so and that he is unable to retrench further. I do not know how he likes his budget. But if any joint-stock Company had such a budget the High Court would have, as said by one of my honourable friends, declared it a bankrupt budget.

As regards communications, so far as the districts of Gujarat are concerned, no adequate grants have been made after the reforms. Take the instance of Surat. The District Local Board of Surat had received a grant after communications of Rs. 89,000 in the year 1922-23 which was reduced to Rs. 50,000 and 56,000 in subsequent years, though it has again been increased to Rs. one lakh in the last two years.

As regards primary education, communications or water-supply, I find no progress is being made. After the present Finance Member took over the Revenue Portfolio he toured round the districts of Gujarat and introduced a system of irrigation works such as tanks, wells and bandharas and grants were given from the Famine Insurance Fund after their repairs, but this year unfortunately no famine grant has been provided and in future, as has been arranged with the Imperial Government, instead of 33 lakhs only 12 lakhs would be provided and that too for direct famine works and not for preventive or protective famine works.....

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : So long as it is 75 lakhs only. Any amount in excess can be utilized for preventive or protective works.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : It is true that if the surplus of Famine Insurance will exceed 75 lakhs the excess would be utilized after small irrigation works. I am afraid that if sufficient amount is not sanctioned from this fund, it will be very difficult to provide small irrigation works out of the General Fund. So I say in spite of the increase of taxation in the rural areas the people are not getting the amenities of life which they ought to get.

The total expenditure on education for the whole of the presidency is about 14 per cent. of the total revenue, but we find that not more than 7 per cent. is spent on primary education. I am told that about 25 per cent. of the total revenue is spent on education in Philippines and that a major portion of it after primary education.

I notice that both the Revenue and the Finance Members count upon getting 538 lakhs as the anticipated land revenue for the coming year. I am doubtful, looking to the condition of the crops in rural areas in Gujarat, and other factors, the anticipated revenue will not be realised. The agriculturist's income is not enough to enable him to maintain himself and his family, as whatever profit is realised from agriculture is swallowed by Government. The land revenue policy of this Government has been condemned by eminent European and Indian statesmen, and I will here refer the Honourable the Revenue Member to a statement made by a former Secretary of State in the sixties of the last century that the system of land revenue and the ownership rights of Government are unjust. In 1875, Lord Salisbury admitted that ownership rights should be restored to the ryots. I do not want to take the valuable time of this House by quoting more authorities, nor I am going into the ancient history on this subject; but in spite of a resolution of this Council and in spite of the recommendations of the Land Revenue Assessment Committee, Government have given orders to levy enhanced assessment in certain talukas of my district and also of the presidency. I refer to Chorasi and Bardoli. The Honourable the Finance Member in his speech paid a tribute to Mahatma Gandhi and his followers under the leadership of Mr. Vallabhbhai Patel. He said that it was a pleasure to work with him. I hope that the Honourable the Revenue Member will also find occasion to express similar sentiments in respect of the work that Mr. Vallabhbhai has now been doing in Bardoli and that he will find out a way which will be acceptable both to the people and the Government alike. It is in the interest of Government themselves that this matter should be handled in a very careful calm and cool manner. I know that the Government are powerful to exact revenue, but in doing so, I am sure they will only be impoverishing the ryots still further. The ryots are not at all prosperous, they are going from bad to worse year after year. I am sure that if the Honourable the Revenue Member will cause careful andi mpartial enquiries to be made into the real condition of the ryots, he will find that I am stating nothing but the plain truth when I say that the ryots are going from bad to worse from year to year, and that this is the reason why they are not able to pay the enhanced assessment. I hope that Government, resourceful as they are, will be able to find out some means of easing the situation and meeting the difficulty that is now facing them in Bardoli and other talukas and that no question of prestige will be allowed to stand in the way of their doing so.

The Honourable the Revenue Member, last year, has admitted that abnormal years are to be excluded when revising the land revenue assessment of the presidency. It has been suggested by the Honourable the Finance Member, when he was a member of the Agricultural Commission, that abnormal years are not to be taken into consideration. In 1924, the then acting Revenue Member, Sir Lalubhai Samaldas, had admitted that abnormal years were to be excluded; and yet, we see that in the case of the Bardoli and other talukas these very abnormal years from 1918 to 1925 have been taken into consideration in basing the assessment. When I made a representation on this subject to the Honourable the Revenue Member last year, it was stated that the members of this House were irresponsible critics, and they did not say which years were abnormal years. I think the Honourable the Revenue Member and his colleagues ought to know better which years were abnormal years. Were not the years 1918 to 1925 abnormal years ? Had not during these years the Hon'ble the Finance Member of the Government of India to gamble on exchange to balance his budget ? Up to the year 1917 everything was normal. After the war, prices went up not only in India, but all over the world ; there were great fluctuations in prices during those years, and therefore those years ought to have been excluded, as has been declared by the Honourable the Revenue Member, the Honourable the Finance Member and the acting Revenue Member in 1924. A Land Revenue Assessment Committee was appointed to look into this question, as a result of a resolution passed by this House and another resolution on the same subject was passed last year, to stop the revision of assessments till the Land Revenue Code is amended. But in spite of that resolution, Government are going on enhancing the assessments without listening to the resolutions. What is more strange is that the Settlement Commissioner is taking the rental as the basis for assessments, although it is not laid down by law.

The hon'ble member the Settlement Commissioner is nodding his head ; but let me, Sir, tell him that Government have been exacting 46½ per cent. of rentals as assessment till the year 1914 on dry crop land and 80 per cent. of the rentals on rice land. Government say that rent should be the main basis for revising assessments, in spite of the protests of this House. It may perhaps be said that I come from a rural area, that I have got my own lands, and therefore I do not like to pay more taxes. But let me tell the honourable members frankly that when I put anything before them, I am putting the real facts. I told the Revenue Commissioner of Northern Division the other day that I was prepared to go round with him and examine a few villages in order to find out the truth, and I further stated that if it was proved that Government were in the right, I would be the first man to move round in the taluka from village to village, and advise the people that we must pay the enhanced assessments and if Government were convinced of the justness of the case why should they not accept my offer ? The hon'ble member Mr. Smart, in the year 1924, when tendering his evidence before the Land Revenue Assessment Committee, said that it was quite unsafe to levy the assessment on the basis of rent. But another Commissioner —I mean the Settlement Commissioner—says that it should not be so, and that rent is the proper basis. Whom are we to listen to ? I have got the committee's report here, and I see from it that Mr. Smart has said that the rents are not real economic rents, and half of them are the rentals of interest for lands mortgaged, and yet Government say that rent is the safest guide and it is the only guide and the only basis on which land revenue assessment can be levied. Sir, this is an important subject and therefore I hope the Honourable the Revenue Member will take the necessary steps in the matter. It is the duty of Government to see that the relations between them and the ryots are not strained.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The honourable member's time is up.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : I do not want to say anything on other items of the budget, because sufficient has been said with regard to them. I really wonder what will be the fate of the successor of the present Finance Member. I am quite sure that the little surplus in the Famine Insurance Fund that we have will decrease next year, and it will come to the vanishing point the year after. I therefore say that Government should retrench as much as possible.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The House is now adjourned till 2 p.m., to-morrow, Wednesday, the 22nd February 1928.

"YATRAS": PRESENCE OF LEPERS

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE (Bombay City, North): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they have issued any orders to the authorities concerned at Pandharpur, Alandi and Nasik to prevent persons suffering from leprosy from moving in the "Yatra;"

(b) if the reply to (a) be in the negative, what action they are going to take?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: (a) and (b) The Lepers Act has already been applied to the Nasik City Municipal District and the Cantonment of Deolali, and the question of applying it to Pandharpur is under consideration. The advisability of making section 39 of the District Police Act applicable to the Jatra area at Alandi from the 10th day of the latter half of Kartik to the end of that month is under consideration.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE : How long will it take for consideration in an important matter like this ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : It is not an easy matter and consequently it will have to take some time.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I request honourable members to speak much louder than they do, because it is impossible for me to follow.

VILLAGE BURNING GROUND, BAG : DEPOSIT BY VILLAGERS

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that the Collector of Ratnagiri has asked the villagers of Bag, a part of Guhagar in the Ratnagiri District, to deposit a sum of Rs. 400 in connection with the burning ground of the village ;

(b) if so, why ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Yes.

(b) The site applied for for use as a burning ground is situated in the middle of a Casuarina plantation maintained by the Forest Department. In view of the danger of fire, the Collector asked the villagers to deposit a sum of Rs. 400 as security that they would carefully attend to the pyres and would prevent sparks from spreading to the plantation. They declined to deposit the money, and the Collector in consequence refused to grant the site.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Are Government aware that the villagers are not in a position to pay the required amount ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I am not so aware.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Is it not a fact that this action of Government will cause great hardship on the poor villagers ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I believe not.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Will Government be pleased to state—

(b) the names of local authorities and the amounts of grants paid to them during 1925-26 and 1926-27 ?

TOLL BAR: GUHAR-DABHOL ROAD

Mr. S. K. BOLE: Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that a lower bid of Rs. 800 was accepted at the auction sale of the toll on the road between Guhar and Dabhol in the Ratnagiri district when there was an offer of Rs. 2,000 as stated in the Navayuga Marathi weekly dated the 3rd July 1927;

(b) whether one of the toll nakas has been abolished and, if so, why?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: (a) Yes: an offer of Rs. 2,000 was made by telegram on certain conditions which were unreasonable and could not, in the interests of the people of Guhagar, be accepted by the Local Board.

(b) There was no second toll naka on the road in question, and hence none was abolished. A checking station was, however, discontinued: presumably, this is referred to by the Honourable Member.

KALYAN MUNICIPALITY: IRREGULARITIES

Mr. N. B. CHANDRACHUD (Poona City): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware that there are serious irregularities in the accounts of the Kalyan Municipality;

(b) whether they are aware that the Collector of the Thana District refused to investigate the matter even though he was informed of the irregularities by a councillor of the said municipality;

(c) whether they are aware that complaints were lodged against two councillors of the Kalyan Municipality;

(d) whether they are aware that the papers relating to the said complaints were called for by the Collector of Thana and were kept by him for several days;

(e) the reasons why the Collector of Thana refused to investigate the matter relating to the irregularities in the accounts of the Kalyan Municipality;

(f) why the papers relating to the criminal complaints against the councillors were called for by the Collector?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: (a) The alleged irregularities are not in the municipal accounts proper but in the preparation of the muster roll of daily workers and the unauthorised use of bullocks hired by the Municipality. It cannot at present be stated that the alleged irregularities are serious.

(b) Certain Municipal Councillors verbally represented to the Collector that money was spent on coolies without any proper muster rolls being maintained and requested the Collector to investigate the matter. The Collector did not consider it necessary to interfere at that stage and informed them that the proper course was to bring the matter up before the Municipality. It is reported that the Managing Committee of the Municipality was then moved by one of the Members of the Committee which promptly appointed a sub-committee to inquire into the matter. The report of the sub-committee is under the consideration of the Managing Committee.

(c) Yes.

(d) No such papers were called for by the Collector.

(e) The Collector would not have been justified in taking action on the verbal representation of the two councillors who had not even approached the President, especially as he was aware that a factious spirit exists among the members.

(f) Does not arise.

TRAINING COLLEGES

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI (Kaira District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether there is a training college in the Southern Division;

(b) if the reply be in the affirmative, the proportion of the first year trained, second year trained and third year trained teachers to the total number of teachers in that Division;

(c) similar figures for the Northern Division and the Central Division?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: (a) There is a Government Training School (formerly Training College for Men) at Dharwar.

(b) and (c) The accompanying statement gives the information required:—

Name of the Division	Proportion of trained teachers to the total number of teachers			Remarks
	1st Year	2nd Year	3rd Year
	per cent.	per cent.	per cent.

WATER SUPPLY, KARAD : HOUSE CONNECTIONS

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the number of house-connections in Karad town that was anticipated at the time of preparing the water-supply project, Karad (Satara District);

(b) the number of house-connections in the beginning of the year 1927-28 ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: (a) 600.

(b) 504.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE: May I know whether this answer is correct or the one given on page 50 of Volume XX ? There it is stated that the reason is that the number of house connections in the town has increased beyond that anticipated at the time of preparing the project. Now, the number anticipated is 600 and the number at the beginning of the year 1927-28 is 504.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: I want notice.

Mr. L M. DESHPANDE: Sir, the answers are there. What sort of notice is required ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The Honourable Minister wants notice in order to see how the discrepancy, if any, has occurred.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE: Am I again to give notice ?

(No reply.)

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(ii) the names of places where the races are held;

(b) the total income derived by these license holders from every course in the two preceding years;

(c) the amount of entertainment tax paid by each of them for every race course during the two preceding years;

(d) the amount of totalizator tax paid by each of them for every race course during the two preceding years;

(e) the amount of entertainment tax paid by such of them as were in existence for every race course in the second year of the imposition of the entertainment tax ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: (a) and (b) Already answered.

PANCHGANI MUNICIPALITY

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether there is any person from the depressed classes on the Panchgani Municipality in the Satara district either elected or nominated;

(b) whether it is the declared policy of Government to make nominations from the minority communities especially depressed who are unable to send their representatives in the election;

(c) whether it is a fact that a person from the depressed classes is nominated to the Municipalities and local boards in the Satara district;

(d) whether it is a fact that the Mahalkari, an ex-officio nominated member of the Panchgani municipality has lately resigned;

(e) whether it is a fact that the nomination of a non-official European member was made in his place within almost a week of the resignation of the Mahalkari although there is one elected and one nominated member of the European community on the Panchgani municipality;

(f) if there is no person from the depressed classes on the Panchgani municipality why such a nomination was not made although there was representation from the inhabitants of Panchgani;

(g) whether there is any other municipality in the Satara district where there is no ex-officio member;

(h) the reasons for the resignation of the Mahalkari?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: (a) No.

(b) The policy of Government in making nominations is to adjust anomalies of representation of all communities whether separately represented or otherwise.

(c) Yes. A member of the Depressed classes has been nominated on the boards of seven Municipalities, the District Local Board, and eight Taluka Local Boards.

(d) Yes.

(e) The Mahalkari tendered his resignation on the 5th June and a non-official European member was nominated on the 22nd June 1927.

(f) A representation was received but not till two days before the Commissioner sanctioned the new nomination. There are special grounds for the nomination made. Panchgani is a hill station dependent for its very existence on (1) various public institutions, e.g., the European, Parsi, Hindu and Muhammadan boarding schools and the sanitorium for consumptives (2) available residential facilities for a comparatively well-to-do class of persons. It is essential that the municipal administration of Panchgani should be definitely representative of these interests.

(g) There is no Municipality in this District where there is no ex-officio member.

(h) The Mahalkari was unable to attend the meetings of the Panchgani Municipality regularly especially in the rains. He is required to supervise the municipal work of the Mahableshwar Municipality being the Vice-President of the Board. As it was inconvenient for him to attend to the Municipal affairs of Panchgani in addition, he tendered his resignation.

LAND REVENUE, TASGAON TALUKA

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that a proclamation was published in Tasgaon taluka, district Satara, on 27th January 1927 calling on the landholders to pay the Government dues before the 10th February 1927;

(b) what is the time prescribed by rules for the payment of the first instalment in Tasgaon taluka;

(c) whether any fines were imposed under section 148 without issuing any notice of demand under section 152;

(d) the total amount of fines so collected?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: (a) A circular was issued by the Mamlatdar of Tasgaon on 18th January 1927 calling upon landholders to pay their land revenue before 10th February 1927.

(b) In the case of the 37 kharif villages the time prescribed for the payment of the first instalment is 5th January, and in the case of the 12 rabi villages, 5th February.

(c) Yes, in four cases.

(d) Rs. 60.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE: With regard to (a) when the date fixed was the 15th of February, how was it that the people were asked to pay the land revenue before the 10th February?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: Presumably the mamlatdar was aware of the fact that people were not paying promptly.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE: So, people who paid after the 10th February were fined?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: Presumably so.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (1) Four permanent S. M. S. officers at each of the two hospitals. At present there are two additional officers at the G. T. Hospital and one at the Sir C. J. Hospital on general duty.

MOTLIBAI HOSPITAL : RESIDENT LADY REGISTRARS

Dr. M. D. GILDER (Bombay City, North) : Will the Honourable the Minister of Education be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that for some years no lady graduate in medicine has been appointed as a resident registrar at the Motlibai Obstetric Hospital, Bombay ;

(b) whether it is a fact that some years ago ladies were appointed as residents and were provided with quarters on the premises ;

(c) why the change has now been made and for what purposes the quarters occupied by the last lady registrar are now being used ;

(d) whether it is a fact that the quarters are now used for private patients ;

(e) whether he intends to arrange for such quarters in the new extension to the hospital which is under consideration and in the meantime make arrangements with the nursing association (to which the Government contributes) every year to house the lady registrar ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) Yes.

(b) No. On one occasion a woman fellow was provided with a room in the hospital and that too for about three months.

(c) and (d) The premises were not designed nor are they suitable for a resident registrar. They are now used for hospital patients (not private patients), the purpose for which they were constructed.

(e) This will be done as part of the general scheme for accommodation of resident staff. Arrangements cannot at present be made with the nursing association, as that body is now unable to house the full strength of the nursing staff.

Dr. M. D. GILDER : Is the Honourable Minister aware that the men and women pay the same fees and attend the same classes ? Why should the room be monopolised by men and lady resident registrars should not be appointed ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : This is only a case of want of accommodation.

Dr. M. D. GILDER : When will accommodation be provided ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : It will take about two years.

Dr. M. D. GILDER : Can some arrangement be made in the meantime ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : When there are no rooms the question will be how to provide rooms. That too will take some time.

LIQUOR LICENSES

Dr. M. D. GILDER (Bombay City, North) : Will the Honourable the Minister of Excise be pleased to state—

(a) the difference between—

(i) " temporary refreshment stalls,"

(ii) " temporary licenses for foreign liquors,"

(iii) all other special retail licenses for foreign liquors," as tabulated in the excise administration report for 1925-26 ;

(b) the fees charged for each such license per day ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : (a) and (b) The Honourable Member presumably refers to columns 25 and 26 of Imperial Return No. III appended to the Excise Administration Report.

(i) Temporary refreshment stalls are stalls licensed in Bombay City for the sale of foreign liquors on occasions such as dances, sports, etc., on payment of a fee of Rs. 5 per diem.

(ii) Corresponding to the temporary refreshment stall licenses in Bombay, short-term licenses are issued in the mofussil on similar occasions on payment of a fee of Re. 1 per diem. These are the ' other temporary licenses for foreign liquors ' mentioned in column 25 of Imperial Return III.

(iii) The Special retail licenses included in column 26 of the Return are :—

(1) Auctioneer's licenses.

(2) Military Canteen licenses.

(3) Licenses for the sale of essences.

(4) Licenses for the manufacture of perfumed spirits by admixture.

(5) Licenses for the manufacture of flavouring essences by admixture.

The Honourable Member is referred to paragraphs 191, 194, 195, 197 and 162 of Volume I of the Bombay Excise Manual for a description of these licenses and for the fees prescribed in respect thereof.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI : Is this policy in furtherance of the policy of prohibition ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : It does not interfere with the policy of prohibition at all.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District) : Will the Honourable the Revenue Member be pleased to state, with reference to his reply to my question printed at page 65 of Volume XX of the Bombay Legislative Council Debates, how many of the 12 talatis who have been in charge of the same saja for more than ten years belong to the watandar families ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Ten.

IRRIGATION TANKS

Rao Bahadur S. T. KAMBLI on behalf of Mr. V. N. JOG (Dharwar District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) how many irrigation tanks there are for the village Chabbi, taluka Hubli ;

(b) what is the irrigation cess per year on the Tari lands under these tanks ;

(c) whether it is a fact that the irrigators below the tank have not been getting sufficient water for the last ten or fifteen years for Tari crops and in spite of this they have been paying the water cess in addition to the land revenue ;

(d) whether it was contemplated that two feeder channels, one through black soil to the east of the tank and the other from the Benni Nala near the village, were to be constructed before the war ;

(e) whether the ryots of the village have made several applications in this respect to construct these feeder channels ;

(f) when will Government take steps to construct these feeder channels ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : (a) There are three irrigation tanks in the village of Chabbi in Survey Nos. 123, 190 and 193.

(b) The irrigation share of the consolidated assessment on these tanks is Rs. 1,566-0-10 as detailed below :—

		Rs.	a.	p.
1.	Tank in survey No. 123	1,167	3	7
2.	Do. No. 190	160	9	6
3.	Do. No. 193	238	3	9
	Total ..	1,566	0	10

(c) In bad years crops under these tanks suffer from deficiency of water. In such years remissions of water rates are granted.

(d) In 1903 investigations were made for the construction of feeder channels from Bennihalla to the Hirekeri tank in survey No. 123 ; but the scheme was abandoned as the cost was prohibitive. However, other improvements to the tank consisting of repairs to the existing channels and provision of three outlets were carried out in 1910 and 1912.

(e) Three petitions were received in 1925.

(f) Government consider that the scheme of constructing feeder channels is not a practical proposition. The tanks have been surveyed and estimates for general repairs are being prepared.

KHOTI TENURE, KOLABA

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the customary form of the Khoti kabulayat has been prepared as contemplated in the decision of the Honourable the High Court of Bombay in the case of Ganapati Gopal versus the Secretary of State, published in Indian Law Reporter 48 Bom. 599—26 Bom. L. R. 754;

(b) if not, in what form, and under what condition, Khoti kabulayats are taken in the Kolaba district since the decision quoted above;

(c) how long do Government intend to continue to take kabulayats in a temporary form;

(d) what compensation has been paid to the khots of Kolaba up till now for the illegal attachment of their villages by Government;

(e) what is the total expenditure incurred by Government for the litigation with the khots of Kolaba up till now;

(f) whether they intend to bring in legislation as regards Kolaba Khoti?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: (a) No.

(b) Khoti kabulayats are prepared in the form which was current from the original survey till 1914-15 with the omission of clause 16 and with a change in the preamble to the effect that the kabulayat is passed in this form as a temporary measure, without prejudice to the rights of the parties pending the settlement of the final form.

(c) Until the new form is ready.

(d) Rs. 1,13,691-3-6.

(e) Rs. 1,22,675-6-11 since 1922-23. Figures prior to 1922-23 are not available.

(f) No.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE: With regard to (c) may I know how long it will take to get out the new form? It is nearly two years already.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I am afraid I cannot say. The question is a difficult one.

ACADEMY HIGH SCHOOL, KARACHI

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO (Larkana District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware that there is an aided Academy High School in Karachi (started through the efforts of Mr. Tayabali Alani, a Borah gentleman of Karachi) since many years ;

(b) whether it is a fact that 250 boys are receiving education at present in this school, out of whom 200 are Muhammadans, most of whom belong to Gujarathi and Urdu speaking families ;

(c) whether it is a fact that in the Sind Madressah, Karachi, over 1,200 boys (Muhammadans) are being educated and that it is not possible for this institution to accommodate many more boys ;

(d) whether they are aware of the importance of encouraging more institutions for secondary education of the Muslim boys, when owing to the spread of primary education the need of such institutions will invariably be great ;

(e) if the reply to (d) is in the affirmative, the reasons why substantial help is not being extended to this Academy School when the Hindu Model School and the Gujarathi Middle School, both started recently at Karachi, receive large grants from Government ;

(f) whether it is a fact that this Academy only received about a couple of thousand as grant-in-aid from Government whereas the Model School gets Rs. 10,000 (ten thousand) and the Middle School rupees five thousand (Rs. 5,000) from Government as an Annual Grant-in-aid ;

(g) what steps they propose to take in encouraging this institution (Academy School) ;

(h) whether it is a fact that the secretary of the Karachi Academy school has requested Government for a grant of Rs. 6,000 annually ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) Yes. The Karachi Academy has been in existence since 1924-25.

The school originally started by Mr. Tayabali in 1909 was the Madressah Hussany which was closed in 1924-25 and the same school was given a new name, the Karachi Academy.

(b) There are in all 216 boys in school, of whom 177 are Muhammadans.

The majority belong to the Borah Community, speaking Gujarati.

(c) Yes.

Boys in the High School section of the Sind Madressah	1,023
Boys in primary section	238

The primary branches of the Sind Madressah are likely to be abolished to secure more accommodation for the secondary classes.

(d) At present there is no need of additional institutions for secondary education of Muslim boys in Karachi.

(e) (1) The Model High School was started at the direct invitation of Government at a very short notice to meet an urgent demand and was awarded grant under rule 6 of the Grant-in-aid Code.

(2) The Karachi Middle School did not get the grant due according to the Code.

(f) The grants received were as under :—

	Rs.
(1) Model High School, Karachi	8,227
(2) Karachi Academy	2,015
(3) Karachi Middle School	1,514

(g) and (h) The Secretary has applied for a grant of Rs. 5,000 in the current year. The expenditure in 1926-27 being Rs. 12,012, the school is eligible for a grant of Rs. 4,004 in the current year if funds permit.

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO : May I know if the grant will be made this year ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : The answer shows that the Secretary has applied for a grant of Rs. 5,000 in the current year ; that the expenditure in 1926-27 being Rs. 12,012, the school is eligible for a grant of Rs. 4,004, and that that will be paid in the current year if funds permit.

AGRICULTURAL LANDS : HOLDINGS OF MUSSALMANS AND HINDUS

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO (Larkana District) : Will Government be pleased to state separately for each district and for each of the following periods, viz., in 1843, 1864-65 the period of first settlement, in 1879-80 the period of irrigation settlement, and in 1927-28 the area of the agricultural land possessed by Mussalman zamindars and Hindu zamindars separately ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Even if the information were available, it could only be procured with an undue expenditure of time and labour. Government, therefore, regret their inability to answer the Honourable Member's question.

LAND SALES, VADRAD : CONDUCT OF CIRCLE INSPECTOR

Khan Saheb A. M. MANSURI (Ahmedabad and Surat Cities) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether any inquiry has been made against the conduct of the Circle Inspector in the auction sale of the survey numbers 632, 634, 635, 636, 637, 638, 639, 647, 648, 649 of Vadrad, taluka Prantij ; if not, why has it not been made although more than about eight months have passed ;

(b) if his conduct was suspicious, what action has been taken against him ;

(c) if his conduct was found suspicious, why is he retained in his present post of Circle Inspector ;

(d) whether they intend to take any action against him, and if so what action ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) An inquiry was made.

(b) The honourable member is referred to the reply given to clause (b) of the question put by him on 21st February 1928.

(c) Disciplinary action was taken and was considered sufficient by the Collector and the Commissioner.

(d) No.

CIVIL COURT KARKUNS

Khan Saheb A. M. MANSURI (Ahmedabad and Surat Cities) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that karkun Gulamrasul Bannumia who has been working as an acting karkun for nearly one and half years and was lastly working as an acting karkun in the leave vacancy of Pahadsing Dalsing at the Dohad sub-court was replaced by the District Judge, Broach and Panch Mahals Districts, on the eve of the last vacation which commenced from the 13th April 1927, while karkun Champaklal T. Gambhiwala who was working as an acting karkun in the leave vacancy of Hiralal Jagannath whose leave was for a month or so was allowed to work in the vacation up to 21st April, while Pahadsing Dalsing took charge on the 1st May 1927 ;

(b) if so, why karkun Gulamrasul was not given chance of acting during the vacation as karkun Champaklal was given ;

(c) whether it is a fact that the last three Muslim karkuns who have been working as acting karkuns in the sub and district courts of Broach and Panch Mahals district courts are not yet made permanent ;

(d) whether it is a fact that in the Judicial Department of the Broach and Panch Mahals Districts only four Muslim karkuns have been appointed since the passing of the resolution (about the recruitment of 50 per cent. backward classes and Muslims in Broach and Panch Mahals Districts) of whom one is permanent and the other three are acting ;

(e) whether it is a fact that no Muslims are appointed to act when any leave vacancies occur ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : (a) and (b). Karkun Ghulam Rasul was displaced at the beginning of the Easter holidays because Karkun Pahadsing Dalsing during whose leave he was acting was expected to rejoin immediately after the Easter holidays. Karkun Pahadsing, however, applied for 15 days' extension, but as these 15 days fell in the vacation it was unnecessary to recall karkun Ghulam Rasul. Karkun Hiralal's substitute Mr. Champaklal was not disturbed because the period for which he was acting was to end only 8 days later.

(c) and (d). Owing to the reduction of 6 posts in the cadre of the District, there have been no permanent vacancies since 1924, and so no permanent appointments have been made.

(e) It is not a fact that no Muslims have been appointed in leave vacancies. They have had their full share of all such vacancies.

Khan Saheb A. M. MANSURI (Ahmedabad and Surat Cities): Will Government be pleased to state—

(b) how many villages have been given schools during these four years ?

TODDY TRAFFIC IN SURAT DISTRICT

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK (Surat District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that more toddy trees than are necessary for the requirements of the Surat City and talukas are given out for tapping in the Surat District;

(b) whether it is a fact that some of the trees assigned to the licensees are left untapped for want of consumption;

(c) whether it is a fact that more toddy than is necessary for the requirements of Surat City is brought for sale and consequently stale toddy remains in balance;

(d) whether it is a fact that in spite of the reduction in the number of toddy shops as it stood before 1920 by about 25 per cent., there is considerable increase in the number of trees now given out for tapping in the Surat District;

(e) whether it is a fact that the rationing fixed in the Surat District for liquor is more than the consumption of the district;

(f) whether it is a fact that in spite of the consumption in 1926-27 being less than the rationing fixed for the year, the rationing fixed for the year 1927-28 is higher than even that of the preceding year;

(g) if so, whether it means that Government want to have the consumption raised to the extent of the rationing.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: (a) No.
(b) Yes.
(c) No.
(d) No.
(e) Yes.

(f) No. The ration of individual shops may be greater than the previous year's ration, but for the district as a whole it is less.

(g) Does not arise.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : May I know why the datum line grants have not yet been fixed for those local boards which have taken over the control of primary education ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : There are several difficulties and Government have to take time to come to a final decision.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : May I know on what basis primary education was transferred to the local authorities ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : That question is under consideration and Government have not come to a decision.

Mr. G. I. PATEL : There is an item of Rs. 9,90,424 mentioned at page 63, column 7, against item No. 10. May I know whether this amount was spent because the old contractor did not finish the work and excess payment was required to be made by Government ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The note in the last column explains it : " The increased payment was due to the additional work done by the contractors on account of the failure of Messrs. V. M. Hassan and Udesing Brothers."

Mr. G. I. PATEL : Was any amount recovered from the old contractor as penalty against the failure ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : I will ask for notice of that.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : When Messrs. V. M. Hassan and Udesing Brothers failed to execute the work, why were not tenders invited from other contractors for doing the work ? Why was the work given away to Messrs. J. C. Gammon, Ltd., without inviting tenders ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : I am afraid I cannot reply off hand. If the honourable member gives me notice, I will find out.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI : Is this additional work for which payment is made included in columns 4 and 5.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : How can it be included in columns 4 and 5 (" date of contract " and " amount under the terms of the contract ") ?

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI : I want to know whether this additional work is included in columns 4 and 5.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : You mean to say, was the additional work included in the total of Rs. 19,00,170 ?

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI : Yes.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : I will ask for notice.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI : Payment is made for the works mentioned in columns 4 and 5. Twenty-eight lakhs have been paid against contracts mentioned in columns 4 and 5. Then, where does the additional work come in ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : I must ask for notice.

Mr. G. I. PATEL : Will Government be pleased to state whether any specifications are prepared before the contract is given ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : I shall require notice for all such questions. It will be necessary for me to look up the records. I may tell the honourable member that the system of Government is to prepare specifications.

Mr. G. I. PATEL : Were the specifications prepared in this particular case ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : I shall ask for notice. I can say in general. But if the honourable member will refer to any particular case, I want notice as I have to see previous records.

Mr. G. I. PATEL: May I know what are the reasons for the heavy payment of Rs. 28,90,424 ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: The reasons are given in column 8 of the statement put on the Council table.

(e) whether it is a fact that the people regard this additional toll bar as a great nuisance and a grievance;

(f) whether it is not against their policy to have toll bars at such short distances of only a mile;

(g) whether it is a fact that having toll bars at such short distances have made the levy of toll very unpopular with the ryots?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: (a) There is a toll bar near Rankuwa between mile 13 and mile 14. There is no toll bar but only a checking station near Surkhai between mile 14 and mile 15.

(b) No cultivator has to pay toll when he takes his cart to his field.

(c) The toll bar near Rankuwa has been in existence for some years. The checking station at Surkhai was opened more recently, namely, in February 1924.

(d) If the checking station near Surkhai were closed, there would probably be a decrease of revenue by about Rs. 1,200 annually.

(e) The checking station at Surkhai was found absolutely necessary, as people drove their carts by side tracks joining Bilimora-Bansda Road and thus evaded payment of tolls. Its existence is naturally regarded by the people of Surkhai and surrounding villages as a grievance, because it foils their attempts to evade payment of tolls.

(f) There is not more than one toll bar within a distance of one mile. The necessity of the checking station in addition to the toll bar has been explained, see reply to (e) above.

(g) As explained in reply to (f) above only one toll bar exists. It is probable the existence of the checking station is unpopular, for reasons given in the reply to (e) above, but if so the fact indicates that the provision of such a station was necessary and justified.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI (Surat District): Is it a fact that the cultivators are made to pay toll, when they take their carts to the fields?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: The reply is quite clear.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI: I am told that the cultivators are made to pay toll. Is it a fact, I want to know?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : The reply given is quite clear.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The honourable member will find in the list the reply given to his question.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI : May I know what is the arrangement regarding the recovery of toll ? Are Government undercontract ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : The reply is quite clear.

PUBLIC PLACES : ACCESS TO DEPRESSED CLASSES

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they have taken any steps to put up Boards or Notices at public places, such as wells, tanks, dharamshalas, dispensaries, hospitals, schools, courts and many other such places which are constructed, managed and helped by grants from the Government or local bodies from local funds, notifying to the public at large and the depressed classes people in particular that these places are open for general use of all men including the depressed classes.

(b) (1) whether they intend to take steps against those who do not obey and act, according to the order in the notices issued by Government with the object of giving effect to the resolution passed by the Bombay Legislative Council at the instance of Mr. S. K. Bole, M.L.C., and circulated to all Government offices and local bodies and municipalities, (2) and also those who prevent and put hindrances and difficulties in the way of the depressed and untouchables from making use of these public places ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : (a) No.

(b) (1) The question does not rise. (2) If hindrances are put forward by local bodies, Government will take action according to their decision on the resolution of Mr. Bole, but if the hindrance is from private persons it is for the aggrieved party to seek redress under the law.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Will the Honourable Minister ask the local boards to put up such boards ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : I am afraid my friends, the representatives of the people, will themselves rise against me, if I interfere with the liberties of the local bodies.

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI : Will Government see that boards and notices are put up at public places and tanks and dharamshalas stating that all human beings can use them including the depressed and untouchable classes ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : I cannot do so as the property belongs to somebody else.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Will the Honourable Minister be pleased to ask the local authorities to do the needful ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : I would refer the honourable member to the representatives of the local bodies.

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI: Cannot Government decide the question whether the places are public or private? Otherwise, how are the people to understand?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Government can decide; and those local bodies which do not give effect to the resolution of this Council are being compelled by Government to do so, and Government are not going to give them grants otherwise.

LOCAL BODIES, GUJARAT: NOMINATION OF DEPRESSED CLASSES

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI: Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the number of municipalities and districts and taluka local boards with their names in detail to which members of the depressed classes are nominated in Gujarat;

(b) whether all the above bodies have representatives of the depressed classes nominated;

(c) if not, why these classes are excluded from nomination?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: (a) Members of the depressed classes are nominated on the following local bodies:—

District	Name of the local body to which members of the depressed classes are nominated
Ahmedabad ..	(1) Dhandhuka Municipality. (2) Taluka Local Board, South Daskroi.
Broach ..	(1) Broach Municipality. (2) Jambusar.

(b) No.

(c) There is no particular reason for members of the depressed classes not being nominated on all the local bodies except that fit and suitable persons from these classes are not generally available.

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI: Does this nomenclature of depressed classes apply to untouchables or to other submerged classes also?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: To all those who are known as depressed classes.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM: Are Government aware that recently one depressed class person is nominated to the Godhra taluka local board.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Yes.

(b) the caste of the teachers and the remuneration they get;

(c) whether any religious education is given to boys and girls in these schools?

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: May I draw the attention of the Honourable Minister to the fact that there is not a single teacher of his caste, namely, Brahmin, in the whole of this list? Is it through accident or through design?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: The honourable member my construe the statement as well as any other honourable member.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: May I know if it is the order of the department or merely an accident? I think the question is quite clear.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: The honourable member is free to construe it in any way he likes.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: I must appeal to you, Sir. I simply ask whether this happens.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: What happens?

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: That there is no Brahmin among all these teachers of depressed class schools, and I want to know whether it is through the instructions of the department or whether it is merely by accident. I appeal to you, Sir, for protection.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I think a more definite reply might be given.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: No instructions have been issued.

SCHOLARSHIPS FOR DEPRESSED CLASSES

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI: Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware of the fact that many of the secondary school and college scholarships reserved for the depressed class students are given away to students of intermediate classes, at the sacrifice of the interests of the depressed class boys without making proper inquiries about them;

(b) whether they intend adopting better and more effective means for circulating Government Education Department circulars and notifications among the depressed class people from time to time;

(c) whether they would be pleased to put a statement showing a list of communities regarded as depressed by the Government as also particulars regarding their sholarships on the Council table?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: (a) No scholarships are reserved for the "Depressed" classes exclusively as these classes are now included among the "Backward" classes (as distinguished from the "Intermediate" classes). The scholarships reserved for the pupils of the Backward classes in Secondary Schools and Colleges are awarded to the pupils of the Intermediate classes only after ascertaining that there are no suitable candidates of the Backward classes, and not at the sacrifice of the interests of the Backward classes.

(b) The procedure at present followed in advertising the scholarships is as follows:

As far as scholarships in Colleges are concerned, a notification is issued every year in the Bombay Government Gazette and copies of this notification are supplied (i) to all Educational Inspectors, with instructions to distribute them among the Deputy Educational Inspectors and Heads of Government and recognised High Schools, who bring the notification to the notice of the students, and (ii) to the Principals of all Colleges. The Director of Information has also begun to issue a Press Note in connection with these scholarships for the information of the general public.

As regards the scholarships in Secondary schools, a notification is published in the Bombay Government Gazette and Sind Official Gazette by the Educational Inspectors, Central Division, Northern Division and Sind, respectively, and the Managers of Secondary Schools and Local Authorities are supplied with copies of the notification, with a request to bring it to the notice of all students in their schools. The Educational Inspectors, Bombay Division, and Southern Division, issue circulars to all Secondary Schools.

In the opinion of Government the means adopted at present are sufficiently effective.

(c) As indicated in the reply to (a) above, the Depressed classes are not separately classified but included among the Backward classes. Two statements showing respectively (i) the castes included under the term "Backward" and (ii) the particulars regarding the scholarships reserved for them are laid down on the Council Table.

SETTLEMENT OFFICERS' REPORTS, VIRAMGAM

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether Mr. Shivlal Harjivan Vyas of Viramgam applied on the 13th August 1927 to the Collector of Ahmedabad to supply him the copies of the reports of the Assistant Settlement Officer, the Settlement Officer and the Settlement Commissioner on the recent revision survey of Viramgam taluka;

(b) whether the Collector of Ahmedabad refused to grant the request of Mr. Shivlal Harjiwan Vyas in his letter, dated 18th August 1927;

(c) if the answer to (b) is in the affirmative, the reasons why those copies were not made available to Mr. Shivlal Harjivan Vyas though objections to the proposed increase of land revenue in Viramgam taluka were required by the Collector to be submitted before the 18th September 1927.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: (a) Yes.

(b) and (c) The application was refused as spare copies of the Assistant Settlement Officer's report were not available. It is not the practice to publish the reviews of the Collector and the Commissioner of Settlements till all the papers pertaining to the revision settlement have been printed in the form of a Government Selection.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Why are not the reviews of the Collectors and Commissioners, Settlement Commissioners fully printed in the settlement report which is published by Government?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: I have already replied that that is not the practice.

Mr. G. I. PATEL: Will Government be pleased to alter that practice, so that the public may know the facts?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: I see no reason to do so.

CITY WALLS, AHMEDABAD

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state whether they are aware that during the heav rainfall and floods which caused great devastation throughout Gujarat, not a single brick of the city walls of Ahmedabad has been displaced from its position ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : It is reported that portions of the City Walls in Jamalpur and in the vicinity of District Court were washed away in the floods.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : How were the reports received ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : From the local officers.

Mr. G. I. PATEL : Will Government be pleased to enquire how far this is correct, because from our experience we know that it is quite incorrect ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : All right, Sir.

TRANSFER FEES CHARGED BY TALATI OF KUJAD

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the Talati of Kujad, a village in South Daskroi Taluka of Ahmedabad District, is charging a fee of rupee one or two for transfer of land from the name of one khatedar to another by sale or inheritance without giving any receipt for the amount charged ;

(b) if so, what steps they have taken to prevent the practice mentioned in (a) ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) The Mamlatdar enquired into this allegation but was unable to obtain any satisfactory evidence of its truth.

(b) With a view to preventing the possibility of any such malpractice the Inamdar has been requested to keep a close watch over the Talati's proceedings.

FOREIGN LIQUOR SHOP, AHMEDABAD : TEMPORARY REVIVAL OF LICENSE

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they have issued orders to the effect that the foreign liquor " off " license of Messrs. E. R. Fanibanda & Sons should be revived for a period of six months to enable the licensee to dispose of his stock of liquor ;

(b) if the reply to (a) is in the affirmative the date on which the license was revived ;

(c) whether they took any undertaking from the licensee that he would only dispose of his stock of liquor and not increase it by fresh orders and receipts of consignments after the date of the revival of the foreign liquor " off " license ;

(d) if the answer to (c) is in the negative what were the reasons for not taking precautions against a similar plea of stock on hand being raised at the end of six months after the revival ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : (a) Yes.

(b) 1st August 1927.

(c) No.

(d) No precautions were necessary as the risk, if any, is the licensee's.

Mr. P. J. MARZBAN: Will the Honourable Minister kindly state since the 1st August 1927 how many times this question has been asked in the Council ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: Fifty times at least.

FOREIGN LIQUOR SHOP, AHMEDABAD: ADDITION TO THE STOCK

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether Messrs. E. R. Fanibanda & Sons were allowed by the local authorities to make additions to the stock of " off " foreign liquor license after the date of the revival of the said license ;

(b) if so, under whose orders the local authorities permitted additions to the existing stock of the foreign liquor " off " license although that license was renewed only for disposing of the existing stock of that shop ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: (a) Yes.

(b) Under the Commissioner's orders. The license was sanctioned for a period of six months, and there was no stipulation that it should cease as soon as the stock in hand was exhausted.

Mr. P. J. MARZBAN: Will the Honourable Minister kindly inform this House what time and money it has cost this Council to answer this question ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: I have not computed the cost.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: When the license was renewed for the special purpose of disposing of old stocks, why was additional stock allowed to be purchased and added to the existing stock ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: There was no promise that the license would be renewed. It was at the licensee's own risk, if he purchased more stock. He paid the full license fee for six months, and within that time he expected to dispose of his stock; otherwise, the stock would remain on hand.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Is it true that though Government mentioned that the license would be for six months, they intended to extend it after that ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: Not a bit; the license was extended because of the insistant demand for liquor in the station.

FOREIGN LIQUOR SHOP, AHMEDABAD: DISPOSAL OF STOCK

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether an " off " license of Mr. Naorojee Framjee Khambatta at Lal Darwaja, Ahmedabad, was ordered to be closed on or about 1st April 1922 ;

(b) if the answer to (a) is in the affirmative, what arrangements were made for the disposal of the balance stock of that license ;

(c) what were the reasons for not allowing the licensee any revival of his license to dispose of his balance stock ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : (a) Yes.

(b) The balance of the stock was added to the stock of the Grand Hotel for which Mr. Khambatta held a license ;

(c) Does not arise.

FOREIGN LIQUOR SHOP, AHMEDABAD : DISPOSAL OF WINE STOCK

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether Mr. F. C. Athayde of Messrs. C. Fonseca & Sons, Ahmedabad, applied to the Collector of Ahmedabad making an offer of buying up certain kinds of high grade wines from the balance stock of the cancelled " off " foreign liquor license of Messrs. E. R. Fanibanda & Sons which would not be saleable at their refreshment bar license ;

(b) if so, why that offer was not accepted and why a new precedent of reviving a cancelled license was created ;

(c) whether that offer of Mr. F. C. Athayde was communicated to Government ;

(d) whether that offer of Mr. F. C. Athayde was considered by Government at the time of reviving the cancelled " off " foreign liquor license of Messrs. E. R. Fanibanda & Sons of Ahmedabad ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : (a) Yes.

(b) It was not the business of the Collector to interfere in a private transaction of the kind. Mr. Athayde should have approached Messrs. Fanibanda direct.

(c) No.

(d) Does not arise.

FOREIGN LIQUOR : " ON " AND REFRESHMENT BAR LICENSES

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state the exact difference between an " On " foreign liquor license and a refreshment bar license in both of which foreign liquors are sold in the Bombay Presidency ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : The Honourable Member is referred to Part III, Chapter XII, of the Bombay Excise Manual, Volume I, 1924 Edition, a copy of which has been placed in the Council Library.

GUJARAT COLLEGE : ADMISSIONS

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(b) the number of students who were refused admission in each class ;

(c) the reasons for refusing admission ;

(d) whether Government intend to increase the accommodation in the Gujarat College in view of the many refusals of admission in June 1927 ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) and (b) The subjoined statement gives the information required :—

First Year Arts ..	468	164

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(b) if the reply to (a) is in the affirmative, the reasons why land revenue assessment is charged from the said society since 1926 ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Yes.

(b) Because one of the conditions upon which the exemption of land revenue is granted is that the owners of the school should have it recognized by the Educational Department, and the Charotar Education Society has declined to have this done.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Supposing the school is recognised by the Educational Department, will the exemption be given by Government ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : That would be considered. I cannot give any definite promise.

Mr. G. I. PATEL : Is the recognition a condition precedent to the exemption of land revenue ?

The Honourable Mr J. L. RIEU : It is in this case ; yes.

Mr. G. I. PATEL : Before 1926 ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I must ask for notice of that.

Mr. G. I. PATEL : Is there any writing, or a letter or a document which conveys this condition prior to 1926 ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I do not know ; I have not seen the papers lately.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT GOVERNMENT RESOLUTION NO. 7567, DATED 27TH OCTOBER 1902

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to place Government Resolution, Revenue Department, No. 7567, dated 27th October 1902, on the Council Table ?

(b) whether it is a fact that the said permission was not granted by Government ;

(c) if so, the reasons for not granting the permission ;

(d) how long Government intend to continue such restrictions on the activities of Mr. V. D. Savarkar ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : (a) No.

(b), (c) and (d) Do not arise.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : No, I have heard nothing of the sort.

(General discussion of the Budget resumed)

Mr. HOOSENALLY M. RAHIMTOOLA (Bombay City): Mr. President, the Honourable the Finance Member deserves credit for the able and clear statement with which he introduced the budget the day before yesterday, but we should have been glad if the copies of his speech could have been supplied to us along with the budget, so that we would have been in a better position to study the figures with some advantage. I would like to make a suggestion in this connection, namely, that the budget might be divided into two parts, one for the ordinary budget and the other for capital budget so that the items which are mixed could be separated and honourable members would be able to understand them a little more easily than at present.

Sir, the budget has been called an unsatisfactory budget. At page 29 we find a closing balance of seven lakhs as against the closing balance of 492 lakhs for 1924-25. Of course account must be taken of the 123 lakhs advanced to Sukkur Barrage Works, but I submit that the small working balance of seven lakhs for a presidency with a revenue of fourteen to fifteen crores is very meagre and quite inadequate.

I find that we are budgetting for a surplus of three lakhs expecting that we will not have to make any payment by way of provincial contribution and that no contribution is made to the Famine Insurance Fund. Failing this help, there will be a heavy deficit, in spite of the fact that this House has given Government a sum of about eighty lakhs by means of the Stamp Act, Court-fees Act, Transfer of Property Act, Entertainments Duty Tax and the Totalisator Tax. The cause attributed for the deficit is trade depression and the resultant financial stringency. May I know what steps Government have taken to remove the causes of trade depression and to start new industries thereby increasing the prosperity of the people and the taxable capacity of the people? Has anything been done in this direction? What is the use of pleading trade depression from year to year without doing anything to combat and to remove it?

The honourable member Dr. Ambedkar asked yesterday what new taxes Government proposed to levy in order to meet the demands of primary education. I submit, Sir, that this is not the time to levy fresh taxation, but it is the time to give relief to the people by a reduction of the heavy burden of the existing taxation. The only way in which Government can improve their financial position is by improving the condition of the people and increasing their prosperity and their taxable capacity.

I am surprised to find that Government intend raising the fees in Government colleges. If the expenditure on Government colleges is comparatively high surely the remedy is not to raise the fees but to reduce the expenditure, especially when Government themselves recognise that there is trade depression and therefore the people are not able to pay more. I do not know why Government want to penalise higher education by increasing fees in their colleges.

I must admit, Sir, that I am glad to notice that several years after the attention of Government was drawn, provision has been made in the budget for an improved police system in the City of Bombay.

[Mr. Hoosenally M. Rahimtoola]

During the last August session the Honourable the Minister for Education stated in reply to a question that Government proposed to open the Andheri College in June 1928. As far as I can see, the budget contains no provision for the opening of this college in Andheri next year. I would like to know from the Honourable Minister for Education if any provision has been made for it, and if not, why not.

Sir, we are told that we are spending increasingly on education. Looking to the budget of 1921-22, I find that the provision was Rs. 1,82,39,000 for education in that year. That was the first year of the reformed Council. For next year we are providing Rs. 2,09,26,000, an increase of Rs. 26,87,000. Now, if we deduct from this sum of Rs. 26,87,000, the sum of Rs. 21,37,000, which we got out of the Scheduled Taxes, we find that the increase is only Rs. 5,50,000; and yet we know that the Council gave Government taxation to the tune of Rs. 60 lakhs by the increased stamp duties, the transfer of property tax, and so on. The actual figures of the amounts realised from these taxes are not known but those were the estimates which were placed before the Council when those taxes were passed. We are told that we are spending larger sums on medical relief but what are the figures? In 1921-22 we find that we provided in the budget for medical relief and public health a sum of Rs. 82,29,000; for next year we are providing Rs. 84,39,000 an increase of Rs. 2,10,000. Taking all the three departments, Education, Medical Relief and Public Health together, we find that for the first year of the Reforms the provision was Rs. 2,64,68,000; for the next year for these three heads the amount is Rs. 2,93,65,000, an increase of Rs. 28,97,000. If we deduct the amount of the Scheduled Taxes, namely, Rs. 21,37,000 from this amount, we find that the extra amount is only Rs. 7,60,000. That means to say that out of the new taxes of Rs. 60 lakhs granted by the Council to the Government, the remission of the provincial contribution to the tune of Rs. 55 lakhs or Rs. 56 lakhs, and the reduction in the contribution to the Famine Fund, which is about Rs. 60 lakhs, giving a total of about Rs. 1¾ crores, only Rs. 7 lakhs are spent on education, medical relief and public health. These figures are very illuminating, and I hope to hear some explanation about it from the Government benches.

Another satisfactory feature of the budget is that, for the first time, provision has been made for paying pension equal to half of their pay to the servants of Government in inferior service.

Sir, it has very often been said that the province of Bombay leads among the provinces of India. Looking to the Auditor-General's report, we find several items in which the province of Bombay leads the other provinces of India. For instance, we lead in the matter of our loans. In the matter of our balances we were leading for sometime, but as regards the financial position, we are leading in the wrong direction. Then there is the complaint about over-budgetting. These are the complaints made by the Auditor-General in his report for the year 1925-1926. Then, as pointed out yesterday by my honourable friend Dr. Ambedkar, the percentage of our expenditure on the transferred subjects is low as compared with the other provinces. Sir, we have been told that if we are spending more in the province of Bombay, we are giving better service. I would like to know in what respects we are giving better service. Is the population of the Bombay Presidency more literate than the people of other provinces? Are they in better health? Are they suffering from less diseases? In what way are they getting better service? I do not want to take the time of the Council by giving figures, but if the Honourable the Finance Member will look up the census figures, he will find that Bombay does not lead in the matter of health, education, etc., but lags behind many other provinces.

The excuse that is put forward is that the cost of living in Bombay is very high. If it is very high, why is it very high? Have Government made any enquiries why in the province of Bombay out of all provinces the cost of living should be high? What are the reasons? Have Government made any enquiries to find out ways for reducing the cost of living? What is the use of complaining? There must be causes for the high cost of living in Bombay, and those causes must be found out. Have Government done anything? Why is the cost of living in Bengal and Madras low as compared with the cost of living in Bombay? Why is the cost of living in Bombay so very high? There must be some causes.

Then, Sir, there is no doubt that the financial position of this province is very bad. We are closing with a balance of Rs. 7 lakhs, in spite of the remission of the provincial contribution and the reduction of the contribution to the Famine Fund. Government have tried departmentally to effect retrenchment, but that has not helped to put the finances of the province on a satisfactory footing. The only remedy therefore lies in Government appointing an outside financial expert to advise Government to find out ways and means to put the finances of the province on a satisfactory condition and to try to reduce the heavy burden of taxation on the people of this presidency, and to find out means for increasing their prosperity and thereby increase their taxable capacity. Of course, the Honourable the Finance Member is not entirely responsible for this condition, because he has received a bad legacy from his predecessor. But I am afraid, Sir, bad as the legacy was, he is leaving the finances in a worse condition. I hope, Sir, some steps will be taken to improve the financial position of this presidency. We are really in a very bad condition, and some means must be found to improve it. With these words, I resume my seat.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District): Sir, I compliment the Honourable the Finance Member on the great ability and rare skill exhibited by him in making the best of a bad job in the preparation of the present budget, in the very precarious condition to which this presidency has been financially reduced. No doubt, as has been said, he has inherited a legacy, which is the result of various sins of commission and omission committed in the past. But while sympathising with him in the embarrassment with which he is confronted, in making the two ends meet, I am constrained to observe that we look in vain for any new indication, much less any enunciation of a bold policy by which the finances of this presidency will be placed on a sound and satisfactory basis. I know the old remedy suggested is fresh taxation, taxation of a very limited nature, just sufficient to make the budget balance ; but, as has been said, the capacity of the presidency for any higher taxation has been already reached, and, as has been pointed out oftentimes by eminent men like the late Dr. Dadabhai Nowroji, the presidency is really in need of a reduction in the taxation, and that could be done by reducing the very heavy expenditure that is incurred upon the several public services of this presidency.

Dadabhai Nowroji than whom there could not be a better friend of the British Government and a stauncher adherent of British connection, had shown from time to time that the taxable capacity of the people had been reached and pointed out that the reason for this should be removed, the reason being the topheaviness of the public services. With these few remarks I now wish to make a few suggestions, although I know that any proposals affecting the finances of this presidency must emanate under the present constitution from Government and that the non-official benches are debarred from putting forward any such proposals. But it might be asked what are the constructive proposals put forward on behalf of the non-official benches. Therefore I wish to offer a few remarks in that connection.

The way in which the finances can be improved is two-fold. First of all economy in the administrative expenditure and secondly finding out new sources of expansion of revenue. I wish to take up the two points separately. With regard to the economy, I am glad to be able to say that the retrenchment committee that was appointed at the very first session of this reformed Council, and the retrenchment officer who was appointed latterly by the Government, have both of them made recommendations and the tabular statements have been placed before the Council, which show that there is a great field for economy in that direction. I am glad to note that a beginning has been made in the direction of indianising the services and discontinuing the practice of promoting provincial service men to the Indian services and giving them salaries which do not suit Indian conditions—so to speak the indianisation of the services by making them provincial has already been started. The provincialisation and indianisation of the services should be resorted to not on racial grounds but on consideration of pure economy. I hope the practice will be extended to the various departments under the control of this Government. The reduction of the scale of pay for the new entrants to provincial judicial service has been approved and the same should be done in the case of the other branch of service.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Reduction in recruitment ?

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : No. no. Reduction in the scale of pay.

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : I do not understand the reference by the honourable member to the judicial establishment.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : I have taken down the reduction of the scale of pay of new entrants to the judicial branch of the provincial service.

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : Where does this come from ?

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : From the statement given by the retrenchment officer, Mr. Shillidy. It is contained in the statement supplied to us some time back.

I only wish that the same treatment should be accorded to the other branches of the same service. I am also glad to find that some efforts have been made in the direction of making the travelling allowances permanent. I think that there are a large number of recommendations both in the report of the retrenchment committee and that of the retrenchment officer which deserve consideration and which are said to be under the consideration of Government. I hope they will be given effect to. The reason for my complaint is that these recommendations have again been sent to the heads of departments concerned. The heads of departments are inclined to view with disfavour any economy or retrenchment which will affect their departments. Here must come the courage of the Finance Department. I know that the Finance Department is being approached by various departments, but if the Finance Department shows courage and acts up to the recommendations of the retrenchment officer, I think a great deal of retrenchment can still be effected.

With these remarks about the retrenchment committee and the retrenchment officer we now come to a stage when perhaps it will be necessary to go into the history of this increase of expenditure which had to be done just at the time when the new reforms came into existence. It was owing to the after effects of the war, that the increments in the pay and scale had to be given. Last year I was told by the Honourable the Finance Member that if and when times changed and if the rupee appreciated and the prices were cheaper, the question of reduction of scale might be capable of being considered. Therefore I ask that if this increase in pay and scale was resorted to at the time when living was dear, whether it is not possible to do anything in the way of re-revision now when the time has changed ? I am referring to the salaries and the scales of the heads of the services. I do not for a moment suggest any retrenchment in the establishment of clerks or menial services, because retrenchment was effected in the year 1922 and any further reduction in the establishment would be prejudical to the efficiency of the administration. But I do suggest that a reduction in the number of heads or supervising officers should be resorted to, if our finances are dwindling down, and if no surplus balance is left as was the case before the year 1920. Certainly we must set ourselves to see whether reduction in the number of those officers cannot be effected. In this connection I may point out, as I have pointed out on a previous occasion, taking from the top the number of executive councillors as occasion arises should be reduced. I really wish to ask whether any effort has been made in that direction. I should like to know whether there is any justification for taking in a larger number of the I. C. S. officers than is absolutely provided for in the schedule of the Government of India Act.

[Rao Bahadur R. R. Kale]

Any increase in their number will certainly entail additional expenditure to the already loaded finances of this country. I therefore submit that this is a matter which should also be taken into consideration.

This brings me to the question which I pressed on the attention of this Honourable House at the very inception of this reformed Council, namely, the provincialization and the indianization of the services. I repeated that question at the last session, when I was informed that provincialization has already begun and that rules were being framed by the Secretary of State under section 96B, whereby the services could be provincialized to a large extent. My only wish is that it should be done immediately. Delay has already occurred. If it had not been for this delay we should have seen signs of economy in that direction, and we should have also seen the services becoming subject to the control of the head of the transferred departments. With regard to this matter, we are now at the close of the old constitution and on the eve of the new constitution that is to be framed. This Government have appointed a special officer to prepare the case of this Government. I submit, Sir, that Government will do well to instruct their officer to place the case of the Bombay Government from the financial point of view. That point of view is, really speaking of a two-fold character. First of all, this presidency has been deprived of the expanding sources of revenue, and secondly there is the question about the heavy cost of the recruitment in a foreign country of a large number of officers. These are the two points which form the crux of the whole case, and in the budget debates as well as in the other debates of this Council ample material will be found to justify the case for this Government from that point of view. I know that the Indian point of view can be placed before the Statutory Commission very properly by Indians. So far as the non-official representatives of the people are concerned, as the Commission is at present constituted, it is not possible for them to co-operate with the Commission in these matters, for the simple reason that they cannot co-operate effectively. Unless and until equal status and equal privileges are accorded to such non-official representatives to take part in each and every proceeding (whether it be in camera or in public) as well as in the final shaping of the report by free and full discussion by sitting together, I do not think there is any hope of their being of any assistance, as is certainly desired by either side. In this connection I do appeal to all my honourable friends belonging to both communities, Hindu and Muhammadan, and to the different sections, backward, intermediate and forward classes, to stand together and be united, because I do feel that united we stand and divided we fall. I know that the Indian point of view and the ryots' grievances cannot be usefully put forward before the Commission by representative Indians unless they are placed in such a position as to be effective. If we look to the ultimate welfare of the masses at large and not be carried away by short-sighted vision, I have no doubt we will realise that if any good is to come out of the Commission, the Indian point of view should come to be felt and prove effective.

[Rao Bahadur R. R. Kale]

With these remarks, I shall now pass to the second point, namely, the expansion of our sources of income. In this connection, I have already observed that the expanding sources of revenue have been taken away from us by the settlement, the so-called Meston settlement. That point has already been referred to by me. But so far as it remains in our power, I do urge upon the attention of the House the need of organising a Rural Development Department. We have heard of the Bombay Development Department, but I do feel that sufficient attention has not been paid to the need of organising a Rural Development Department. I am glad in this connection to note that the Department of Industries, which was kept in abeyance, is proposed to be revived in the present budget. The reason for this, Sir, is that if you want more revenue from the ryots, you should provide them with the means of improving their condition.

The time at my disposal is short, and I will only refer to one or two matters more. For instance, there is the possibility of utilising hydro-electric power for purposes of irrigation. At present I find that there are actually in existence some electric organisations which no doubt turn out electricity which is utilised as power, but the water that flows down into the valley or that is collected at the top of the hills runs into waste and no use is made of it. If, however, as is done in Mysore and in some parts of Madras, these waters are utilised for purposes of irrigation, I do think that the condition of the agriculturists will improve and they will be in a position to get more yield of crops and pay more in the shape of land revenue to Government. I submit, Sir, that there is a great possibility in that direction. In my district the Koyna Valley Scheme is under consideration. No doubt there is some opposition from the people, but that opposition proceeds from the fear entertained by them that although the electric power that is generated may be used for machinery, so far as their land is concerned it will be acquired and they will be deprived of it and no benefit will accrue to them. But I submit that if the water is to be utilised for storage and diverted into canals and then taken to small storage tanks, and utilised not for special crops like sugarcane but for ordinary food crops like wheat and gram which are imported for our consumption, if any arrangement of that sort is to be made, then I think it will be quite consistent with the needs of the country and Government will be in a position to get more revenue.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : What will be the cost ?

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : It is for the Department concerned to work it out.

Mr. P. J. MARZBAN (Bombay city, South) : Mr. President, of all the various fine arts acquired by human ingenuity, intellect and intelligence—the most wonderfully fascinating fine art, to my mind, is the art of budget-making. In this particular direction, Sir, our Finance Member is undoubtedly a past master. The ease and dexterity with which he has twisted and turned a deficit of nearly a crore and a half into a surplus balance of 3 lakhs fill me with unmitigated admiration for his financial jugglery. Yesterday, Sir, I understand—(of course I was not present here)—that my honourable friend Mr. K. M. Munshi had showered a good deal of praise and congratulations on the Indian Finance Member, Sir Chunilal Mehta, for the masterly way in which he has shown black as white and white as black in his financial statement, and though I am fully aware that the Honourable Sir Chunilal is not very fond of Black and White—I beg to add my humble quota to that praise.

This year indeed the Honourable Sir Chunilal has outdone Sir Chunilal of past years. On page 15 of the Blue Book we find that there is distinctly a deficit of three-quarter of a crore (that is, 34 lakhs under ordinary and 42 lakhs under development department). Although 37 lakhs are calculated from Indian Government's remission, and 63 lakhs are polished off from the Famine Fund contribution, these small gaps do not worry the Honourable the Finance Member a wee bit. He coolly tells this honourable House that we need not worry about these trifling shortcomings, but must consider as no longer existing. On the other hand we must rejoice at the rest of the figures, namely, 3 lakhs of surplus. This reminds me, Sir, of the arithmetical calculation of a Pardeshi Bhaya who owed some one a hundred rupees. When pressed for payment of his dues, he said : (I will speak in his own language, Sir with your permission) :

" સોકા હુવા સાઠ—
ઇસમેંસે આધા ગયા નાઠ !
દસ દઉંગા—દસ દલેવાઉંગા—
તો પીછુ રહા દસ !
ઇસમેં દેનાભી કયા—ઔર લેનાભી કયા ? "

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : May I ask one question to the honourable member ?

Mr. P. J. MARZBAN : Yes.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Am I to understand from the honourable member's speech that he takes Rs. 42 lakhs as a deficit ?

Mr. P. J. MARZBAN : Yes.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : I am afraid he is incorrect in that respect.

Mr. P. J. MARZBAN : Well then I must admit that I must be a 'duffer' in budget problems (Laughter). The budget as I said is a very plastic article. You can give it—at a pinch—any shape you like. And it did require the handi-work of a master craftsman to alter a bankruptcy budget of 1½ crores with a surplus cheery budget of 3 lakhs surplus. I may submit, Sir, that during all my career in the Corporation and as a member of the Standing Committee of that Body, I have never been able to fathom the mysteries of budget-making. But my ordinary common-sense, after reading the Blue Book, tells me that in spite of the unparallelled optimism of the Honourable Sir Chunilal Mehta and in spite of his beautiful window-dressing, the situation of this presidency is now very desperate. I stand confessed that, like most of my honourable colleagues who have preceded me, I am so stupefied at the present financial impasse that I am not able to offer any very constructive practical criticism as to what should be done to improve our present financial condition. Sir, I am not one of those who like to cry in season and out of season hoarse over retrenchment and curtailment of expenditure, because I realise that there are limits to retrenchments and limits to jeopardising the efficiency of a big administration. But what I submit, Sir, is that it is not the province of this honourable House to suggest ways and means to Government to get out of this tight fix. It is for the Government alone to come with reasonable and practical suggestions of increasing the revenue and decreasing the expenditure before this House—suggestions which will be acceptable to it. It is for Government to say where repairs to the machinery of the administration are necessary. They are in close touch with every minor part of the machinery, and they are therefore quite competent enough to say exactly where the axe can be applied.

The Honourable the Finance Member, in his explanatory note on the budget, does not suggest any ways and means to tide over the present precarious position. After the Reforms this is the eighth year in which we find we cannot retrieve our financial position. The Government of Bombay depends on the doles of the Government of India to carry on the administration of this presidency: Let me say, Sir, in the words of a great financier, that this policy is nothing short of a financial heresy. The Honourable the Finance Member, so also the Government of Bombay, have failed to get the Meston Award revised. This is a very important question. I may submit, Sir, that it is the Meston Award that is at the bottom of the whole mischief which is working at our door. Now, any one who peruses the Blue Book of the Government of Bombay for the year 1928-29, can very easily see the worst side of the financial position in which we are at present. That our presidency has passed through three successive years of deficit is a thought that naturally must make every responsible officer of the Government pause and ponder. Even taking the Honourable the Finance Member at his own figures—a nominal closing balance of 3 lakhs (exclusive of famine fund) for a presidency which has a total of over 30 crores of ordinary transactions of receipts and disbursements, is hardly a matter of congratulations. Now, Sir, from the Budget Blue Book we can clearly see that our receipts fluctuate mildly, whereas the disbursements are jumping up higher and higher. But no attempt has been made to lessen the item of expenditure, especially in the "Reserved" Department. We all know and we are all aware that while the Reserved Departments are overfed, the Transferred Departments are actually starved. I am sure an axe will have to be applied—if not to-day or to-morrow, on some day it will have to be applied—to the Reserved Departments. The principal heads of revenue show no signs of expansion notwithstanding the policy of Government in increasing the taxation. People are already groaning under the heavy burden of taxation and any fresh taxation will really be resented by the public and will be, no doubt, very heavy for this presidency.

[Mr. P. J. Marzban]

Now, Sir, I come to the next head of Excise. The policy of temperance has not yet succeeded. Drunkenness is there, illicit distillation is also there, and the revenue of this department is increasing appreciably. I leave it to the honourable members on the other side to explain the reason why there is no drunkenness on a lesser scale.

Then, I come to stamps. In spite of the increase in the stamp duty, the stamp revenue has fallen considerably, owing to laxity of trade. Then, I come to the public department of Government, namely, the Development Department. In spite of the protests of this Council and in spite of the protests of the public and the press, Government have not seen their way to get rid of this department. This department is at the bottom, principally at the bottom, of our financial ruin. Sir, Government, in order to maintain their prestige, still keep it on, and I should say that this department shows a deficit of Rs. 41 lakhs. I said it was Rs. 42 lakhs, but I think it is Rs. 41 lakhs. On a point of information, Sir, will the Honourable the Finance Member say whether it is correct ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : I have explained, Sir, in my speech that the subsidy to the Development Department is Rs. 32½ lakhs. To be accurate, 32·55 will be the subsidy that will be paid to the Development Department next year out of general revenue. That is, that will be borne by general revenues next year. And less has been borrowed. The loan balances have been depleted. That is the explanation.

Mr. P. J. MARZBAN : I am conscious, Sir, of indulging like others in futile destructive criticism. But what can members of this House do more than destructive criticism at this time of general discussion on the budget ? This is the utmost that we can do ; and I should say, Sir, that we are now reaping the harvest of the policy of the Government of Bombay of gambling in Utopian schemes and, as my honourable friend Mr. Swaminarayan said, wild-cat schemes, not of lakhs but crores. Sir, the Lloyd Folly has given us a heritage of two white elephants : One is the Development Scheme and the other is Sukkur Barrage. It is stated that a time may come, Sir, when we may collect money by the shoals ; but at present we are paying through the nose for the same. For the benefit of the future generations the present generation is bled white. And as it were this burden was less, the Bombay presidency is now burdened with hospital expenses. Hospital amenities for a city like Bombay is a thing much to be desired, certainly. But I submit there ought to be limits to everything. Sir, within the last five years, all of a sud en the citizens of Bombay are afflicted with a disease called "Hospitalomania". In this budget I find that the hospital charges are raised to Rs. 31 lakhs from Rs. 23 lakhs, and the medical charges as a whole have gone up to Rs. 52 lakhs from Rs. 47 lakhs.

Now, Sir, before I close, I say that I, like many other honourable members of this House, am simply filled with consternation at the rate we are rushing headlong to certain bankruptcy, and I do not see how on earth are you going to make more money, unless perhaps some future Governor may think of a few thousand Rao Bahadurships or a few hundred

[Mr. P. J. Marzban]

Knighthoods for sale and so get more money for helping our financial position. Otherwise, Sir, I cannot see any way out.

I understand, Sir, at the instance of the Government of India the Government of Bombay had to stop stamp duty on cheques. It comes to about a lakh and a half. But it is a pity, Sir, that that source of revenue has ceased. Nobody resented it, and it only affected those who had nice balances in the bank, and I should like the Government of Bombay even now to try again and induce the Government of India to allow them to levy this tax again. With these remarks, Sir, I resume my seat.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Mr. President, I must express my gratitude to the non-official members of this Council for their solicitude for the transferred departments. I may assure them that we Ministers also do not lag behind them in asking for more money for the transferred departments, and I shall presently show this honourable House that we have not been failing in our duty in asking for more money, and in some cases we have got it.....

Mr. LALJI NARANJI: Are you satisfied with that?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: I am not satisfied with that; I still want more. But where is the money to come from? We have been told in this House during the last few days that the transferred departments have been starved, and that everything has been spent on the reserved departments, and especially one department that has come in for criticism and which is under my honourable colleague to the left, the Police. I heard divergent views on that department. A Muslim representative of Bombay congratulated the honourable member on the increased police expenditure in the city of Bombay. The mofussil representatives in this House were not satisfied with the additional expenditure on the city of Bombay. These are the two points of view that we heard yesterday. But there is a frequent complaint in the press and on the platform of Pathan terrorism in the city of Bombay. That in itself shows that Bombay city requires more police.

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN: What about the districts, then?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: At the same time, I have been hearing complaints from some of the representatives of the rural areas that the police in the mofussil is inadequate, and when my honourable colleague to my left tries to meet their wishes, the complaint is that we are spending more money on the police. I will presently show the Council that we have not spent more money on the police department. In 1920-21, the year before the reforms, the expenditure on the police department was Rs. 1,76,39,000. Now I would refer honourable members to the provision for the next year, 1928-29. What I find is Rs. 1,70,00,000 only. That means we are spending Rs. 6,39,000 less on the police after the reforms.

This further shows that all the money is not being taken away by the reserved departments.....

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : More ought to be given.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : No, no. I do not advocate that more ought to be given, but I want to meet the argument that more is given.

I will now take another department, Jails and Convict Settlements under the charge of the Honourable Member to my left. What was the expenditure in the pre-reform days on this head ? Rs. 21,15,000. What is it to-day ? 25 lakhs. That means there is an increase.....

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : The figures might have been apportioned under different heads since.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : These are the main heads. The honourable member can refer to them. There is the budget before him. I am informed that the figures have not been differently apportioned.

That means 4 lakhs increase. I now come to Education. What was the expenditure in 1920-21 on education ? Rs. 1,43,39,000. And to-day ? Rs. 2,09,00,000.....

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE : Is it sufficient ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN ; It is not sufficient. But that is not the question. We are now considering whether more money is being given to the transferred departments or not.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : That might be due to a windfall.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : No, in spite of no windfall, we spend much more. The increase is nearly 66 lakhs.

Lastly, take Public Health. In 1920-21, the expenditure on Public Health was Rs. 18,15,000 and to-day it is thirty lakhs, nearly double....

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : Are you fully satisfied ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : I am not yet satisfied, but I am only meeting the insinuation.....

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : On behalf of the Honourable the Home Member ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Not on behalf of the Honourable the Home Member, but just to show that Ministers do ask for more money and get it to a certain extent.

I now come to Agriculture. What was the expenditure in 1920-21 ? Rs. 23,62,000. To-day it is 29 lakhs.

Honourable members will thus see that the transferred departments are trying to get as much as they can. The figures I have quoted prove that. In fact, Education, Public Health and Agriculture have nearly got a crore more from 1920-21 to 1928-29, and still one of my honourable friends complains that the transferred departments are starved in spite of additional taxation to the tune of 60 or 80 lakhs. Out of that, the transferred departments are having their share. I would like to have still more, but my point is that it is not true that the Ministers do not ask for their share ; but, as I have shown you from figures which are on record, we are really getting more than before.

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN (Poona and Sholapur Cities): Sir, the remarks I am now about to make should really speaking come when the discussion on the police grant will take place, but I am afraid from past experience I may get no opportunity of discussing this matter then and therefore I propose to deal with this question now.

The punitive police has been set in Sholapur because of the serious Hindu-Mahomedan disturbances in the city. Which community is to be blamed for these disturbances I need not go into that question just at present as the findings of Government officials are clear in the matter. That extra police is needed for the city of Sholapur no one can deny. The Inspector General of Police in the annual police report for the Bombay Presidency for the year 1926 says:

"As the whole question of police strength is under consideration at present and Government are well aware of my opinion that we have retrenched to an unwise degree, I refrain from offering any criticism here."

But the policy of having punitive police is open to legitimate criticism.....

The Honourable Mr. J E. B. HOTSON: They are not called "punitive police" but "additional police."

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN: That means the same thing because recoveries are to be made from the public.

Prior to 1909 we had in the city of Sholapur one sub-inspector, 12 head constables and 82 constables when the population was about 75,000. In 1909 the number of constables was increased to 90. In 1911 when the population was 89,000 the number of constables was raised to 115, and that of head constables was increased from 12 to 23. In 1921 the population was 114,000 and the police staff was 3 sub-inspectors, 23 head constables and 115 constables. While the next year four more head constables and six more constables were added. No addition to the staff was made after 1921, that is to say, the addition to the police staff, from the year 1911 when the population was 89,000 up-to the year 1925, was only two sub-inspectors, four head constables and six constables. The population at present is nearly 130,000. In other words, for over 40,000 additional people in the Sholapur city the increase is only 12 in the staff. Unfortunately figures for other cities are not available but only for districts. In this case these are of no value, but if the figures for the various other cities are available, I could prove to you by the rule of thumb that an additional strength of at least 100 police should in justice be given to Sholapur city. In this connection, I might draw attention to four important factors, viz:—

(1) Sholapur is an industrial town which stands third in the Bombay Presidency;

(2) The location in the city of the largest criminal tribes settlement in the Bombay Presidency;

(3) The contiguity of the district to the Hyderabad State;

(4) The unfortunate coincidence of the festivals and processions falling on the same day in Sholapur and Pandharpur. The latter necessitate a strong police force at two places in the district on the same date.

[Khan Saheb Abdul Latif Haji Hajrat Khan]

No observer can fail to ignore the fact that there is a strong wave of communal dissensions sweeping all over the country. For these reasons Sholapur city should be considered as a special case in its requirements of police protection. Taking all these things into consideration, the extra police Sholapur could claim is at least 100 more men. My first contention is, therefore, that one hundred out of the 150 men that are posted in Sholapur as punitive police should be considered as extra police and be paid for by Government in the usual course of events. The next point to which I would like to draw the attention of Government is this, who fixed the strength of the present punitive police at 150 I do not know, and it is quite possible that this figure might be an over estimate. The District Superintendent of Police of Sholapur in his report says :

"Again the Kartiki Ekadashi fair on which occasion the Rath procession at Sholapur is taken round the City and on which very occasion the year previous the well-known riot took place, a contingent of 8 head constables and 32 men had to be drafted into Sholapur from several districts in compliance with my request."

That shows that he managed by drafting 40 more men on that special occasion. Sir, is it then too much to doubt that the District Superintendent of Police, Sholapur, who is very good at his work, cannot preserve peace with 100 extra men? I therefore suggest that the remaining extra men should be withdrawn till circumstances prove that they are needed, unless Government wants to wreak vengeance on the city, where some interested badmashes created a series of disturbances. I appeal to the Government benches to accept my proposal.

Another point that I would like to touch upon is that I was one of those who paid a visit to the Sukkur Barrage works. The time at my disposal is very limited; otherwise I would have gone into greater detail, but I can say with authority that whatever I have seen goes to show that everything there is going on in a businesslike way, quite satisfactorily and economically. With these few words, I resume my seat.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District): Mr. President, as references have already been made to the Statutory Commission, and as I see that the budget provides for some expenditure on account of the Commission, I hope I am not transgressing the bounds of relevancy if at the outset, I make a few remarks on the subject. It gives me very great pleasure to say that, of all utterances on the subject by responsible British statesmen and consuls and proconsuls, the utterance made by His Excellency the Governor in his speech on the opening day was the least offensive. I think I am not exaggerating if I say that it is the most persuasive, though it may not succeed in persuading most people. I therefore cordially echo the hope expressed by His Excellency that it is not too late for some mutual understanding to be arrived at, whereby the representatives of the British Parliament and the representatives of Indian political opinion can give each of their best to recommending such proposals as will have the result of evolving a constitution satisfactory to both and one which will advance the happiness and prosperity of the millions who live in this land. I heartily join in expressing that hope. To my mind, such mutual understanding even now is not an impossibility, provided first the Statutory Commission virtually enters on its high mission on the lines and in the spirit of a British delegation, anxious to place once for all the solution of the Indian constitutional problem on a satisfactory basis, and provided further the representatives of Indian political opinion of every school of thought or community face, as I have no doubt they will, when they seriously consider the matter across the table, the hard facts and conditions of the problem, and after having arrived at an agreement among themselves meet the British Delegation with the sole desire of devising a constitution which, while seeking to realise the goal of full responsible government at the earliest possible moment, will provide for every legitimate interest and meet every real, practical difficulty. Sir, we have found in the case of England, we have found in the case of Ireland, that when two parties are earnestly desirous of arriving at a satisfactory settlement, even the die-hards, who fortunately or unfortunately, will be found in the ranks of every party and in every circle, will be found reasonable enough to take into consideration vital questions arising from actual circumstances and conditions; and I would earnestly and respectfully submit that the British statesmen, Lord Birkenhead and other responsible statesmen, and the members of the Commission also should banish from their minds any suspicion or distrust of the capacity or the willingness of representative Indian public opinion to consider the Indian problem as a whole, in all its difficulties and complexity and also, I want to add, from the point of view of imperial interests. With these words on the Statutory Commission, I proceed to discuss the budget.

I feel considerable sympathy with the Honourable the Finance Member in his difficult situation. Nevertheless, making every allowance for his difficulties, I must say, and I say it with very great respect for the Honourable the Finance Member, that the budget and the speech with which he has introduced the budget are the budget and the speech not of a statesman with large policies and with the will to adopt requisite financial measures to carry out those policies but of a mere administrator, whose whole conception of his duties consists in somehow balancing the budget. I say it with very great regret, but I must say it. The financial problem with which we are confronted is not a new one. It is the same problem which we have had to face ever since the inception of the Montagu-Chelmsford Reforms. The problem, put in a nutshell, is this: how to provide for the development, as quickly as possible, at least up to a certain high level, of education and other progressive functions of the State. That is the problem which we have to face. This problem existed in 1921-22, and unfortunately exists to-day substantially as in that year. To solve this problem, our revenue must exceed our existing expenditure by at least three or four crores of rupees. What have the Government done to bring about this result?

They have failed to bring about this result for three reasons: first because they are not making every effort to develop the existing sources of revenue; secondly, they have not as yet, in the spirit of absolute detachment, tackled the problem of retrenchment and economy; and thirdly, they are suffering from the infirmity to which every Government is liable—the infirmity which makes them nervous in facing the problem of taxation—nervous that they might thereby incur the displeasure of the people, particularly of the powerful capitalistic and wealthy interests. The Honourable the Finance Member will thus see that in fact I am bringing forward against this Government a three-fold charge; and I say that on account of these three reasons our financial position is not as satisfactory as it otherwise would have been. I propose to discuss at what length the limits of time will permit me to consider each of these three points.

My first allegation is that the existing sources of revenue are not properly and sufficiently developed. Honourable members and particularly members on Government benches will refer to the budget where a full statement is given of our revenue since the year 1921.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: What is the page number?

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN: Do not mind the page number. You have gone through these figures.

Take first of all the land revenue, which has not exceeded, I am speaking from memory, Rs. 5 crores. Now, I have endeavoured my level best to understand this problem of land revenue. (Mr. R. S. Asavale: Rs. 5·98 crores.) Say six crores. My study of this problem has led me to the conclusion that there is a good deal of inequality at present existing in the land revenue assessments. There are places where lands are under-assessed and there are other places where lands are over-assessed. I have come to the conclusion, subject of course to correction by the superior knowledge of Government officers, that if this problem of land revenue assessment is properly considered and the whole matter is thoroughly gone into, the amount of revenue which we are at present realizing may be increased at least by 30 to 40 lakhs of rupees without at the same time imposing any additional burden upon the poor agriculturists. In this respect, I submit Government are not doing their best in developing the existing sources of revenue. If they will just go into this matter more carefully we shall have more land revenue without at the same time imposing any additional burden on th poor agriculturists.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: How is it?

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN: I am afraid I cannot go into the details. My time is limited and I have not got the notes before me at present. If the Honourable the Finance Member desires, certainly I will be too glad to explain to him what I have got to say.

I come to forests. Here again I think that the income which we are deriving is very inadequate. If only attempts are made to work out the forests in a better way more revenue can be derived from forests. I remember to have read in one book—I forget the author of the book—in which the author has said that if our forests are properly worked out they can yield a revenue of Rs. 2 crores. I know at the same time the difficulties the Honourable Minister has to face in that direction.

[Mr. R. G. Pradhan]

But our forests are good asset and they deserve to be properly worked. I do not wish to dilate further on this first point. I hope I have shown that even our existing sources of revenue have not been properly developed.

I now come to the second point—the point of economy and retrenchment. I am also one of those who do not wish to make a fetish of it. But in considering the question of retrenchment, one has got to consider whether the high level of efficiency at which we desire to maintain our administration is not too costly and above the means of the people to pay for. Certainly the present administration is carried on at a high level of efficiency. I do not question it, although some may. I gladly recognise that the existing administration is carried on at a high level of efficiency. But then we have also got to consider whether the expenditure we are incurring in order to maintain the administration at such a high level of efficiency is such that people are in a position to pay for it. If they are not, then there are only two alternatives: either you must develop the capacity of the people to pay the expenditure requisite for maintaining that high level of efficiency or you must bring down your expenditure even though to some extent the efficiency may thereby be impaired. These are the only two alternatives before Government; and Government must accept one of them. Personally I am in favour of maintaining the high level of efficiency. Then every effort must be made to develop the capacity of the people to pay for high expenditure by the development of industries and in other ways, so that people may be able to bear the cost of such a high level of administration. With regard to this question of retrenchment and economy I would ask Government to tell us categorically whether they think that the utmost limits of retrenchment are reached and that there is no further scope for retrenchment. If that is their view, let them state that view categorically, and we shall accept their categorical statement. But we want them to make that categorical statement that the utmost limits of retrenchment are reached. If not, they must do their best to apply the axe even now as much as possible.

I now proceed to the third point to which I have referred. Well, Sir, what a sad thing it is that the Government are compelled to refuse sanction to schemes of compulsory education simply because no funds are available! We are starving the soul of the people because we have got no money and we are doing nothing to get more money. Are we justified in refusing the people even the elementary demand of compulsory education when they are asking for it, simply on the ground that our present finances do not permit us? The right method of facing that question is not to refuse the demand of the people but to do our best to find out sources whereby we can meet that additional expenditure. Even at the risk, perhaps, of incurring the displeasure of some of my own countrymen, and even at the risk of drawing upon my devoted head the hostile criticisms of reckless and thoughtless newspapers and publicists, I will say that if we are anxious, as we ought to be anxious, to develop the transferred departments as quickly as possible, I for one do not see any possibility of our doing so unless we make up our minds to go in for additional taxation. I quite agree with my honourable friend to my left that the additional taxation should be earmarked. I for one do not see any way out of the difficulty. I am looking at the problem not from the point of view of a hand to mouth administrator, but from the point of view, if you will permit me to say so, of a patriot anxious that his country should progress as quickly as possible and become a self-governing nation as quickly as possible. It is from that point of view that I am looking at these problems, and, therefore, I feel that it is absolutely necessary that compulsory education should be achieved within at least a period of five years. In 1925 I drew up a bill and sent it to His Excellency for his previous sanction. The bill provided for the introduction of compulsory education within a period of seven years. If that bill had been accepted, the result would have been that compulsory education would have been effected throughout the length and breadth of this presidency within the short period of seven years. But the sanction was refused, and it was refused on the ground that it would entail on Government an additional expenditure of one crore of rupees. Well, what if it did ? If we are anxious about this matter, this additional money must be found, and with due deference to those of my honourable friends who are opposed to additional taxation, I respectfully submit that I for one see no way out of it unless we willingly and cheerfully bear the burden of additional taxation. (Bell rung.)

Mr. S. A. SARDESAI (Bijapur District): Mr. President, although I may congratulate the Honourable the Finance Member on his skill in finance, certainly I find it impossible to congratulate him on the deficit budget which he has presented to this honourable House. Deficit budgets are being presented year after year. Although suggestions are being made from this side of the House how to make good the deficit and how to improve the finances, those suggestions are overlooked and not given effect to, and the result is that there is always a deficit budget. In order to make good the deficit, the Honourable the Finance Member has assumed that the Stamp Act and the Court-fees Act will be continued and that the Government of India will remit the provincial contribution. I think that is a fallacy. In fact he does not know whether the Stamp Act and the Court-fees Act will be allowed to be continued by the honourable House, and it is not certain that the central Government will remit the amount due to them from this presidency.

Then, the indebtedness of this presidency has been referred to, and I think my honourable friend Mr. Lalji Naranji has made it quite clear that the indebtedness of this Government is very great. Looking to the fact that our revenue is something like 15 crores, the indebtedness of the Government is nearly four times our annual income. If an individual had brought his estate to that condition, of course Government would have declared that he was quite unfit to hold the estate, he could not manage it properly, and they would have assumed the management of the estate themselves. In this instance, the Government is vested with power and there is nobody else to take charge of this Government.

[Mr. S. A. Sardesai]

As the Honourable the Finance Member has proposed to levy fresh taxation, I wish to tell him that the taxable capacity of the poor ryot has been fully reached and there is no room for further taxation. As stated by several honourable members, either the taxable capacity of the ryot should be increased or the expenditure of Government should be cut short. Those are the two alternatives. I think I can suggest a good many remedies. Retrenchment should be carried further and the pay of high officers reduced. In this way the finances can be very well improved. As has been stated by honourable members, and rightly too, there is no margin for reducing the pay of the poor clerks in these expensive days. I think, Sir, the poor ryot should not only be not taxed further but should be relieved even from the burden of existing taxes.

I may refer here to the policy of levying land rents. Although there is a section in the Land Revenue Code that the improvements carried out in the fields should not be taken into consideration at the time of a revision settlement, still whenever a revision is made after thirty years, the land rents are invariably raised taking into consideration also the improvements carried out in the fields. The time is very little at my disposal, and it is, therefore, not possible for me to dilate on the question very much.

I shall now try to offer my remarks on the question of Education. The educational policy of this presidency is very defective. As I have told this honourable House year after year, it would do well if the Government will commence henceforward to impart and try to improve the vocational industrial and technical education freely in this presidency. I know that a very good report on the technical education was made by Sir Visvesvaraya, but I am sorry to find that the Government did not carry out the suggestions made therein. I may say, Sir, that for the primary education, Rs. 5 lakhs more have been given this year—I say they are not at all sufficient as the number of primary school children has enormously increased.

Coming to the secondary education, I may suggest certain means. In order to decrease expenses on the item of secondary education, I may suggest that wherever there are Kanarese schools, an additional English teacher should be provided for that school. We should provide for a teacher in such schools, who will coach all the students up to the fourth standard in English. This will save much. Government also should abolish high schools in places where there are private high schools and which can be relied upon for secondary education. They can also abolish certain Government colleges in this way. Where there are private colleges, Government should try to abolish Government colleges in such places. For instance, in Poona there is the Deccan College, Fergusson college and other such colleges. So, in that place Government can very well abolish the Deccan College and entrust the whole management to other private colleges.

As already pointed out several times by my honourable friends, our University is also backward in many respects. In that particular I fully agree with my honourable friends. For the present, as we understand, there are only three professors' posts and three more posts are vacant. Is it not a shame, I ask on the part of the Bombay University that its Professor, Mr. R. D. Ranade, should be taken away by the Allahabad University and be appointed as a Specialist for Logic and Modern Philosophy ? In point of education, I think, the Bombay University is very backward compared with the University of Madras and that of Bengal. Our Bombay University is not at all making any rapid progress in respect of education.

I shall now deal with the Excise Department. As we all know, the Government is thinking of starting prohibition in the district of Satara. They want to take steps in the first instance in that district. I would suggest to Government that they should also introduce prohibition in the district of Bijapur; they should make this experiment in Bijapur district because the people there are very poor.

As regards the Police, I may observe a few remarks. I find from the budget that nearly Rs. 5 lakhs have been increased for adding more number of policemen in Bombay. I have no doubt that this will relieve the people of the anxiety of robbing, etc. But I would ask Government " What have they done regarding increasing the number of police in the mofussil ? " The increased amount shown in the budget has been given for the benefit of the citizens only, but nothing has been done for the villages. In passing, I may state that the police in the villages are very boastful. They think, that they are not for the protection of lives and property of the poor ryot. They think themselves to be independent officers. They also think that they are there only to safeguard against the political activities of Government. They only take care of the rich people, whereas they do not care for the poor. I have seen in the mofussil where police use motor cars freely. Because the police are the higher authorities to regulate the motor traffic, they go to the extent of travelling in these motor cars free of charge. I do not say that all the policemen do so. Except a few high officers—European—I find this state of thing practised by the police. In the railway compartments I have seen, except in the second class, people huddled together in the third class. Where a compartment is meant for ten persons, twenty persons or more are pushed in by the police, and if anybody makes a complaint to them, they do not pay any attention to them. On the other hand, they try to prosecute those persons, they threaten and even go to the length of abusing them. They do all that lies in their power. I may submit, Sir, that it is very unfair on the part of the police to harass the people. In any civilised country, the police are meant for protecting the lives and properties of the people; they are not meant for tyrannising the people or putting difficulties in the way of the subject. As suggested on the floor of this honourable House a couple of years ago, I am of opinion that the Police Department should be made " a Transferred Subject ". I will really welcome a day on which the Police Department will be made a " Transferred " subject.

Now, as regards separating the executive and judicial functions, this honourable House has already passed a resolution in this respect, but that resolution has not yet been carried into effect by Government.

(After recess)

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE (Bombay City, North): Mr. President, many members of this honourable House have criticised the administration of the Honourable the Finance Member. This budget is no doubt unsatisfactory, and this has been admitted by the honourable member himself. So, I do not like to add to the chorus of criticism of all those honourable members, but shall say that in the statement or the speech that has been delivered by the Honourable the Finance Member he has not stated anything about labour or the labour condition in the presidency. I regret very much that the Honourable the Finance Member who has presented this budget of the presidency has left himself open to the charge that he feels no concern about the bad condition of the labourers in this presidency. He has pointed out how the agriculturists have suffered. The labourers also come from the same class, and the honourable member ought not to have lost sight of their pitiable condition at the present time, and through them the condition of the presidency. I have since last year been repeating often and often how the condition of the labourers is becoming worse and how the prosperity of the presidency is also affected thereby. Both go together. If the condition of the labouring classes and the agriculturists is improved, the condition of the presidency would be improved automatically, and the honourable member has not I hope forgotten how during the last few months the labouring classes, specially in the city of Bombay, have been put out of work and hence have been suffering a great deal, owing to the closure of many textile mills, thus throwing nearly 30,000 to 40,000 labourers out of work. Under these circumstances the responsibility of taking care of this large number of unemployed persons in the city of Bombay naturally falls upon Government. Is it not the first duty of Government to protect and see that they do not starve as they are thrown out of work not through their own fault but through the fault of their employers? I can openly say before this House, Sir, that it is not the fault of these labourers, who already are very poorly paid and yet are now asked to do double work for the same or slightly higher wages. It will be seen from the Labour Gazette that the labourers in the city of Bombay are not fairly paid but they have been very poorly paid and now their wages are to be reduced by their masters, the millowners. I had an opportunity of discussing this with the agents of some of these mills in Bombay at present closed on account of the strike, but I found them obstinate and they would not move an inch back to do something for the poor labourers. As the latter have been starving, they are forced to do heavy, hard and difficult work, which ought not to have been got done by these people. All this would come out if a committee is appointed by Government to enquire into the conditions under which the labouring classes, especially the textile labourers in the city of Bombay, have to work and I am quite sure, Sir, that Government will then be satisfied that the conditions imposed upon the labourers by the owners, viz., to work three looms in the weaving department and two in the spinning department are too difficult for the labourers to fulfil. No doubt, if improvements are effected by launching new machinery and providing good materials as well as those improvements and facilities suggested in the Tariff Board Committee's report, it might be possible for strong labourers to be able to continue to work according to the new system to be introduced. But it is very difficult otherwise, and though this has been clearly brought to the notice of these agents they are obdurate and insisting that those conditions ought to be accepted. I must say, Sir, that they are going to do nothing but to kill these labourers and in this way kill their own industry also. We are clamouring here as supporters of the industry that the industry should be protected and should thus flourish. But how that industry is to flourish I do not understand if things are to continue like this. Do the capitalists or the industrialists want only to get that free help an bounty from Government—which means the public funds—to support them and their own industry, and do nothing themselves to introduce good management and strict retrenchment in working their own factories and thus secure the proper share of their benefits? We all in this honourable House clamour that Government ought to retrench and use the retrenchment axe to cut down expenses in all grades of service from top to bottom. In the same way in every industry there should be retrenchment in the top heavy expenditure and better management should be introduced before the question of the reduction in wages of these ill paid poor employees is raised. That is why I blame the Honourable the Finance Member, because when submitting his budget and making the budget speech, he has not mentioned a word about the condition of these poor labourers and the unemployment in the presidency. Now, Sir, he has admitted at page 6 of his budget speech that he has read in the budget speech of the Finance Member of Bengal as to how the revenue from stamp duty and other taxes are going down there, and though the honourable member has made enquiries about the reductions in revenue of the stamp duty and other taxes in the Province of Bengal, he has forgotten to enquire as to how those provinces have been able to provide more money for the nation building purposes and how those provinces have been carrying on their administration and in what way they have been able to provide more money for the nation building departments. That enquiry has not been made by the Honourable the Finance Member, and he has only quoted as to how the revenues have been reduced on account of general trade depression.

I would now refer to paragraph 16 of his budget speech which says that "paragraph 3 of Secretary's note in the Blue Book shows that in the current year there is likely to be a net increase of expenditure over revenue by 12 lakhs". That clearly shows that we are in for more expenditure than income, which in turn points to an inability, on the part of our Government, to carry on the administration in the right manner.

The Honourable the Minister for Local Self-Government is not here, otherwise I would have said something about the figures he quoted and shown him that in the other departments the chief items of revenue of the Government of Bombay have been increased to nearly one crore, and that this whole amount has b.en swallowed up by one item in the reserved departments, namely, General Administration. That shows why the nation building departments have not been suitably provided for.

As regards the increase in the Police Department, I say that it is a very welcome increase, I would even vote for a still further increase in the Police Department, as on the efficiency and strength of this department depends mainly the safety of our property and person in this presidency, and especially in the Town and Island of Bombay, and also in view of the serious communal dissensions now to be seen all over the country. These communal dissensions owe their origin to both social and political forces, which fact makes any increase on the Police Department doubly welcome.

As regards the Educational Department, we were told the other day by the Honourable the Finance Member that five lakhs have been provided. I ask, will that paltry sum suffice where crores are urgently called for? Five lakhs is a mere drop in the ocean and would not touch the fringe of the real requirements of education. Until adequate provision is made for education, the masses and the depressed classes in particular will never be satisfied, although it may be well and good for the classes who have already received education to be satisfied with a scanty allotment. Even 50 lakhs more every year would not be enough for the education of the masses and the depressed classes. In fact I strongly urge that the whole amount of the 80 lakhs raised by additional taxes, ought to have gone to Education. These are the Entertainments Tax, the Totalisator Tax and the remissions to be received from the Government of India and yet I am sorry to find that proper effort does not seem to have been made to provide enough for educational needs of this presidency. I would even go so far as to say that the whole of the 80 lakhs and the amount which is to be received as remission from Government of India ought to go to the Transferred Departments. I must charge Government with not having carried out their promises. When any new tax is going to be levied, Government promise that they will earmark its proceeds for the needs of a special department, but after the bill becomes law and the tax begins to bring additional money into the public exchequer, the promises are conveniently forgotten and the money goes to feed the reserved departments.

I feel perfectly certain that unless Government cry a halt in this method of carrying on administration, that they will not be able to carry on much longer without the risk of early bankruptcy, leading to a general discontent and possibly chaos in this country. This presidency claims to be the first and foremost in India and it ought not to have been treated in this manner by a Government having at its head the best brains of Britain. I believe that it is not the fault of these best brains of Britain now ruling over the destinies of this great presidency, but that it is the fault of those who have got the actual administration in their hands. As I stated last year, if they put their heads together in an earnest spirit and with a will to do real good to this presidency, they can do so, but they do not intend to do so ; but it is not for me to remind them of the good old saying that "where there is a will there is a way." Here it is a case of a lack of will and hence a lack of way to do the right thing by this presidency. If they only take it into their heads to retrench, they can cut down the expenditure and show a solvent budget. It is not the business of this Council to show in what directions reduction of expenditure could be effected. We, non-officials, can but shout and bawl out for economy. But it is the lookout of Government and it is up to them to find out how and where drastic cuts could be made without loss of efficiency. At least during the next year, I hope that Government will be able to convince us that they have put their heads together and found out a way of paring their top-heavy administration in such a manner as would enable them to present a surplus and a satisfactory budget to this Council. There appears to be ample scope for considerable economy in the central administration as well as in the heads of departments. We must first put our own house in order by abolishing some of the posts of Executive Councillors and by confining the running of the Government to four, Members and Ministers. Then there is the Secretariat which can come in for a big long cut with advantage. I would even request those elected members who now hold some of the Portfolios to lead the way by expressing their willingness to accept a lesser salary and proving to the Imperial branch that they can do equally efficient work on less pay.....

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : They have been doing it for the last five years.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE : They can set a still better example and I am sure nothing but good will result. When the interests of the presidency are at stake, such a sacrifice on the part of our elected Ministers will have beneficial and far-reaching effects on the whole presidency. If at any time the state of the presidency's finances improves, then the Ministers can come forward and ask for more pay and I am sure the Council will readily grant it.

Here is Swaraj in our own hands ; we have five Indians in the Cabinet of this Government. If with this number we cannot do much for the improvement of the presidency, it is our own fault if we do not know how best to utilise the presence of five Indians in the inner counsels of Government.

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : Sir, very few of the members who have addressed the House in the last two days have made any reference to the departments which come under my charge, and I am sorry to see that even of those few, still fewer are here at the present moment. At the same time, there are one or two points which they have brought up and to which I think it is my duty to refer now.

In the first place, I would like to clear up a small misunderstanding. Rao Bahadur Kale referred to a statement of proposals made by the

[Mr. J. E. B. Hotson]

Retrenchment Officer and said that Government had accepted a proposal to sanction a reduced scale of pay for future entrants to the judicial branch of the Bombay Civil Service, and he wanted, if I understood him rightly, to know what savings had been effected in this way. The statement referred to shows that that particular item is still under consideration. The fact is that we hope to be able to make some retrenchment in the judicial department but we are unable to do anything, except on a very small scale, without consulting the High Court. The High Court have been considering the proposals of the Retrenchment Officer—those concerning the High Court itself and its subordinate officers and those concerning the District Courts of the presidency. They have appointed sub-committees for the purpose, and the opinions of the High Court are now only beginning to come in. So we are not yet in a position to say how far we shall have their Lordships' support in carrying out any retrenchment, or to what amount the retrenchments will come. But this statement here, which we have all seen, I think gives a very direct answer to the question asked by the honourable member from Nasik. He asked if Government were prepared to make a categorical statement that no further retrenchment was possible. He had only to look at this statement to see that there are still a number of items in which the possibility of retrenchment is under consideration. It is true that most of the bigger items have been disposed of already, at least speaking of the departments with which I am specially concerned, but there are still other items which, we hope, will bring in something to help us.

Now, I shall turn to the police. We were, I think, rather inclined to rub our eyes in surprise when the honourable member from Kaira (Rao Saheb Dadubhai Desai) talked about what happened in 1912-13. When we see his seat empty to-day, we are inclined to feel an apprehension lest Rip Van Winkle has gone back to his cave and we may not see him for another fifteen years. I hope that will not be the case. But can anybody seriously compare the conditions that existed in 1912 with those that exist to-day? The honourable member quoted, I have no doubt, from the volume of Statistics which was published in 1922. Now, he said that the police charges in Bombay had gone up by roughly 50 per cent. If you take any page of this book, whether it is on the revenue side or the expenditure side, whether it is in Bombay, or in Madras or in Bihar and Orissa, or anywhere you like, you will find that every figure has gone up, sometimes by 40 per cent. or 50 per cent. and sometimes by 200 per cent. Everybody knows that the cost of everything had begun to rise long before 1912; in the 10 years or 15 years before that there had already been a considerable rise, and that rise has continued owing to world causes. The index figures of the cost of living, which were something below 100 in 1912-13, and are treated for our purposes as 100 in 14, are now 154—an increase of well over 50 per cent. The honourable members are all aware of that. When any one asks that the police charges should be brought down to-day to what they were 15 years ago, he is clearly asking the impossible. I do not know how the honourable member from Kaira would propose to carry such a proposal. Would he, do you suppose, wish that we should go back to the strength of men that we had then, and to the scale of pay that we had then ? In those days, the initial pay of a constable in the district was Rs. 10 ; to-day his initial pay is Rs. 20. In Bombay the initial pay was Rs. 14 ; to-day it is no less than Rs. 30.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE : Do you consider it very high ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : No, not at all. But if the initial pay of a constable has doubled or more than doubled, will the honourable member from Kaira or any other honourable member of this House suggest that we should go back to-day and offer our policemen an initial pay of Rs. 10, rising after 20 years' service to Rs. 12 ; or, in Bombay, does anybody think that the pay of a first grade constable at the end of his service should not exceed Rs. 17 ? I do not think that that would bear any examination whatever. But even if we admit the blame that attaches to the Government of Bombay for this gross extravagance, we find that every other province has done just the same, that in Bengal and in Madras the increases amount to over 60 per cent. We find that the expenditure on education in Bombay, which was something over Rs. 60 lakhs in 1912-13, doubled in 1920 and has been trebled since then. Does the same honourable member propose that we should go back and cut down our education budget from Rs. 2,09,00,000 to some Rs. 62 lakhs ? I do not think so. I think we might almost leave that question without any further answer. But it brings me to the more general subject of what we have done in the way of retrenchment in the police.

You all know that in 1922 great retrenchments were made. Since then, the gradual increase owing to the time-scales of pay has necessarily led to an increase in the total cost, especially of the lower establishment, but that has been counterbalanced by very large reductions in many other ways. We have, for instance in Bombay city, amalgamated two of the divisions, and cut out one Superintendent. We made very considerable savings in Bombay by reducing the rates of house rent given to various officers. We have cut down the contingent expenditure in Bombay city police by no less than Rs. 80,000. I do not say that that has been done without considerable loss of efficiency in smaller matters ; it is obvious it could not be. We have cut down the contingent expenditure of the district police by just under a lakh—by 96 thousand rupees. We have reduced to very little more than half its former strength the Bombay harbour police. That, I think, has been done with comparatively little loss of efficiency, owing to the better arrangements that have been adopted. In the Finger Print Bureaus both in Bombay and Poona we have been able to make a reduction owing to improved organisation and methods. The result of all these economies is that we have reached a stage when we cannot possibly go any further in the police. We cannot have any more mere cheese-paring reductions. During the last year we had a severely pruned budget, and we were ordered to make a lump cut of not less than Rs. 3,50,000 below even that budget figure. That has only been done by the most generous co-operation of all the police officers who, in the face of very great difficulties and against their own inmost wishes, have assisted us to save money wherever possible. We have had to keep, in every district, a very large proportion of the vacancies which occur in the natural course of events, unfilled; so that the strength, which was fixed at what we thought the very lowest minimum of safety, is now reduced below that level; and many policemen are in consequence now required to do, each of them, a good deal more than one man's work in order that the duties imposed on them shall be performed. As a temporary measure we can do that for one year. We are, under the orders of the Finance Department and of Government, obliged to attempt to do the same thing again next year, but this cannot be continued indefinitely. We shall soon be compelled to take far more stringent measures than that. We shall have to do something which will be seriously felt everywhere; we shall have to abolish still more police stations and outposts. We may be compelled to abstain altogether from traffic control in the cities and towns or to take away all the men now employed on patrol duty simply because we cannot continue to make one man do two men's work. I do not think that this honourable House desires that this should happen. I noticed that all the honourable members who have spoken except the honourable member from Kaira who complained that we are spending too much in the Bombay City and too much in the mofussil, wanted more policemen. The honourable members from Bombay wanted more men for the city. Those from the mofussil wanted more men for their districts. Government feel that the police of the presidency has been reduced to the very least possible limit and I cannot regard it as possible to reduce it any further. I am quoting from the Finance Member's budget speech of last year. He said:

"The policy with regard to police is frankly based on the good sense and general law-abiding instincts of the people of this presidency; and should it prove to be mistaken in this respect, the situation may well be serious."

The instance quoted by the honourable member from Sholapur a few minutes ago is an exact case in point. As the honourable member says we continued for some time to increase the police as the population of the town increased. Then after 1921, in the pursuit of retrenchment, we entirely ceased to increase the police there and though the population has grown the police force has not grown in proportion. We hoped, as the Finance Member said last year, that the good sense of the people would keep them quiet and that we would never have to meet a crisis. Unfortunately in Sholapur the good sense of the people has not given any such result. In fact, both communities have been to blame; both have in turn taken the offensive. Government had no alternative but to send additional police there. We cannot do that at the expense of the general revenues, because if we did so we should be treating the other districts and towns of the presidency unfairly. Ahmedabad needs more police and Hyderabad needs more police. Nearly every taluka wants more police. We cannot send more police to one particular place at the public expense, because the people of that place are naughty. If they insist on rioting they must pay for the results.

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN: I said that because Sholapur is an industrial place which stands third in the Bombay Presidency we must have more police there. In the industrial places Bombay stands first, Ahmedabad second and Sholapur third.

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: I quite admit that. If we had our own way we should have permanent additional police there.

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN: Thank you.

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: We have not got funds to increase the police there or anywhere else at present.

My honourable friend has made a mistake on another point. He said that only 40 men were brought in during the troubles recently. That is far from being the case. No fewer than 270 men were brought in from different places.

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN: I was talking of the riots of 1926.

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: I beg his pardon. I thought he was referring to the recent trouble. During the recent trouble 270 men were brought from every part of the Deccan and the Karnatak. Whatever be the number of men it must be remembered that men sent for a short period to restore peace in a disturbed place are obliged to remain on duty for far longer hours than it would be possible to expect them to continue to do week in week out throughout the year. I understood the honourable member to say that the local officers wanted another 100 men. That is not the case. The local officers proposed originally a much larger number which has been reduced by more than 50 per cent. after discussion between the Inspector General and Government.

I was very much struck during my recent visit to Sind by the fact that every person of every community to whom I spoke was unanimous in asking for more police. We have received representations from almost every district of the presidency that more police are wanted. We are not asking for larger grants now. But I ask honourable members to bear this in mind when next they wish to argue that the police are overmanned or are too expensive.

Rao Bahadur S. N. ANGADI (Belgaum District): Sir, the budget which has been presented to this House is an admission of incompetence to manage properly the finances of the presidency. The Honourable the Finance Member has told us rather triumphantly that we shall have a surplus of 2 to 3 lakhs at the end of the year. His conclusions have been based upon several assumptions. In the first place, he hopes, that the Government of India, would remit the remaining part of the contribution to be made by our province. Let us hope that they would come to our rescue. But what is the consolation to the unfortunate people of this presidency? The money that would be so remitted, is not going to be spent on nation-building departments, but is going to be used for making up the general deficit. Is this a very happy state of things to contemplate? Then, again, it is assumed that the Stamp Act and the Court-fees Act will be renewed as usual. You will remember, Sir, that Government when they introduced these two Acts attempted to put them permanently on the statute book, and a sort of compromise was arrived at and a fresh lease of life was given them for one year only. This House is tired of these bills, and I think Government also must have been tired of bringing forward these two bills. We must remember, Sir, that the maximum taxable capacity of the people of this Presidency has been reached, and I do not think there is any difference of opinion on this point. It was only under very exceptional circumstances that the House felt itself justified to pass these two bills. Then again the annual quota of Famine Insurance Fund has been lowered by 33 lakhs, and yet we are now face to face with a deficit budget.

Then again Government are going to increase the fees in colleges and secondary schools. Instead of cheapening education they are going to make secondary and collegiate education more costly than ever before. Here, I would submit, that it is the backward classes who will feel the pinch. Government are attempting to have an additional revenue of about 2 lakhs from this source, because they have to meet the expenditure on a number of costly Government colleges. I would suggest, Sir, that instead of increasing the fees, they had better close down some of their colleges and encourage private enterprise to provide higher education for the people. In that way a lot of saving can be very easily effected. Although we have made several suggestions for retrenching expenditure, Government have not accepted them. Even the "Times of India," which is so very well-known for its sober views, says that it is really not advisable to maintain three costly administrative centres. So there is a direction in which some saving can be effected. The "Times of India" has further pointed out that there is much scope for retrenchment within the Cabinet itself, and that while in pre-reforms days we had only three Executive Councillors, we have now more than double that number. So in that direction also there is sufficient room for retrenchment. Are these not practical suggestions? If Government wish to retrench expenditure they can always find ways, but the only answer we receive from Government is that our suggestions are impossible of being carried out. Just now we heard the Honourable the Home Member saying that he could not cut down the salaries of the police constables. We do not suggest that Government should cut down the salaries of low paid clerks and constables. None of us wishes to hit them hard. What the House has always been asking for is that the salaries of high officers, say of officers drawing Rs. 250 and upwards, should be cut down. You will remember, Sir, that some years ago the starting pay of subordinate judges was Rs. 150. Now, it is doubled, it is Rs. 300. The cost of living has not increased 100 per cent. The result is that there is unnecessary waste of public fund, this has also created discontent among mamlatdars who say that their responsibilities and duties are more onerous than those of subordinate judges and yet they are paid lower salaries. If we cut down the salaries of sub-judges, the mamlatdars would have no ground for complaint, and we would also effect a saving.

[Rao Bahadur S. N. Angadi]

Thus, there are several ways of retrenchment which can be suggested to Government, and have been suggested year after year, and if they only act upon them they can show a substantial saving.

Coming back to secondary and collegiate education, as I have suggested the best thing is to encourage private colleges and schools. So far as this aspect of the question is concerned, I must say that it is the people of the Karnatak who are hit hard. The people from our districts have to go to Poona for education, whether it is medical education, agricultural education or education in engineering. For any sort of education we have to run to Poona and bear the heavy expenditure of education. That means that our districts are being drained and drained almost to a bleeding point. If you encourage private colleges and also provide medical education in the Karnatak, we shall be saved this expenditure. As I have always stated on the floor of this House, being far away from the seat of Government we are treated in a step-motherly fashion. There is none to listen to our grievances and our needs. The poor people of Karnatak have to send their children to a distant place for education, and in addition to this expenditure, they will have in future to meet the increased fees not only in colleges but also in secondary schools. That will swell the cost of higher education of poor students. Therefore, the increasing of fees in colleges and secondary schools is a step which I think should not have been taken, by Government under any circumstances.

Then, Sir, Government have been doing very little in the case of industries. When we see such a meagre provision of Rs. 1,02,000 for industries, we can realise how much Government is doing for the progress of industries in this Presidency. Simlarly, in the case of agriculture we find that there is no substantial increase, and the provision made shows that Government have no intention of doing anything in that direction. Then again as regards primary education it has been stated with a good deal of flourish, by the Honourable the Finance Member that there has been an increase of five lakhs. What is this amount in proportion to the importance of the subject? But you will remember, Sir, that several schemes of expansion submitted to Government for sanction have been simply pigeon-holed. Several bodies in the presidency have doubled the local fund cess and the people have been paying the additional tax for the last so many years. When it was levied people were told that they would be given education and there was this consolation for them. We were told by His Excellency the Governor that some schemes both on voluntary basis and on compulsory basis, have been sanctioned. Here again somehow or other Government have made an invidious distinction between voluntary schemes submitted to Government before the 1st of April 1927 and the voluntary schemes submitted to them after that date. They say that schemes submitted before the 1st of April 1927 on a voluntary basis will be considered and that schemes subsequent to that date must be compulsory schemes to deserve sympathetic consideration at their hands. Whatever may be the view of the Government, I think that having permitted local boards to tax the people on the promise that they would work out the Primary and

[Rao Bahadur S. N. Angadi]

Compulsory Education Act of 1923, without any execuse, it is not fair for them now to turn round and say that they have no funds. My Board has already submitted a scheme of expansion, which, if sanctioned, would enable us to start 125 schools. But unfortunately for us, the scheme has been forwarded to Government, some time after the 1st of April 1927. I am, therefore, very pessimistic about its being sanctioned. I regret very much to have to say that Government have been guilty of having failed to discharge one of their most paramount obligations. An assurance has been given by Government that such local boards as are able to launch out schemes within their own resources, would be entitled to grants when Government finances are improved. But unfortunately Government do not definitely state in their order, whether they would give grants from the date of introduction of schools or not. I want a definite reply in this connection from the Honourable the Education Minister. I have written to the Director of Public Instruction on this question, requesting him to give me correct interpretation of Govern ment's assurance, but I have not received any reply from him up to now I hope the Honourable Minister will give me that reply now. There has been no progress at all worth the name in the matter of primary education. We are told that the funds are very limited. Coming to commitments of Government, I would submit, Sir, that Government have been paying Rs. 42 lakhs from the general revenues for interest on the loans of the Development Department, and Sukkur Barrage. That amount is thus unnecessarily wasted. It would have been a great relief to the people of this presidency if this amount was spent for the education of the presidency. We must, therefore, say that Government have failed to manage the finances of this presidency properly. We are told by the Honourable Ministers that they have no funds for launching out their own schemes. I say, Sir, that when the Honourable Ministers find that their departments are neglected, it is their duty to fight more vigorously for funds than they appear to have done. We have seen that the Educational department of this presidency is much neglected. It is, therefore, the duty of the Honourable the Minister for Education to fight for the funds.

Same is the case with the question of irrigation. Government seem to have never considered this question of irrigation in the case of Karnatak, the land of my birth. They find large amounts to spend for this purpose in other parts of the presidency, but they do not find money to spend in Karnatak. The state of affairs is very dismal on my side in this respect. I do not know whether the Honourable Sir Cowasji Jehangir is here, but I may tell him that it is really a great pity that this state of things should continue. Government members do not come to Karnatak; otherwise we would have shown them the condition in Karnatak. They find time to go to Gujarat, Sind and other parts of the presidency, but they do not get an opportunity of coming to Karnatak. Government seem to be very indifferent to Karnatak.

As regards water supply also, the same story may be told. So far as the water supply is concerned, before now the local boards used to pay

[Rao Bahadur S. N. Angadi]

2/3rds of the expenditure. Government had to bear 1/3rd of the cost. But now, Government pay 2/3rds and local boards have to bear 1/3rd; when the share of the Government was only 1/3rd, they gave to my Board 8,000 rupees as water grant and when the proportion has been doubled we have got only 4,000 rupees!

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: May I know from my honourable friend specific instances when a demand was made and money was not given by Government?

Rao Bahadur S. N. ANGADI: Well, Sir, I am sorry I cannot quote a specific instance on this point just now. But I am speaking in reference to my own local board. I am the President of the Local Board of Belgaum, therefore, I am referring to that board alone.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: My honourable friend is not representing the case correctly. I may state that if a demand for a grant is made by the local boards, Government consider the case. But if there is no demand made, Government cannot throw money to the local boards. It is for the local boards to make demands, and if they do not receive the money, then they will be justified in criticising Government. The honourable member from Belgaum is the president of the local board there, and he ought to know whether a demand was made. He has not told us whether it is a fact that a demand was made and refused by Government. I, therefore, submit, Sir, that he is not justified in making a grievance on behalf of the Karnatak.

Mr. B. R. NANAL: Sir, I shall speak a word of explanation on this point.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. The honourable member from Belgaum (Rao Bahadur Angadi) to proceed.

Rao Bahadur S. N. ANGADI: Sir, I am very glad to know from the Honourable Minister that if a demand for grant is made, he will be prepared to consider it. But I do not think, local boards would be so insensible as not to ask for grants when they are going to be given. My board had forwarded an ambitious water scheme.

Sir, I would now speak a few words with regard to colleges. In Karnatak there are not many colleges. And Government should try to afford better educational facilities in this behalf. They should support private colleges and close Government colleges, wherever possible, thus saving a large amount of expenditure. Now a private body, called the Karnatak Lingayat Education Society intends to start a college at Belgaum. Government should encourage such private enterprise. Government are now obsessed by the principle of unitary system of universities, I may tell them that for a long time to come, it would not be possible to realise this ideal in India.

We know, Sir, that there are colleges at Sangli and elsewhere which cannot be affiliated to any university based on unitary principle. So, I hope any such argument will not have much weight with Government and when that question comes before Government, they will give serious thought to it and see their way to sanction the proposed college at Belgaum.

Mr. G. WILES: Sir, it has often been my task in the past to try to throw a more rosy light on the dark pictures that are painted for us during the budget discussion by the opposite side of the House. This year, if I may say so, the atmosphere of gloom seems heavier than usual, and it would appear, to borrow the picturesque language of one honourable member, that the demon of depression, which is said to be rampant throughout the province, has taken possession of this Chamber. In the short time at my disposal I cannot expect to deal in detail, as I should like, with the criticisms that have been made; but I will try to suggest a more cheerful way of looking at some of the figures and perhaps to suggest, where I think honourable members have drawn wrong conclusions, where they can find the evidence on the other side.

My honourable friend Mr. Lalji Naranji has asked the Finance Department for an explanation of some figures to be found on page 15 below one of the graphs. I am sorry Mr. Lalji Naranji is not here to receive the explanation, but I hope it will reach him in due course. These tabular statements which are given below the graph are explanatory of the graph itself. If my honourable friends will turn to page 10 of the Blue Book, Statement A, they will find that the totals of disbursements therein recorded correspond year by year with the totals of capital and revenue expenditure given in the graph. I have to announce a clerical error in the figure of capital receipts for the year 1927-28, where 9,62 is an error for 4,38. If the totals under capital receipts and capital disbursements are totalled, it will be seen that they now come to 81½ crores and 82·9 crores. The slight difference of a little over 1 lakh between these two totals is due to the fact that we have taken the nearest lakh for the purpose of the graphs; thousands have been omitted. Therefore, the totals do not exactly tally. Now, if honourable members will study the items which are contained under the head "Debts, Deposits and Advances" in the budget year after year—a summary of them appears on pages 10 and 11 of the Blue Book—they will find that these items contain many entries which do not necessarily affect our total capital debt. There is no necessary connection between the two. For example, takavi loans and other loans which are made to local bodies—municipalities and local boards—which are made from the Provincial Loan Account, appear on both sides of the account. They come in in the form of repayments and they go out in the same year or the next year in the form of fresh loans. It is obvious that they do not affect the outstanding debt. In the same way, the instalments of 29 lakhs, by which we are repaying the total outstanding debt of the Provincial Loan Account, to the Government of India, have also been met in the past by excess recoveries of advances in the Provincial Loan Account. That sum, again, is not an addition on the contrary, it is a direct reduction of our capital debt. These figures which are given below the graph also include in full the very heavy loans which we have made to local bodies in Bombay—the Port Trust, the municipality and the Improvement Trust. To arrive at the outstanding debt of the province, then, we cannot take the totals which are given below that graph. We must turn to Statement E, which is the statement of our debt charges. This statement has been constantly referred to in previous debates, and the Honourable the Finance Member has explained it at some length in his speech this year. But I confess that, somewhat to my consternation, one honourable member at least, who represents an advanced business community, and I should have thought would have known better, has seriously misunderstood some of the figures in this statement. I must therefore explain it once again. The total debt, against which the revenues of this province are security, amounts to 37·85 crores. Out of this sum nearly 9 crores is held, as the Honourable the Finance Member told you, at a very low rate of interest and is irredeemable. That means to say, the annual revenues of this province are not required to supply a sinking fund for the repayment of the 9 crores. Statement D shows that the completion of the works which we have undertaken, which are now in progress, may require as large a sum as 11 crores, additional expenditure. That means to say, within the next few years the total provincial liability may amount to as much as 48 crores. For 39 crores of this, we shall require to find from revenue annual repayments of principal. But for considerably more than half of this sum, the existing revenues of the province, will in no way be liable, as I shall proceed to explain.

My honourable friend Dr. Ambedkar is wrong in his assumption that we are as yet making no provision for the repayment of debt. This budget contains provision from current revenues of not less than 12½ lakhs for the repayment of principal; this is the full sinking fund required for the extinction of all the outstanding debt, excepting the Sukkur Barrage and that portion of the Development Department's debt which is owed to the Government of Inida. As the House has been told on previous occasions, the whole of the Sukkur Barrage expenditure will be met in due course from capital receipts, sales of land and additional revenue from sales of water.

We have no reason to fear that that portion of our debt will be in any way a burden on the existing provincial revenues. We have on the contrary, despite my honourable friend, the arch-pessimist, from Kaira, every right to hope that in the Sukkur Barrage we shall be handing on to posterity a magnificent possession.

Regarding Development, I have no time to say much. I will leave that to be dealt with later on at a subsequent discussion. I will only give this very brief explanation once again, that is, that this budget contains full provision for the amortisation, that is to say, contains full provision for interest and sinking fund for 3 crores of the Development debt. That provision, which was made in the budget last year for the first time, has already been recognised by all sides of this House as a very wise provision. For the rest of the Development debt, I must for the time refer honourable members to the forecast which is already in their hands. Provision for the repayment of the outstanding balance of the debt will be made as soon as it is possible to prepare a forecast of the land sales by which the expenditure can be recouped. May I remind those honourable members to whom the term " deficit " is as it were a term of abuse, who talk about a deficit as a confession of the incapacity of the department, that a department which works entirely on borrowed capital must from the nature of things show a deficit until its works are completed. The procedure by which the Development Department borrows money (a procedure approved by the Secretary of State and by this House) will make it possible later on for the expenditure to be recouped from capital receipts from sales of land. The natural corollary then is that so long as payments of interest remain to be recouped in future from capital receipts, so long there must be a deficit. That is axiomatic.

The honourable member, who represents the University, modestly referred to himself as an amateur, but I am not sure that some of the sweeping assertions which he made about this budget are in consonance with his pleasing assumption of modesty. He declares that if Government were a shareholders' company and its affairs were brought before the High Court, the High Court would have no hesitation in declaring it to be a bankrupt concern, or words to that effect. I venture to think that if the honourable member studies his briefs in the High Court as carelessly as he obviously has studied this budget, he would not dare to appear before the High Court. While one must have every sympathy with honourable members who find it difficult to understand at once a budget of this size and complexity, surely those who have struggled to prepare the details which are put before them have every right to expect that honourable members will at least read them. In the comparative statements which we have put in the beginning of the Blue Book and to which the honourable member for the University referred, we have for the purposes of comparison excluded what I might call the " accidents " of expenditure and revenue, but I have in every case given below the statements a detailed note showing what factors must be taken into consideration in comparing those figures with other figures which may be found in another part of the Blue Book. The honourable member has further asserted with some force that in the course of the last few years we have swallowed up some 4 crores in meeting what he calls " ordinary deficits of the year." I say that is a gross misstatement if I heard it aright as a closer study of the facts and figures given in the Blue Book must have convinced him. Out of the 664 lakhs to which he referred and which appears in the Statement B of my note on page 29, some 3½ crores have been used in making recoverable loans (in this I include the 1¼ crore for Sukkur Barrage). In one year only, viz., 1926-27, has the balance been used to make up a revenue deficit. In that year, we had a deficit, that is, an excess of expenditure over annual revenue, of 92 lakhs. In so far as the Famine Fund has been utilised for works protective against famine, I can only say that that is the purpose for which the Famine Fund has been saved up. In estimating the amount of the annual assignment of 63 lakhs to the Famine Fund, the average expenditure on protective irrigation works was included, so that in spite of what my honourable friend from Kaira says, we had every justification for meeting the expenditure on Visapur tank from the Famine Fund.

Now let me come back to my honourable friend Dr. Ambedkar who has thrown at us a long string of figures which in his opinion make this budget "deplorable." I shall put forward for his consideration certain factors which in my opinion entirely vitiate his conclusions. He would have us believe that Bombay is more backward than any province in India in its expenditure on what are called "nation-building departments." In the first place, I would invite his attention and the attention of the House to the fact that by the provincial settlements Bombay received probably less than most provinces in India as additional revenue. It is no part of my intention to defend the Meston Settlement, but one reason for the distribution of revenues which were made by that settlement was that Bombay was far more advanced than any other province in its care for those same nation-building or beneficent activities. I commend to the honourable members' attention the two speeches of the late Finance Member, Sir Henry Lawrence, which will be found at pages 70 and 385 of the proceedings of the year 1926 (Volume XIV). I have no time now to quote those speeches at length but I will merely make a bald statement; the facts can be varified by the honourable members themselves. The honourable member will find that in the matter of education, particularly primary education, Bombay is doing more for the people of India than any other province in India, and he will find that expenditure on medical relief is already twice as much—in some cases four times as much—as that of the other major provinces, per million of the population. In Public Health and Agriculture, in proportion to the population, Bombay stands an easy first. And in Communications, which are of the utmost importance to the rural population, our provincial expenditure per million of population has been far greater than that of any other province in India except the Punjab. As the late Honourable Finance Member pointed out, the assumption made by some thinkers that the term "nation-building departments" is synonymous with "transferred departments" is inaccurate. There is surely no justification for the belief that because a department is at present administered by an official called a Member of Council and not by a Minister, it is not equally beneficent or nation-building. Let me take only one example, namely, the case of irrigation. Can the work of any department be described more truly as nation-building or beneficent than the work of a department whose whole service is devoted to bringing prosperity to the agriculturist? Now, irrigation is relatively of greater importance to the province of Bombay than to any province in India. That is why it takes a larger share of the revenue than in the case of any other province, except possibly the Punjab. I suggest that any comparative statistics which fail to take this into consideration are vitiated by that one fact alone.

But I wish to put before the House another factor of even greater importance, which is likely to be overlooked. Let it be remembered that the allocation of the departments into transferred and reserved puts on the reserved side full responsibility for all the charges for loans, whether they have been borrowed for a reserved or a transferred department; it puts on it the obligation of meeting all pensions, whether those pensions are earned in the transferred departments or the reserved departments, and it puts on it the repayment of the annual contribution to the Government of India. Those are facts which are commonly lost sight of, but they are very important in the consideration of this question.

The honourable member Mr. Deshpande asked for some information on one small point, on which I would like to enlighten him before I sit down. He asked some explanation about the pensionary charges which are being met for the first time under an irrigation head. I can assure him that this change is merely one of the changes in the method of accounting. It does not involve any additional expenditure. The procedure is this: Superannuation charges, that is to say, all charges for pension are met from General Revenues and are debited to 45, Superannuation. That share of the charges which belongs to any commercial or semi-commercial departments, for which we maintain commercial or semi-commercial accounts is, for the purpose of estimating the profit and loss of those departments, distributed over the administrative accounts. In this particular instance, since the original rate of distribution of 9 per cent. was found to be insufficient to meet the charges that must be debited to that department, the percentage has been raised from 9 to 14.

In conclusion, one word only on the general situation. In my opinion, the situation has been most correctly summed up by His Excellency the Governor in his opening speech. That is to say, while we have managed to balance the budget, we look forward, not without some uneasiness, to the future, because we can foresee no great increase in our revenue except by an amendment of the provincial settlement. But there is absolutely no justification for such wild and extravagant language as has been used this evening by the honourable member Mr. Marzban. We have balanced the budget. We have not done it by any jugglery, but by methods which every one of you can see. The honourable member Mr. Marzban himself has, by some jugglery of his own, tried to make out a deficit of a crore and a half. I say, no honourable member has the right to say "If you had not done so and so you would have had a deficit." We have no deficit. We have adopted certain methods, of which the pruning knife is one of the most important, which will balance the budget, provided the Government of India do not insist on the payment of the provincial contribution. Those are the facts.

Mr. RAJMAL LAKHICHAND (East Khandesh District): (Addressed the House in Hindi): Mr. President, the chief point which I should like to place before the House, in making a few observations on the budget, is that the money which is being spent on the various departments does not give much benefit to the country. Take, for instance, education. The University, the colleges and high schools are turning out merely lawyers, doctors and persons fit for service. We find that no trained ironsmith, carpenter, goldsmith or leather worker is turned out. Persons belonging to these artisan classes rightly ask what use it is sending their children to school, if the result is that they neglect their hereditary professions and want to become doctors or lawyers, or seek service in the clerical line. The great defect of the present educational system is that these arts and crafts are entirely neglected, and the educated people find it hard to make a living. The greatest need of the country is the creation of good agriculturists.

The next point that I would like to touch is that the Bhils and the depressed classes are neglected. They are troubled by the public and by the police; they have no work to do and they simply swell the population of the jails. I therefore say that special treatment should be accorded to the depressed classes. I am glad that in the present budget some provision is made for their education, but that is not enough.

Coming to the Excise Department, it will be seen that this is only a revenue producing department, although Government are attempting to curtail the consumption of liquor. In my opinion, the best way of bringing about prohibition is to abolish all liquor shops, to destroy all toddy and mhowra trees. In this way, there will be no means for illicit distillation, and there will be no need to maintain any excise establishment.

Speaking about the Forest Department, I should like to say that the restrictions on grazing at present imposed by the department are severe. These restrictions should be relaxed.

In conclusion, I would like to say that there is poverty and unhappiness in the land. Neither the merchant nor the agriculturist is happy. Huge expenditure is being incurred, but no proportionate benefits accrue to the people. Therefore, money should be spent in such a way that the country will derive some benefit from it.

Mr. V. A. SURVE (Ratnagiri District): (Addressed the House in Marathi): Sir, in considering the budget that is placed before us, we have also to take into consideration the speech of His Excellency the Governor and also the speech of the Honourable the Finance Member when he introduced the budget. The Honourable the Finance Member has taken upon his shoulders the full responsibility for presenting a balanced budget, and he deserves credit for it. The present system of budgetting started with the Reforms in 1921, and the budget for next year is presented to us at a time when the question of further reforms is being considered. In carrying out the Reforms of 1921, I am sorry to say that the Government of Bombay have not put into effect any reforms that are really necessary. The result is that there is unhappiness in the country.

We are told that we have been given full control over the purse under the reforms under which we are now working. But the fact is that the Government frame their own budget in whatever way they like and ask us to sanction demands as stated by them. Where is the control which we are supposed to have? They have provided the sum for meeting the cost in the Harvey-Nariman case. All the nation building departments have been starved and the famine insurance fund has been depleted and the money devoted to works like Sukkur Barrage. It is well known that the districts like Poona, Satara, Sholapur and Ratnagiri and Nagar are liable to frequent famines and still we have not seen so far any attempt made at construction of protective irrigation works from the famine insurance fund. This year Ratnagiri has suffered very largely and the crops have failed. Still nothing has been done. Since 1925 up till to-day nothing has been done and no improvement has been effected in the villages which is proverbially backward in every respect. Then we have got on the statute book the Local Board Act and the Primary Education Act. Though they are there Government have not put them into force. It is the Government that is responsible for its non-working and not the Ministers who are helpless. No effort has been made by Government in opening primary schools and giving facilities for education to the people in villages for the last 8 years.

Honourable members must have read in the newspapers what Mr. Mehta, President of the Karachi Municipality, has written lately, namely, that the Primary Education Act is only a game of the Transferred Department. The confusion that is created in respect of the election of the Poona Municipality is only the result of the defect of the drafting of the Act. I have been criticising this game in my budget speeches since 1925. Let me remind Government that the Bombay Presidency is not now so ignorant as not to understand this game.

There appears to be no willingness on the part of Government to remedy the grievances of the people in respect of land assessment. They are increasing the assessment everywhere. In Ratnagiri District alone the land assessment has been increased up to 81,000 rupees. This increased assessment comes only from the talukas of Deogad, Rajapur and Mandangad Peta.

Now a commission has been appointed to enquire into the working of the present reforms. What reply are you going to give to them ? You will not be able to point out any tangible benefit as a result of the reforms except that you have granted a few scholarships. If Government remedies all these evils in time they may be able to say before the commission that they have done something before the reforms.

Really it will be beneficial to Government if they boycott this Commission because since they have got nothing to show to the Commission it is better that they should boycott it.

Mr. B. R. NANAL (Ratnagiri District) : I would like, Sir, with your permission to support certain observations which have been made by my honourable colleague from Ratnagiri. In making observations with regard to the budget under discussion I may say that I do not propose to go into any details either of its income side or of its expenditure side. I wish, however, at once to state that I am entirely dissatisfied with the budget that is presented to us. I doubt whether any honourable member on this side of the House has found more satisfaction with the budget than I have done. I do not, however, wish to be misunderstood in the observation that I have made. My observation does not imply any reflection of any kind whatever on the Honourable the Finance Member who is nominally the author of it. I acknowledge with the greatest pleasure that the Honourable the Finance Member has done the best that he could in the circumstances in which he found himself placed. I recognise that he is one of the best-intentioned men who could be placed at the head of the Finance Department, and I also recognise further that he is an Indian, Indian at heart, and has the real interests of his country at heart. If he could not present to this House a more satisfactory budget than he has done, I submit the fault is not his, but the fault is that of the vicious system of which he is a part and within the limitations of which he has got to work. The Finance Member, we all know, is responsible for the framing of the budget, but he is not the dictator of Government; there are several colleagues of his who have plans, projects and budgets of their own, and taking into account all those, all that the Finance Member can do is to try to introduce a certain kind of harmony in those various budgets. That, we know, is the sole function which the Honourable the Finance Member can discharge, and, therefore, if the budget, for which nominally he is responsible to the House, is looked upon as entirely unsatisfactory, I say the fault is not his. He is working under the law—I mean the Government of India Act. He has also to work within the four corners of the various rules which have been framed under that Act. The law and these rules place certain limitations which the best of Finance Ministers cannot exceed. And that is really responsible for the unsatisfactory nature of this budget. The only remedy to put an end to this state of things is, so far as I can see, to mend the law and the rules which have placed these limitations upon our Finance Ministers.

With regard to the budget itself, several honourable members have described it as practically a bankruptcy budget. I think they are perfectly right in giving that name to the budget before the House. I have stated that I do not propose to enter into any details. It is necessary, however, that I should mention one or two points as regards the budget in order to make clear why I am dissatisfied with the budget as it stands. Sir, you are aware that the Finance Department has estimated the land revenue for the next year at the high figure of Rs. 5 crores and 38 lakhs. It is an increase of several lakhs over the revenue realised in the current year. It may appear to some, Sir, that the department has to be congratulated for this. But I may submit, Sir, that it is not so. We must bear in mind that such a large amount of revenue will come from land in the presidency. It is not a subject for congratulations. This means that the land in the presidency is taxed very heavily. We must note that the greater the realisation from the land revenue, the greater the hardships for the agriculturists. I stated two years back in this House that land revenue ought not to be looked upon as an ever expanding source of revenue. There must be some limit to the levy of tax on land. We all know that Revision Settlements have been introduced in various parts of the presidency. They have been introduced in my district, in three talukas and one peta. They have also been introduced in the several other talukas in the Satara District; it has been introduced in the taluka of Alibag and so on. Because there is this introduction of the Revision Settlement, there has been civil resistance in some talukas. In some other talukas, there is not such civil resistance. But that does not mean that the people in those talukas can pay the additional taxation without any hardships. That does not mean that the people there are glad to pay the enhanced taxation. In fact, to meet this additional taxation they will have to curtail the amount spent for their livelihood. That is the reason, Sir, why I do not look upon the increase in land revenue estimated in the next year's budget as a satisfactory step.

Another matter that I wish to dilate upon is that the present budget has not made any provision for carrying out the recommendations made by the Visweshwaraya Committee. I may state that the provision made for the department for industries is too inadequate. With such a meagre provision and inadequate, what is it that Government can hope to achieve for the industrial development of this presidency? How are we going to spread technical schools and technological institutions in a presidency like ours? Such schools ought to be spread over the presidency on a large scale. Government do not appear to have made even a beginning in this direction.

I would now refer to the complaints made by my honourable friend, the member from Belgaum. He complained that the local bodies are not treated as fairly as they have a right to expect to be treated. I support the honourable member from Belgaum in his complaint. I am connected with the local board in my district; I am the president of that local board. As such I claim to speak with some experience in this respect. I have often heard the Honourable the Minister in charge of Local Self-Government declare on the floor of this House that he has made himself responsible for various enactments both relating to the local boards and the municipalities and has tried his best to democratise the constitution of these local bodies and to widen the sphere of their liberties. I am, Sir, connected with the local board of my district for nearly two years past and my experience is that the freedom given to the local boards and the municipalities, instead of being widened, is as a matter of fact being narrowed. I find efforts being made to put more and more restrictions on the liberty of those bodies. As an illustration, I may mention only one thing. It is about the question of primary education which is entrusted to local bodies.....

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Sir, may I address a few words on a point of information?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Well, if the honourable member speaking yields, I have no objection.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: I may tell the honourable member that primary education is not governed by the Local

[Sir Ghulam Hussain]

Boards Act but it is governed by a separate Act altogether.

Mr. B. R. NANAL: I am aware of the fact which the Honourable Minister refers to. I am speaking on the budget as a whole and I am giving my views in general. To return to my subject, Sir, local boards and local authorities such as municipalities are expected to frame their schemes with regard to primary education and submit them for the approval of Government. Formerly it was the practice to address all correspondence on this and cognate subjects through the educational authorities, viz., the Educational Inspector of the Division and the Director of Public Instruction to the Honourable the Minister in charge of the Educational Department, but now we find that these two authorities apparently are not sufficient and therefore we have to send correspondence on such subjects through the Collector, the Educational Inspector, the Commissioner and the Director of Public Instruction before it could come to and be considered by Government. I really fail to see, Sir, why so many restrictions are necessary in this simple matter. Are not educational authorities competent enough to subject such schemes to the kind of scrutiny that may be necessary in order to enable Government to dispose of them? The fact is, Sir, that the sphere of liberty of local boards and municipalities has not at all been widened.

Now again turning to the budget I may say that it is an unsatisfactory budget. I have at the same time stated that the Honourable the Finance Member could not be expected to do better than he has done. I may be asked, Sir, how then are we to get a satisfactory budget and when? I will try to answer that question. We shall get a satisfactory budget only when we succeed in wiping out the distinction between the voted and non-voted items and when we remove the distinction between the transferred and non-transferred subjects. Then only, Sir, can we expect to get a satisfactory budget. The honourable members of this House should have no mistaken notion on this point. I would request them, therefore, to turn all their attention and energies for achieving this end. If they succeed, then they will get a satisfactory budget. Till then it is no use criticising budgets presented by the Honourable the Finance Member.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. The honourable House is, perhaps, aware that the important Muhammadan month of Ramzan sets in from to-morrow and as usual the House will assemble during the month of Ramzan from 1 to 6. I shall, therefore, adjourn the House till 1 o'clock to-morrow, Thursday, the 23rd February 1928.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order.

Questions.

URDU SCHOOL BUILDING, JALGAON

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD (Central Division): Will the Honourable the Minister for Education be pleased to state—

(a) whether he has received a petition from the Muhammadans of Jalgaon with regard to the continued delay of the Jalgaon municipality in erecting buildings for its Urdu schools;

(b) whether any amount was earmarked for this purpose or any scheme prepared in connection with it by that municipality;

(c) whether he intends to take any steps in the matter?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: (a) Yes.
(b) Yes.
(c) It is not for me but for the municipality to take action in the matter and I understand that the municipality is already taking steps for the construction of a building for its Urdu schools for boys but that certain preliminaries required by the Grant-in-Aid Code have to be complied with before the actual construction begins. As soon as these preliminaries are completed the municipality proposes to start building operations after obtaining the promise of a building grant from Government.

EXECUTIVE COUNCILLORS AND MINISTERS IN THE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD (Central Division): Will the Honourable the Leader of the House be pleased to state—

(a) whether the Honourable the Ministers and the Members of the Executive Council enjoy the same rights and privileges and the same official status in the Legislative Council;

(b) whether the order of precedence among them generally is governed by seniority;

(c) if so, how it is that the Members of the Cabinet in charge of the transferred Departments are perpetually seated below the members of the Executive Council;

(d) how it is that the Senior Minister is never appointed the Leader of the House;

(e) what legal or technical objection is there to such an appointment being made?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: (a) Speaking generally this is the case, subject of course to the provisions of the Government of India Act and the relevant rules and to the differences arising therefrom in their constitutional position and responsibility to the Legislative Council.

(b) Yes.

(c), (d) and (e) Under section 48 of the Government of India Act, the Governor appoints a member of his Executive Council to be Vice-President thereof. As such, he takes precedence of all Honourable Members and Ministers and has been the leader of the House. Honourable Members and Ministers sit together as a matter of convenience for purposes of consultation in the course of the Council debates.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI : With regard to this reference in (a) to " relevant rules," may I know if these rules are published ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Yes ; all the rules made under the Government of India Act.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : With regard to (e), may I request the honourable member to make it clear whether there is any legal or technical objection to the Senior Minister being appointed, apart from the fact that the Vice-President of the Executive Council is appointed, the Leader of the House ? I mean whether there is any legal or technical objection or objections to his being appointed, apart from other considerations ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : This is purely a matter for His Excellency to decide.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Is it in His Excellency's hands to appoint the Leader of the House ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Yes.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE (Bombay City, North) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(b) the number of students in each ;

(c) the expenditure of each per year ;

(d) the amount of Government grant, if any ?

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE : May I know from where this information has been collected, because there are a number of boarding houses which have been left out from the list, as well as the number given here of the boarders from certain boarding houses seems to be incorrect ? I know them perfectly well, because I am a member on one or two committees.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : This information has been collected by the department through their educational inspectors who have charge of the divisions.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE : May I request the Honourable Minister to enquire about the Maratha Boarding House, Nasik, whether the number of boarders and expenditure given is correct ? I am referring to No. 3. Also, two boarding houses in Poona, one called the Nirashrit Maratha Boarding House and the other the Shri Chhatrapati Boarding House. do not appear in the list.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: If the honourable member would demi-officially write to me pointing out the facts about these boarding houses, I will have the enquiries made.

KALYAN MUNICIPALITY: ARREARS OF RATES

Mr. N. B. CHANDRACHUD (Poona City): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware that there is a great deal of arrears of municipal taxation in Kalyan;

(b) whether they are aware that warrants issued for the recovery of the arrears were withheld from being executed for several months;

(c) the reasons why the warrants were withheld and on whose responsibility?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: (a) The arrears of municipal taxes at the end of October 1927 amounted Rs. 6,585 equivalent to about 13 per cent. of the Municipal income but compared to the arrears of the previous four years, they cannot be regarded as heavy.

(b) It is reported that warrants were duly executed but in exceptional cases time for payment was granted.

(c) Does not arise as the bulk of the warrants were not withheld.

PRIMARY SCHOOL TEACHERS: EMPLOYMENT IN FLOOD RELIEF

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI (Kaira District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they have issued any orders for the employment of primary school teachers on flood relief operations in this Presidency;

(b) how many teachers are or were so employed in each of the flood stricken parts of Gujarat?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: (a) No specific orders for the employment of primary teachers on flood relief operations have been issued. Government however issued orders in August 1927 permitting their officers to take part in the collection of subscriptions for the relief of distress caused by the floods in Gujarat and Sind in every district where funds for this purpose had been or were being opened.

(b) No primary school teachers were employed in Flood Relief operations in the Broach and Surat Districts.

One hundred and twenty teachers in the Ahmedabad and 42 teachers in the Kaira Districts were allowed to assist the Flood Relief Committees in their humanitarian work on the express understanding that the work was purely voluntary and was to be done out of school hours so that their legitimate duties might not suffer by the extra work.

As regards Panch Mahals, the Honourable Member for Kaira is referred to the Chairman of the School Board of the District Local Board, Panch Mahals, who appears unwilling to supply the information to any one unconnected with the District.

SUKKUR BARRAGE OFFICERS

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI (Kaira District): Will Government be pleased to state giving the names and length of service of the officers—

(a) how many officers temporary and permanent who are residents of the Presidency proper are engaged on the Sukkur Barrage Project;

(b) how many of them were from the Bombay Development Department;

(c) how many of them were from the other parts of the Presidency;

(d) how many of them possess University qualifications?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: (a) 14 permanent and 5 temporary officers as per list "A" attached.

(b) One—Mr. J. R. Colabawalla.

(c) This part of the question is not clear. The word "parts" used therein does not fit in with the context. It is presumed from (b) supra that information is required regarding officers from other "Departments" of the Presidency employed on the Barrage. If so, the reply is that there are no such officers.

(d) Twelve permanent and 2 temporary officers possess University qualifications. These officers are indicated by asterisks against their names in list "A" referred to above.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: Oh; you say in (a) "How many officers temporary and permanent who are residents of the presidency proper are engaged on the Sukkur Barrage Project?" Then, you say "other parts of the presidency." The other parts of the presidency are included in the presidency proper.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : May I know why persons having no university qualifications have been given these higher posts ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Perhaps their experience entitles them to positions of trust.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : What about the last mentioned, Mr. Aishiram Mathrani, who comes from Sind, and whose qualifications have been shown as " D. J. Sind College Engineering Course, " and who has only 8 years ' experience behind him ? Is 8 years as a sub-overseer enough to put him in the grade of superior service as assistant engineer or as executive engineer ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : He must have proved his worth.

LOCAL CESS COLLECTION : DUMALA VILLAGES : REMUNERATION OF VILLAGE OFFICERS

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Surat District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether remuneration for the collection of local cess is paid to the village officers in Dumala villages as before ; and

(b) whether the collection charges for such villages are recovered from the Local Boards ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Yes, except in the case of talatis, in whose case the remuneration is credited to Government.

(b) No.

BUDGET : ALLOCATION OF REVENUES

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the years when their budget was framed according to the procedure prescribed by rule 31 of the Devolution Rules ;

(b) the years when it was prepared according to the procedure prescribed by rule 32 of the rules ;

(c) the years when the budget was prepared according to the procedure prescribed by rule 35 of the rules ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL V. MEHTA : The budget has always been framed in agreement between the two sides of Government according to Devolution Rule 31.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : May I know whether the budget for 1928-29 is prepared on the basis of the aggregate grants respectively provided for the reserved and transferred subjects for 1928-29 or is there any new agreement for 1928-29 ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : The honourable member may take it that there is a new agreement every year.

KALYAN MUNICIPALITY

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they have seen the allegations made against the municipality of Kalyan in the Mahratta (weekly) of Poona, dated the 4th December 1927 ;

(b) whether they propose to take any action in the matter ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : (a) Yes.

(b) Government are enquiring into the matter.

ELPHINSTONE HIGH SCHOOL TEACHER, MR. MULLA

Sarder G. N. Mujumdar on behalf of Mr. N. R. GUNJAL (Poona District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware that Mr. M. H. Mulla, a teacher in the Elphinstone High School, gives public speeches about the nobility of Muhammadans and censures the Hindu "Puranas" and the Shudhi-Sanghatan movement;

(b) the number of years he has been in service;

(c) his former occupation, the qualifications for which he was first appointed to Government service;

(d) whether it is a fact that he was transferred from Dharwar to Bombay for the reasons of the nature referred to in (a)?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: (a) to (d) Mr. Mulla died some time back at Nasik where he had been transferred. Government do not therefore consider that any useful purpose would be served by furnishing the information asked for in the question.

TALATIS FROM WATANDAR FAMILIES

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District): Will the Honourable the Revenue Member be pleased to state the number of talatis in the districts of East and West Khandesh, Nasik, Ahmednagar, Sholapur and Poona and the number of these recruited from the watandar families?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU:

Name of District	Number of talatis in the District	Number of talatis recruited from watandar families
East Khandesh	351	212
West Khandesh	282	100
Nasik	290	193
Ahmednagar	424	329
Sholapur	59	47
Poona	324	286

CATTLE POUND FEE, PATAN TALUKA

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the total amount of cattle pound fees realised in 1926 on account of cattle straying in forest areas in the Patan Taluka of the Satara District;

(b) whether it is a fact that the rate of cattle pound fee for cattle trespass on forest areas is double the ordinary fee;

(c) whether it is a fact that the rate of such fee collected from the forest areas in Bahule, Urul, Khadhane and Kumbhargaon in Patan Taluka of the Satara District is four times the ordinary rate and double the forest pound rate levied in respect of other forest lands?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: (a) The amount realised in the year 1926-27 was Rs. 237.

(b) No. The rate of pound fees for cattle trespass in forest areas is the same as that charged for cattle trespass in malki lands.

(c) The rate of pound fees levied for cattle trespass in the forest areas in Bahule and Kumbhargaon is double the ordinary rate and not four times. The ordinary rate is levied in Urul and Khadhane.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : The answers to (b) and (c) are rather inconsistent. In (b) the answer states that the rate is the same but in answer to (c) the rate in Bahule and Kumbhargaon is given as double the ordinary rate.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I presume that the rate in Bahule and Kumbhargaon has been imposed as a penalty because the latter of those villages habitually trespassed in forest land.

VILLAGE SERVANTS

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they intend to appoint some petty village officers instead of the present system of having too many village servants like " chougula " and " taral " in villages on small pay ;

(b) if so, to lay on the Council table the proposals in this matter, if any ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) and (b) No such proposals are at present under the consideration of Government.

LOCAL FUND CESS COLLECTION

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the remuneration of village officers for the collection of local fund cess in unalienated villages is paid out of the local fund cess collected in the village, or from the general revenue of the village ;

(b) whether under the Local Boards Act of 1923, the expenses for remuneration of village officers for the collection of local fund cess are recovered from the Local Boards in (1) alienated villages and (2) in unalienated villages ;

(c) whether the practice of recovering the remuneration to be paid to the village officers for the collection of the local fund cess in alienated villages from the holders of the villages is still continued ;

(d) if the answer to (c) be in the affirmative, do the Government intend to discontinue the practice ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) It is paid out of the local fund cess.

(b) (1) No.
(2) Yes.
(c) Yes.
(d) No.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : The answers given in reply to (a) and (b) (2) do not seem to agree. May I have an explanation ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : The recovery is effected by a deduction.

LLOYD BARRAGE, WESTERN CIRCLE : STAFF

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO (Larkana District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that in the office of the Superintending Engineer, Western Circle (Mr. Satarawala), out of eight clerical appointments seven are held by Hindus and one by a Muhammadan only ;

(b) whether it is a fact that two clerical appointments, one of senior grade and the other one junior one, fell vacant and were given to Hindus without advertising in the papers and calling for applications of Muhammadans ;

(c) whether it is a fact that out of twelve upper subordinates in the Western Circle eleven are Hindus and out of seven draftsmen there is not a single Mussalman ;

(d) what Government proposes to do in the matter ;

(e) why the policy laid down in Government Resolution with regard to appointment of Mussalmans is not being given effect to in the Western Circle of the Lloyd Barrage particularly ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : (a) No. In the first place Mr. D. R. Satarawala, Superintending Engineer, is in charge of the North-Western Circle and not the Western Circle as stated by the Honourable Member. Further there are seven clerical appointments in his office, of which five were till recently held by Hindus and two by Mahomedans. Very recently, however, one of the two Mahomedan clerks was promoted to a higher grade and transferred to a Divisional office and one Hindu clerk was taken on reduced pay in exchange.

(b) Yes. It is not usual to advertise such vacancies, as trained hands with Public Works Department experience cannot be procured from the open market. Appointments to the grades of Rs. 75—5—100 and above are therefore generally filled by pomoting selected clerks already in the lower grades in the Circle. The two Hindus who were so selected were the most senior clerks in the lower grades and were fully deserving of the promotion. In a subsequent vacancy a Mahomedan was appointed in the North-Western Circle.

(c) Upper Subordinates—Yes. Out of twelve Upper Subordinates, eleven are Hindus.

Draftsmen—There are three draftsmen only in the whole Circle and not seven, of whom one is a Christian and two are Sikhs. One post of a Head Draftsman and another of a Divisional Draftsman have been kept vacant for want of suitable candidates to fill them. The policy of giving preference to Mahomedans does not, however, extend to such special and technical appointments.

(d) The interests of Mahomedans are being given due consideration in the North-Western Circle and the question of any further action does not arise.

(e) The policy of Government regarding giving preference to Mahomedans is being followed to the full in the North-Western Circle, as out of twenty-five clerical appointments made by the Superintending Engineer twelve have been conferred on Mahomedans.

SCHOOLS IN KARACHI : CLASSIFICATION OF STUDENTS

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO (Larkana District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (i) (a) and (b) It is not clear to what particular school reference is made. However, all the municipal Urdu schools are located in rented buildings and none of them is in the neighbourhood of women of disrepute.

(c) and (d) Yes.

(ii) It is not for Government but for the municipality to take the necessary action in the matter and Government understand that the municipality is already taking steps for the construction of a building for its Urdu schools for boys but that certain preliminaries required by the Grant-in-aid Code have to be complied with before the actual construction begins. As soon as these preliminaries are completed the municipality proposes to start the building operations after obtaining a promise of a building grant from Government.

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : (a) Nothing.

(b) 12.

(c) 6 to Nadhelav, 4 to Chandwada and 2 to Nelsur.

(d) The three batches came on different days. Each worked for about two hours on one day only.

(e) No payment was made. It has been a long-standing practice for the Patels of these villages to arrange for the cutting of the grass in the compound after the monsoon every year, in return for some entertainment at the Holi festival. This arrangement pleases everybody and none of the labourers has any complaint to make

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Who gives the entertainment ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : I understand that it is the police who give the entertainments privately.

LIQUOR SHOPS : LOCATION POLICY

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN on behalf of Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District) : Will Government be pleased to state what action they intend to take in connection with the location of liquor shops with a view to discourage drinking ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : The Honourable Member is referred to the orders in paragraph 14 of Government Resolution No. 982/24, dated 12th February 1925, which has already been published. It is not proposed to issue any further orders.

DOHAD COURT AUCTION : DISMISSAL OF COURT CLERK AND BAILIFF

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN on behalf of Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that the District Judge of Broach and Panch Mahals dismissed two old servants, the Clerk of the Court and Bailiff of the Dohad Court in March 1926 and if so the reason for having done so ;

(b) whether it is a fact that both these dismissed servants prayed to the Honourable High Court for reinstatement or retirement on pension in view of their long services ;

(c) whether there is anything on the evidence of the record of the Darkhast Lilav Yadi to show that they bid at the Court's auction ;

(d) (i) whether it is a fact that merely an annonymous application was treated as a basis for the inquiry into the matter, (ii) that there is no living person affected or suffering loss in the matter and (iii) that there was no formal complaint from any party in the Darkhast ;

(e) what was the procedure adopted in the inquiry against the dismissed servants and whether it is a fact that this procedure was not in accordance with Standing Government Resolutions on the subject of dismissal ;

(f) whether it is a fact that the auction though styled bogus was not cancelled but confirmed ;

(g) whether it is a fact that the articles auctioned were not resold though the dismissed servants offered to have them resold in order to refute any allegation of mala fides on their part ;

(h) whether it is a fact that the dismissed Clerk of the Court happened to purchase the articles from another man who was declared the purchaser at the auction ;

(i) whether it is a fact that the dismissed Clerk of the Court has approached Government for mercy and justice on the grounds that he has been dismissed on very light grounds ;

(j) whether it is a fact that not even a single witness has come forward to say that the dismissed persons wanted to purchase the articles for themselves ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : The Honourable Member is referred to the answer given to the similar question asked by the Honourable Member for the Ahmedabad Millowners' Association on the 14th March 1927. No useful purpose will be served by going into any further details regarding a case which has already been finally settled.

POLICE PATELS, PANCH MAHALS : POWERS OF FINE AND CONFINEMENT

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN on behalf of Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District) : Will Government be pleased to state in the following tabular form the names of those Police Patels in Panch Mahals who have powers of fine and confinement according to Village Police Act ?

Name of the Police Patel	His jurisdiction mentioning taluka	Kind of powers	Date of delegation

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : Every Police Patel possesses the power of fining or confining offenders under Section 14 of the Village Police Act ?

A list of all the Police Patels in the Panch Mahals District would probably be of little use to the honourable member and is, therefore, not given.

UNDER-TRIAL PRISONERS : FORCED LABOUR

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN on behalf of Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District) : Will Government be pleased to state whether they are aware that persons under trial in Criminal Courts at Godhra, Dohad, Kalol, Halol and Jhalod mostly Kolis, Bhils, Dharalas, Nayakdas and Patelias and such other illiterate people having business in the Mamlatdar or Mahalkari's courts are usually impressed to pull punkhas in the courts as a rule ?

NUISANCE BY MUHAMMADAN FAKIRS

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN on behalf of Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District) : Will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that Muhammadan Fakirs are often a great nuisance and an obstruction to Hindu merchants and that when they refuse to pay the Fakirs abuse them and cut their limbs and throw blood on Hindu merchants ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : Complaints are made against holy men not only by persons of different religions but sometimes even by those professing the same faith as themselves. If the honourable member will define more closely the places where the abuses to which he refers have occurred, and give the names of the injured parties, and if possible also of the offenders, Government will consider whether any action can be taken.

HONORARY MAGISTRATES : APPOINTMENTS

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN on behalf of Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether their attention has been drawn to the matter published under the heading " Current Topics " on page 6 of the Times of India of 20th September 1927 regarding the appointment of Honorary Magistrates ;

(b) if so, whether they think of making any change in the policy followed by them in appointing Honorary Magistrates ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : (a) Government saw the paragraph in the Times of India to which the Honourable Member refers at the time of its publication, but did not consider that it required any special notice.

(b) As the Honourable Member is probably aware the question of the best use of the unpaid Magistracy has been under consideration for some time.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: How long will it be under consideration?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: I think a question of that character can be considered and re-considered frequently.

LOCAL FUND CESS, AHMEDABAD AND PANCH MAHALS

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN on behalf of Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) according to what calculation the talukdars of Ahmedabad and Panch Mahals districts collect local fund cess from their people;

(b) how many annas per one rupee of the assessment has been collected as local fund cess from every khatedar during the last five years giving the figures of each year separately;

(c) what sum was collected by each talukdar of the Ahmedabad and Panch Mahals districts every year as local fund cess for the last seven years and what sum was given to Government every year?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU:

(a) Ahmedabad District

Talukdars recover Local Fund Cess from their tenants at the rate of one anna in the rupee of assessment in villages where the vighoti system prevails except in the village of Navda of the Dhandhuka Taluka where they recover the cess at the rate of one anna in the rupee of the vighoti or rent. No Local Fund Cess is levied in villages where the bhagbatai or crop share system prevails. In some villages of the Viramgam Taluka Local Fund Cess is not recovered in addition to rent.

Panch Mahals District

The Talukdars, except those of Limdi, Lilva, Golana and Kanjari, recover Local Fund Cess from their tenants at the rate of one anna in the rupee of the rent paid by them. No Local Fund Cess is recovered in cases where land is given out for cultivation on the crop share system. The Talukdars of Limdi, Lilva, Golana and Kanjari do not recover Local Fund Cess separately from their tenants, but recover their dues in a lump sum.

(b) and (c) The collection of the information would involve the engagement of a special establishment and the undertaking of a very laborious inquiry at considerable cost. Government, therefore, regret that they are not prepared to comply with the Honourable Member's request.

MUNICIPAL DRAINAGE AND TOWN PLANNING SCHEMES: GRANTS

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN on behalf of Mr. G. I. PATEL (Ahmedabad Millowners' Association): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the amount so far granted respectively to the Poona City Municipality, the Bombay Municipal Corporation and the Ahmedabad Municipality in regard to (i) drainage, (ii) water works and (iii) town planning schemes with the dates of the sanction of each amount from 1917 to 1927 (August);

(b) why the Ahmedabad Municipality has been refused grants on the basis on which the same were given to the other two Municipal institutions;

(c) whether they intend now to give the grants asked for by the Ahmedabad Municipality when the Municipality and city have suffered heavy damages during the last unprecedented rains?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: (a) The accompanying statement gives the information required.

(b) and (c) Owing to financial stringency Government are re-considering the question of grants-in-aid to local bodies for sanitary schemes. Government have not so far refused to sanction any grant to the Ahmedabad Municipality towards its water supply and drainage schemes but the question is held over pending a decision of the general question. The question of Government contribution towards the proposed bridge over the Sabarmati is also under consideration. Until their financial position improves, however, Government can hold out little hope that any funds will be available for such grants to any of the City Municipalities in the Presidency.

* This grant of Rs. 16,13,015 represents the total cost of the Lloyd Bridge included in the Town Planning Scheme and was sanctioned on the conditions (i) that the Poona Municipality surrendered to Government the surplus actual contributions realised under the Scheme over the actual expenditure incurred on it and (ii) that it paid in cash Rs. 50,000 towards the cost of the scheme.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Why is it that Ahmedabad gets only Rs. 17,000 whereas Poona gets lakhs and lakhs ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: We have to take into consideration the claims of various municipalities. We cannot be partial to the Ahmedabad municipality. Ahmedabad is a great industrial and commercial centre, which is not the case with other municipalities.

(i) whether complaints have been received from the people about this tank;

(j) whether Government have decided to put this tank in a good state of repair;

(k) if so, when will they repair the tank and what repairs will be done and how much amount will be spent on these repairs?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: There are two tanks in the village of Bhagod, viz., (1) Jeri tank in R. S. No. 333 and (2) Bed or Ryod tank in R. S. No. 364. The respective information about the two tanks is as follows:—

(a) (1) 4 acres 26 gunthas.

(2) 4 acres 18 gunthas.

(b) (1) 29 acres 14 gunthas.

(2) 20 acres 22 gunthas.

(c) (1) Rs. 53-2-10.

(2) Rs. 30-4-11.

(d) (1) Yes, except a few parts of it, which however are not in a dangerous state.

(2) Yes, except in a length of 25 feet which has been worn down by the passage of cattle.

(e) (1) The tank has two outlets. One is partially choked with silt and requires to be cleared. The other is in working order.

(2) The tank has two outlets of which one is partially choked and requires to be cleared of silt. The other is in working order.

(f) (1) Yes, the tank is deep enough to irrigate the area assessed.

(2) Yes, to the extent required.

(g) (1) and (2) The tanks do not appear to have been repaired since 1887-88.

(h) (1) The tank is in good condition, excepting for the defects mentioned in (d) and (e) above.

(2) The tank is in good condition, excepting for the defects mentioned in (d) and (e) above and small repairs required to the waste-weir.

(i) (1) and (2) No.

(j) & (k) (1) Yes, the tank will be repaired after plans and estimate are prepared and sanctioned. The repairs, which will cost about Rs. 250, will consist of clearing the jungle, strengthening the worn out part of the bund and putting the outlet in working order.

(2) Yes, the tank will be repaired after plans and estimate are prepared and sanctioned. The repairs, which will cost about Rs. 350, will consist of strengthening the bund and repairing the outlet and waste-weir.

TODDY TREE-TAX

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK on behalf of Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI (Surat District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) what has been the general effect of the sudden and excessive increase in the rate of tree-tax on toddy trees introduced recently;

(b) whether on the whole Government revenue has declined as a result;

(c) whether it is a fact that as a result of this the toddy sold to the public is less pure and more adulterated;

(d) whether it is a fact that as a result a great loss has been caused to the owners of toddy trees;

(e) whether they have examined this question of the rate of tax on toddy trees in the light of the experience of the past year or two;

(f) if so, what decision they have arrived at.

The Honourable Mr G. B. PRADHAN: (a) The increase in tree-tax has resulted in the reduction of the number of trees tapped. Government do not consider that the increase was sudden or excessive.

(b) No.

(c) No.

(d) No.

(e) Government see no reason to reconsider the orders passed in July 1924.

(f) The question does not arise.

TANKS, SURAT DISTRICT: REPAIRS

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK on behalf of Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI (Surat District): Will the Honourable the General Member be pleased to state—

(a) whether there is any proper arrangement for the regular and systematic inspection of tanks in the Surat District;

(b) by whom this inspection is made, and at what interval each tank is inspected;

(c) whether plans and estimates for the repair of tanks which require repairs are prepared immediately after such inspection;

(d) whether it is a fact that there is much delay in the office of the Executive Engineer, Surat and Broach, in preparing plans and estimates and getting them sanctioned;

(e) whether it is a fact that no grant can be sanctioned for the repair of a tank unless the plans and estimates for its repair are ready and have been sanctioned ;

(f) whether it is a fact that owing to the delay in the office of the Executive Engineer, Surat and Broach, in getting the plans and estimates for the repair of tanks sanctioned, funds cannot be allotted for the repair of tanks in the Surat District;

(g) whether it is a fact that as a result of this, several tanks in the Surat District are in a state of disrepair ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : (a) Yes.

(b) There is no set interval for the inspection of each tank, but every one of them is looked over frequently by the beat karkuns, and at least once a year by the overseers. The Sub-divisional officers inspect a batch of them every month, and the Executive Engineer visits several of them while on tour.

(c) Yes. The plans and estimates are prepared in order of urgency, i.e., the tanks, which are likely to breach or to cease to function properly, are given prior consideration over the others.

(d) No.

(e) Yes.

(f) Does not arise in view of the reply to (d) above.

(g) No. There is no tank in the Surat District, which has ceased to fulfil its functions.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : As regards the reply to (g), has the Honourable the General Member received any applications from the Surat District about the condition of the tanks and their repairs ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : The question does not refer to any application. The question is " whether it is a fact that as a result of this, several tanks in the Surat District are in a state of disrepair." The answer is : " No. There is no tank in the Surat District which has ceased to fulfil its functions."

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : May I know whether the Honourable the General Member has received any complaints about the bad condition of the tanks,—that they are not fulfilling their proper functions ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : I think, in an answer given yesterday, I told the honourable member that some complaints had been received.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : Was it mentioned in the complaints that the tanks are not fulfilling the objects which they were meant to serve ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : The answer to that is given in part (g) of the reply. The honourable member will see the answer. When he asked me whether any complaints had been received, I replied in the affirmative, that complaints have been received.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : My question is whether there are several tanks in the Surat District which do not serve the purpose for which they were constructed, which means that they are not holding water, and that they require repairs.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : I can only repeat the answer given to part (g) of the question, that there is no tank in the Surat District which has ceased to fulfil its functions. Some of them may be out of repair now and then, but they have not altogether ceased to perform their functions.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : Have you received any complaints that the tanks are not functioning at all ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : We have received complaints about certain tanks, that they are not in proper repair.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : Have you received any complaints that there is no water in some of the tanks ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : I cannot answer that without notice. I do not know whether there is any definite complaint that any tank is absolutely not fulfilling its functions.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : Has the complaint been investigated by the Honourable the General Member ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Every complaint is investigated. I think I have received complaints from the honourable member himself.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : That is why I ask whether any complaints have been received, and whether they have been investigated.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Every complaint is sent to the department, every complaint is investigated, and a report made ; and the honourable member will have noticed that I might be accused of favouring Surat.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : What is the result of the investigation ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : In many cases repairs have been effected, and the answers to the many questions asked about Surat tanks by the honourable member and my honourable friend Mr. Shivdasani have given plenty of information as to what repairs are being effected to the tanks in the Surat District.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : Am I to take it that before the repairs were carried out, the tanks were not functioning properly ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : They were functioning, but they were not functioning properly. From the several answers that have been given to the honourable member he will find that the department have pointed out how far the tanks have not been in proper repair.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : If they were not functioning properly, as is admitted, was there any reduction made in the himayat rate, when the matter came to the notice of the Honourable the General Member ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : I cannot give a definite reply just now ; I will ask for notice.

HIGH SCHOOL, HYDERABAD

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK on behalf of Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI (Surat District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that the majority of the population of Hyderabad-Sind is Hindu ;

(b) whether they have passed an order restricting the admission of Hindu students to the Government High School, Hyderabad-Sind to 25 per cent. ;

(c) whether this year out of sixty students admitted in the Government High School, Hyderabad-Sind, only 15 were Hindus ;

(d) whether the Hindu Vidya Mandal has started on 1st April 1926 an English School to provide facilities for such Hindu students as cannot get admission to the Government High School ;

(e) whether this school also admits pupils of other committees including Muhammadans ;

(f) whether in July 1926 they were pleased to recognise this school ;

(g) whether in September 1926 the school applied for the usual grant ;

(h) whether the Director has refused to give the usual grant ;

(i) whether their expenditure on secondary schools in Sind is proportionately smaller than in other parts of the Presidency ;

(j) whether the school authorities have again applied to them for a grant ;

(k) whether they have considered this fresh application for a grant ;

(l) if so what decision they have arrived at ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) There are 52,063 Hindus out of a total population of 73,451 in the town of Hyderabad-Sind. In the district of Hyderabad the Hindus number 160,211 out of a total population of 573,450.

(b) and (c). In 1926-27, out of the total number of new boys admitted to Standard I, 75 per cent. were Muhammadans and 25 per cent. Hindus. During this year admissions were made as a special case to raise the proportion of Muhammadan boys in the Hyderabad High School. Ordinarily 50 per cent. Muhammadans and 50 per cent. Hindus are admitted.

(d) to (g). Yes.

(h) Yes, because the funds at the disposal of the Director were inadequate.

(i) No.

(j), (k) and (l). A grant of Rs. 1,710 was awarded at the end of March 1927. The question of payment of the grant for the current financial year will be considered later in March 1928 if funds permit.

DISTRICT LOCAL BOARD, SURAT : DISPUTE WITH GOVERNMENT

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK on behalf of Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI (Surat District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) what are the points of dispute between Government and the District Local Board, Surat ;

(b) when is this dispute likely to be settled ;

(c) in whose charge the primary schools of the Surat District are at present ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) The District Local Board, Surat, in a Resolution No. 1 of the 2nd June 1926 stated that it was willing to take charge of primary education from 1st October 1926 if Government granted certain minimum demands made by the Board. The accompanying statement explains the demands put forward by the District Local Board and the action taken by Government with regard to each of them.

(b) It cannot be stated when the dispute is likely to be settled.

(c) The Educational Department.

Requests made by the District Local Board, Surat	Action if any taken by Government
(1) Government should bear all the expenses incurred for the administration of the schools, viz., pay, allowances, etc., and that the District Local Board, Surat, should not be made to pay anything on this behalf from its funds.	(1) With regard to the total expenditure on all schools in existence at time of transfer Government have already agreed to pay the whole cost less local assets, less cost of contingencies and travelling allowance of the inspecting, clerical and menial staff. The offer is identical with that made to all other District Local Boards and similarly any further concessions can only be given to all District Local Boards and not to one Board only.

Requests made by the District Local Board, Surat	Action if any taken by Government
(2) The Board having no sufficient balance in its Educational Fund to start with, Government should increase it by giving some grant in lump.	(2) It was pointed out to the District Local Board that it was open to it to increase the Local Fund cess under the powers given to it under section 93 of the Local Boards Act, 1923 (VI of 1923) and thus provide the extra funds necessary to maintain an adequate balance.
(3) Government should employ the full staff of teachers for schools which are undermanned and thus complete the requisite number of teachers for the present schools.	(3) It is not clear what the District Local Board mean by this request. The schools in this District have been staffed on the principle generally adopted by the Educational Department in all Districts. On an average one teacher is allotted to every 40 pupils.
(4) Government should re-open the same type of schools which have been closed without closing any of the existing schools.	(4) Owing to the non-cooperation movement attendance at certain schools dwindled to the point of extinction. The funds thus released were utilised in opening schools in other villages where there was a demand. It is not therefore possible to reopen schools in all the villages which formerly possessed them unless the District Local Board agree to bear their portion of the cost, viz. ⅓rd of the expenditure.
(5) The expenses incurred for the purposes of 3 and 4 above, should be wholly included in the datum line of the Government grant.	(5) For the reasons given above, it is not possible for Government to treat the Surat District Local Board on a different basis to all other Boards in the Presidency.

SCHOLARSHIPS FOR DEPRESSED CLASS BOYS

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI: Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) how many schclarships are reserved for the depressed class boys studying in high schools and colleges in the Northern, Central and Southern Divisions of this presidency;

(b) how many scholarships were awarded to the depressed class boys studying in high schools and colleges in the above three Divisions of this presidency during the last three years specifying the number for each year and also specifying names of castes of the recipients in detail in the Northern and Central Divisions?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILL D. DESAI: (a) and (b) There are at present no Government special scholarships reserved for the "Depressed classes" exclusively. The scholarships originally meant for "Depressed classes" have now been merged in the scholarships for "Backward classes" (as distinguished from the "Intermediate classes"). The accompanying statements give the information required by Educational Divisions.

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI : Will Government be kind enough to state why the scholarships specially meant for the depressed classes were merged in the scholarships for backward classes ? What was the reason ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : The assumption of the honourable member is not correct. The reply to parts (a) and (b) of the question is that there are at present no Government special scholarships reserved for the " depressed classes " exclusively, and that the scholarships originally meant for " depressed classes " have now been merged in the scholarships for " backward classes " (as distinguished from the " intermediate classes "). The reason is that the classification was changed, and the classes which were known as " depressed classes " were included in the class " backward classes. "

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Is the Honourable Member aware that by such a classification the depressed classes have suffered ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : That is the complaint now made by my honourable friend Dr. Solanki, and consequently the matter is under consideration.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Will Government be pleased to alter the present classification, so that the depressed classes will have their due share of the scholarships ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I have already stated that the matter is receiving consideration.

WELFARE WORK : DEPRESSED CLASSES

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) what steps have been taken by Government to ameliorate the condition of the depressed classes in the Northern Division ;

(b) whether any instructions have been issued to Government officials to interest themselves in their social, moral and economic welfare ;

(c) whether they intend creating a post of special officer as a protector of these people as is done in Madras ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : (a) No special steps for the amelioration of the condition of the depressed classes in Northern Division alone have been taken. They share such facilities as are afforded for the depressed classes all over the Presidency. A statement showing the measures taken to ameliorate the condition of the backward (including the depressed) classes is laid on the table.

(b) No special instructions have been issued, but Government have every reason to believe that their benevolent intentions towards these classes are well known to all their officers and that the latter do their best to see that these intentions are carried out.

(c) Not as at present advised.

MEASURES TAKEN TO AMELIORATE THE CONDITION OF THE DEPRESSED CLASSES

Lands.—On the question of the grant of land to Mangs and other analogous communities for cultivation and building purposes Government have refused to issue any general orders in the terms suggested by the representatives of those communities. They have, however, assured these representatives that applications made to officers by particular members of their communities will continue to receive sympathetic consideration. The officers concerned have also been directed to follow this policy in making grants of land to these communities.

Co-operative Societies.—Grants are made to Bhil and other Backward Class Co-operative Societies towards the cost of establishment charges.

Recruitment to Public Services.—As regards the recruitment to the posts of Mamlatdars and Deputy Collectors it may be mentioned that in Government memorandum, Finance Department, No. 2610-B., dated 17th September 1923, instructions have been issued to achieve fair representation of all castes and communities, including backward classes in Public Services. Attention is also invited to Government Resolution, Finance Department, No. 2610, dated 5th February 1925, prescribing a minimum percentage of recruitment from members of the backward communities to the clerical staff of all Departments in the Presidency proper. These orders are applicable also to the offices of the Central Government in the Presidency proper under the control of this Government (vide Government Resolution, Finance Department, No. 2610, dated the 26th October 1925).

So far as the Medical Department is concerned Government have laid down as follows :—

(1) That the usual age limit of 17-20 years for admission of students to the Medical Schools should not be insisted on in the case of students of the backward classes who do not receive stipends and who appear to the head of the school to be reasonably likely to pass through the whole course successfully.

(2) That in the case of students of the backward classes who desire to receive stipends at the Hyderabad Medical School a two years' concession should be allowed and the age limit for Government service be raised to 27 years.

(3) That free studentships up to a maximum of 5 per cent. of the number of students of those communities should be granted to the backward classes.

(4) That twelve scholarships of Rs. 15 each per mensem should be allowed, three in each year, for qualified male students from the backward communities at each of the Medical Schools at Poona and Ahmedabad and that 25 per cent. of the vacancies for admission should be reserved for them.

(5) That in admitting students to the Grant Medical College 10 per cent. of the vacancies should be allowed to the backward Hindu classes irrespective of their position in the pass-lists of the qualifying examination.

2. The depressed classes have been given separate representation on the boards of Municipalities.

3. Section 5 (4) of the Bombay Local Boards Act, 1923, makes provision for the nomination of members of the depressed classes on the District and Taluka Local Boards when their nomination is considered necessary. Government have passed orders allowing to the members of the depressed classes the use of public places and institutions belonging to and maintained by Government and have also advised local public bodies to do so (vide Government Resolution No. 4770, dated the 11th September 1923). In August 1926 Mr. Bole's Resolution recommending the reductions of grants to local bodies who did not give facilities to depressed classes was accepted by Government in an amended form and a Government Resolution was issued drawing attention of the local bodies to the Resolution.

NOTE REGARDING THE STEPS TAKEN BY THE EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT FOR THE AMELIORATION OF THE DEPRESSED CLASSES

Scholarships.—Government have sanctioned special scholarships for students belonging to the depressed classes as mentioned below :—

Primary Schools.—Three hundred scholarships (100 each of Rs. 5, 6 and 7 per mensem) at the rate of 5 per each district in the Presidency proper, tenable in standards V to VII of primary schools.

Secondary Schools.—Six hundred and forty-four scholarships of the value mentioned below to be awarded at the rate of 92 per annum distributed among the several divisions of the Presidency on the basis of population and tenable for seven years of the Secondary School Course :—

Standards I to III Rs. 6 each per mensem.

Standard IV Rs. 7 each per mensem.
Standard V Rs. 8 each per mensem.
Standards VI and VII Rs. 10 each per mensem.

Arts Colleges.—Twenty-two sets of scholarships, each tenable for four years, i.e., 22×4=88 scholarships, and two more in the First Year Course, each of the value of Rs. 20 per mensem.

Professional Colleges—

(1) College of Engineering.—Three sets, each tenable for three years, i.e., 9 scholarships each of the value of Rs. 40 per mensem.

(2) Sydenham College of Commerce.—One set tenable for three years, i.e., 3 scholarships, each of the value of Rs. 35 per mensem.

(3) Law College.— Three sets, each tenable for two years, i.e., 6 scholarships, each of the value of Rs. 35 per mensem.

(4) V. J. Technical Institute.—Three sets, each tenable for four years, i.e., 12 scholarships, each of the value of Rs. 35 per mensem.

2. Free supply of books and slates.—Government have also sanctioned an annual allotment of Rs. 10,000 for the free supply of books, slates, etc., to pupils of those classes studying in Local Board Primary Schools.

3. Abolition of discrimination.—Government have issued orders to all Educational Officers to see that no disabilities are imposed on children of the depressed classes in any school maintained by public authorites. They have further directed that grants from provincial revenues should not be paid to primary and secondary schools to which students belonging to the depressed classes are refused admission on account of their caste, that teachers belonging to the depressed classes should as a rule be placed in charge of schools in localities inhabited by those classes and that there should be no bar to the appointment of such teachers to other schools.

4. Admissions to Primary Training Colleges.—Government have also directed that 15 per cent. of the candidates under training who are given Government stipends in the Bombay, Central and Southern Divisons and 10 per cent. of them in the Northern Division should be recruited from the depressed class Hindus.

5. Reservation of seats in Government Secondary Schools, etc.—Orders have been issued very recently as a temporary measure reserving 45 per cent. of admissions to secondary schools for boys of the intermediate and backward classes (i.e., depressed classes) preference being given to the boys of the depressed classes. As regards admissions to Government professional colleges, except in the case of the College of Engineering, Poona, 10 per cent. of the total admissions have been exclusively reserved for students of the Hindu backward classes, including the depressed classes, in addition to the number of students from those classes who get admission in accordance with their merits in the general selection of 80 per cent. of the admissions open to all communities. In the case of the College of Engineering, Poona, 25 per cent. of admissions are reserved for these classes instead of 10 per cent. as in other professional colleges.

6. Exemption from fees.—No fees are charged to children of the depressed classes in primary schools and at the Vernacular Final Examination. No fees are charged to the depressed classes in Government Secondary Schools provided they can show that they are unable to pay fees.

7. Hostels.—Government also maintain a special hostel at Poona providing accommodation for 50 boys of the depressed classes. No grants-in-aid are usually given towards the expenditure on the maintenance of hostels. However, as a special case, Government have sanctioned grants-in-aid at one-half rate of the admissible expenditure (excluding charges for food, clothing, fuel and lighting), or Rs. 30 per annum per pupil, whichever is less, subject to a maximum of Rs. 2,000 per annum to the three hostels maintained by the Depressed Classes Mission Society at Poona, Parel. A grant at one-half rate of the admissible expenditure was also sanctioned for the last two years only to the hostel maintained for the depressed class boys at Nasik.

8. Reservation of seats on School Boards of Local Authorities.—To look after the interest of the depressed classes in the matter of primary education, now controlled by local authorities, seats have been reserved for representatives of these classes on School Boards established under the Bombay Primary Education Act, 1923, and the rules thereunder.

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI : Are Government aware that the conditions in the Northern Division are different from those in the other divisions. In the Northern Division there is a large cotton growing area and specially the depressed classes can be used in the weaving industry. Therefore I request Government to make special efforts in this direction in the Northern Division. As far as I know the Deccan and Karnatak have not large cotton growing areas. I would therefore ask Government to make special efforts in the Northern Division ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : There is no doubt difference in conditions over the various parts of the presidency. I do not think that the honourable member is correct when he said that the Southern Division has not large cotton growing tracts. I think there is a good deal of cotton grown over a large area in the Southern Division—like Belgaum, Bijapur and Dharwar. As regards taking steps for teaching weaving, I understand that the Director of Industries has got weaving schools working in the Northern Division as well as the other divisions.

SCHOLARSHIPS FOR DEPRESSED CLASSES IN SECONDARY SCHOOLS

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) what amount of money they have provided for granting scholarships to students belonging to the depressed class communities reading in secondary schools ;

(b) how these amounts are distributed by communities in the different divisions ;

(c) whether any savings have been effected under this head and to what extent ;

(d) what measures have been adopted to acquaint depressed class students about the granting of these scholarships ;

(e) whether applications are invited through and from the school boards in the areas concerned by sending timely notifications ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) Rs. 58,512.

(b) The amount is not distributed by communities.

The distribution of the amount in the different divisions is as under :—

	Rs.
Bombay Division	15,264
Central Division	19,080
Northern Division..	12,084
Southern Division	8,904
Sind	3,180
	58,512

(c) No substantial saving has been effected as the scholarships that could not be granted for want of suitable candidates among Backward Class students were transferred to Intermediate Class students.

(d) The necessary particulars regarding the scholarships available are notified in the Bombay Government Gazette and the Sind Official Gazette and the managers of all Secondary schools and Local Authorities are supplied with copies of the Notification and requested to bring the same to the notice of all pupils in their schools.

(e) Yes.

Note.—The words "depressed class communities" are taken to mean all communities declared "Backward" as distinguished from communities classified as "Intermediate."

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI: Do Government know that this information regarding scholarships published in the official gazettes is not circulated among the people concerned by the authorities mentioned in the answer ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: Government have no reason to think so.

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI: Will Government kindly take steps to issue orders to the authorities concerned to circulate them among the people concerned ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: Government have no reason to think that their officers are not performing the duties expected of them.

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI: The very fact that there are complaints about this is proof of the fact that the people concerned are not informed properly in time ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: If the honourable member will bring any specific instance to my notice the matter will be considered.

Mr. S. K. BOLE: May I know whether efforts are made to find out suitable students from the depressed classes ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: All efforts are being made.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV: Would it not be better for the leaders of the communities to help students to get scholarships ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: I think it would be better.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: If proper students are not available among the depressed classes, the provision is transferred to the intermediate class. May I know whether the provision for scholarships made for the backward classes and the Mahomedans is liable to be transferred for scholarship to the advanced classes ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: No. If proper students are not available among the backward classes and Mahomedans the benefit will go to the intermediate classes and not to the advanced classes.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: That is what I wanted to know.

SCHOLARSHIPS FOR DEPRESSED CLASSES, GUJARAT

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI: Will Government be pleased to state the number and value of scholarships sanctioned by each district local board in the five districts of Gujarat for the pupils belonging to the depressed class studying in (i) primary schools, (ii) secondary schools, (iii) colleges of science, arts, medicine, engineering and technical, (iv) school of mechanics and (v) in veterinary and agricultural colleges ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI.: No scholarships have been sanctioned by any District Local Board in the Northern Division, specially for pupils belonging to the depressed classes. Depressed class pupils studying in Local Board primary schools are paid scholarships in some districts from the allotment of scholarships sanctioned for all backward classes (including Muhammadans). As regards scholarships sanctioned by District Local Boards for backward classes, attention is invited to the statement at pages 1238-1253 of Legislative Council Debates, Volume XXI, Part XVI.

REFRESHMENT ROOM, AHMEDABAD: APPLICATION FOR REMOVAL

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether an application dated the 6th July 1927, signed by two mill agents and many shopkeepers residing outside Panchkuva Gate, was sent to the Collector of Ahmedabad District, protesting against the mischief and nuisance caused by the drunkards who use the refreshment room of Messrs. E. R. Fanibanda and Sons, located in Fanibanda Building, near Sherkotda Police Chowky, and requesting the removal of the said refreshment room from that locality ;

(b) if the answer to (a) is in the affirmative, what action the Collector of Ahmedabad took to stop the mischief and nuisance caused by the drunkards using the said refreshment room and to remove it from that locality ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: (a) Yes.

(b) A Police Chowky is situated near the building and a policeman remains on traffic duty at the spot. The petitioners referred to in clause (a) of the question were advised to take such complaints in future to the Police.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI: May I know the preparations made for refreshments ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: I have not seen them.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI: Do Government allow these licensees to sell liquor also in their refreshment rooms ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: Those persons who hold license to open refreshment rooms are entitled to sell liquor also.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI: Does the Honourable Minister know that if liquor is sold side by side with refreshment, there will be a greater consumption of liquor as well as of refreshments ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : I do not know if the actual amount of consumption of liquor or of refreshments is more in such cases.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : Because the Honourable Member is connected with the department, I thought he must be knowing ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : I do not know.

GUJARAT COLLEGE : LIBRARY GRANT

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the amount of money allotted to the Gujarat College as library grant in 1926-27 ;

(b) the allocation of the said grant to the various subjects taught in the Gujarat College ;

(c) whether it is a fact that most of the money allotted as library grant to the Gujarat College in that year was spent in buying books of economics which were of little use to the students.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) Rs. 3,000 (Rs. 1,500 Arts : Rs. 1,500 Science).

(b) The allocation was as follows : English Rs. 300 : History and Economics Rs. 300 : Sanskrit Rs. 225 : French Rs. 125 : Mathematics Rs. 250 : Gujarati Rs. 125 : Persian Rs. 125 : Logic Rs. 50 : Physics Rs. 400 : Chemistry Rs. 600 and Biology Rs. 500.

(c) The answer is in the negative. It may, however, be stated that a special non-recurring grant of Rs. 5,451 was sanctioned to start a library in Economics as there were no reference books in Economics, no more or less complete sets of classical authors, no collection of standard works in the subject, and no sets of the statistical journal or of the Economics Journal which were required by students for reference purposes, and as for the first time in the following year (1927) Economics was to be separated from History in the B.A. degree and the college was therefore faced with a great demand for books in Economics, the number in the B.A. class being no less than 63 of whom 44 were reading for Honours.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) how many periods per week the principal of the Gujarat College does teaching work ;

(b) how many periods per week his personal assistant does teaching work ;

(c) how many periods per week each of the other members of the teaching staff does teaching work in the Gujarat College ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI :

	History of Economic Doctrines (Hons.)	.. 2 periods

GUJARAT COLLEGE : CARPET

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the Principal of the Gujarat College ordered a carpet worth nearly Rs. 200 (rupees two hundred) for his office use ;

(b) from what provision of the budget that expenditure was defrayed ;

(c) if there was no budget provision, the source from which that amount was spent ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) A carpet costing Rs. 165-8-0 only was purchased for the Principal's office and for use on special occasions in the George V College hall as this was considered necessary in the interests of the College.

(b) The expenditure was not defrayed from any provision in the Budget.

(c) From the Domus Fund.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : What is the nature of that fund ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : The Domus fund has been contributed by the hostel students for the amenities which they expect.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI: Is a carpet allowed to be supplied to the principal from this fund ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: I do not know all the implications and rules of this fund.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Is the purchase of a carpet to the principal from this fund calculated to give amenities to the students who contributed to this fund ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: That is what the principal considers it to be.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Does the Honourable Minister agree with the principal that the carpet for his office should be purchased from the fund of the hostel students ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: It is also used in the George V Hall where the students meet more than once in a week for lectures, etc.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Is the George V hall part of the hostel ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: It is of course for the use of the students when they meet in the George V Hall.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV: Is it brought to the Hall from his House ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: It is in the office of the principal.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Do Government permit this fund to be utilized for the purchase of the carpet for the principal's office ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: No permission was granted. No permission is necessary, as it is a matter between the principal and the hostel students, who contribute. The whole matter is managed between them.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Is the fund of the hostel students called "Domus Fund" under the arbitrary jurisdiction of the Principal, or are the hostel students to be consulted as regards its use ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: The Principal is administering the fund according to the rules.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Were the hostel students consulted before the fund was utilised for purchasing the carpet ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: I require notice.

GUJARAT COLLEGE: LECTURES BY AMERICAN GENTLEMEN

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether 2 American gentlemen were asked to deliver some 5 or 6 lectures in the Gujarat College by the Principal of that College;

(b) whether it is a fact that those lectures were not attended by any students except some 5 or 6 professors;

(c) whether it is a fact that Rs. 300 (three hundred) were paid to those American gentlemen for delivering those lectures ;

(d) if so, from what provision of the budget the said amount was paid ;

(e) if there was no provision in the budget, from what source that amount was spent ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) The answer is in the affirmative.

(b) The answer is in the negative.

(c) The amount paid in one case was Rs. 250 and in the other Rs. 50.

(d) and (e) The expenditure was met from caution money which has remained unclaimed and which under the orders of the Government of India is utilised for general college purposes at the discretion of the Principal.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Is not the Honourable Minister aware that this caution money, which is taken from the students at the time of their admission, is repayable to the students whenever they claim it ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : It is repayable to the students when they claim it. But the amount remained unclaimed. If the student who is entitled to claim it does not claim it, then under the orders of the Government of India its use is vested in the Principal.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Supposing those students who have not claimed it so far, come to claim the money in the future, from what source Government propose to repay the money to them ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I cannot answer a hypothetical question like that, but I may say that no cases of that nature have happened.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Is it not a fact that the caution money, which is not claimed, lapses to the Government and not to the Principal ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : It lapses, according to the orders of the Government of India, for use for general college purposes at the discretion of the Principal. No one pockets it.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Does it lapse to the Government or does it lapse to the Principal in his private capacity ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : To the Principal not in his private capacity but as representing the college for its general purposes.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : If this money which is not claimed by students lapses to Government, then in that case, was the permission of the Government taken for utilising the money for purposes for which it was not meant ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : The assumption of the honourable member that it lapses to Government is wrong ; it does not lapse to Government ; it lapses for use for the general purposes of the college under the management of the Principal.

Khan Saheb A. M. MANSURI : Is it true that the Principal utilises the fund to the best advantage of the students ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Yes, so far as I know.

GUJARAT COLLEGE : DONATION FROM SETH AMBALAL SARABHAI

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether Seth Ambalal Sarabhai, a millowner of Ahmedabad, handed over a sum of Rs. 1,000 (rupees one thousand) to the Principal of the Gujarat College during the current year 1927-28 for being used to help the poor deserving students in the prosecution of their studies ;

(b) if so, the names of the students who were assisted by the Principal from that amount and the amount of assistance given to each of those students ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) and (b) The donation referred to in the question is entirely a private one and Government consider that they are responsible to the donor alone for giving an account of the money.

GUJARAT COLLEGE : COMPULSORY DAILY SHAVE

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that the Principal of the Gujarat College compels students to shave every day and fines them very severely for not doing so ;

(b) on what grounds the Principal imposes the burden of every day shave which would be very expensive to poor students prosecuting their studies in the Gujarat College ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) The answer is in the negative.

(b) In view of the answer given to clause (a) of the question, this question does not arise.

INDIGENOUS MEDICINE : REMARKS OF SURGEON GENERAL

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether Major General A. Hooton, I.M.S., Surgeon General with the Government of Bombay, has characterised Ayurvedic and other indigenous systems of medicine as ' based on erroneous theories ' and ' not founded on scientific principles ' on page 17 of the triennial report on the Civil Hospitals and Dispensaries in the Bombay Presidency for the years 1923-25 ;

(b) whether Government have expressed disagreement with this view;

(c) whether Government have received a protest of a public meeting of the citizens of Ahmedabad, held in Premabhai Hall on 14th September 1927 against the remarks of the Surgeon General referred to in (a);

(d) if so, what steps Government have taken to place the correct policy of Government in the matter of Ayurvedic and other indigenous systems of medicine before the public and to allay the apprehensions caused by the remarks of the Surgeon General?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: (a) The expressions quoted in the question occur in the summary of a note on the subject by Major General Hooton. The Honourable Member and others who are interested in this subject are invited to peruse the note as a whole before forming an opinion about it.

(b) No. Government have not had examined the relative merits of the Ayurvedic and other indigenous systems of medicine, which are different from the Allopathic system.

(c) Yes.

(d) It is the intention of Government when funds permit to give practical encouragement to the development of the Ayurvedic and other indigenous systems. Investigation is already being made into the properties of indigenous drugs at the Parel Laboratory. The question of studying and recording the effects of these drugs in hospitals, in addition to experiments in the laboratory, is also under consideration and, the question of the local manufacture of chemicals, drugs and medicines has been taken up with a view to reducing foreign imports of such articles. A proposal to grant scholarships to selected students for the study of Ayurvedic medicine is under consideration, and enquiries have been made of the Government of the United Provinces whether they would be prepared to receive scholars from this Presidency if such scholarships are founded.

Mr. SYED MUNAWAR: With reference to (d), "A proposal to grant scholarships to selected students for the study of Ayurvedic medicine is under consideration", is there any proposal before Government for grant of scholarships to students for studying the Unani system of medicine?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: None, so far as I know. It is only a proposal to grant scholarships to students going to the Benares Hindu College.

Mr. SYED MUNAWAR: Are there any applications or representations made to Government regarding the Unani system?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D DESAI: None, so far as I am aware.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: Would the same treatment be given to the Unani as is given to Ayurvedic system? For example if students desired scholarships for Unani would they be given?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: Indeed,

AYURVEDIC COLLEGE

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) what progress they have made in the matter of establishing an Ayurvedic College in the Bombay Presidency on the lines of a similar college founded by the Madras Government;

(b) when Government propose to found an Ayurvedic College and make provision for it in the budget?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: (a) and (b) Government have decided to defer steps for the establishment of an Ayurvedic College in this Presidency until experience has shown how far the experiment at Madras has been a success. The existing financial stringency also prevents the early establishment of such an institution.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Is not the Honourable Minister aware that the Ayurvedic College in Madras has been working for the last five years and has proved a great success?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: It is only recently that the Madras College was started; it was started only about three years ago.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI: What period has the Honourable Minister fixed for this experiment?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: No period has been fixed. As soon as we are assured that the institution is working successfully, funds permitting, steps will be taken to start one here.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV: Has any students come to claim scholarship to go to Benares?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: No student has applied yet. Only correspondence was opened. It is only an offer that if scholarships were established the Benares Hindu College would be prepared to receive about twenty-five students.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: When will Government establish an Ayurvedic College in Bombay?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: As soon as funds permit.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state the sales of 40° and 60° U.P. country liquor in the different shops of Ahmedabad City during the months of April, May and June 1926?

REFRESHMENT ROOM, AHMEDABAD : COMPLAINTS OF NUISANCE AND ANNOYANCE

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the attention of the local authorities has been drawn by applications of family men and merchants in the vicinity, to the nuisance and annoyance caused by heavily drunk persons coming out of the refreshment room of Messrs. E. R. Fanibanda and Sons near Seher Kotda Police chowky, Ahmedabad ;

(b) If the answer to (a) is in the affirmative, what enquiries have been made by the local authorities and through which officers the enquiries were made and when ;

(c) what reports have been made by the officers making the enquiries and what steps Government have taken to prevent the nuisance and annoyance caused by the drunkards ?

Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : (a) Applications to this effect have reached Government.

(b) Enquiries were made by the local excise officers (including the Superintendent of Excise) on the receipt of the application dated 6th July 1927 made to the Collector of Ahmedabad.

(c) The petition was found to be groundless and appeared to have been prompted by business rivalry. The Police officers at the Station which is situated close to Mr. Fanibanda's foreign liquor shop received no complaints and did not notice any cases of drunkenness in the locality. No action on their part was therefore called for.

REFRESHMENT ROOM, AHMEDABAD : ENQUIRY INTO COMPLAINTS OF NUISANCE

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

"(a) whether it is a fact that an application dated 31st August 1927 was sent to the Collector of Ahmedabad by Mr. Frank, one of the signatories of the complaint petition against the nuisance and annoyance caused by drunkards coming out of the refreshment room of Messrs. E. R. Fanibanda and Sons, complaining that he was called to " Fanibanda Building " by a servant of Messrs. E. R. Fanibanda and Sons on the 27th August 1927 and that he was threatened by Mr. Burjorjee Bezanjee Fanibanda that if he expressed objection to the refreshment room when the higher official came for inquiry he would get into trouble ;

(b) whether it is a fact that at the time when the said threat was given to Mr. Frank, the Excise Inspector who had come to make inquiries was present in " Fanibanda Building " ;

(c) if the answer to (b) is in the affirmative what business the Excise Inspector had to go to the " Fanibanda Building " for making inquiries about the complaint petition which was made against the nuisance and annoyance caused by the drunkards coming out of the refreshment room of Messrs. E. R. Fanibanda and Sons located at " Fanibanda Building " near Seher Kotda Police chowky, Ahmedabad ;

(d) whether it is a fact that the Excise Inspector went to the signatories of the complaint petition in the company of either the licensee, his relations, friends, acquaintances or servants for making inquiries ;

(e) if the answer to (d) is in the affirmative, why the Excise Inspector made the inquiries in the presence of and in the company of the licensee's relatives, friends, acquaintances or servants ;

(f) the reasons why the Excise Inspector did not make his inquiries by going alone to the signatories and questioning them in the absence of the said licensee's relatives, friends, acquaintances or servants so as to elicit correct and independent replies from the signatories ?

Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : (a) Yes.

(b) The Excise Inspector was present in the Fanibanda Building when Mr. Frank came there, but he did not hear any such threat being made.

(c) The enquiry was made in the vicinity of the building. When the Excise Inspector subsequently went to the building for the purpose of the enquiry, Mr. Frank came there with Mr. Fanibanda's servant.

(d) No. The Excise Inspector was accompanied by the Sub-Inspector only.

(e) Does not arise.

(f) The Inspector went with his Sub-Inspector only to all the signatories whose statements were recorded, at their respective premises. The statement of Mr. Frank alone was recorded at the Fanibanda Building as he had come there with Mr. Fanibanda's servant as stated in clause (c) above.

GUJARAT COLLEGE : STRIKE

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the Principal of the Gujarat College called some guardians who are Government servants for personal interviews and threatened them that he would write to the heads of the departments to which they belonged if they would not get written apologies from their wards for their behaviour in the strike which occurred on 28th September 1927 and the two subsequent days;

(b) if the answer to (a) is in the affirmative, on what grounds did the principal take advantage of the helpless position of the guardians who are Government servants for bringing pressure on their wards though a general amnesty was given to all the students on the termination of the strike on the 30th September 1927 ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: (a) One guardian was asked to see the Principal. No threat was made.

(b) In view of the answer given to clause (a) of the question, this question does not arise.

EDUCATION IN GUJARAT : TRANSFER OF CONTROL TO LOCAL BOARDS

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether there was a conference of the representatives of the Educational Department and the local boards of Gujarat during the beginning of the month of October 1927;

(b) whether the question of transferring the control of education to the local boards of Gujarat was one of the topics of discussion at the said conference;

(c) what steps have been taken to remove the grievances of the local boards of Gujarat in the matter of the transfer of educational control to them when the control of education will be transferred to the local boards of Gujarat ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: (a), (b) and (c) There was no formal conference but the Educational Inspector, Northern Division, was called to ascertain the objections of the Gujarat Boards to the acceptance of the transfer of control of primary education. The matter is still under consideration.

SCHOOLS : UNDERTAKING REGARDING NON-CO-OPERATION

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that the managers of schools which had non-co-operated and which have sought recognition and registration for grant from Government are required to sign an undertaking to the effect that they will be held responsible for one year's grant in the event of their schools choosing to non-co-operate in future;

(b) whether there has been any instance of a school that sought recognition and registration for grant, having again non-co-operated during the last five years ;

(c) if the answer to (b) is in the negative, what are the reasons for taking an undertaking referred to in (a) ;

(d) whether Government intend to abolish this humiliating undertaking which keenly wounds the self-respect of those schools ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) Yes.

(b) No.

(c) The reason for requiring the undertaking is an obvious precaution against a recurrence of the waste of public money. It is possible that the requirement has been the cause of the fact that no school has again non-co-operated.

(d) Government intend to reconsider the matter.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : It is stated that Government intend to reconsider the matter. When will they reconsider and how ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : It is being reconsidered at present.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Do not the Government regard this as a humiliating condition for the schools ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : In view of the opinions expressed, Government are reconsidering the matter.

FOREIGN LIQUOR, AHMEDABAD : SALES ON 17TH AND 18TH SEPTEMBER 1927

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the sale in gallons in each of the foreign liquor shops in Ahmedabad City on 17th and 18th September 1927, the dates on which the country liquor shops were closed at 5 p.m ;

(b) the average daily sales in gallons in each of these shops during the month of September 1927 ;

(c) whether it is a fact that the sales in the foreign liquor shops of Ahmedabad City on 17th and 18th September 1927 far exceeded the average daily sales of the month of September 1927 ;

(d) if so, why precautionary order of closing the country liquor shops did not include the closing of the foreign liquor shops also ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : (a) and (b) A statement furnishing the required information is placed on the Council table.

(c) No.

(d) The question does not arise.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the number of students who took Gujarati as their optional language for their B.A. Examination in the Gujarat College, Ahmedabad, during the year 1926-27 ;

(b) the number of students who passed the B.A. Examination with Gujarati as their optional language from Gujarat College, Ahmedabad, during the year 1926-1927 ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: (a) There were 10 in the Senior B.A. Class and 7 in the Junior B.A. Class with Gujarati as their optional subject.

(b) The 10 students in the Senior B.A. Class appeared at the B.A. Examination and all passed the University Examination in question.

GUJARAT COLLEGE, AHMEDABAD : GUJARATI LECTURER

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the circumstances under which Dewan Bahadur K. H. Dhruva, B.A., resigned his post as Lecturer in Gujarati in the Gujarat College, Ahmedabad, in the month of June 1926 ;

(b) whether it is a fact that he was offered either his pension or his salary as his remuneration and that he, being dissatisfied with that offer, resigned his service ;

(c) if the answer to (b) is in the affirmative, what new terms have been offered to him on his fresh appointment as Lecturer in Gujarati in the Gujarat College, Ahmedabad, from 20th June 1928 ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) and (b) Rao Bahadur (now Dewan Bahadur) Dhruva was informed that after 31st March 1926 he would be given only the pay of the post and that his pension could not be paid to him in addition. He, therefore, declined to serve on these terms.

(c) On reconsideration subsequently, Government decided that retired Government servants who are appointed as Lecturers in vernacular should be allowed to continue to draw their full pension but that they should be given only half the pay of the post. Dewan Bahadur Dhruva has accepted these revised terms.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Why was this change in the rules regarding the payment to pensioners of half pay and full pension made?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : The pensioners of Government in the Educational Department, who had acquired very great proficiency in the vernaculars and were ripe scholars, were considered to be more useful in the interests of the teaching of vernaculars in the colleges as compared to juniors, and consequently the orders of Government on that point were reconsidered.

Mr. LALJI NARANJI (Indian Merchants' Chamber) : Will Government be pleased to state with reference to my question No. 4 of the July-August 1927 session regarding mining concessions in Belgaum—

(a) whether it is a fact that Messrs. Lalan and Company have requested the Collector of Belgaum to keep the licenses applied for alive as the question is still under the consideration of Government ;

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Yes.

(b) No.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Is the Honourable Member aware that the place is visited by many persons, and if the stand is kept there, it is dangerous for the safety of the lives ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : I do not think that there is any danger in having the motor stand in that place.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Is there no other place available for the motor stand ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : No. It appears that the locality is crowded and that there is no other site in the neighbourhood for a motor stand. If the stand were removed to some other locality, the people would have to go a long way for their motor cars and would thus be inconvenienced.

The tindel was prosecuted before the First Class Magistrate, S. D., Ratnagiri, who acquitted him. The accident however took place on 1st September 1926 and not in the beginning of the monsoon of that year.

Mr. S. K. BOLE: May I know if a land endowment is given to this temple?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: I do not know that. I must ask for notice.

Mr. S. K. BOLE: Will Government make enquiries into the matter?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: If the honourable member will give notice, I shall make enquiries into the matter.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I would warn honourable members to be in time at the question hour. One hour for questions has been fixed and the Council assembles an hour earlier at the request of the honourable members. They ought to be present in time. Otherwise I will have to consider whether I should allow the leniency of asking questions out of turn on future occasions.

(General discussion of the Budget resumed)

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District): Sir, we all know that this year's budget has been a deficit budget, and this has become a chronic complaint. For that reason I shall not take any time of this House in dilating on it. I do not think that the blame can be lain at the door of anybody and, therefore, I do not intend to pass any remarks about it.

It is very unfortunate, Sir, that on account of deficit budgets, our financial position is becoming unsound and our balances are slowly disappearing. I think it is necessary to make strong efforts to build up the depleted balances again. The reason why our balances are not in a prosperous condition at this time is said to be the unfair Meston Settlement. Although that Settlement has been condemned every year and by everybody, it is a pity that that Settlement is not reconsidered and justice is not done to Bombay. I hope that within the next few years the Home Government and the Government of India will consider this matter very seriously and give relief to Bombay which she badly wants.

We are all agreed on one point. That is that the way of improving our finances is through retrenchment. On this point there is not a single dissentient voice. Government has been, we find, making steady efforts to appoint retrenchment officers and to consider proposals from them. Within the last ten years there was one strong retrenchment committee and a retrenchment officer was also appointed to conduct an enquiry. The statement which is put in our hands shows that considerable retrenchment has been effected since then. But I may submit, Sir, that no large retrenchment can be achieved by paring here and paring there, it cannot be achieved by abolishing a few posts of clerks here and a few posts of peons there. Unless there is a substantial retrenchment, there will be no relief to our finances.

I think, Sir, that there is now sufficient excuse for reducing the number of administrative units. District is at present the administrative unit. These districts were formed when facilities for transport were crude. These days we have motor cars and even aeroplanes, and considerable time can be saved in this way. I think it will not now be difficult for a collector, or a district judge, or an engineer, to manage a much bigger district than he was able to do about ten years ago. We should, therefore, try to reduce the number of administrative units by increasing the administrative area. Unless some such steps are taken, and unless these proposals are seriously considered and brought into operation, I do not think any substantial retrenchment can be effected. On this side, we always find all complaining about the high salaries paid to the Executive Councillors and other high officers. I do admit that the salaries paid to the executive officers are, no doubt, high. But we find that the number of persons enjoying these high salaries is comparatively very small and, therefore, the total sum that will be saved by way of retrenchment in these posts will not be considerable. On the other hand, when a collectorate is abolished, there is retrenchment all round, and a substantial amount will be available for development in other direction. But, unfortunately what we see is this. Although we are all agreed on the point of retrenchment, whenever a question of doing away with a district, a taluka or even a mahal is raised, the very people, who ask Government to effect economy, come forward and raise strong objection to the reduction. Whenever a proposal is brought forward to reduce a Court, or a Mahalkari's kacheri, or a Mamlatdar's office, the people say to Government: for the convenience of the people do not carry out your proposal. Do not effect retrenchment in that item. The expenditure on that item will be in the interest of the public." That is what these people say. If Government still persist in effecting a reduction, strong articles are written in the Press and delivered on the platform condemning the proposals of Government or those of any other person who may be responsible for making such a proposal. I think, Sir, that to ask Government to effect retrenchment on the one hand and at the same time to condemn their different schemes is like wanting to eat a cake and at the same time to have it. I was very much pained, Sir, to see the resolution of the Provincial Congress Committee at Alibag. That Committee is asking Government to open a new district court at Alibag. We all know that for many many years, ever since the beginning of the British administration, ever since Alibag has been under the British control, the judicial work of that district has been managed by the district judge at Thana. And I wonder why Alibag people should now require a separate district judge for Alibag. It will be very convenient no doubt for the practising lawyers there. But taking into consideration the total expenditure that would be involved by the creation of that office, I do not think that any person who really wants Government to retrench will think it advisable to press for the opening of a district court at Alibag or at other places. For myself, I have not been in favour of opening a district court even at Nadiad or at Jalgaon; but Government had to submit to the uproars from this side and many pleader councillors from those districts, and in a moment of weakness, I shall say, they yielded. But I hope they will be stronger in future and will not yield to this cry for a district court at Alibag. Although Alibag is the headquarter of my own district, I have not got any such parochial selfishness. I shall urge upon Government not to add to the number of the district courts simply because it will be to the convenience of a few persons or a few lawyers.

Now, Sir, much stress is being laid upon Indianisation. But unless strong measures are taken to fix for the Indian officers a lower salary than is required to be paid tothe European officers, financially the change of personnel from European officers to Indian officers will not be beneficial. And at the same time, there is no reason why Indian officers should claim the same high salary which is required to be paid to an English officer. The English officer leaves his home many, many thousands of miles away. He has to get his children educated in his own country, while he has to pass in a different climate and under different circumstances the best years of his life. It is but natural that a higher salary should be claimed by him, and if we want his services, we have to sanction that high salary. But these reasons do not apply in the case of Indian officers, who, I think, ought to be satisfied with a lower salary. From my information I know some say that, if they are given a lower salary, they will suffer loss of their prestige. I do not think I need take the time of this House in refuting such sorts of arguments. The District Magistrate, for instance, is a District Magistrate and will wield as much influence as one who gets a higher salary. In the Civil Service there are different grades and different salaries for different officers. The officers carry their own salaries with them and the general public do not take into consideration the particular salary which a particular officer enjoys.

[Mr. B. V. Jadhav]

I cannot help saying a few words about the point that was raised in this House the day before yesterday by a colleague of mine. His pet hobby has been that in order to secure retrenchment the hereditary kulkarnis should be brought back. It is fashionable now-a-days, Sir, to run down communalism. But I am sorry to say that, although it is officially and openly run down, it is still in existence. There are certain persons who are honest enough to admit that they stand for communalism in the present condition of society, while there are others who condemn it and practise it. I know there will be a howl raised from the ryots if the proposal of bringing back the kulkarnis is seriously taken into consideration. The kulkarnis were substituted by paid talatis in pre-reforms days, and I think Government know very well the reasons why that change had become necessary, and I am quite sure that Government will not like to reconsider it because there are no strong grounds for it. it will be much better, Sir, if Government take into consideration how to bring about that change of replacing watandar kulkarnis by paid talatis in the Southern Division, in the districts of Belgaum, Dharwar and Bijapur, and I hope the Honourable the Revenue Member will pay serious attention to that question. The improvement is urgent; the grievances of the ryots are very serious; and Government ought to take that matter in hand.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: Mr. President, I propose to deal as briefly as I can, with a certain number of points which have been raised in the course of the debate with reference to the subjects which are under my control. The most important of these subjects during the present year has been that of the relief of distress caused by the floods in Gujarat and Sind. Regarding this subject I notice that the honourable member Rao Saheb Desai complains that only about Rs. ten lakhs have been allotted by Government for gratuitous relief. As a matter of fact, the exact sum is Rs. 10,55,000. This amount may, it is true, appear small in comparison with the very large sum of a crore and 61 lakhs which Government have allotted for purposes of advances and loans. But I would ask honourable members to remember that, as I have pointed out before, Government are not in a position to undertake the obligation to meet all cases of distress caused by the flood. This obligation rests primarily upon the public, and, as Government have already acknowledged on several occasions, this obligation has been met in the most generous spirit. Even in the case of the severe distress caused by famine due to a failure of the rains, Government, I would remind honourable members, do not do more than undertake the provision of employment at a minimum wage or the support of the very infirm persons who are unable to work. It would be quite impossible for them to undertake any further obligation in that respect. Then, the same honourable member has complained that Government are charging interest on these loans. Well, he ignores the fact, in the first place, that Government have made very large concessions already in respect of interest. Honourable members are aware that a graduated scale of interest applies to advances taken from the reconstruction loan, and as regards tagavi, loans taken for kharif seed have been exempted from interest for one year. In the case of Sind that exemption has been extended to the rabi tagavi also. Secondly, I would ask honourable members to consider what the financial effect of the proposal to exempt all these loans from interest would be. The amount, as I stated before, comes to a crore and 61 lakhs, and the interest on that—the annual charge—I calculate, would be Rs. 9½ lakhs a year. Are honourable members prepared to support such a proposal in the face of present financial conditions? I presume not.

Then the honourable member Mr. G. I. Patel has alleged that although Government have made large and liberal allotments to meet the situation caused by this calamity, yet the actual amounts being disbursed under their orders are very paltry. To meet this allegation I must ask honourable members to bear with me for a short time while I go through the figures which have been supplied to me by the Flood Relief Officer in a report which has just reached my hands. The amount sanctioned for emergency relief, that is to say, the relief which had to be granted before the charitable organisation could function properly, was Rs. 21,000. That has been completely expended and, in addition, about Rs. 5,000 has been spent under that head, making a total of Rs. 26,000. The free grant for reconstruction made to the poorer classes amounted to 2½ lakhs, of which fifty thousand was intended for Broach for huts and a sum of two lakhs for the other three Gujarat districts mainly for the purchase of corrugated iron sheets. Against this allotment a sum of Rs. 2,18,000 has already been disbursed. As regards kharif tagavi, an amount of Rs. 11,66,000 was santioned by Government for the four Gujarat districts and the expenditure against that allotment amounts to Rs. 11,60,000. Thus practically the whole amount has been absorbed, and in free grants for the purchase of seed to landless tenants, out of thirty thousand which was granted, sixteen thousand has been actually expended. It is only in the case of the rabi seed allotment for tagavi that there is a considerable shortage compared with the amount allotted. The allotment was four lakhs, but it was found that the estimates had largely exceeded actual requirements, and the amount eventually spent was only Rs. 1,30,000. It is obvious that in the case of estimates made so long beforehand it is impossible to judge with any accuracy what the final requirements will be. We have, however, the assurance of the Flood Relief Officer that not a single acre which could have been cultivated has remained uncultivated. That is to say, full provision was made in the way of tagavi for the cultivation of the rabi crop.

A sum of forty-three thousand was allotted for plough cattle. That has been wholly absorbed.

Now, I come to the question of the reconstruction loan. The total amount allotted was 104 lakhs. We have not yet got figures as to the expenditure made against this allotment for all districts. I have at present only the figures for Kaira, which district was allotted 45 lakhs, and out of that amount, 31 lakhs have already been advanced, which is a fairly high proportion. In the other districts advances will be made as rapidly as possible. It is not possible to say to what extent the total allotment will eventually be absorbed.

I will summarise the situation as follows. The following are the grants for gratuitous relief :—

	Rs.
For relief of distress	3,06,000
For the supply of timber	64,000
For helping the poorer villagers to aquire new sites where they wish to move their villages ..	35,000
Free relief for house reconstruction	6,50,000
Total ..	10,55,000

That makes a total of roughly 10½ lakhs in the shape of free grants.

Under Loans :—

	Rs.
Advances to local boards	35,000
Takavi loans for seeds	36,67,000
Advances to agriculturists and non-agriculturists for reconstruction and repairs	1,04,000
Reconstruction loans made to the Co-operative Department for reconstruction purposes ..	20,00,000

The total of the loans comes, as I said, to 161 lakhs.

Now, I turn to the question of land revenue assessment. The honourable member representing the Bombay University made the rather surprising statement that our land revenue is showing a progressive decline. This is hardly consistent with the complaint repeatedly made by honourable members opposite that we are continually screwing up the assessments and that they are becoming higher and higher. As a matter of fact, the actual figures do not bear out this statement as you will see from a reference to statement II on page (viii) of the Blue Book. Of course it is obvious that our land revenue is dependent on climatic conditions and therefore liable to fluctuations. But if you will refer to this statement, you will see that the highest amount was reached in 1922-23, when it was 559 lakhs. After that came a period of four bad years when it sank as low as 467 lakhs in 1926-27. But then in 1927-28 it rose to nearly equal to the maximum previously obtained, namely, 545 lakhs, and for 1928-29 we are budgetting for a sum of 538 lakhs. Naturally it is only reasonable to suppose that our land revenue will go on increasing. It could only decline on the assumption that higher assessments are causing land to go out of cultivation. That is certainly not the case, and if it were, it would be a case calling for instant remedy, and Government would take measures to prevent such a result.

Then I come to the speech made by the honourable member from Ahmedabad, Mr. Swaminarayan. Mr. Swaminarayan has attacked our assessments on the ground that they are oppressive to the poor cultivators and that they are grinding the poor cultivators down. What I want to know from him is, why does he refer only to the poor cultivators. What about the poor landlords who are also being "oppressed," to use his term, by the same assessments, assessments which apply to them just as well as to the cultivating owners. There is no distinction in our land revenue assessments between land cultivated by its holders and land rented to cultivators. It is a fact (and this fact is borne out by the present insistent demand for tenancy legislation) that more and more money is being invested by capitalists in land in this presidency, that more and more land is being held by landlords, because people find that land is a safe, and a profitable investment to put their money into. As I say, this tendency is becoming so marked that there is a growing out-cry for tenancy legislation. This is a demand that simply did not exist a few years ago.

And therefore, in future, I hope that when the honourable member attacks our assessments on the ground that they are oppressive and so on he will extend some share of his sympathy to the poor landlords and not reserve it entirely for the poor cultivators.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: The landlords are only about 50 per cent.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: The landlords pay the assessment and the assessment falls upon them. In fact, it might be said, that, if anything, the assessment would press more heavily on rented land than on non-rented land, because it has to bear, apart from the Government assessment, a double demand, that is to say, the demand for the subsistence of the cultivator and the demand for the profits of the landlord.

In refreshing contrast to the honourable member Mr. Swaminarayan's speech is that of the honourable member Mr. Pradhan, who has been so bold as to depart from the usual line taken up by honourable members opposite and stated that there is room for the further enhancement of land revenue taxation. He made the statement that some Rs. 50 lakhs or Rs. 60 lakhs more could be obtained in this way.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN: I said Rs. 30 lakhs to Rs. 50 lakhs.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: I beg the honourable member's pardon; I must have taken down the wrong figures. He made a qualification that in several parts of the presidency the assessments were too high. This is a qualification which I for one am not able to accept. On the other hand, we are perfectly well aware that considerable portions of the presidency are distinctly under-assessed, and the principal reason why they are so under-assessed is that we have imposed on ourselves the self-denying ordinance that we shall not on a revision settlement enhance the total assessment for any given taluka by more than 33 per cent. This has unfortunately resulted in preventing us from putting up the assessments to the full extent justified by circumstances. I might quote as instances of this certain talukas of the Thana district and certain talukas of the Khandesh district, where the assessments are far below what they should be.

Now, I would like to make some remarks regarding the speech made by the honourable member Rao Bahadur Naik. He referred to the rental value basis of our assessments as being an entirely new theory which has been taken up, and he also complained that it was being acted upon in advance of the legislation which Government have in contemplation, as a result of the recommendations made by the Land Revenue Assessment Committee. Well, in that respect I am not able to agree with him. I remember a little time ago reading a speech by the then Honourable Member in charge of the Revenue Department made so far back as the year 1880 or 1881, and he there stated very definitely in defining the revenue policy of the Government of Bombay that rental value was the true index for assessments, but he deplored the fact that it was almost impossible to ascertain what the rental value was and therefore assessments had to be based on more or less vague and general considerations. It is only lately that we have, by means of the Record of Rights, a whole body of statistics on the subject of rents, and it is only through these statistics that we are now able to bring to bear on our assessment proposals definite facts and figures.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : On a point of information.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : If the honourable member yields.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I have no objection.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : What about the interpretation of section 107 of the Land Revenue Code ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Section 107 is quite clear on the point. It lays down that the assessment shall be based on the value of land and the profits of agriculture, and I contend that there is no more accurate way of judging what the profits of agriculture are than the rent.

Then the honourable member Mr. Swaminarayan made the extraordinary statement, in reference to the question of prices of produce that the current prices of rice in certain districts were Rs. 1-6-0 per maund and even Rs. 1-4-0 a maund, and that wheat was sold at Rs. 2 per maund. I was amazed when I heard him make his assertion and I was still more amazed when I referred to the actual reports of prices.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : That is for unhusked grain.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : According to the last season report, the lowest figure of current prices in any district in the presidency proper is Rs. 5-13-0 per maund of rice in Dharwar, and for wheat Rs. 6 per maund in Satara.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Is it a maund of 40 seers ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : That is the way I have worked it out, a maund of 40 seers. He made the further statement that formerly Government used to grant remissions freely, but they do so no more now. But that is just the reverse of what is exactly happening. Before the year 1902, the year of the MacDonell Famine Commission's Report, a charge which could legitimately be brought against our land revenue system was that it was too rigid and hard and fast, as it made no provision for the grant of remissions or suspensions, so that, whenever Government were faced with instances where the assessments were obviously in excess of what reasonably could be paid in bad years, they had to resort to a general reduction of the rates of assessment over a period of years. But now we have in force a complete system of suspensions and remissions which gives the necessary elasticity to our land revenue system, and hence it is that it is rarely necessary now for Government to revise their assessments and charge reduced rates over a given period.

Then, with regard to the Famine Fund, the same honourable member (Mr. Swaminarayan) seems to be seriously alarmed by the reduction in our Famine Fund. The minimum amount of our Famine Fund is now fixed and our maximum annual contribution is Rs. 12 lakhs. I can assure him that there will be no change in the policy of Government with regard to protective measures, that is to say, measures that are intended to prevent famine. From the mere fact that in future such measures are not to be financed entirely from the Famine Fund, but also from general revenues it does not follow that we shall not incur the expenditure which is necessary for famine preventive measures.

Then the complaint has been made by more than one honourable member that in flood affected areas not only the whole revenue of the year is being levied, but even suspended arrears are being collected. The only case that has come to the notice of Government is that of certain villages in the South Daskroi taluka. There, according to the rule, the annewari of the village being 9 annas, that is to say, more than 8 annas, the collection of half the arrears of the previous year was being enforced. However, the Commissioner investigated the matter, and in eleven out of ten villages he ordered that, although the valuation was 9 annas and more, no collection of arrears should be made. As regards the remaining 3 villages there was ample reason for enforcing the collection of arrears. Practically the entire area of the village had been cultivated with rice, which had not suffered at all but had given the full normal crop. The dry crop area was altogether insignificant in comparison with the total cultivated area of the village. In their case he ordered that the rule regarding the recovery of arrears should be enforced. But at the same time he decided that no arrears of tagavi should be collected, and he also drew the attention of the Collector to the fact that non-recovery of arrears of land revenue could be ordered in individual cases of hardships.

There are several other points which I should have liked to refer but, I am afraid that the Honourable the President, who has already warned me that I am exceeding the time limit, will not allow me further time.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I find that there are a number of honourable members who wish to speak. To-day is the last day of the discussion. Much time will be taken up if I still allow 20 minutes for each member. I think a good deal of the time of the House will be saved if honourable members do not repeat arguments and points which have already been dealt with, so that the remaining members who wish to speak may have an opportunity to take their chance. I would, therefore, request honourable members to confine themselves strictly to fresh points which they wish to place before the House.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI (Belgaum District) : Sir, I am not surprised at the financial condition of this Government as it appears from the budget; nor do I hope that it will be satisfactory for some years to come. (An Honourable Member : Pessimism.) I am not pessimistic. That is the conclusion I have come to after going through carefully the budgets that have been presented to this House during the last three or four years. The situation is very grave and its gravity will be appreciated if we compare the figures during the last 10 years. I take the years from 1917-18 to 1926-27, because the accounts for these years are available, while those for 1927-28 are not available. Further because, it was the year 1917 when the announcement about the reforms was made in the British House of Commons. Since then, it will be noticed, our revenue has increased by Rs. 3·80 crores and our expenditure by Rs. 7·29 crores. At the Financial Conference at Simla in 1919 normal figures were laid down for the reformed Government and, calculated by the standard of these normal figures we see an increase of revenue by Rs. 2·32 crores and an increase of expenditure by Rs. 5·25 crores. This shows that our principle and policy of expenditure are not guided by the sources of income. Our sources of income have remained the same or slightly increased while the expenditure has gone up by leaps and bounds. This is directly against sound canons of public finance. The second point I wish to place before the House is with regard to the working balance. It has been laid down in the same Simla conference of 1919 that the normal balance for this presidency ought to be 2 crores of rupees. That figure has been accepted and the Finance Department itself has repeatedly maintained in this House that the working balance should not go down below Rs. 2 crores. But to-day we find that our working balance is only Rs. 72,00,000 at the close of the year 1927-28. The year 1928-29 is to close with the working balance of Rs. 7,00,000 only. Well, Sir, if this is the state of things, I do not know how our financial position can be improved. We have numerous demands from the public to meet; and there are heavy commitments to be discharged. Even supposing that the House passes the two money bills I am unable to see how the financial position is going to be improved at all. I therefore suggest that some expert financiers should be appointed to investigate the question.

Now, Sir, I come to the question of reserved and transferred departments. I should like to say that what the Honourable the Minister for Local Self-Government told us does not seem to be quite true. For the reserved departments the expenditure charged to revenue in 1921-22 was Rs. 8·67 crores and in the year 1926-27 it was Rs. 9·69 crores.....

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : May I rise to a point of explanation, Sir ? I never referred to the figures for 1921-22, as my honourable friend says. I took the figures for 1920-21.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI : That is all right. In the year 1919 there was no such thing as reserved and transferred departments. The division of the Departments into Reserved and Transferred came into force from the year 1921-22. In the reserved departments during the last five years the expenditure has increased by one crore. In the transferred departments, what is the condition ? In the year 1921-22 the expenditure charged to revenue was rupees Rs. 5,60,52,000 and in the year 1926-27 it was Rs. 5,58,96,000. That is to say, less by one and a half lakhs than what it was. Let me tell the House that the amount given in 1921-22 for the transferred departments has not even been reached till now. The reserved departments as a whole receive one crore more than they received in 1921-22, while the transferred departments have received less—I find the Honourable the Finance Member shaking his head, but I would refer him to pages 8 and 10 of the Blue Books for 1927-28 and 1928-29 respectively where the figures are given and ask him to compare for himself. Further, there has been an increase in the revenue since the inception of the reforms to the extent of about 2½ crores. Where does that increase go ? How much of that increase has been received by the transferred departments ? This is a question which I put to Government and I want an answer. Are Government prepared to say that there has been no increase in revenue at all ? If they admit that there has been an increase in revenue, I want to know what portion of that increase has gone to the transferred departments and what portion to the reserved departments.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Sir, may I say a word of explanation ?

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI : I would not allow.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Sir, the honourable member is making misstatements.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI : Sir, I am quoting from figures supplied by Government. However, I shall allow the Honourable Minister to give his explanation.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : The honourable member will notice that even taking 1921-22, as he has done, under Education the increase has been from 1,73 lakhs in 1921-22 to 2,09 lakhs in 1928-29, that means an increase of 36 lakhs. That is under only one nation-building department. Under Public Health, the increase is from 29 lakhs to 30 lakhs. The expenditure under Agriculture in 1921-22 was 30 lakhs ; to-day it is 29 lakhs ; then, under Medical, the increase has been from 46 lakhs to 54 lakhs.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI : Sir, this is no explanation and, the Honourable Minister is only anticipating me by taking departments to which I am myself going to refer.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member has only five minutes left.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI: Well, Sir, in the same period of five years, to which the Honourable Minister just now alluded, the figures show that expenditure under Irrigation decreased by 23·2 per cent., under Public Health by 31 per cent., under Agriculture by 10 per cent. Under Education, I admit, and also under Medicine, according to the figures in page xii, there has been a slight increase. But at the same time there has been greater increase in expenditure under Excise, General Administration and Administration of Justice. Further, these figures are not the net figures; if we compare the net figures, the differentiation will be still clearer. The net figures are given by the Accountant General for the years 1921-22 to 1924-25. According to those net figures, it will be seen that in General Administration the increase has been by 82 per cent. Interest has increased by 134 per cent; and Education increased only by 5·8 per cent. But now, let us look at the net figures of the other departments for which the Honourable the Minister for Local Self-Government quoted his figures. According to the net figures worked out by the Accountant General and quoted in the Reports and the Proceedings of the Public Accounts Committee for 1924-25, Medical has decreased by 2 per cent., Public Health by 67 per cent., Agriculture by 14 per cent. and Industries by more than thousand per cent.

Sir, as this is the state of things, the whole situation has got to be investigated and examined.

If I were to sit down after saying so much, I shall only be considered as having said something destructive. I should like to suggest one thing. I have already suggested that a thorough investigation is necessary. My another suggestion is that there is still some room, although to a very slight extent, for retrenchment without impairing efficiency. I know that retrenchment by itself does not go far, but in some cases there is still room for it. In the Police Department for example, since the organisation of sub-divisions in the districts, the post of the Inspector seems to be unnecessary. There is the Sub-Inspector, then the Inspector, and, then again, the Deputy Superintendent or the Assistant Superintendent. And above all of these there is the Superintendent. It is difficult even for the department to define exactly what the duties are of the Inspector, and the Deputy Superintendent or the Assistant Superintendent. It is said that the local investigating officer is the Sub-Inspector in ordinary cases, and in more serious cases the Inspector makes the investigation. But I am informed that the Deputy Superintendents or Assistant Superintendents are also entrusted with the duty of investigation into serious matters. The administrative supervising duties are now left entirely to the Superintendent. If this is the case, where is the necessity for the Inspector? I therefore think that the posts of Inspectors may be done away with. This may give some cause for complaint to the Sub-Inspectors, because their chances of promotion will be gone, but I suggest that Sub-Inspectors may be promoted to posts of Deputy Superintendents if they are competent.

[Mr. P. R. Chikodi]

Then, with regard to travelling allowance. Many officers who have to tour through two or three districts are not given permanent travelling allowance, but are allowed the ordinary travelling allowance by mileage or the length of the journey. They should be given only permanent travelling allowance.

Then, without going further into details, I would like to place before the House one more point. We should demand the salt revenue from the Government of India in addition to a share in income-tax revenue. The duty on salt has not now got the nature of customs. It has that nature in some other provinces like Bengal where salt is still imported, but in our presidency it is produced and consumed locally, and therefore the duty on it is only in the nature of pure excise. Just as we get the excise duty on liquor, similarly we must have the excise duty on salt. If this Council and the Government make a united demand, and, now that the whole constitution, including the question of adjustment of financial relations, is going to be revised, it is just possible that we will be able to secure more sources of revenue. It is no use pressing too much for retrenchment, because as a result peons, clerks and other subordinates will go and the consequence will be that not only these will suffer but the poor families dependent upon them will be ruined and the members of the Legislative Council will be bothered by them.

What I say, Sir, is that we should no longer go in for retrenchment of this nature and no substantial amount would be saved thereby. If you at all want to effect reduction you may do so in respect of the posts of Executive Councillors and Ministers.

Mr. A. C. OWEN (European Presidency): This is the fifth Budget Session it has been my lot to attend, which means that I have listened to five speeches by the Honourable the Finance Member and innumerable others by honourable members. I have hitherto refrained from joining in the discussion, because I found that many members wished to place their views before the Council, and I did not want to deprive them of the opportunity. To-day, however, I feel, I would like to say a few words, not that I have anything original to put forward, not that I have any constructive proposals to ventilate, but I would like, if possible, to dispel the clouds of pessimism which seem to have settled on some of my honourable friends.

We have heard the present budget described in various terms. It is said to be "disappointing" and "unsatisfactory," and we have been led to believe that the presidency is on the verge of bankruptcy!

If this is not mere verbiage, it seems to me that some of my honourable friends are looking at the budget through coloured glasses, for on a dispassionate study of the documents presented to this House, I do not take such a gloomy view of things. Indeed, Sir, when you consider that we have been able to meet very heavy demands on account of floods, etc., and still have fairly large balances in the Famine Fund, and when you bear in mind the splendid assets we have in our public works, in our agricultural lands, in our forests and that we have provided sinking funds to cover the Development and other loans, I venture to say that there is no fear of bankruptcy.

In regard to the Sukkur Barrage it is anticipated that the Capital receipts will more than cover the cost. In regard to the Bombay Development Scheme, the anticipated loss is amortised by the allocation of a definite sum every year from Revenue. Then again while it is admitted that next year there is to be a deficit of Rs. 41 lakhs on Development, which is a charge on Revenue, we must not forget that we expect to realise Rs. 2,00,000 on Block 8, but this latter amount appears as " Capital Receipts. "

It is true, Sir, that Government, like individuals, have their bad times, and there is no doubt that this Government has had to face a good deal of adversity of late years. There has been a long depression in trade, large schemes have been embarked on which swallow up a lot of our Revenue, the Excise and stamp revenues have fallen ; but it seems to me that it is not much good to brood over misfortunes—the wiser course is to put our shoulders to the wheel and help to put matters on a satisfactory basis. Times must change and we trust that a period of prosperity will soon return. In short, Sir, let us look on the bright side.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Sir, are the speeches allowed to be read ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : We have been doing that.

Mr. A. C. OWEN : Sir, I do not say that mistakes have not been made; I feel that they have been. The recent committees that have been enquiring into public affairs have brought many mistakes to light, and the revelations in the courts show that some of the officials have been ignorant or neglectful of their responsibilities, while some appear to have been wanting in that probity and integrity which we have a right to expect from them. What is wanted is that we should profit by our mistakes and make them stepping stones to higher things. I feel sure that Government are taking the needful steps in this direction.

There are several heads in the budget in which I am, in common with other honourable members, interested. I specially refer to Education—not only that given in schools and colleges, but agricultural and technical education—that which teaches a man to use his brains and his hands to the best advantage to himself and the community—in fact the making of a good citizen or a good workman or a good agriculturist.

And under Public Health I include good housing and good food at reasonable rates, for I realise that the manhood of the country will be of little use until it is healthy, well-fed and comfortable.

As regards " Communications " you must develop the whole of your rural areas by good roads, railways, etc., so that the produce of the country can be transported as cheaply as possible.

To do all this I know that money is required and I would propose that after providing as much as is possible from ordinary revenue, the excess amount required for the moral and material improvement of the masses should be met by a loan. I may be told that it is not sound finance to raise a loan except for productive public works, but, Sir, it seems to me that Education and Public Health are productive in the sense that you improve the status and the earning capacity of a man and he should pay for it when he comes to earn his own livelihood.

My honourable friend (from Nasik), Mr. Pradhan, has told us that he is in favour of taxation in order to provide the money for Compulsory Primary Education. If you can raise the money in this way, well and good, but the method I suggest does not throw such a heavy burden on the people of the present generation, and is therefore deserving of consideration.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: Mr. President, in the first instance, I may submit that I am very grateful to this honourable House for treating with indulgence the departments under my charge. A few criticisms have been offered as regards those departments under my charge, but before I reply to those criticisms, I wish to refer to the repeated statements which were made, and the repeated attacks made on the Honourable the Finance Member for under-feeding "transferred" departments and over-feeding the "reserved" departments.

Sir, it has been admitted on all hands that the Honourable the Finance Member is an intelligent and capable man; that he is a businessman. If he is an intelligent and capable man, then I ask "why do you not credit him with the same sentiments and feelings with which you would treat a right-minded Indian?".....

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN: Because he has associated himself with the vicious system of government.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: My honourable friend, Mr. Nariman, remarks that it is so, because he has associated himself with the system. But I may assure this honourable House that whenever any demands for the "transferred" departments are made, he is anxious to meet those demands. He is as anxious as others to see the nation-building departments properly maintained and properly nursed. I may inform this honourable House that although he is holding the portfolio, in a reserved department he is not forgetful of the "transferred" departments. With this assurance, Sir, I shall now refer to the criticisms that were offered against my departments.

The first remark fell from my honourable friend, Mr. Swaminarayan. I was surprised to hear that remark. He said: "How the Government is able to know how much liquor is consumed in the Indian States territories?" I may inform him that all the Indian States territories are supplied with liquor from our own distilleries and we, therefore, know how much we have supplied and how much is consumed. Every three years we take account of the liquor that is consumed in a particular territory. We calculte the revenue upon that basis and then there is a readjustment over the contract terms. The other item is called "gain" on liquor. The way in which we calculate the amount was explained by me to the Finance Committee and I shall explain it now to this honourable House.

Supposing the cost of country liquor to this Government is X, the selling price which we charge to the shopkeepers or to the persons in the Indian States is X plus Y, and Y represents the gain which we get on liquor which is consumed in the Indian States territories. The Indian States territories whose excise rights have been purchased by this Government, naturally claim that " you do not allow us to distil our own liquor ; you sell your own liquor and that, too, at a price which enables you to make a profit over it. Then, really, that profit which you make on liquor consumed within our own boundaries is a profit which legitimately belongs to us. " So, they claim what is known as " Gain on liquor ". So, when my honourable friend, Mr. Swaminarayan, told this House that even though there are territories where no liquor is consumed, Government is actually paying them compensation, I do not know whence he gets this information.

Then, I am thankful to my honourable friend from Nasik for making a suggestion. He said : " Please explore other avenues, for instance, forest revenue ; you will be able to do it. " At the same time, my honourable friend from Poona, Mr. Gunjal, levelled some criticisms over the forest administration. Now, I read something about the time when this forest department came into existence. It is a mistake to suppose that the interests of the Forest Department are antagonistic to the interests of the Agricultural Department. The forests, as this House knows, are not the property solely of this generation ; they are the property of the generations to come. No generation can claim that it is their sole property. It has got to be preserved not only for the benefit of this generation, but also for the benefit of the future generations. So, the Forest Department is started with this object in view, that not only should the property be preserved, but it should be so managed that it should yield adequate revenue. My honourable friend suggested that fresh avenues should be explored, and I am thankful to him for that, as I said. But also, in the first place, let me tell this House that this Government in the current year got about Rs. 1,60,000 for the grass lands in the Poona District which were used by the Military Department for nothing. The Military Department for years together were enjoying these lands without paying anything, and the Secretary of State ruled that every Government utilising the property of other Governments shall continue to hold those lands upon the same terms on which they held them at the time the reforms were introduced. Fortunately for this Government, there was a paper transaction every year by which these kurans were handed over to this Government in April and again retaken in June. So, naturally this Government contended that there was practically a break of possession and there was a fresh lease every time, and so we are entitled to claim compensation. And not only are we entitled to claim compensation, but we are entitled to claim anything that we like from the date that the reforms came into force. We successfully contended this with the result that this Government got Rs. 1,60,000 for past arrears and will get Rs. 28,000 annually from the grass kurans in the Poona District alone. There are also other grass kurans in Belgaum and Ahmednagar. Naturally, the Government of India contend that "unless you satisfy us that there was a similar break of possession as in the case of Poona, we are not bound to give you any enhanced rent." That question is being explored. I may also tell my honourable friend from Nasik and other honourable friends here that, before timber is brought to the market, you have got to spend upon it. You have to construct roads; you have to construct railways. And plans are being made; roads are being constructed. But, first, you have got to spend and then you will reap the benefit of the expenditure which you are incurring. My honourable friend Mr. Deshpande complained that the money which is being spent on roads and railways for forests should be charged to capital. He rightly contended that, but there are certain rules which are made by the Secretary of State according to which, unless an amount, which is less than Rs. 5 lakhs, is able to show profit immediately as a commercial transaction, it cannot be charged to capital.....

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI: Can that rule not be got changed?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: Yes, I am coming to that. Now, these forest roads really ought to be charged to capital, because they are made for exploring our forests which are going to bring us a revenue. But immediately we cannot show a gain. The moment the roads are constructed, there will be no gain. It will take some years before the road is ready. Then also you have to spend money for other purposes. Working plans have to be made, the forest has to be cut and the timber has to be brought to the market. So, it takes time. So, though our forest wealth is extensive, this wealth can be developed gradually and the timber from the several forests can be brought to the market by the construction of new roads. So, the moment this honourable House sees that there is more expenditure on forests, that need not frighten the House, because you will get three or four times the amount which you are actually spending.

Then, my honourable friend Mr. Gunjal,—he is not in his seat,—complained of certain privileges which were not given and which were claimed by the minority committee at the time of the Forest Grievances Enquiry Committee's report. But he did not refer to the several advantages which have been given by the Resolution that was issued in July 1927. There are certain difficulties. He claimed that the grazing fee should be reduced. But at the same time, this honourable House will note that as regards grazing, now for the same fee the whole district is made a unit, not a particular village. Then, as regards small cattle they are being exempted. These are the different privileges which are given and what privileges are given to the ryots now is made clear in the Government Resolution. That Government Resolution is being translated, as I said last time, and every man in this presidency will know exactly what his own rights are. There are, of course, other grievances, which are still under consideration, and I do admit that there is a representation from the Presidency Association, which is under the consideration of Government. It has been recently received by Government. But, as far as possible, those rights which were considered and conceded, were immediately given. Then, as regards further rights which could be given, Government will consider them and they will be given. As regards the insufficiency of grazing land, information is being collected and also ways and means are being found to increase the grazing plots where they are found to be insufficient.

Then, as regards agriculture, it was pointed out that more money ought to be spent and one or two of my honourable friends asked me as to what I have done as regards the killing of insect pest, and the removing of the insect pest. Now, Mr. President, honourable members themselves know that this year there is a deficit. They are complaining that there is no money, and yet if no such funds are coming forward for objects which are really at the heart of Government, still they are asking Government why that money is not coming forward. Now, I have visited two or three agricultural shows, and what I found was that by improving the Kolamba seed the output of the land is increased nearly 30 per cent. in rice areas ; in the Thana and Kolaba Districts and, similarly, in cotton areas there has been improvement in the quality and an increase in output.

We would like to put as much money as it is possible to get into the improvement of agriculture because agriculture is the main industry of this country, but unfortunately there is a great loss under the head Excise. I will take a separate opportunity of explaining to this honourable House as to how much revenue we have actually lost and whether it is possible or not to counterbalance it in some other direction. So, I submit, Sir, that these were the only criticisms so far as I was able to gather from the speeches of the honourable members which were levelled at my departments, but there was a pessimistic note everywhere. I must remind this honourable House that after all we are human beings, that mistakes are bound to occur and that it is for the honourable House to point out those mistakes.....

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN : Point out the mistakes and get prosecuted for doing so ? (Laughter.)

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : Censure us in your wisdom, but study the facts and figures carefully before, that you may better judge. Of course, the road is long and weary ; we may stumble as sometimes we must ; I invite their hand of co-operation to help us not to spurn us, to guide us, not to mislead us. My request to this honourable House, Mr. President, is that it is for them to offer constructive criticism, it is for them to show where we are erring, it is for them to remember that we are not infallible. I would beg them not to offer merely destructive criticism, because such criticism will not help one way or the other. So my submission to this honourable House is that, as the accredited representatives of the people, they are here to represent the grievances of the people, they are here to advise and guide us, and I assure them that any advice which comes from them will be absolutely welcome. But there need not be a pessimistic tone ringing through their speeches.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District) : Sir, after my entering this Bombay Legislative Council this is the fifth occasion on which I enjoy the privilege to-day of speaking on the general discussion of the budget of this enlightened and forward presidency of the country. I remember to have said in my first speech on the budget in 1924 that budgets satisfactory to the people of the presidency cannot be framed however intelligent and expert the Finance Member may be, unless and until the constitution of this Government is changed for the better. The present constitution we believe is faulty and injurious to the rights of the people. We have found by experience that the system of this Government is pernicious and it is this pernicious system that we want to put an end to. We have observed with great dejection that the change of the colour of the skin of the Finance Member does not bring results satisfactory to the people as the Finance Member has to perform his dance in a chalked-out plan in a compound the limits of which are fixed by Government. The position of the Finance Member is awkward and it is really more awkward when the Finance Member is an Indian, as he has to carry out the policy chalked out by Government, he has to please the people of the country and he has to satisfy his own conscience. Generally speaking, under the present constitution even a patriotic Indian Finance Member is not in a position to manage things to the satisfaction of the people of this presidency on all occasions, but in times of adversities and distress and when the people are under great calamities and famine and flood, an Indian Finance Member with patriotic feelings for the country and sympathetic attitude for his countrymen proves more useful and kind.

Though the budget, which is under discussion, is unsatisfactory and disappointing, I come forward to congratulate the Honourable the Finance Member. I heartily do so but my reasons are quite different from those of other honourable members for this action. Sir, some years back I remember, when the non-co-operation movement was in full swing, I was discussing certain important points with one of the district officers of my district, and I then said to him "your Government budget is nothing else but a form of jugglery." To this he replied very seriously saying "Mr. Mukadam, know it for certain that no nation is fit to rule without expert jugglers to frame the budget" (Laughter.) I now realise the real meaning of that reply. I congratulate most heartily Sir Chunilal Mehta, the Honourable the Finance Member, the expert juggler of the Bombay Presidency (Laughter) for proving to the world that even in an administrative capacity we, Indians, are second to none. Place an Indian anywhere and he is bound to go to the top.

This side of the House has so often brought to the notice of official members and repeatedly requested Government to manage to send copies of the budget so as to reach the honourable members at least fifteen days before the presentation of the budget. Unfortunately, all our requests have proved in vain. This indifference on the part of Government shows nothing else but narrow-mindedness on the part of officials. I think the non-officials are perfectly justified in demanding a breathing time from the Government to go through the budget if they honestly want us to make honest criticisms and concrete suggestions.

Sir, I have got some standing grievances of my district which I wish to put before this honourable House for favourable consideration. These grievances are of such a nature that they cannot be narrated before this House at any other time but at the time of the general discussion of the budget. In various ways my poor and backward district is unjustly treated by almost all the departments of Government. If patient hearing is offered to me, I will narrate the grievances in brief as I am sure every one of the honourable members of this House will be convinced of the facts and of the justification for us to raise a voice in this House.

Sir, to the great misfortune of the people of Panch Mahals, my district is considered by Government a fit place as a training ground for new officials to get experience and every new official is sent to Panch Mahals for obtaining experience and training. Officials without experience come to my district to command and rule over the people and go away to other districts to serve when they are trained and have obtained experience. Owing to this arrangement our people do not get advantage of the experienced and trained officers. This grievance is great but greater is the grievance which I now narrate. Government send, as a mark of punishment, to my district, officers and servants who are unfit, disobedient and corrupt. In short, it would not be too much to say that this unfortunate district is practically ruled by such people. I hope Government will listen to the voice of the people and do the needful to redress their grievance.

I wanted to say something about the bungling of the Back Bay Reclamation and the Development Department, but to save time for others, I will do it when the department comes for discussion before this House. When I remember the Development Department, I cannot help congratulating our Council comrade, Mr. Nariman, the hero of Back Bay Reclamation, for successfully proving his case and exposing the Government. Regular readers of the Harvey-Nariman case might be knowing how every day shameful stories of bribes and black deeds were coming out in the court from the mouths of several witnesses. After this exposure of the Development Department I was very keenly searching the columns of the " Times of India " every day for black-bordered news, as I thought, after this exposure, some of the men concerned in the affairs of the department may commit suicide for the sake of self-respect and shame. I am glad nothing of the sort has happened and all are safe to see what steps Government is going to take to set an example to other departments. I hope the honourable member Mr. Nariman will, on suitable occasions, in the Council throw more light on the previous history of the Development drama, and put before the people how and why this monster scheme has come into existence and how the speculators were enriched.

Looking to the budget, Sir, we see considerable increase in the expenditure of the police. The Police Department is the department which should not be spared under any circumstances from the bitter bullets of criticism. I would like to know definitely from the Government, as a representative of the people, whether this increase in the expenditure is made because the police is insufficient or the police is inefficient.

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : Will the honourable member allow me to say that there is no increase ? There is an apparent increase owing to a change in the arrangement of the budget ; there is actually a decrease.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM : Sir, I have observed and experienced and with great regret I declare that the police in the mofussil is inefficient, and they are not used for the purposes for which they are meant. The chief work of the police now-a-days has become to harass the public workers, to threaten the supporters of national feelings, to try to create divisions and sub-divisions in the cities and districts, to watch the movements of political workers, to attend meetings and send exaggerated reports of public activities, to go to prominent men and public workers to get information as to how many guests they have entertained and their whereabouts, to go to the station and note down what public men have left the place and where they are going, and in short to try to put down any sort of activity that would bring public or national spirit in the people. I find the police are perfectly indifferent to the cases of thefts, dacoities, loot, burglaries, badmashism, assault, etc. In villages, and particularly in the villages of the backward districts, it pains me much to say that the police, instead of proving a protection to the people, have actually sucked the blood of the poor. An ordinary constable of the police thana in the village behaves like a tyrant king and a luxurious lord of the land. He harasses the people in any way he likes ; he creates in villages such a panic that the most respectable merchants even dance attendance on him to satisfy his whims. Unfortunately, Government have given paramount power to the police, and to our utter regret they are misusing the power. Sir, I have got a number of instances of my district in my record to prove that the Police Department have proved a terror to the people. Sir, when we take these cases of police harassment to the high officials of the district, I have seen that they feel themselves in a fix. They understand the situation and get themselves convinced of the facts inwardly, but false departmental prestige stands in the way and keeps them at a distance from justice. Sir, I admit we do require sufficient police for our protection, as this Government have made us so weak, meek and feeble as to make us depend for self-protection on others. Even under the present circumstances, I would like to know from Government whether they are prepared to give us a guarantee for the protection of the poor and the weak and the protection of property. Sir, glaring instances of thefts committed just near the police chowkies at Godhra, the capital of my district, are still standing before my eyes, as fresh as they were before. If proper and strict and impartial supervision is kept, I think everything would come to a proper position.

Now, Sir, I touch the most delicate question, and that is the system of land revenue. The system of land revenue of this Government is faulty, defective and troublesome. It works very hard upon the poor agriculturist. Experienced men like the honourable member for Kaira (Rao Saheb Dadubhai Desai) and the honourable member for Surat (Mr. Shivdasani) have so often suggested various methods for the improvement of the system, to make it advantageous to the people. Representatives of the people of different districts and constituencies have requested Government times without number to make a considerable change in the existing land revenue system, but no attention is paid to them. It seems Government have decided to stand stern in this matter of vital importance—a matter on the strength of which the whole Government stands and moves. The bureaucracy, in this question, have become so proud and pedantic that any valuable suggestions by men of experience, position, prestige and responsibility are thrown in the waste paper basket.

Sir, I think it is my duty, as a councillor of Gujarat, to draw the attention of this Government to what is going on at Bardoli in the Surat district. I believe Government must be now in possession of the facts and figures regarding the Bardoli Satyagraha through their secret and open agencies. But I am not going to take up the time of the House by repeating what my honourable friend from Surat has said about Bardoli. I stand here to sound seriously a note of warning to this Government. I think I am in the right when I say that Government have committed the greatest blunder in driving the people of Bardoli to offer Satyagraha. Sir, it is not yet too late to mend matters. I know the strength of this Government. They wholly and solely believe in brute force and depend much on the batteries and bayonets of their soldiers. But, Sir, remember my words, that the discontent of the people has brought mighty powers to their knees. Sir, I would request Government not to unnecessarily tease the people of Gujarat. I believe if Government do not show the least inclination of a reasonable attitude in this mater, the workers of different parties and of different views, forgetting their differences, will muster strong at Bardoli under the banner of Mr. Vallabhbhai Patel to fight the cause of the agriculturists.

Major W. ELLIS JONES : Sir, the budget of the Bombay Presidency has been presented and the Honourable, Sir Chunilal, the Finance Member has earned the sympathy and appreciation of this House, for his efforts to present to the presidency a budget which will balance, in spite of the floods which affected the presidency and of a year in which trade has been poor and depressed. But, Sir, the Cotton Trade is disappointed that Sir Chunilal, neither, in his introductory speech, nor, in the Blue

[Major W. Ellis Jones]

Book, gave any indication, any hint as to when that most inequitable tax, the Town Duty of one rupee per bale on cotton was going to be removed, or if not removed, at least reduced. The honourable the Finance Secretary in the Blue Book in reducing the estimate of the receipts from this tax, calmly states that the reduction is due to trade depression. Sir, I have to state that the tax is responsible for the depression and I would ask the Finance Department to go into this question.

Sir, the tax is inequitable in its incidence, for instance cotton from Bengal is taxed at the rate to-day of one rupee per 150 rupees of value, whilst cotton from Nawsari is taxed at one rupee per 230 rupees of value.

The Cotton Textile Enquiry Committee under Mr. Noyce recommended that at least half the tax as levied on local mills should be refunded but this, Sir, does not go far enough. The Port Trust in a memorandum on the falling off in the trade of the Port of Bombay in 1926 state as the first cause " the terminal tax of one rupee per bale on cotton " and they state further that one of the remedies, in fact " the first remedy beyond their own control," " the replacement of the terminal tax on cotton " and its replacement by some more equitable from of " taxation."

Sir, since this tax was first levied, the Government had received from the Cotton Trade in nine years over 2¼ crores of rupees. When the tax was levied it was for the benefit of housing the industrial portion of the population. Sir, the total cost of the Housing Scheme is not four crores, so that the Trade has more than paid its quota, but by a system of accounts we find that the sum taken from the Cotton Trade barely suffices for interest on the Housing Schemes. Sir, is it right that the Cotton Trade should house all citizens of Bombay ? Further from the Blue Books we find that from this tax other schemes were financed. Under these circumstances, I would ask on behalf of the Cotton Trade that as soon as possible, this encumbrance be removed.

When this tax was levied things were booming in the Cotton Trade. To-day they are depressed. Every anna must be accounted for and as a result of this tax many sources of revenue to the Government are to-day being closed, cotton is diverted to other ports, cotton being held up-country, so that the sums which we would be receiving in Bombay for handling this commodity are lost to this City and I hope that the Honourable, the Finance Member will give some hope to the cotton trade that whilst circumstances do not to-day warrant the removal or reduction of this tax, he will give some assurance that this tax will sooner or later be abolished before the damage to the trade is irretrievable..

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN (Bombay City, South): Sir, I stand here with great hesitation and reluctance to go through the annual formality of the criticism of the budget. I think that this kind of criticism would not do any benefit either to the Government side or to the non-official side. I find that extreme indifference is exhibited, instead of enthusiasm, by the non-official side, which is not surprising to me. This indifference is not due to the fact that members are not alive to their sense of responsibility or that they they do not realise the importance of the subject. As my honourable friend Mr. Mukadam put it, the members have become so sorely disappointed at not seeing any chance of improving matters by their efforts that they have as a last resort become indifferent. As my honourable friend Mr. Mukadam said, this is the fifth or sixth time that I am standing before this House trying to offer my suggestions. It has been our sad experience that the suggestions that we have made and the criticism that we have offered have absolutely fallen on deaf years and the time and trouble we have taken in going through these volume is a waste of private time of the members as well as the time of this House. Still we take this opportunity of offering a few general criticism not with a view to improve matters, because it is beyond redemption but simply to ventilate our grievances. That is the only object with which I rise. Last year when the Honourable the Finance Member presented the budget, although it was disappointing, there was excuse, because that was the first year he presented the budget. We hoped with a little more time and a little more experience during a period of 12 months, he would be able to make a better presentation. This year we have had the presentation of the budget. I personally never anticipated for a better state of affairs and so I am not at all disappointed. If the Honourable Sir Chunilal Mehta, who, as my honourable friend Mr. Mukadam described, belongs to a community that is well known for its business sagacity and for its adeptness in accountancy and economy, is not able to improve the financial situation of this presidency then I repeat again the situation is absolutely hopeless.

Now, I will deal with the financial situation so far as this presidency is concerned. If we look at the figures we cannot imagine where we are drifting. It is not only the financial position of the Government of Bombay : but look at all the important institutions directly or indirectly under the control of this Government. It presents the same tragic picture everywhere. Look at the budget of Bombay corporation, the Improvement Trust and the Bombay Port Trust. Everywhere the same tragic picture, the same stereotyped picture, enormous liabilities enormous sinking funds and deficits—the same stereotyped affair everywhere. When we seek to know the causes, those who are responsible try to evade the real causes. They attribute it to some superhuman causes and shift the responsibility on something else, such as the general trade depression or unfavourable climatic condition and other excuses. The authors of this tragedy try to shift the responsibility to some natural causes over which they have no control. If we try to go into the causes we find that we cannot exonerate the members on the official benches ; and that these causes attributed to by them do not stand. The present condition may partly be due to a small extent to natural causes, but it is very remote. We have to consider the other causes which have reduced this presidency to a state of absolute bankruptcy. No one should delude himself with the causes put forward by Government benches. But we have to examine and find out whether these causes exist in this presidency or all over this country and the other parts of the world. We know that there is trade depression all over the world. At least in this country, you cannot differentiate between this presidency from the sister presidency of Bengal in regard to trade depression.

The same is the case with regard to climatic conditions. The same condition prevails all over the country. If these are the causes leading to financial disruption and financial calamity, we should expect the same state of things in other presidencies, because there is no difference so far as the system of administration is concerned, method of administration is concerned, and even so far as the kind of persons responsible for the administration is concerned. In these respects the state of affairs is practically the same. Why is it, then, that this presidency alone has been drifting into this position, whereas other presidencies similarly administered are not ? Sir, I think the Finance Secretary cannot contradict the fact that the outstanding feature of the financial condition of this presidency is that this presidency is the most heavily taxed presidency in the country and has got the heaviest debt of all the presidencies. All the other provinces of India put together do not have as much debt charges as this presidency. These are facts which the Finance Secretary cannot contradict, because you cannot juggle with facts, you may juggle with figures here and there. Neither the Finance Secretary nor the Finance Member dare deny that this presidency is the most heavily taxed presidency and has the heaviest debt charges. Still, if we look to the condition of the people—this state of affairs can only be justified if in proportion the comforts, conveniences and amenities of the people have improved —if we look to the condition of the people, can even the best advocate of the Government of Bombay tell the people that the condition of the people of this presidency is in any way better than the condition of the people in other presidencies of India ? If you examine the condition of the people very closely—honourable members coming from the districts will tell you— the condition of the farmers of this presidency is not a jot better. If you go into their economic condition, they are in much worse condition than people in other parts of India. Then, what is the justification for this presidency incurring an enormous amount of debt and inflicting such heavy taxation without giving any return, return in the sense of comforts, convenience and happiness to the people of this presidency ?

Now, I will refer to the real reasons for this state of affairs, I know the Honourable Member (the General Member) may say that I have a peculiar bias or prejudice in my mind in regard to his department. But I earnestly state, and state with all my responsibility, that the only difference between this presidency and other presidencies, so far as their financial affairs are concerned, is the one which has been referred to only very cursorily by various speakers, namely that this presidency is the only presidency which suffered the development craze, whereas other presidencies were exempt from it. That is the only difference we find between the affairs of the other presidencies and this presidency. I would not attribute the financial calamity of this presidency entirely to that cause, but it certainly began with that, and I think it has been developing with the Development Department. I ask honourable members to consider the position from that standpoint and not consider that the criticisms I make come from a very biassed mind. I do clearly believe that the difficulties of this presidency started with the starting of the Development Department, and they are going to develop more and more until we do not know where they are going to lead us to. As regards this budget also I am going to point out how this Development Department is affecting the finances of the presidency, but before I do so, I want to ask honourable members who have presented the budget to say if they have been fair to this side of the House and if they have placed before us all the cards. Or is it all a jugglery of figures ? Every year I have been asking and I ask this year also, where is the Auditor General's report for the year which we are considering, where are the Accountant General's remarks ? The Finance Committee that is sitting is sitting only to consider accounts affecting amounts already spent without any capacity of saving a rupee. But apart from this report which may come in due course, have they placed all facts and figures before the honourable House after considering which only the honourable House can pass judgment ? We know it—and I am in a better position now to state that than before that only such facts and figures are brought before the House as suit the Honourable the Finance Member or other Honourable Members. Those facts and figures from their own records and books they will not produce, which are detrimental either to their prestige or to their position. I can point out several instances of facts and figures which in the ordinary course should have been before the House for its consideration before passing a judgment, but which have not been placed before the House deliberately. Now, Sir, you will remember that for the last so many years I have been, clamouring—and clamouring in this one direction only so far as I am concerned—I have been clamouring in the wilderness to turn your attention to the Development Department. The wound which has been injuring this presidency you will find there ; it is that wound that has to be healed. My honourable friend the Minister just now stated " Offers of constructive criticism we are prepared to have ; do not offer destructive criticism ; offer some constitutional agitation ; we are prepared to have it." I wish to ask the Honourable Minister, who has given us a bit of advice, what has been the position of a constitutional agitator and a constructive critic like myself. So far as the Development Department is concerned, I will ask my worst enemy in this House, or outside whether he could charge me with having ever offered any destructive criticism, having ever travelled beyond constitutional limits of agitation. I tried every means that the constitution gave me to have an enquiry started into the affairs of the Development Department. What was the demand of the House from 1924 ? It was merely to enquire into the affairs of the Development Department. The demand was addressed to those who were responsible for wasting—no, I would not say wasting, but spending—for spending 30 crores of rupees. It was merely a demand for enquiry into the affairs of the Development Department

[Mr. K. F. Nariman]

[Mr. K. F. Nariman]

It was a very constitutional move ; a formal resolution was moved in the House ; it was debated and passed although honourable members on the other side of the House tried to canvas as many votes as possible. Yet what was the fate of that resolution ? What was the fate of that constitutional agitation ; what became of the constitutional agitator ? The Honourable Member in charge, under instructions or otherwise, stated that there was nothing to be enquired into, everything was all right ; it was merely a political stunt of the Swarajists ; it was merely playing to the gallery.

In 1923 when we asked for an enquiry to be made into the Development Department affairs, we were refused to have that enquiry. The Honourable Member declared to this honourable House that there was nothing to be enquired into. That was the compliment received by the agitators—the constitutional agitators—at the hands of the responsible members of Government. But I may submit, Sir, that at the same time, when the non-official members were asking for an enquiry, a tussel was going on in the secret chambers of the Government themselves over the Development Department. This was going on between the Deputy Financial Adviser appointed by the Government of India and the Officer in charge of the Department. If that is the case, it is not unnatural that the agitation would go on outside this House. In 1923 the Deputy Financial Adviser appointed by the Government of India was clamouring for the bad state of affairs of the department. He knew the records of the Government, but the public outside, without knowing the private records of Government, were also clamouring for an enquiry and still no heed has been paid to their demand. In this connection, Sir, I will refer to a few documents—documents which the Government cannot now controvert. They have been produced before the public and I think there is now no objection to refer to those documents. You will find, Sir, that in 1923 the Deputy Financial Adviser stated that he was disgusted with the state of affairs prevailing in the Development Department. He, therefore, sent in a memorandum, practically an ultimatum—in which he described the state of affairs of the Development Department as " intolerable." He stated further that " unless the affairs of the department have been improved, we cannot pull on further." That is the memorandum which was submitted by a responsible officer of Government. That was the situation in 1923, so far as that particular department was concerned. There is no such irresponsible department as the Development existing in this country as well as in any other country in the world. In that department all the rules and regulations and even the Government Resolutions passed in this honourable House are not observed. All these rules are not, it seems, applicable to this department in particular. All the officers in this department, who were expected to report the best way in which this department can be managed, were only mindful of one fact, and that is how to increase the loans and private profits.

Now, Sir, when the attention of the Government was drawn to this state of affairs by their own responsible officer, Government did not take any notice of that fact. Government knew that there was something wrong with the department, and still when the non-official members asked for an enquiry, Government bluntly told them " the affairs of the Development Department are all right, there is nothing wrong." Sir, I would refer my honourable friend (the Honourable Sir Cowasji Jehangir) to the memorandum, dated July 1923, received by Government from the Deputy Financial Adviser. In that memorandum he has criticised the persistence of the executive officers of the Development Department in purchasing stores locally in contravention of the standing orders....

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: Will my honourable friend tell me what that document is about ?

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN: It is with regard to purchase of stores. Therefore, I say, Sir, I say deliberately that the Government members are directly responsible for all the losses of the Development Department. I would not in any way hold them responsible for this before 1924. But after that time,—after the attention of Government was drawn to the state of affairs in the Department—I submit that they are wholly responsible for the losses. The Government members knew that there was something wrong with the department and still they refused to grant the request of this honourable House for a public enquiry. If they had allowed to hold public enquiry into the affairs of this department, I am sure a large amount would have been saved. The Government wanted to save their prestige by not holding an enquiry, but ultimately they were not able to save that prestige. Their prestige has already gone. If they had granted an enquiry, at least they would have been able to save public funds. But now they have lost both.

Government members knew the state of affairs, and therefore they were trying to evade answers to questions put from this side of the House. Sometimes Government members were making statements in this House, which we were asked to take as gospel truth. If any honourable member were to say that he did not believe in the statements made by Government members, I am sure he would have at once been pulled by the Chair. But now what do we find ? We find that those " gospel truths " have now turned out to be " satanic lies." (Laughter). Not only this House knows but people outside this House also know that some statements made about the Development Department were not true at all. That is the position, Sir, of the constitutional agitation which I may show, with due deference to my friend, the Honourable Minister (the Honourable Mr. G. B. Pradhan), who is a strong student of constitutional agitation. (Laughter.) That position, I may submit, drives a constitutional agitator to an unconstitutional agitation. So, you will observe, Sir, that all our efforts of constitutional agitation have failed. Our demand for a public enquiry into the affairs of the Development Department had nothing to do with any agitation of the political nature ; it had nothing to do with the Swaraj Party or any other party. It was simply because we wanted to save public funds, which were wasted over a department without any chance of success.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member has already exceeded his time-limit by a few minutes. At any rate I may tell him that he cannot go on after 4 o'clock, when the House has to adjourn for tea.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN: Sir, I shall now take only three minutes to finish my speech. I know I shall get several other opportunities to speak on this particular subject. But, Sir, looking to the budget, what do we observe? We find that Rs. 50 lakhs have been estimated in the current year's budget to feed this white elephant. Mind, Sir, Rs. 50 lakhs every year has to be spent after this item. Is it not waste of public money, when there is starvation in the country? Of course, the Honourable Ministers will not feel this because they are receiving fat salaries and they would not feel starvation. (Laughter.)

I, therefore, appeal to the Honourable the Finance Member as well as the other honourable members of this House to turn their attention to the right direction and try to save Rs. 50 lakhs, which are annually spent after the Development Department without any ghost of chance of success. I have already exceeded my time-limit and I do not wish to go on any longer for the present.

(After recess)

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. Swearing in of new members.

Mr. W. B. Hossack then made the prescribed oath of allegiance to His Majesty the King-Emperor, and took his seat in the Council.

Dr. M. D. GILDER (Bombay City, North): Mr. President, so far, during the last few days' discussion on the budget, clouds have gathered and burst over the south end of the Government bench, where, according to the answer given to a question to-day, the members of the Cabinet in charge of the transferred departments are perpetually seated below the members of the Executive Council. Most of the clouds have burst on the head of the Honourable the Finance Member, and his imperturbability and nonchalance remind me of events more than a quarter of a century ago when we were both in college and he led our teams in the field of sport. He showed the same apparent nonchalance, but behind that nonchalance there was always a shrewd summing up of the situation and a shrewd judgment of the capabilities of the different actors on the scene.

Coming now, Sir, to the north end of the front Government bench and starting with the lowest member of the Cabinet heirarchy, according to the honourable member (the Moulvi Saheb), we were told this afternoon by that Honourable Minister not to show a mood of pessimism in our speeches. Now, can there be anything else but pessimism when during the budget debate last year, though the Honourable Minister was asked repeatedly to define his policy with regard to prohibition, he spent the time in answering minor objections and never told us anything of what he was going to do or what his efforts to carry out the policy of prohibition were to be? Then, Sir, talking of pessimism, if you look at the report of his department, can anything be more pessimistic than this ?

" The difficulties in this Presidency of enforcing prohibition are really stupendous and difficult to realise. "

There is a note of pessimism for you, Sir. Then, further on you find this sentence :

" Prohibition must come from within and not without. "

When I read that, I was not sure in my mind whether any official of a sovereign legislative body would make a remark like that, when the legislative body had definitely declared for prohibition. But what can we do ? We are not a sovereign legislative body. In the words of the music master we can hardly be called a demi-semi-demi sovereign body. Sir, if we were a sovereign legislative body, I might draw the Honourable Minister's attention to what might have happened if we were a sovereign body electing our own ministers. In the report of the Finance Committee there is a statement by one of the honourable members who says that prohibition is possible in this presidency and the cost of that will not exceed Rs. 60 lakhs. As a sovereign legislative body able to elect its own Ministers would not that body have put in that man as Minister, and not a man who would not give out his policy ?

I admit, Sir, that as regards prohibition, we have advanced far beyond what was the situation several decades ago. For instance, the Collector of Thana, when the temperance movement spread in this presidency, wrote something like this :

" Should we sit quiet and allow the movement to continue and thereby forfeit a lot of revenue, or are measures to be adopted which will bring the people to their senses ? "

Sir, so well was the lesson taught and learnt then that even to-day in the Prohibition Committee's report you see to-day a diagram and the constituency from which the Honourable Minister comes (Thana) is painted dark brown and is one of the most paying customers of the Excise Minister himself.

Sir, the rationing system introduced several years ago by the honourable gentleman who is now the Leader of the House has succeeded to certain extent, especially when there has been liberty to the licensees to practically charge whatever they like. So far as country liquor is concerned, the prohibition progress is good. But what is it as regards foreign liquor ? Can we be anything but pessimistic on that matter ? Wherever we may go, we find that the consumption of foreign liquor, and particularly of cheap foreign liquor, has increased. We must remember, Sir, that as regards country liquor the monopoly belongs to the Government. But as regards foreign liquor, the profits all go to the foreign manufacturer. That is another point which we should remember, and as I said in my speech last year, when I drew the attention of the Honourable Minister, the Government of India has given him full powers in their orders on the Excise Committee's report to limit the number of shops as he likes and to charge whatever fees he likes for the licenses. I trust that when he speaks about prohibition, he will give us some idea of what he intends to do in future, as regards foreign liquors ?

On the postage stamps on letters that we receive through the post the Government of India put a stamp " Support Indian Industries." I notice there was a question on that point in our second question list, but just see how the Government of Bombay is supporting Indian industries. Turn to page 268 of the Blue Book. Item 48 is purchase of cots for the Central Mental Hospital, Yeravda, Rs. 3,472. Nobody can object to the purchase of cots for Mental patients though I wonder whether the Honourable Minister knows what several medical men know, namely, that such patients not being accustomed to the use of cots, are often found sleeping underneath the cots, not on them. But read the last line, the amount has been put in the High Commissioner's budget. Cannot Indian industries even make beds for Indian lunatics ?

Look a little further down and come to item No. 51—purchase of furniture for the maternity ward of the Civil Hospital, Belgaum, Rs.1,160. This sum has been provided for in the High Commissioner's budget. My friend here tells me that this is an attempt to impress loyalty on the mind of the child at its very birth by surrounding it with furniture of British make. When we were talking about the expenditure of this department in the October session we were told by the honourable member the Secretary of this department, that Government have got experts in their departments and that these experts advise them ; and this is, I believe some of the advice that they received from their experts. Their experts consist mainly of members of the Indian Medical Service—a service in which there is a separation of posts reserved for Europeans and Indians, the only service in which Indians are not considered fit to hold posts reserved for Europeans and a service which even at this time of day in the Bombay Presidency is seeking to perpetuate this rank inequlity. Not only that but even when the service is withdrawing it is burdening us with expenditure. Look, Sir, at the Civil List under the chapter giving names of professors of the Grant Medical College. You will find that some of those posts which were held by the Indian Medical Service men in former days and which have been given to their nominees are getting Rs. 1,000 for what ? For the work that is being done by other men of equal qualifications and equal capacity for Rs. 300. You will find some men with first class European degrees receiving not more than Rs. 300 and you will find others with degrees and diplomas not at all comparable with these European diplomas doing comparatively less work and getting Rs. 500 and more. The Honourable Minister has got a chance now. There is a post so far belonging to the service which will now be thrown open to Indian medical men. I hope that when that post comes up for consideration, the Honourable Minister will consider the question very seriously and appoint an Indian to hold it, after inviting applications. The man who administers the J. J. Hospital gets, I believe, an allowance of Rs. 150 or Rs. 200, and that is a point he should keep in mind in fixing the pay of this post.

[Dr. M. D. Gilder]

Then look at the stores indents, indents for medicines, indents for instruments. I can tell you to-day that there exists in the Physiological Laboratory of the Grant Medical College an instrument which cost more than 400 pounds sterling. It was indented before the War. That instrument has not been used once. A similar instrument was ordered and has arrived in the Goculdas Tejpal Hospital. That instrument has not been used more than half a dozen times in the case of half a dozen patients. Sir, if this is not extravagance, I should like to know what is, and I should merely sound a note of warning to the Honourable Minister that he should do well not to depend on his " experts " especially after we have known how the Honourable the General Member has fared as the consequence of his depending on the advice of " experts " in another department.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Mr. President, I do not propose to take up more than seven or ten minutes of your valuable time, and I would not have ventured to speak on the general discussion of the budget had it not been for certain remarks made by my honourable friend Mr. Nariman which I think require immediate contradiction.

My honourable friend Mr. Nariman charged Government just now with neglecting to take his advice to appoint a committee, and he said that if we had appointed that committee things would not have been as bad as they are. He further stated that at that time, in October 1924, when he moved that resolution Government were aware of the very muddled condition of the Development Department, and, to prove his statement he said that he had documentary evidence. I must confess that I was not aware of what documentary evidence he had in mind, but luckily enough I have had half an hour of the tea interval to be able to produce that document and here is the documentary evidence that he evidently had in mind. It was a controversy between the Superintending Engineer and the Audit Officer not in his capacity as financial adviser but as audit officer, and they seem to have come to somewhat strong language between themselves on a certain point. The point was, whether the Superintending Engineer should apply to Government for the purchase of a certain article. The Superintending Engineer was of the opinion that he had the power but the Audit Officer was of the opinion that he had not, and over that they came to fairly—I wont say " strong language "—but unusual language. In connection with this the Audit Officer said that the position had become " intolerable." He did not apply the word intolerable to the financial position of the Development Department but he applied the word intolerable to the position between himself and the Superintending Engineer on that particular occasion. I was rather startled when my honourable friend said that the Deputy Financial Adviser had stated that the financial condition of the Development Department so far back as January or February 1923 was intolerable. The word intolerable applied to the criticism of the Superintending Engineer on the action of the Audit Officer.

[Sir Cowasji Jehangir]

Now, Sir, this is the documentary evidence which my honourable friend Mr. Nariman has made so much of. These are the facts and I place them before the House.

I will now come to this committee that my honourable friend moved for appointment in this House. I will take honourable members back a little further than that. It was in the August session of 1924 that my honourable friend Mr. Lalji Naranji tabled a resolution for the appointment of a committee. Unfortunately the resolution got crowded out and it was not moved, but seeing the importance of that resolution, Government immediately sent it to the Advisory Committee which was then in existence, as a special reference. I will read out the resolution tabled by my honourable friend Mr. Lalji Naranji :—

" In view of the conclusions arrived at during the period of War boom that the land available in Bombay was inadequate having proved erroneous, this Council recommends to Government that a Committee with a non-official majority be forthwith appointed to enquire into the activities of the Development Department as to how far and in what directions such activities should be continued or eliminated..... "

That was a part of the resolution tabled by my honourable friend Mr. Lalji Naranji, which Government accepted without the vote of this House and sent as a special reference to the advisory committee which was in existence at the time. On the 24th of October 1924, my honourable friend Mr. Nariman moved the following resolution, and I would like honourable members to hear it :

" That a committee consisting of 12 non-official and elected members be appointed to enquire into the whole administration and working of the Development Directorate, to suggest ways and means of effecting retrenchment, and to report on the advisability or otherwise of continuing the scheme taken in hand ; that the Development Directorate be requested to co-operate with the said committee and afford all facilities and help in conducting the said enquiry and in making the said report ; that an independent officer or expert be appointed to help the said committee. "

Now, Sir, I ask, what is the material difference between the two resolutions ? I have read them over and over again very carefully ; I have read them when my honourable friend moved his resolution ; I have read them out to the honourable House now, and I ask, except in one line at the bottom, where the assistance of an independent officer is asked for, what is the material difference between these two resolutions ?

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN : Investigation into the past.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : So also did the honourable member Mr. Lalji Naranji's resolution require an investigation. Government informed the House that they had accepted the honourable member Mr. Lalji Naranji's resolution. But it was pointed out by certain honourable members that the advisory committee as constituted at the time did not contain representatives of this House in as large a number as they would like. I promptly said that Government would be only too pleased to consider the addition of any number of honourable members of this House to the advisory committee, and during the discussion, of which I have got a report before me, several names were suggested ; but I am afraid there was a little bit of misunderstanding on the opposite benches as to which names should be suggested, and by the time we nearly went to the vote I was suddenly told that the names that had been sent to me on a piece of paper were acceptable to the opposite benches. There was no time to consult; I promised to do my best to include the names on the advisory committee, but the resolution was put to the vote and my honourable friend Mr. Nariman carried the day by four or five votes. Within four days of the passing of that resolution—the resolution was passed on the 27th October—on the 31st of October, my honourable friend Mr. Nariman and the honourable members suggested by the opposite benches were offered seats on the advisory committee. I have now shown that the resolution which was submitted to the advisory committee was, for all practical purposes, the same as the resolution moved by my honourable friend.

An Honourable MEMBER: Question.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: It is for you to decide, and I am ready to leave the two resolutions on the table of the House for comparison by any honourable member who will look at them in a fair and impartial manner. My honourable friend Mr. Nariman and other members were offered seats, but I am sorry to say he declined the invitation.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN: Why?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: I have got his letter in which he has stated the reason why.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN: The advisory committee had only advisory power, whereas I wanted a committee to investigate.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: The Committee suggested by Mr. Nariman was also only advisory. I have placed both the resolutions before the House, and I would ask honourable members to judge as to the difference. My honourable friend Mr. Nariman's refusal has been put in two or three foolscap pages.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN: The committee was only an advisory committee, with no power to investigate, and therefore I refused.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: The committee suggested by my honourable friend was also advisory. He said the committee was to report. My honourable friend Mr. Lalji Naranji's resolution also wanted the committee to report. Both the committees could only be advisory. Government could not possibly appoint a committee of this House to take executive action, nor does the resolution of my honourable friend Mr. Nariman suggest it. Therefore, my position is perfectly clear, as far as the accusation placed before this House by my honourable friend that he was not given an opportunity is concerned. I contend that Government gave him ample opportunity on that occasion. It was for the honourable member to accept or refuse; he refused it. We could do nothing but accept his refusal, and nobody regrets it more than myself that my honourable friend did not serve on that advisory committee, for it was that particular advisory committee that made that well known report on the Back Bay reclamation, and showed Government and the public what losses there were on the project. That was the committee that actually made the report; that was the committee on which my honourable friend had a chance to serve, and that was the committee on which my honourable friend could have done valuable work. I regret that, for some reason or other, he did not avail himself of the opportunity we gave him, and I say nobody regrets it more than I do. Well, Sir, that is the position so far as the speech of my honourable friend to-day is concerned. I will not take up the time of this House any further. I have just answered the point that my honourable friend placed before the House. I trust we shall have the pleasure of hearing him again. I am ready to discuss the matter further. In the meantime, I have only explained the two points that my honourable friend raised before the House.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN: On a point of personal explanation, Sir. The Honourable the General Member has made a statement, and in fairness to myself and to the House I might be permitted to state that I did not join the committee because it was only an advisory committee. When I asked that extended powers should be given to the committee to investigate, it was refused by Government, and therefore I refused to serve on the committee.

Mr. M. D. KARKI (Kanara District): Sir, the more I read the budget and the more I hear of it, the more I become convinced of the bankrupt state of this presidency, in spite of the speeches delivered by many honourable members to the contrary. To begin, Sir, it has become a habit with the Government of Bombay to present a deficit budget. What does this show? It shows, in my opinion, lack of administrative wisdom in those who are responsible for the administration of this presidency. Not only is there a deficit in the budget, but there is also a decrease in the balances. To make at least both ends meet should be the motto of a person, whether private or public, but Government have shown that it is wanting in that. Sir, it is said, and rightly said that, to live upon balances, is not a wise policy of a good government. The Bombay Government has actually been living on the balances, and so the policy adopted by the Government is not at all wise. The result of all this is it seems to me that the progress of this presidency is not possible under the existing circumstances. The Members of Government state that money bills should be passed in order to have more money for their administration. The taxable capacity of the people of this presidency has however already been exhausted, and no more taxation is possible. Even if we tax ourselves further and more money is realised thereby, there is no certainty that that money will be applied to the welfare of the people at large. Then, what measures should be adopted if we want real progress in the right direction, without taxation. The only answer that suggests itself is that there should be retrenchment. Many honourable members who have spoken before me have suggested the ways in which effective retrenchment can be effected.

[Mr. M. D. Karki]

I am not going to repeat the same but I wish to add one more with regard to it. We all know that the expenditure incurred on the Forest Department is extraordinarily heavy. If we refer to the figures in statements II and III in the Blue Book and strike a mean by working them out we will find that Government are spending an amount of Rs. 40·25 lakhs for obtaining a revenue of Rs. 29 25 lakhs in the Forest Department. The administration of this department can be carried on even by Revenue Department agency without spending such a large amount of money on forest establishment. It is said that the forests of our presidency would yield immense revenue in future. Under the present circumstances I would suggest that it is a myth. The forest officers hold out false hopes to justify their existence and nothing more. In this department I submit that retrenchment can be very effectively carried out. The Chief Conservator's post which was created in recent years was proposed for being abolished by the retrenchment committee appointed during the life-time of the second Council of this House, but Government did not see their way to abolish it and effect economy. Besides the post of the Chief Conservator's post there are other posts similar to it. Kanara, for instance, is divided into five divisions for purposes of forest administration. These five posts are not necessary now. They might have been necessary at the time when they were created. Now more or less they have become posts of enjoyment and merry-making. For the purposes of revenue administration Kanara is divided into two divisions. Now, I submit it is not necessary to have the five divisions for forest administration. It is sufficient if we have only two divisions, just as in the case of the Revenue Department. If three posts of divisional forest officers in Kanara are abolished there will be a lot of saving. Besides, the pay of the forest establishment has been increased since 1921 and I would submit that the increase in the pay of the officers should be done away with. In this way if retrenchment is effected, that is, if the post of the Chief Conservator and the three posts of the divisional conservator of forests are abolished and the increase in the pay of the establishment is done away with, there will be a saving of thousands of rupees. It may be said that the abolition of these posts and the reduction in the pay will impede the progress of forest administration and that the creation of the chief conservator's post, etc., has added to the forest revenue. I humbly submit that in spite of the creation of that post and the increase in the pay the revenue in the ordinary course would have increased. The chief conservator of forests does not do any remunerative work. All his work is confined to inspection and touring. The forest administration is now simply to work out schemes strictly in conformity with the policy laid down by Government—forests are to be exploited and regenerated. These are the two main things to be done now. So, such a heavy estalishment involving an expenditure of such a large amount is not necessary. It is stated that the forests are a great asset to this presidency as they contain valuable produce. I submit that this is simply an illusion and can never be realised. The accessible portion of the forests contains no valuable produce. The rich and valuable portion of forests are inaccessible. To exploit it the construction of roads and railways involving heavy expenditure will be necessary. Even if we construct roads and railways at great cost the cost of extraction of forest produce from that region would be more and its price would be higher than that of timber imported from other countries. Therefore I submit that the promises given by the forest department are not real promises and that the expected revenue from the forests will not be such a big amount as has been promised by them.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. I am sorry to interrupt the honourable member. Honourable members will see that they will have to adjourn at 6 o'clock and give some time to the Honourable the Finance Member for his reply. So, between that and now there are only a few minutes. There are still a few more speakers. I therefore request the honourable member to finish his speech quickly. Ten minutes only would thereafter be given to such honourable members as may get a chance.

Mr. M. D. KARKI: I join my honourable friend Mr. Angadi in stating that the grievances of Karnatak have not been heard by Government. It is a pity that the question of Kanara stands unsolved up till now. His Excellency, the present Governor, visited Kanara twice in his regime—once in the year 1925 and once more in 1927. As it was a private visit in 1925 no address was allowed to be presented to His Excellency; but I had an interview with him. On that occasion His Excellency remarked that Kanara was a lovely country and that her ports were beautiful. In the year 1927 I however managed to present an address to His Excellency by the spice gardeners of Sirsi, Siddapur and Yellapur talukas at Sirsi. Grievances were represented with regard to land assessment, forests and sanitation. His Excellency after his arrival in Bombay informed me that the matters referred to in the address were referred to the Honourable Ministers and the Honourable Member in charge of departments to which the matter related. I am sorry to say that nothing has been yet done and it is not known whether anything would be done. The Honourable Minister told me to-day only that steps have been taken to have the grievances redressed. I do not know how far progress as been made.

We suggested to His Excellency that the various recommendations made by the non-official members of the committee appointed in 1925 should be fully and effectively given effect to. And unless and until these recommendations were given effect to, our grievances would not be redressed with regard to forest matter. I hope the Honourable the Minister for forests will see his way to help the lovely country of Kanara in her present distressed condition. (At this stage the Honourable the President rang the bell).

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: Sir, I am thankful to the honourable members of this House who have advocated the cause of the departments which are in my charge. I think these departments do need more and more, and I have pressed the claims of these departments on the attention of the Honourable the Finance

[Dewan Bahadur Harilal D. Desai]

Member. The forecast of my demand for Education was 2,27 lakhs, for Medical 56 lakhs and for Public Health 36 lakhs. But the coat had to be cut according to the available cloth, and consequently, I got asmuch as it was possible to get. However, I have all along observed during my tenure of this office that the Honourable the Finance Member has always treated the transferred departments with every consideration which they deserve. For the current year five lakhs more were given than was decided upon, which enabled me to remove the cut in the grants to the aided secondary schools to the extent of Rs. 3,97,000. It also enabled me to add a sum of Rs. 50,000 as grant to the University and Rs. 53,000 to the budget provision for schemes of expansion under the Primary Education Act. This year also my demand for expansion schemes was put up to 27 lakhs of rupees, that is it was about 17 lakhs more than the last year's. And honourable members must have noticed that I have been able to get Rs. 5,47,000 more. The credit for all that is certainly due to the Honourable the Finance Member who found the money. Of course whether that addition for compulsory schemes would stand or not would depend upon how the Finance Bills are treated by the honourable House, because I have been cautioned that if those Finance Bills do not go through the House then the Department of Education alone may have to stand a cut of 5 lakhs, so that all that will go if the Finance Bills fail.

There has been a suggestion by one of the honourable members from Belgaum that certain Government colleges should be abolished. I understood him to refer to the Elphinstone College as well as the Deccan College. I myself had this idea, and I wanted to see whether it was not possible to reduce the cost of Government colleges by abolishing these colleges. I looked into the papers relating to the subject, and I found that in the time of Dr. Paranjpye, the question was examined and it was found that as these colleges were founded on the basis of certain endowments it was not possible to abolish them. Consequently, I feel that it is not possible to go on the line which was suggested by the honourable member Rao Bahadur Angadi.

He then referred to the proposal in the budget on the revenue side for increasing the fees in Government colleges and secondary schools. Now, if we are to find more money for the aided institutions which receive grants from Government it can only be done by saving money on the institutions which are managed by Government. In conversation with managers of private colleges I found that they were experiencing very great difficulty with the present scale of fees to make both the ends meet. When I asked them to take the initiative of raising the fees, because nothing prevented them from doing so, they said that Government should give the lead. Further, the honourable member Rao Bahadur Angadi suggested that Government colleges should be abolished and should be substituted by technical colleges. It practically means that he considers them of less importance. Therefore, if fees were raised in Government colleges, there would not be very much harm done, because at present we are turning out many arts graduates and increasing unemployment, and therefore only those who can afford to pay the higher fees will be going to colleges and they will be making the colleges self-supporting, and make it possible for more Government funds to go to aided colleges. As regards secondary schools there has been the same complaint. The scale of fees which the managers of aided secondary schools are ordinarily expected to charge is not less than two-thirds of Government fees, but there is no prohibition to their raising the scale of fees in their schools, but they are shy and they cannot take the initiative. Take, for instance, the example of a school like the Elphinstone High School, where several boys go in carriages and in motor cars. If such boys paid a little more, paid fees which would stand on a level with the fees charged in the school known as the Bharda School, I do not think that there would be any difficulty. Under these circumstances, as Government are being pressed for funds, they have provided on the revenue side Rs. 1,00,000 more as estimated revenue by raising the fees in colleges and about Rs. 97,000 more as estimated revenue by increasing the fees in secondary schools. This will help some of the aided institutions which are struggling by increased income from fees. There are many applications from aided institutions of a secondary type coming up to Government for grant, but Government have not the money to give them. If fees are raised, there will be less demand on their part and Government also will be in a position to pay having so much more revenue to meet the demands of deserving institutions which stand in need of grants. The increase in fees will necessitate more freeships.

The same honourable gentleman referred to certain Government orders which were passed with reference to schemes of expansion of primary education. There was a great deal of discussion inside the Government whether under the Act as it stood schemes of voluntary expansion could be allowed. After a lengthy discussion, this year several schemes of voluntary expansion have been allowed, and orders have been issued that whatever new schemes are put up before Government, a part of these schemes, at least one-third, should be schemes of compulsion, because while everybody wants more and more schools, no one is prepared to apply the principle of compulsion and consequently Government while allowing expansion on a voluntary basis in local board areas have to ensure that at least a third of the schemes submitted will be schemes of compulsion.

My honourable friend, Dr. Gilder, referred to Indian made articles being, in the first instance, used by Government. This honourable House knows, that in the ordinary course, articles which are not made in this country are ordered out from outside. But if it is found that those articles could be had here and at a cheaper rate, it is open to this Government to pass the orders to that effect.

There is one more point which I want to answer. It is the point for which my honourable friend, Rao Bahadur Angadi, was just now getting up. It is this. Government have asked various local boards, in view of the financial difficulties, to launch their own schemes on their own hook, if they can afford them, on condition that the Government will, when funds permit, reimburse them for whatever may be due to those bodies according to law and the rules. My honourable friend, perhaps, wants me to tell him from what time the grant will be allowed. I would say that the undertaking is intended to be met when funds permit and will take effect from the date the schemes are brought into operation after Government approval.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA (Bombay City, North): Sir, last year I made several suggestions in regard to retrenchment, specially retrenchment in the General administration. But Sir, I find that those suggestions have not been given effect to. Sir, it has been stated by all the honourable members here that we are having a deficit budget, we are having a bankruptcy budget, that we are having a bad budget and that we are living from hand to mouth. And what is the reply given to us by the Government Benches? They say "Well, after all we are getting on. We are going to have a surplus of Rs. 3 lakhs, if we get the provincial contribution from the Government of India." The Honourable Ministers also say "Whenever we go to the Honourable the Finance Member to ask for demands for our departments, he readily gives them." What we find is this. The Government Benches state that there is after all no danger in the state of affairs, and everything is going on all right, and will go on all right. That is the reply we get from the Government side.

On the other side, that is, on the non-official side, what do we find? We observe that they have sounded a note of warning to Government. They told Government that it was dangerous to have such a state of affairs. How long are we going to have this state of affairs.

Sir, I shall now refer to some items in the budget. Look at the state of affairs and what do we find? When we turn to the revenue, we see that the big source of getting revenue is from agriculturists. But what is the condition of these agriculturists? Is it that the agriculturists are better off to bear this burden of heavy taxation? I ask: "Is it proper for Government to tap that source? I am sure that the Honourable the Finance Member and the Honourable the Revenue Member will agree with me that the condition of agriculturists is very poor. In this connection I may point out, Sir, that my honourable friend, Mr. Surve had told the Government last year about the hardships of agriculturists. I, therefore, submit, Sir, that Government is not justified in levying such heavy taxation on the poor agriculturists. Last year I had given notice of resolutions, regarding the levy of additional assessment in the Alibag taluka in contravention of the resolution of this House, but I am sorry to say that my resolutions could not be taken up on account of the procedure of this House. I wish, Sir, that one hour should be given daily to the consideration of resolutions as is given to questions. That is the only way for reaching the resolutions which stand in the name of honourable members. I may further point out, Sir, that the condition of these agriculturists has been growing worse than before. In Bardoli taluka people have actually started a movement of satyagrah for the enhanced assessment, which is headed by Mr. Vallabhbhai Patel, for whom compliments were offered the other day by the Honourable the Finance Member, for his activities in the times of floods. If you turn to Alibag, there is also a Satyagrah movement started by the people. So, wherever you go, you find that the agriculturists have expressed their inability to bear further taxation. But the Government are determined to increase taxation and levy on the poor agriculturists. That is the history of the agriculturists.

Then, we come to the other subject. The other item of deriving revenue is Excise. The Honourable the Minister for Excise has told us that it is falling off. I am glad that the revenue is falling. But we want to know from the Honourable the Minister what steps he has taken as regards the policy of Prohibition. Is he going to take steps in that direction in Satara as an experimental measure ? I hope he will do so at an early date.

Turning to Forest, What do we find ? We are told, Sir, that through Forest we can promote our industries. I ask, Sir, " Are the Government serious in this respect ? " Are they prepared to encourage match and paper industry ? I do not think so. So long as there is a foreign element, I do not think, Sir, that this country will be allowed to develop its match industry and the paper industry. Several years ago Government told us that they were going to do wonders in improving the industry of this presidency. But nothing has been done so far. Several lakhs were voted for the expenses of a Director and what has happened ultimately ? This Director of Industries has been removed in the end. I may ask the Honourable Minister whether he has taken any action on the suggestions made by my friend, Mr. F. E. Bharucha, the late Director of Industries. He has made valuable suggestions in the report, but I do not think that the Honourable Minister has given any consideration to them.

Now, Sir, I turn to another point, and that is that the financial condition of this presidency is also due to the reckless policy and stepfatherly treatment given by the Government of India to this presidency. The injustice done to this presidency by the Government of India is the Meston Settlement, which time and again has been condemned by this House. That is one thing. And the second thing is the exchange policy of the Government of India. That policy is responsible for the pressure on agriculture. That is responsible for the present depression in the industries and we are reaping the first fruits of that reckless policy of the Government of India, and we cannot do better than condemn this policy, this stepfatherly treatment given to this presidency by the Government of India. I may add further that even for the textile industry, which is the key industry of this presidency, the Government of India is not coming to its aid. In spite of the report of the Tariff Board, the Government of India is doing nothing to save this industry and.....(At this stage the bell was rung by the President, the honourable member's time being up).

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: In the first place, Sir, I wish to thank the honourable members for having spared in these three days' discussion the poor Finance Member in his personal capacity. I noticed with great gratitude, Sir, that the discussion this year has gone rather on the budget and what it contains than on the Finance Member and the position that he holds. I am grateful, Sir, to the honourable member Mr. Owen for having given the House the benefit of his long experience, which experience he applied to the study of the Blue and the White Books this year in particular. Sir, he has got many years of audit experience behind him, and I think he struck a note, which came as a welcome relief from the note of absolute pessimism which was struck by most of the honourable members opposite. I will proceed later on, Sir, to show why there is no justification for the extreme pessimism that seems to have taken hold of several members of the House. I would like, Sir, also, before I proceed to answer the bigger questions that have been raised, to dispose of the one particular question which the honourable member Major Ellis Jones raised in regard to the cotton cess. I do not know, Sir, whether he was speaking on behalf of the Millowners' Association. I presume he was not. He was speaking, I think, on behalf of the cotton trade, which he so ably represents in this House. Now, the question of the cotton cess was very fully considered, as the honourable member is aware, by the Tariff Board, and the recommendation which that Board has made is that Government should examine the situation and see whether a rebate from the cess cannot be given in favour of the Millowners' Association. I am afraid they do not mention the cotton trade, and all I can say to the honourable member just now is that, as I have tried to explain in my budget speech, not only is the whole of that cotton cess—at least the portion of it that comes to Government—absorbed in the losses on industrial housing, but in addition to the sum derived from the cotton cess, something like Rs. 5 lakhs will have to be borne by the general revenues. I am not sure whether this House fully understood it, and I am not sure whether, if they understand it now, they will be prepared to part with any part of the proceeds of the cess. In any case, the Bombay Municipality and Government are both partners, they share in this cess, and we have, in view of the recommendation of the Tariff Board, written to the Bombay Municipality to find out what their views on this matter are. Anything more than that I am afraid I am not able to say to satisfy the honourable member Major Jones.

Sir, the three days of general discussion are usually days of tribulation for the Finance Member. Twice, Sir, I have listened to the debate, and I have listened this time sometimes with amusement, sometimes indeed with surprise, and always with patience and fortitude, such fortitude as I was able to exercise. The amusement proceeds not indeed because all the intricacies of this very complex budget are not fully understood by all members of the House: In fact, I may say quite frankly that I congratulate the many members of the House on the way in which they have been able to understand all the intricacies of the budget in the short time that they have after the sending of these two formidable volumes to them. The amusement arises when a member like my honourable friend Rao Saheb Dadubhai Desai who ought to know, and certainly pretends that he does know, tries to square the hard facts and figures of the budget with his fanciful preconceived notions; when he tries to make the circle a square, it certainly excites in me a certain amount of amusement, and I think the Finance Member is entitled to some little amusement in all these three days. The surprise arises when honourable members, who also ought to understand and who belong to constituencies which certainly must send representatives who understand figures well, not in one year but even in a second year, should stumble over the very points that were explained to them in the previous year. Sir, I was referring to the debate that took place last year and I find that the representative of the Millowner's Association from Ahmedabad made exactly the same mistake which he put before the House this year when he talked about the loan position of this Government. Indeed it was surprising that he could not see that accumulations towards sinking fund are made towards the repayment of debt and are not in any sense an addition to the debt. For the rest, of course, the Finance Member has to exercise what fortitude he can.

Sir, I explained last year that it is not for the Finance Member to lay down any policy; that, indeed, after the examination of the constitutional position by the Muddiman Committee, it has been decided that the Finance Member should be deprived of such small administrative subjects as he was in charge of. It is for the Members and Ministers themselves to make their policy. I say that they have done it to the best of their ability. I have not the least complaint as to either their diligence or their ability in managing their departments. It is not for the Finance Member to say that so much money shall be spent in such and such a direction, that the rural area shall obtain such and such a slice of the general revenues. The Finance Member is rather in the position of, in the picturesque language of my honourable friend Rao Saheb Dadubhai Desai, the watch-dog. He has to watch that expenditure is not needlessly undertaken, that it is not incurred in a lavish or extravagant spirit and if the criticism that has been levelled for all these days has any justification at all, then I think that those who have accused the present Finance Member of sitting too tightly on the public purse have been sufficiently answered. Enough will be the satisfaction to me to feel that I have not, again in the picturesque language of the same honourable member who would even deprive posterity of the pleasure of cursing, degenerated into a lap-dog from a watch-dog.

I will refer, Sir, to the debt position again in order to make it perfectly clear because I felt that even so shrewd a follower of the budget as my honourable friend Mr. Marzban was not able fully to estimate at their true value the remarks that I made at some length in my speech. We will have at the end of next year a debt of something like 28 crores of rupees. We will incur, if we are allowed to do so, a further debt, when all the schemes are completed which have been explained in detail on page 21, of 11 crores. We have in addition, a debt (but not a redeemable debt, that is to say a debt which is not to be repaid but on which only a yearly interest of something like 3·32 per cent. has to be paid to the Government of India) of about 9 crores for our old prereform irrigation schemes. The rest of the debt that appears on page 25 is, as has been explained on that page and in the notes as fully as we possibly could explain them, is incurred on behalf of the local bodies which are making regular payments towards its extinction.

I understood from my honourable friend Dr. Ambedkar that he did not see that any provision was made for the amortisation of this debt. This debt, I would like to remind the House again, is, most of it, for purposes which the Council will recognise as productive, but even for these purposes the amortisation has been fixed at 60 years for productive debt and 30 years for non-productive debt. Moreover, as I explained last year—I think it will bear repetition again—this Government, in view of the fact that it must be very careful with regard to its future borrowing especially for unproductive purposes, has accepted the limit of five lakhs under which no loan can be raised. I think that the honourable members opposite will not consider that a debt of 28 crores of rupees (including nine crores for the Sukkur Barrage and some other productive irrigation schemes) is excessive for the resources of this presidency. Remember, moreover, that out of the debt of about 316 lakhs which we inherited from the Government of India, we shall have paid back about 2¼ crores and we shall have to pay only 102 lakhs at the end of the next year. I would like to ask the honourable members, who represent the big municipal corporation of Bombay city, whether in comparison with the resources of this city and of its debt they think that this Government has gone headlong in the matter of its debt policy.....

An Honourable MEMBER: The Bombay Municipal Corporation may not be right in their policy.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: I do not think that ours is wrong, I am not prepared to say that the policy of the Bombay Municipal Corporation is right or wrong. I leave that to be protected by the honourable member Mr. Marzban. So much for the debt position.

Sir, I was somewhat at a loss to understand what my honourable friend Mr. Balubhai Desai suggested we should do with regard to the losses on the Back Bay. I really was not able to understand what his proposal was. If he meant, as I was told by some honourable members who also listened to him with care, that the losses should not be amortised by subvention from the general revenues, it is certainly opposed to all proper financial canons and it is certainly opposed to the decision of this House itself. I do not think he could have meant that.

I will now refer to the reduction in our balances which, as the figures now stand and are shown in the books, might cause apprehension in the minds of honourable members. It is true that our balances have gone down from Rs. 664 lakhs to the figures which are shown in the Blue Book, but out of Rs. 664 lakhs, Rs. 81 lakhs was only loan balance. It was excess borrowing. That loan balance was used in not borrowing that much amount next year from the Government of India. Loan balance is not our true balance at all, and therefore it ought not to be taken into consideration. Rs. 195 lakhs was the Famine Fund. That Famine Fund, even after the heavy drafts that have been made upon it for various purposes, of which the Council is well aware, still stands at Rs. 162 lakhs, or will stand at the end of next year at Rs. 162 lakhs. The ordinary balances are invested, most of them, as follows. My honourable friend the representative of the University said that if commercial standards were to be applied to the Government accounts, they would be shown to be in a very hazardous condition. Well, I would like him to apply commercial standards, and I think he will find that the position is by no means hazardous, so far as the balances are concerned. We have Rs. 7 lakhs in the balances which is known to the House. We have Rs. 123 lakhs invested in the Sukkur Barrage, which was formerly in our balances and belongs to our balances, and can at any time be put back into our balances. We have lent out Rs. 150 lakhs roughly to the flooded area. This was drawn also largely from our balances and will, I hope, be recovered. I am certain it will be recovered. If the Government of India remit the provincial contribution, as we hope they will, we shall get back Rs. 37 lakhs, which would be added to the balances. The total will be some Rs. 3 crores. Sir, I do not think that, looked at from that point of view, the position can be said to be as dark as has been painted, and I think that any future Finance Member ought to be grateful, as I was grateful for the large balances that were handed to me. If you take the balances which other provinces possess, you will find that they are nothing like this size. I only draw attention to it to show that the presidency is not only not bankrupt, but is not on the verge of bankruptcy, and never will be.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: What about half a crore for the Development Department ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: The Development 32½ lakhs is already included in this account. We pay that every year, and we shall have to continue to pay it.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI: What about the cotton cess ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: The cotton cess has already been included, as I explained.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI: That is also going to Development.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: It is. I think the honourable member Dr. Ambedkar, in a well reasoned speech, spoke of the comparison between this Government and other Governments with regard to the apportionment of the revenues between the reserved and the transferred departments. I do not wish to labour that point, because I explained it at considerable length last year, but I do not wish also the House to feel that there is any kind of jugglery or window-dressing in this at all. I do not wish to take them through any papers that are not before them at the present moment. I would request them only to turn to page 10 of the Blue Book; I trust honourable members will take the trouble of doing so. The accounts of 1922-23 show that the reserved departments got Rs. 801 lakhs; that Rs. 801 lakhs rose to Rs. 959 lakhs in the revised estimates of 1927-28. If you like to take the budget figures for the next year I have not the least objection. These figures are before the House; take them at 959 lakhs. This 959 lakhs includes, as the note indicates, Rs. 89,12,000 being the interest payable on loans to three local bodies; that was not included in the first three or four years. Therefore, one is legitimately entitled to deduct Rs. 89 lakhs. That leaves Rs. 870 lakhs; I trust honourable members are able to follow me. Out of those Rs. 870 lakhs, they must deduct the item of Rs. 25,95,000 shown on page 7 for Bombay Development Scheme reserved, because it is a new item against which Rs. 21 lakhs are credited on the revenue side. We are annually paying a subsidy on industrial housing of Rs. 5 lakhs to the Development Department. One can deduct also the Rs. 32 lakhs legitimately; if you do not want to deduct it, I do not mind. If you deduct the Rs. 26 lakhs, you have Rs. 846 lakhs as the total expenditure in 1927-28 on reserved departments. It is easy to see that the increase is about 5 per cent., 801 lakhs to 846 lakhs. Now, take the transferred departments. Rs. 453 lakhs was spent in 1922-23. That has risen to Rs. 546 lakhs, a difference of Rs. 93 lakhs; on Rs. 453 lakhs, it is 20 per cent. I do not think, Sir, it can be said that the transferred departments have in any way been starved, and I am very grateful to the Honourable Ministers for having stated openly that in the allocation such as is possible within our restricted revenue, the Finance Member has looked with a partial eye to the transferred departments.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI: Take the expenses charged to capital.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: I will come to that presently. It may be contended that I am not taking the year 1921-22. Well, I have got figures for that year also. The great increase in 1921-22 on account of the transferred departments was to be found in Civil Works which, the House will see, rose to Rs. 188 lakhs in that year. In the previous year it rose to Rs. 207 lakhs. In those two years, all the leeway that had to be made up on account of the war was made up, very large sums of money were given for construction of buildings, and that went to 41—Civil Works, and it must further be remembered that 41—Civil Works is for the construction of buildings both for the reserved and for the transferred departments. I do not wish to go into that point any further.

To answer the question of the honourable member Mr. Shivdasani, if he turns to that same page 6 of the budget of 1927-28, he will notice that from 1921-22 when Civil Works was at Rs. 188 lakhs, it suddenly dropped to Rs. 106 lakhs in the next year, to Rs. 97 lakhs in the third year, to Rs. 90 lakhs in the fourth year, and so on. Why? Because from that year the Government with the consent and full concurrence of the Council took from loans expenditure which was ordinarily debited to revenue. It is on that account I was not in a position to take the year 1921-22. I trust I have made the position fairly clear to the honourable members.

But there is something more. We are compared with the other provinces. I am glad that comparison is made, because it enables me to show how with very limited resources that came to us as a result of the Meston Settlement and in spite of that, we are very far from being as the honourable member Dr. Ambedkar said the last of all provinces. On the contrary I think we can claim even the first place. As a result of the reforms the Central Government lost about 18½ crores of rupees to the provinces. Of that 18½ crores of rupees Rs. 867 lakhs was distributed to the provinces; and 983 lakhs of rupees was left as contribution which was finally to be remitted to the provinces. What do we get in comparison to all the provinces on both these heads? Madras got Rs. 228 lakhs; the United Provinces Rs. 167 lakhs; the Punjab Rs. 114 lakhs; Bihar and Orissa Rs. 182 lakhs; and Bombay Rs. 37 lakhs. In percentages Madras got 26 per cent.; Punjab 20 per cent.; United provinces 20 per cent.; Burma 30 per cent.; Bengal 6 per cent. and Bombay 3½ per cent. (An Honourable Member: They had to pay more.) They had not. The honourable member is thinking of the Rs. 983 lakhs which are the contributions. These contributions I will deal with presently. Out of the Rs. 867 lakhs the portion of the gift that came to Bombay was Rs. 37 lakhs. On that slender sum we were supposed to introduce all the beneficent schemes that belong to the transferred departments. With that legacy and with the high standard of expenditure already prevailing we were supposed to go in for primary education, prohibition, medical relief and various other schemes on the paltry sum of Rs. 37 lakhs. The Rs. 983 lakhs were distributed as follows. I do not think I need refer honourable members to the Devolution Rules. I have no doubt they are well aware of it. Of the sum of Rs. 983 lakhs Madras got Rs. 348 lakhs; the United Provinces Rs. 240 lakhs; the Punjab Rs. 175 lakhs; and Bombay Rs. 56 lakhs. A portion of this Rs. 983 lakhs was permanently remitted to the various provinces in various proportions as the honourable House is aware. In the year 1925-26 Madras got a permanent remission of Rs. 126 lakhs; the United Provinces Rs. 56 lakhs; the Punjab Rs. 91 lakhs; Bengal a practically permanent remission of 63 Lakhs. In the next year these provinces again got: Madras including Rs. 126 lakhs Rs. 183 lakhs; the United Provinces Rs. 89 lakhs: the Punjab Rs. 90 lakhs. In the next year 1927-28 Madras got an additional Rs. 116 lakhs as permanent remission plus a temporary remission of 49 lakhs; Bengal Rs. 93 lakhs; the United Provinces Rs. 99 lakhs permanent and Rs. 52 lakhs temporary; the Punjab Rs. 60 lakhs permanent and Rs. 26 lakhs temporary. When such a huge sum of money like Rs. 348 lakhs is practically thrown at the head of one province alone amounting nearly to 25 per cent. of the provincial revenue what else can it do but spend it on nation-building departments? (An Honourable Member: Why not Bombay get more?) Because Bombay was not strong enough to make its voice felt. When making these comparisons honourable members forget that with these enormous sums which make our mouths water, any province will go forward in the nation-building activities. It is to the credit of Bombay that in spite of this heavy handicap she is not behind the others. Remember further in the expenditure debited to the reserved departments we have to bear no less a sum than one crore of rupees on interest alone. Excluding Development Department we have to spend no less than 96·67 which is reserved and debited to the reserved departments, part of which is on account of the transferred departments. This shows comparisons of this character are not easily made and ought not to be accepted without proper examination.

I think this honourable House has not forgotten a statement made by my predecessor on precisely the same question. He argued and I think he argued correctly that this division between the transferred and reserved was thoroughly artificial and that there was no ground whatever to think that the irrigation department was not for the benefit of the public, was not a nation-building department, because it was administered by a member of the executive council. We spend no less a sum than Rs. 1·11 crores on irrigation which is debited to the reserved departments. He suggested that a more rational apportionment would be between the departments which may be called law and order departments and the rest may be included in the nation-building departments and pointed out that the expenditure on the former rose by 26 per cent. while the expenditure on the nation-building departments rose by 147 per cent. with the slender resources that we received from the Government of India. I will ask honourable members who have got commercialexperience and who have gone through many depressions, more depressions than I have seen in my life, in Bombay whether they can remember a severer period during the last 25 or 50 years and whether a balanced budget of this character is one that is altogether to be despised, whether the only criticism that can be levelled against the position of the Bombay Government is that it is bankrupt. It is nothing of the kind. In the next year's budget we have taken as our stamp revenue Rs. 4 lakhs less than the revised figure of the current year. I have not counted on any improvement in the commercial situation ; nor have I added anything to the scheduled taxes. The only amount which I am doubtful about but which is placed at the figure adopted on the advice of our revenue officers is the land revenue. I do not think it can be stated that the administration of the finances of this presidency has been such as to lead the presidency to bankruptcy. My only regret is that we are unable to free ourselves from the mire of stagnation into which we have fallen. We have not the resources at the moment which will enable us to incur fresh recurring expenditure. I think it will be wholly unwise with the resources that we have at present to gamble, as one newspaper stated, in futures. We do not like gambling. We have, therefore, placed our estimates at figures which, I think, even representatives of the commercial world will not challenge. I am afraid I see no prospect before me of this presidency being able to launch forth into fresh recurring expenditure of any magnitude. We must not forget that had we not had this burden of the Development Department upon us, we should have been able to spend towards nation-building departments the money that we have now to devote towards the amortization of the losses. It is a misfortune which we cannot avert; we have tried to meet it as best as we could. I therefore trust, Sir, that the House will see that no good purpose will be served by day in and day out saying that the presidency is bankrupt. I think, Sir, the man who goes on saying that to himself every day and every morning will possibly delude himself into such a situation. I am sure that if and when it is possible to get the Statutory Commission to see the injustice that has been done to Bombay we shall be able to place more funds at the disposal of the Ministers.

I was accused last year, Sir, of misleading the Council, because I had not shown in the revenue accounts the fifty-six lakhs which were likely to be remitted by the Government of India. I am equally blamed to-day for showing a surplus of three lakhs by counting upon the remission of 37 lakhs. I do not know, Sir, really where to take advice from the honourable members opposite. Some of them, far-seeing people like my honourable friend from Nasik, (Mr. R. G. Pradhan) and my honourable friends Mr. Munshi and Dr. Ambedkar would wish me to put forward before the House proposals of heavy taxation. Some of them would say that the taxable limit has absolutely been reached. What course is a poor Finance Member to steer? Is it not wise for him to stick to the two modest bills that are already before the House? I think that is the wisest course that he can follow.

One last word I wish to say in regard to the criticism that was levelled by my honourable friend Mr. Hoosenally Rahimtoola. He was of course speaking from his great experience as an ex-chairman of the Standing Committee. He asked: "Why do Government not find out why the cost of living in Bombay is higher than anywhere else? Is it not their duty to reduce the cost and standard of living and consequently I presume even the small emoluments that the inferior servants and the lowly classes in this presidency get?" Sir, I trust that that argument will not be put forward before the Statutory Commission. Our whole case for a revision of the Meston Settlement has been based upon the fact that the cost of living in this presidency is high. There is no doubt that it is high, and I would like to have the unvarnished verdict of the honourable members opposite whether it is right that the standard of living should be raised or whether we should keep down the humble and the depressed in the low condition in which they live. Examine, Sir, the cost of living and the standard of life in all the civilized countries of the world. Which country stands now at the highest? Is it America or is it Russia; is it England or is it Turkey? Sir, it ought to be both our gratification and our constant endeavour to see that the standard of the small man, both in the towns and in the villages, is raised, that he lives a better life, he clothes himself better, that he has more opportunities of enjoyment and of leisure. Sir, that is what we want to aim at. (Mr. R. S. Asavale : What efforts are made by Government?). The results of the efforts, Sir, that have been made may be small; indeed I have expressed my regret that they have not been greater. But those efforts can only be commensurate with our resources and are to be seen in all the past years of administration of this presidency, whereby we have reached the present standard of life of the people both in the country and in the town. It is, Sir, with that object that even in a budget like this, which has been most difficult to balance, that Government have put forward their scheme for the inferior Government servants and for the backward classes. Sir, I hope that these sums will be increased in the future when circumstances improve. But it is an earnest of the intentions of Government in this direction.

Sir, I have done. I should like only to thank the honourable member Mr. Munshi for the very kind words that he was good enough to use. Sir, I have tried to do my duty, and the only satisfaction that I can hope to feel is that I have not forfeited the respect of the House.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The House is adjourned till one o'clock on Friday, the 24th February 1928.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Sir, may I make a short statement with regard to the question re "Reclaimed Land purchased by the Government of India" asked by Rao Saheb D. P. Desai on the 20th February 1928.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Yes.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Rao Saheb D. P. Desai has asked Government in that question as to what is the cost per yard for the portion of Block No. 8 that is to be handed over to Government of India. I have replied to his question that the cost is about Rs. 15 per square yard. But this morning I may inform this House that I have received latest information that the cost to Government for this portion is not Rs. 15 but Rs. 17 per square yard.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : May I know how much is to be realised from the Government of India ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Rs. 20.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Questions.

NEW LIQUOR SHOPS, BOMBAY CITY

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE (Bombay City, North): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether any new refreshment bars and foreign liquor shops were allowed to be opened in the city of Bombay during the last three years ;

(b) if so, how many and in which ward or wards of the city ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : (a) and (b) No new refreshment bars were opened in Bombay City during the last 3 years, but 2 new permanent refreshment stall licenses and 1 new hotel license were issued in A ward. In addition to these 3 licenses 32 new wholesale and importers' licenses were granted, and 64 existing licenses were not renewed. Out of the 32 new licenses 28 were in A ward, 2 in E ward and 1 each in C and G wards.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE (Bombay City, North) : May I know if any demand was made by the public for these new licenses ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : Yes.

FOREIGN LIQUOR SHOPS, DADAR-NAIGAUM ROADS JUNCTION

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE (Bombay City, North): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) under what circumstances the extension of time was granted to the foreign liquor retail shop at the junction of Dadar and Naigaum Roads ;

(b) whether the advisory committee was either informed or consulted for this extension of time ;

(c) if not, why not ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : (a) The Honourable Member is referred to the reply given by Government to the question asked by Mr. S. K. Bole which is published at pages 29-30 of Part I of Volume XVIII of the Bombay Legislative Council Debates.

(b) No.

(c) The concession was granted in December 1925 when the Collector had the power to sanction extensions of time to Refreshment Rooms without consulting the Advisory Committee.

PANDHARPUR SHRINES : CONDUCT OF WORSHIP

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE (Bombay City, North): Will Government be pleased to state whether they are aware of the fact that the Samastha Shri Pundlik Pujari Koli Community at Pandharpur had been in the enjoyment of the exclusive privilege of conducting the worship in the temples of Mahadeo and of facilitating the visit of pilgrims to the shrine long before the Badves ever came to Sholapur ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : The Honourable Member has asked two other questions on the same subject. For the sake of clearness it is preferable to answer them all together.

The District Magistrate of Sholapur made a full and careful enquiry into the claims of the Samastha Shri Pundlik Pujari Koli Community to exclusive privileges in the matter referred to in these questions and found that the Community had failed to prove the existence of these exclusive rights, or any priority of date. Government after consideration of the memorial made to them by the Community and the District Magistrate's order came to the conclusion that the District Magistrate's order was correct and justified by the facts.

Government have no reason to believe that this decision has provoked any general dissatisfaction in the Koli Community in the Presidency as a whole.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE (Bombay City, North) : It is not a fact that the District Magistrate before the one who has issued the orders had allowed the use of these rights by the Koli community ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : Yes, it is a fact. One District Magistrate made summary enquiries and found that the claims of that community were just. But when protests were made by the other parties, the next District Magistrate made careful enquiries into the question and found that the previous decision was wrong.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : May I know who is right in the judgment of these two District Magistrates ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : On the consideration of the two reports, Government found that the second District Magistrate was right in his decision.

PANDHARPUR SHRINE : RIGHTS OF KOLIS

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE (Bombay City, North): Will Government be pleased to state whether they are aware that the Samastha Shri Pundlik Pujari Koli Community at Pandharpur enjoy exclusive rights and privileges regarding—

(a) performance of puja of the Deity in all the temples of God Mahadeo in the town of Pandharpur;

(b) the ownership and managership of the priests regarding temples and properties attached thereto;

(c) performance of puja of the Deity Shri Pundlik in the temple situate in the heart of the river Chandrabhaga at Pandharpur;

(d) conducting their Yajmans (clients) belonging to the Koli Community in different parts of India who come on a pilgrimage to Pandharpur to the Shrines for Darshana of the Deity Shri Vithoba without any impediment;

(e) supervising the puja performance by such clients and patrons in the temple and officiating as priests on such occasions ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: The Honourable Member is referred to the answer given to his first question on the same subject.

PANDHARPUR SHRINE: COLLECTOR'S ATTITUDE TOWARDS KOLIS

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE (Bombay City, North): Will Government be pleased to state whether they are aware that the attitude taken up by the Collector of Sholapur in the matter of the rights of the Koli Community at Pandharpur has caused great dissatisfaction to the whole of the Koli Community of the Presidency ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: The Honourable Member is referred to the answer given to his first question on the same subject.

INDIAN TROOPS IN CHINA: CONTRIBUTION BY BOMBAY GOVERNMENT

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE (Bombay City, North): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether any amount was contributed by them towards the amount spent by the Government of India in the despatch of Indian troops to, or their maintenance in, China during the last war in China;

(b) if so, how much ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: (a) No.

(b) Does not arise.

DAM ON THE RIVER PANJARA

Mr. M. G. BHOSLE (West Khandesh District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(1) whether they are aware that there is a dam of the river Panjara near the old distillery buildings at Dhulia;

(2) whether they are aware that that dam has become unnecessary now;

(3) whether they are aware that on account of that dam, sand has accumulated at the bed of the river, causing great floods with comparatively little rain;

(4) whether they are aware that the dam is a permanent menace to the city of Dhulia on account of such floods ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: (1) Yes.

(2) No, the bandhara is necessary even though there is no irrigation under it. It ensures a supply of water to the Distillery and supplements the water requirements of Dhulia town to a material extent. During the hot weather when the surface flow in the river ceases, the subsoil supply held up by the bandhara becomes available for use through shallow pits made in the river bed and is largely used for bathing and washing purposes by the people. If the bandhara is removed, the sand in the river will be washed away and the underground storage above the rocky bed will be lost. The removal may also adversely affect the new scheme for the town water supply as the field of infiltration may become poor thereby.

(3) The portion of the river above the bandhara has silted up, but there is no occasion for alarm on this score.

(4) No, the bandhara is not a menace to the town. The houses are on the high bank and are protected against damage by floods in the usual manner noticeable in the case of riverside towns.

TOLL BARS IN WEST KHANDESH: REMOVAL

Mr. M. G. BHOSLE (West Khandesh District): Will Government be pleased to state when it would be the turn of West Khandesh to have its toll bars removed in pursuance of the Council Resolution to remove all toll bars in course of time, in the Presidency ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: It has not been found possible to abolish any tolls during the years 1926-1927 and 1927-1928 on account of financial stringency. It has also been decided not to abolish any tolls during the year 1928-1929 for the same reason. It is therefore not possible to say when the turn of West Khandesh will come.

DISTRICT SCHOOL BOARD, THANA: ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICER

Mr. S. K. BOLE: Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that the district local board, Thana, selected a person other than the one recommended by the school board for the post of the school board administrative officer;

(b) whether under section 9 (1) of the Primary Education Act the Chairman of the said school board had lodged a complaint against the illegal selection by the district local board with the Collector through the President, District Local Board, Thana, and the Director of Public Instruction;

(c) whether they will place the opinions of the Collector of Thana, the Director of Public Instruction and the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs on the Chairman's complaint, on the table;

(d) whether Government had duly considered the legal point involved in the selection made by the district local board ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: (a) Yes.

(b) Yes.

(c) Government do not think that any useful purpose will be served by placing the correspondence on the Council Table. Moreover, the opinions of Government officers are for the information of Government only and cannot be disclosed.

(d) Yes.

DISTRICT LOCAL BOARD, THANA: ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICER

Mr. S. K. BOLE: Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether there are any cases in which Government have accorded their approval to a person selected by the local authority but not recommended by the school board; if so, to name them;

(b) whether there are any cases in which school boards have rejected persons not recommended by them but selected by local authorities and approved by Government: if so, to name them and state how the matter was set right in each case;

(c) whether the district school board, Thana, have resolved not to allow Mr. Gatne to resume his duties as administrative officer as he was not recommended by the school board;

(d) whether Government are aware that the progress of primary education would suffer as a result of the unhappy controversy that may ensue between the school board and the district local board owing to the passing of the resolution referred to above;

(e) whether it is a fact that the Chairman had requested Government to hold up their orders for 6 months in view of the impending elections of the district local boards in November next and thus to help to avoid the unhappy controversy over the appointment of the school board administrative officer; if so, what were the reasons that prompted Government to reject the Chairman's reasonable proposal and issue orders so hurriedly?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: (a) Yes. Surat City Municipality.

(b) No.

(c) The District School Board, Thana, resolved on 13th September 1927, not to allow Mr. Gatne to take over charge as School Board Administrative Officer. Mr. Gatne has, however, since been allowed to join the post.

(d) Does not arise.

(e) Yes. Because Government were of opinion that the intention of the Legislature in passing section 9 (1) of the Bombay Primary Education Act, 1923, was that the power of appointment of the School Board Administrative Officer should vest in the Local Authority.

I would add to the printed answer that "since then the said Chairman has communicated to the Government a resolution of the School Board approving the work and abilities of Mr. Gatne."

Mr. S. K. BOLE: Is it a fact that the Poona Municipality found Mr. Gatne incompetent?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: No.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District): May I know the date on which this resolution has been passed ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: It is about a fortnight or twenty days ago.

PUBLIC SERVICE: EMPLOYMENT OF INHABITANTS OF THE BOMBAY PRESIDENCY

Mr. S. K. BOLE: Will Government be pleased to state whether effect has been given to Finance Department Resolution No. L.—395, dated 22nd May 1925, in all the Departments of Government ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Yes.

PENSION OF PEONS AND MENIALS: RULES

Mr. S. K. BOLE: Will Government be pleased to state whether superior services pension rules are to be applied to the pension to be given to peons and menial staff in Government service ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Yes. That is the intention of Government. The necessary provision for the purpose has been made in the next year's budget.

Mr. S. K. BOLE: When are Government going to give effect to the resolution passed in this Council in the year 1925 recommending an increased scale of pay to peons ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: I hope the question will be considered when the financial condition improves.

CHITNIS TO THE COLLECTOR OF RATNAGIRI

Mr. S. K. BOLE: Will Government be pleased to state for how many years the present incumbent of the post of Chitnis to the Collector of Ratnagiri is holding the post ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: The present incumbent officiated in the post from 4th February 1919 to 4th March 1919 and from 1st February 1921 to 4th April 1924, and has been holding it substantively since 5th April 1924.

(b) (i) their total loans outstanding, (ii) the amounts overdue and (iii) the amounts of authorized extensions for each of the last three years ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: (a) and (b) The information is given in the following table:—

Year	Total number of societies	Total loans outstanding	Total amounts overdue	Total amounts of authorised extensions

1924-25	61	25,65,039	5,47,332	3,65,352

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI: Has the Honourable Minister brought the state of affairs to the notice of the Honourable the General Member?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: Not specially.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI: Is the Honourable Minister aware that excessive water rates are charged by the Honourable the General Member?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: I can tell the honourable member that, as a matter of fact, that question is before Government, and the expert of the Government of India has actually visited this Government more than two or three times, and Government are considering how the growing cost could be reduced.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI: Has the Honourable Minister drawn the attention of the Honourable the General Member that as the people are losing so much they cannot afford to pay high charges?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: The Honourable the General Member himself is always present at those meetings, and I think he will consider everything.

The repairs to the 11 buildings and to those damaged in the Kaira District will be taken up by the respective District Local Boards as soon as funds become available.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM: Will Government be pleased to state whether they are prepared to give monetary help to Panch Mahals looking to the backward state and the poor condition of the people?

(b) whether under the Local Boards Act of 1923 the expenses of remuneration of village officers for the collection of local fund cess are recovered from the local boards in (1) alienated villages, and (2) in unalienated villages ;

(c) whether the practice of recovering the remuneration to be paid to the village officers for the collection of the local fund cess in alienated villages from the holders of the villages is still continued ;

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : The Honourable member is referred to the reply given to Rao Bahadur Kale's question on the same subject on the 23rd February 1928.

(d) whether it is a fact that the Magistrate is in the habit of calling all and sundry as " badmash " irrespective of their status and position in life ;

(b) whether any fee is levied for passes given to persons who undertake such shikar ?

Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: (a) It is not possible to say how many of the persons who may have been fined for shooting in forests in contravention of the rules for the preservation of game in reserved or protected forests entered the forests not for the sake of sport but to destroy wild animals for the protection of their crops.

(b) The Honourable Member is referred to the scale of fees given in section 125 of the Bombay Forest Manual, Volume II. In Kanara District holders of gun licenses for crop protection are, however, permitted to shoot wild animals, free of charge, in the forests of their villages; and Forest villagers are permitted under certain condition to beat or hunt, for pig, tiger, or panther, in any reserved forest in such localities where the Collector, in consultation with the Conservator of Forests, considers that the destruction of crops caused by these animals is serious.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE: May I ask whether similar concessions, are extended to forests in other districts?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: Government have never considered that question. If the honourable member gives notice Government will consider it.

GRAZING GROUNDS: INCLUSION IN RESERVED FORESTS

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District): Will Government be pleased to state whether their attention has been drawn to the fact that the gayaran is being reduced owing to more areas being included as reserved forest?

Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: Government are aware that the grazing areas are not sufficient in some localities. This deficiency is however not due to the circumstance of large areas of gairan having been included in Reserved Forest.

DISFORESTATION: EFFECT ON RAINFALL

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware that there has been a general diminution in the average rainfall owing to forests being denuded of trees;

(b) whether they propose to take any steps in this matter?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: (a) No.

(b) Does not arise.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE: As regards (a), will Government be pleased to say whether there is any general diminution in the average rainfall?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: There has been no diminution in the average rainfall.

LEGAL PRACTITIONERS, DOHAD

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the number, names and qualification of pleaders of the Dohad Bar in Panch Mahals District;

(b) whether it is a fact that Mukhtyars are still allowed to practise in Dohad Courts ;

(c) if so, the names and qualification of such Mukhtyars ;

(d) whether they intend to continue the practice of allowing Mukhtyars to practise in Courts in the Panch Mahals ;

(e) if so, the reasons for continuing the practice ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : (a) The names of the pleaders do not appear to be of any general interest. It is reported that there are five who practise regularly at Dohad, of whom four are LL.Bs. and one a B.A.

(b) Mukhtyars are allowed to practise in the First Class Magistrate's Court at Dohad, but not in the Subordinate Judge's Court.

(c) The two Mukhtyars who have been allowed to appear are both Municipal Councillors and Members of the District and Taluka Local Boards.

(d) and (e) Whether to permit Mukhtyars to appear or not is a matter entirely within the discretion of the Court.

POLICE JAMADAR, ADADRA : INSULT AND ASSAULT ON A MEWASDAR

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware of the fact that the Police Jamadar of Adadra in Kalol taluka had insulted and assaulted a Mewasdar, Mr. Bharatsinh Jitsinh Baria, on the ground that the said Mewasdar has failed in his duty to give information at the Police Thana of the name of a female guest, the Thakarani Saheb of Kadwal State, who had put up at his place ;

(b) whether it is a fact that this Mewasdar had never informed the police any day of the names of his guests ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : (a) The allegations are not supported by the facts. The Head Constable having reason to consider that there were some suspicious circumstances about the Thakarani's visit sent for Bharatsinh and questioned him about his guest. He reported the facts to the Sub-Inspector. The Deputy Superintendent afterwards enquired into the complaint that Bharatsinh had been assaulted or insulted, but it was not substantiated by any evidence.

(b) There had not been any previous occasion to make enquiries about Bharatsinh's guests.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM : Are Government aware that when the officer of the Police Department went there to make inquiries, he gathered all those people and threatened them to give a particular sort of statement before him ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : Government are not aware of that.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM : On this question, will Government be pleased to make enquiry without my giving fresh notice ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : A Deputy Superintendent is a responsible officer and Government are certainly not prepared to believe any allegations against him unless they are supported by evidence.

POLICE JAMADAR, ADADRA : GRAZING GROUND FOR HORSE

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware that the Police Jamadar of Adadra is in the habit of letting his horse loose to graze in anybody's field full of crop ;

(b) whether it is a fact that the Jamadar abused Mewasdar Raisinh Motibhai when he brought the Jamadar's horse to him and requested him to manage his horse well with a view that the others may not be troubled and put to any loss ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : (a) The Head Constable is not in the habit of allowing his pony to graze in any one's fields. His pony got loose two or three times during the last 12 months but was soon caught. The Head Constable has been ordered to take better care of his pony in future.

(b) Raisinh was questioned by the Deputy Superintendent about this, but was unable to give any evidence.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM : Are Government aware that this man was threatened to give a particular sort of evidence by the officer who was sent to make enquiry ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : That also Government are not aware of.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Sir, the question was asked about a horse, and not a pony. (Laughter).

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : I am afraid it was a small horse.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : Is it not a fact that some of the police officers require fodder or gram for their horses to be supplied by the villagers ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : I do not think that question arises out of this.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM : Are Government aware that a police jamadar who gets a pay of only Rs. 20 or Rs. 30 and has to maintain a horse, has got 10 or 12 members in the family which he has to support ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : Government are not aware of that.

POLICE JAMADAR, ADADRA : FORCED SUPPLY

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District) : Will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that the Jamadar of Adadra in Kalol taluka of Panch Mahals district demanded dangar (rice) for pahuva (parched rice) from Mewasdar Baria Raisinhbhai Motibhai free of charge which the Mewasdar refused as he was not in a position to give ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : No.

POLICE JAMADAR, ADADRA : USE OF STRAY HORSE

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that the Police Jamadar of Adadra in Kalol taluka caught a stray horse and, instead of impounding it, kept it for his personal use for more than 20 days from the 5th October 1927 ;

(b) whether it is a fact that the Sub-Inspector of Police, Kalol, knew of the fact and on his rebuking the Jamadar the stray horse was put in the cattle pound ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : (a) The Head Constable did catch a stray horse but did not keep it for his own use.

The facts are that a chestnut mare came into the Thana compound sometime during November 1927 and the Head Constable thinking that he knew the owner sent word to him and kept the pony till his reply came.

The Head Constable reported the facts to the Sub-Inspector who told him to send it to the pound if it were not claimed. As the supposed owner said it was not his property, it was sent to the pound.

POLICE JAMADAR, ADADRA : COMPLAINTS OF HIGH-HANDEDNESS

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District) : Will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that some merchants and agriculturists have submitted a written complaint about the high-handedness of the Police Jamadar of Adadra ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : Yes. Government have made enquiries and are fully satisfied that the complaints are entirely without foundation.

HARASSMENT OF TEMPLE DEVOTEES BY GHANCHIS

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware that on the 15th September 1927 some Ghanchis approached the Swaminarayan Temple at Godhra and abuse the devotees therein and wanted to stop them from singing their religious Bhajans with music in their own temple ;

(b) whether it is a fact that this was admitted by Mr. Bhagat, a Ghanchi, in the Round Table Conference held on the 19th September 1927 presided over by Mr. H. V. Braham, I.C.S., the Collector of Panch Mahals ;

(c) whether they made any inquiry and got from Mr. Bhagat the names of those Ghanchis who had gathered near the Swaminarayan Temple and abused the devotees ;

(d) if no efforts are made to get the names of these Ghanchis, the reasons for not doing so ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : (a) It is understood that an incident of this nature did take place.

(b) There is no record of any such admission having been made. When meetings are arranged with the object of reconciling conflicting parties, it is most desirable, as the Honourable Member will admit, that those present should speak their minds freely and should not attempt to conceal any facts which may be contrary to their interests. It is obvious that such frankness would not be possible if official action were to be taken on admissions which must be regarded as having been made " without prejudice."

(c) and (d). The aggrieved persons' proper remedy was to complain or give information to the Police. It has been ascertained that this was not done. There were therefore no grounds on which action could have been taken.

POLICE SUB-INSPECTOR, GODHRA

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District): Will Government be pleased to state the name of the Sub-Inspector of Police who was posted at Godhra in the month of August and September 1927 ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: Goram Khan Kamal Khan from 1st August 1927 to 16th August 1927 and Yasin Miyan Bava Shah from 17th August 1927 to 30th September 1927.

PRIMARY SCHOOLS IN NORTHERN DIVISION

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK (Surat District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware that it is only the Northern Division in the Bombay Presidency, where no new local board schools were opened since the introduction of the Montford Reforms;

(b) if so, the reasons why the Northern Division has been differently treated from other Divisions;

(c) whether they are aware that there have been several demands for primary schools from several school-less villages of Gujarat with a population of more than 1,000 and in some cases even more than 2,000;

(d) if so, why such villages have not been provided with schools up till now ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: (a) and (b) It is not only in the Northern Division but in all other divisions in the Presidency that no new schools could be opened till 1924-25 owing to financial stringency. Later on, however, when funds became available, Government invited the District Local Boards to submit proposals for opening new schools and providing additional teachers in existing schools wherever necessary on the condition that District Local Boards were prepared to bear one-third share of the additional cost involved and since then Government have sanctioned grants for opening new schools, etc., to those District Local Boards which have agreed to bear one-third share of their cost.

(c) and (d) There have been demands for primary schools from several of the school-less villages in Gujarat (vide the statement attached showing the number of school-less villages). But those villages could not be provided with schools owing to the unwillingness of the Boards to bear one-third share of the additional cost involved.

Statement showing the number of school-less villages with a population of more than 1,000

Name of the District	Number of School-less villages	Remarks
Ahmedabad	3	In one of these villages, there was a school but it had to be closed for want of numbers.
Kaira	11	Out of these, only one village has a population of more than 2,000.
Panch Mahals ..	12	Many of these villages are mostly inhabited by hill tribes and hence schools are not likely to thrive there.
Broach	0
Surat	9	Out of these, only one village has a population of more than 2,000. Five of these villages are not in urgent need of Local Board Schools.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM: May I know from whose report this information has been taken that many of these villages are mostly inhabited by hill tribes? I refer to the answer re schools in Panch Mahals.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: From the reports of the officers of the Educational Department.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM: Out of these 12 villages, how many are inhabited by hill tribes?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: If the honourable member will give me the names of the villages which are included in this number, I will try to get the information he requires and supply it to him.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: It is true that no new school has been opened in the Northern Division since the introduction of reforms?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: The question is answered in the reply to (a) and (b).

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: My question was whether as a fact no new schools were opened in Gujarat during the last five years?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: It is not only in the Northern Division but in all other divisions in the presidency that no new schools could be opened till 1924-25 owing to financial stringency. Later on, however, when funds became available, Government invited the district local boards to submit proposals for opening new schools and providing additional teachers in existing schools wherever necessary on the condition that district local boards were prepared to bear one-third share of the additional cost involved and since then Government have sanctioned grants for opening new schools, etc., to those district local boards which have agreed to bear one-third share of their cost. As the boards did not bear their one-third share none were opened.

FIELD WELLS : SARBHON

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK (Surat District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) how many field wells there are in the village of Sarbhon, taluka Bardoli, district Surat, and how many of them contain water to the depth of 5 feet and how many below 5 ;

(b) how many of these wells are used for irrigation purposes ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) There are 42 field wells in the village. At present all contain water to the depth of 5 feet, but in summer the water goes below 5 feet in 39 cases. Only 3 wells contain water to the depth of 5 feet throughout the year.

(b) Only 3.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : Have Government taken any steps to repair these 39 wells ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I believe they are privately-owned wells.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : Are any irrigation charges levied on those fields which contain these wells ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Possibly on those used for irrigation but not on the others.

ASSAM TEA PLANTATION : DISAPPEARANCE OF TWO GIRLS FROM TALODA

L. M. DESHPANDE on behalf of Mr. H. V. PATASKAR (East Khandesh District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that two minor girls, the wards of one Raymal Baba Bhil of Taloda, district West Khandesh, disappeared from their village about four months ago ;

(b) whether it is a fact that the girls have been taken to Assam for working on the tea plantation by two of the coolies from Assam who had come to Taloda and who disappeared from Taloda simultaneously with the disappearance of the girls ;

(c) whether the Agent of the Assam Planters at Dhulia had any hand in the matter directly or indirectly ;

(d) whether it is a fact that a complaint against the Agent of the Assam Planters or his Assistant or accomplices has been registered by the Sub-Inspector of Police, Taloda, and, if so, what inquiry has been made and with what result ;

(e) whether any statements of the girls or of any other persons on their behalf have been recorded before the City Magistrate, Dhulia ;

(f) whether Government have taken any steps to ascertain the whereabouts of the unfortunate girls by referring to the proper authorities in Assam ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL V. MEHTA : (a) The two girls left Taloda in June last. One of them was 20 years of age and the other 16.

(b) The girls were taken to Assam for working on a tea plantation. The two coolies were from Taloda itself and not from outside and the girls accompanied the two coolies willingly as their wives.

(c) The Agent registered and forwarded the two girls and the two coolies after they were produced before and certified by the First Class Magistrate, Dhulia City.

(d) A complaint was lodged by Raymal Baba Bhil before the Police, but on enquiry it was found that the girls were not under sixteen years of age and that they went of their own free will to Assam and hence no action could be taken in the matter.

(e) The statements of the girls were not recorded by the First Class Magistrate, but he questioned them and certified them after he was satisfied that they were willing to go to Assam, and knew the conditions under which they were going.

(f) Government have made enquiries and have ascertained that the girls are in Assam and that they are willing to stay there.

SCHOOLS : GRANT-IN-AID

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN on behalf of Mr. G. I. PATEL (Ahmedabad Millowners' Association) : Will Government be pleased—

(a) to place on the table a list containing the names of such of the aided secondary schools whose grants were reduced in the years 1926-27 and 1927-28 in this Presidency with reasons for such reduction in each case ;

(b) to state whether the Director of Public Instruction received any petition for reduction of over one-half of the grant from any of the schools at Ahmedabad. If so, to place on the table copies of the said petition with reminders and replies if any ;

(c) to say whether the City High School of Ahmedabad is the only institution in Ahmedabad whose grant was at a stroke reduced by over one-half ;

(d) to inquire and state whether the proprietor of the said school had taken active part in the last election at Ahmedabad for a defeated candidate ;

(e) to state if the Educational Inspector, Northern Division, had considered the merits and demerits of the reduction in the grant before this action. If so, to place the reports and the other papers of enquiry on the table ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) The accompanying statement giving the required information is placed on the Council table.

(b) Yes. In the opinion of Government no useful purpose will be served by placing on the Council table copies of the correspondence referred to.

(c) Yes.

(d) After enquiry, it does not appear that the Proprietor, City High School, Ahmedabad, took any part in the last Council or Municipal elections for a defeated candidate.

(e) In view of the condition of the City High School, Ahmedabad, observed at the time of the last and previous inspections, a grant equal to the difference between the admitted expenditure and the total fee receipts of the previous year was considered reasonable to enable the school to make both ends meet, and a grant of Rs. 2,368 was sanctioned.

PUBLIC SERVICE : INDIANIZATION

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District): Will Government be pleased—

(a) to lay on the Council table a statement showing the progress of Indianization in each public service year by year since 1921 ;

(b) to state whether the proportions in each service between Indians and Europeans, as recommended by the Lee Commission have been reached ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: (a) The attention of the honourable member is invited to the Civil Lists for the years in question which contain full information on the subject. (Copies of the Lists are available in the Legislative Council Library.)

(b) The Lee Commission did not contemplate or recommend that the proportion laid down by them for each of the Imperial Services which have not been provincialized should be reached in the current year as is suggested by the question. Appropriate formulæ for recruitment to these Services have been adopted giving effect to the recommendations of the Commission on this matter.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN: May I request the Honourable the Finance Member to be so kind as to oblige me by getting his own office to prepare the statement for me ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: I find it very difficult to say "yes" because if every honourable member wished that to be done, I do not know whether we could meet such requests. I think it would be impossible.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN: That is a hypothetical "if" and the matter is of considerable public importance.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: They are made often.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN: Can nothing be done at all ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: If the honourable member will leave it to me, I will see what can be done, but I do not make any definite promise.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN: As regards (b) I have not made the suggestion as supposed by the honourable member; all that I want to know is whether the proportions to be reached up to date as recommended by the Lee Commission have been reached.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: The answer is already there namely, appropriate formulæ for recruitment to these services have been adopted giving effect to recommendations of the Commission on this matter.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN: I request the Honourable the Finance Member to tell me plainly whether the proportion to be reached up to this year has been reached.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: No proportion has been laid down for every year. That is where our difficulty comes in. All that the Lee Commission recommended so far as I recollect now is that by a certain time a certain proportion of each of the services should be indianised, and in order to reach that stage after a certain number of years certain formulæ have been worked out and these have been followed. In that sense effect has been given to the recommendations made.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN: May I know whether the proportions that should be reached up to date has been reached ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Yes, I think so.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE: The Civil List has not been supplied to us yet this year Has the practice been discontinued ?

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI : Recently I made a written reference to Government complaining that we are often referred in answers to questions to the Civil List, but that only one copy of the Civil List is supplied to us in a year.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The honourable members are referred in the reply to the Civil List which is in the Council Library.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI : Are we to come down to Bombay from the moffussil to refer to the copy that is kept in the Council Library ?

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : My question was whether the practice of supplying the Civil List has been discontinued.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I do not know how that question arises here.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : May I explain, Sir. I believe the Civil List is supplied to honourable members only once a year but the copy that is supplied is the complete copy for that year. I believe it is supplied in July of each year.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : It used to be supplied in January but this year it has not yet come to us.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : January or July, one complete copy will go to the honourable members.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order. All this is foreign to the question before the House.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : Will the Honourable the Finance Member place on the Council table the appropriate formulæ for recruitment referred to in the reply ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Certainly, we will.

EXCISE ADVISORY COMMITTEES : RECOMMENDATIONS

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District) : Will Government be pleased to lay on the Council table a statement showing the recommendation or recommendations, if any, made by each of the Excise Advisory Committees in the Presidency and the action taken thereon by the proper authorities ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : There are 288 Excise Advisory Committees and during the year 1926-27 they made 608 recommendations. Statistical information in regard to these is given in Appendix B to the Excise Administration Report for the year 1926-27 a copy of which has been furnished to the Honourable Member. The collection of the information required by the Honourable Member for all the Committees would involve a considerable amount of time and labour. It is therefore suggested that he should select one or more particular Committees in any one district, when the information in regard to them will be obtained.

INDIAN REGISTRATION ACT AMENDMENT BILL : OPINIONS

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District) : Will the Honourable the Minister for Forests and Excise be pleased to lay on the Council table a statement showing the names of individuals and public bodies from whom opinions have been received up to date on the Indian Registration Act (Amendment) Bill and the opinion given in each case ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : Copies of the communications received in response to the Press Note, dated 19th August 1927, in which those interested in the proposed legislation were asked to submit their opinions are placed on the Council table.

VILLAGE PANCHAYAT COMMITTEE REPORT

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District) : Will the Honourable the Minister for Local Self-Government be pleased to state—

(a) the reason for not having yet given effect to the recommendations of the Village Panchayat Committee ;

(b) whether he intends to take the necessary legislative action in the matter, and, if so, when ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : (a) The recommendations are still under the consideration of Government, and I am as anxious as my honourable friend to give effect to it as early as possible.

(b) The question cannot be answered unless Government have fully considered the report.

DHARAMIYU TANK, BUTWADA VILLAGE

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI (Surat District) : Will Government be pleased to give the following information about the Dharamiyu tank in the village of Butwada in the taluka of Valod in the Surat District—

(a) the area of the tank ;

(b) the area of the land assessed to it for Himayat ;

(c) the Himayat assessment on the tank ;

(d) whether the embankment of the tank is in good condition ;

(e) the number of pipes on the tank and the condition in which each is at present ;

(f) whether the tank is at present deep enough ;

(g) when was the tank last repaired, what repairs were done to it at the time and what was the amount spent on those repairs ;

(h) what is the condition of the tank at present ;

(i) whether complaints have been received from the people about this tank ;

(j) whether Government have decided to put this tank in a good state of repair ;

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : (a) 20 acres and 2 gunthas.

(b) 35 acres and 39 gunthas.

(c) Rs. 80-2-7.

(d) Yes.

(e) The tank has two pipe outlets of 6" diameter of which one is in good order but the other requires overhauling.

(f) Yes.

(g) The tank was last repaired in 1924-25 at a total cost of Rs. 360. The repairs consisted of (1) strengthening the bund, (2) renewal of pipe outlet and (3) petty repairs to the waste-weir and the second outlet.

(h) The tank is in good condition and in working order. Repairs to one of the pipe outlets and the waste-weir are required.

(i) Yes.

(j) and (k) Yes, repairs to the pipe outlet and the masonry waste-weir will be carried out after the plans and estimate are prepared and sanctioned. The repairs will cost about Rs. 650.

TODDY SHOP, LAL DARWAJA, SURAT

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI (Surat District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether there is a toddy shop situated on the public road at Lal Darwaja, Surat City;

(b) whether this shop is situated near the junction of several streets where high class and respectable Hindu families are residing;

(c) whether a Hindu temple of Kabirpanthaji is situated just opposite to this toddy shop;

(d) whether toddy drunkards sit to drink toddy on the main road which is very narrow at this point;

(e) whether it is a fact that at times the drunkards when they are intoxicated mock ladies who may be passing;

(f) whether an application was made to the Assistant Collector of Excise and the Collector of Surat for the removal of this shop to some other place;

(g) whether the shop was inspected in 1924 and orders were passed for its removal;

(h) whether these orders have still remained unexecuted;

(i) whether the Advisory Committee with the Collector of Surat as its President unanimously resolved to cancel the Lal Darwaja toddy shop;

(j) if so, why this unanimous Resolution of the Excise Advisory Committee has not been given effect to;

(k) what are the reasons for keeping the shop at its present site;

(l) whether Government intend to remove this shop;

(m) if so, when?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: (a) Yes. There is a toddy shop known as the Lal Darwaja shop, but it is in a side street and not on the main road.

(b) No.

(c) No. On the other side of the street but not immediately opposite to the shop there is the back wall of the compound of a Hindu temple. The entrance to the temple is in another street.

(d) No.

(e) Government are not so aware.

(f) Yes.

(g) Yes.

(h) Yes.

(i) Yes.

(j) The shop has a large custom, and if it were closed, there would be no shop in the near vicinity to which its customers could go. The effect of the closure might therefore be to drive people to the use of more deleterious drinks or drugs.

(k) Because it is not so objectionable as it is represented to be and no more convenient site can be found.

(l) No, unless another suitable site in the neighbourhood can be found.

(m) Does not arise.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI: With regard to (d), my question is "Whether toddy drunkards sit to drink toddy on the main road which is very narrow at this point", and the reply is "No". What does it mean?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: They do not sit.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI: I want to know whether Government have made enquiries whether ladies are being mocked.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: The reply, that Government are not aware of it, is based upon enquiries made.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI: The reply says that Government are not aware?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: Enquiries were made and it was found that there is nothing to show that ladies are being mocked while passing along the road.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI: Part (j) of the reply says "The shop has a large custom, and if it were closed, there would be no shop in the near vicinity to which its customers could go." Is it the policy of Government to supply toddy?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: Yes. It is not the policy of Government that people should be driven to illicit distillation or smuggling.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI: Then why was it ordered in 1924 to close this shop?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: I want notice of the question.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI: The notice is there, and you have said yes.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: You want the reason for it.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI: At that time, was there no demand for toddy?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: You want the reason for closure of the shop in 1924, and I want notice for it.

Dr. M. D. GILDER: On what grounds did the Advisory Committee with the Collector of Surat recommend that the license for the shop should be cancelled?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: I want notice of the question.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI : With regard to (i), are not Government prepared to accept the recommendation of the advisory committee including the Collector, with regard to the abolition of the shop ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : No.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI : On whose advice are Government acting ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : On the advice of the Commissioner of Excise.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI : What is the advisory committee for ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : It is for advice, and that advice is considered by Government.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Is the Commissioner wiser than the advisory committee and the local officers ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : He is the expert officer of Government.

(d) Yes, except a portion which is crossed by a cart track.

(f) Yes, but at present the tank does not hold water to the full extent as water flows out by the deep ruts formed on the cart track which passes through the tank bed.

(g) The tank was last repaired in 1923-24 at a cost of Rs. 298. The repairs consisted of putting the outlets in working order and strengthening the worn-out portion of the bund.

(h) The tank is in good condition excepting the defects mentioned in (d) and (f) above.

(i) Yes.

(j) and (k) No repairs are required except the filling up of the ruts formed by the cart traffic. The filling up is to be done by the villagers themselves under sections 84 and 85 of the Irrigation Act.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI : With regard to (j) and (k), what steps have Government taken to get the ruts filled up by the villagers ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : I cannot give you any definite idea.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI : What is the policy of Government in this matter ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : The villagers are supposed to do their own duty, and I do not know how often they are reminded about it.

(e) what was the reason of the abolition of this polling station;

(f) whether it is a fact that this will cause inconvenience to the voters;

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: (a) Yes.

(e) whether no building grant was received for this school from Government;

(f) whether the Education Inspector in his No. 13154, dated 19th February 1926, addressed to the Director reported as under:—

> "The school has charged a monthly rent of Rs. 250, i.e., Rs. 3,000 per annum for its own building on which no building grant has been claimed. The rent calculated at the numbers likely to be reached comes to Rs. 1,312 per annum, but the actual cost of only the construction of the building was Rs. 55,000. As it was constructed before the instructions contained in your No. S-67 (c)-C of 1st December 1924, regarding admission of rent of school building, I have admitted Rs. 250 per month as a reasonable rent and made no deduction therefrom."

(g) whether the Director of Public Instruction was pleased to order that the school should be allowed a rent of Rs. 581 per year;

(h) whether the Society which conducts the Pardi Anglo-Vernacular School has applied to Government to reconsider this decision;

LIQUOR SALES, AHMEDABAD: HOLI HOLIDAYS

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the sale of foreign liquor in gallons on the 17th and 18th of March 1927 (namely the Holi holidays) in the refreshment bar of Messrs. E. R. Fanibanda and Sons located at the "Fanibanda Building" near Sehr Kotda Police Chowky, Ahmedabad;

(b) the average sale of foreign liquor in gallons during the month of March 1927 in the same shop;

(c) if the sale of foreign liquor on the dates which were the Holi holidays far exceeds the average sale during the month of March 1927, whether it is a fact that the overwhelming excess of sale was due to all the other country liquor shops having been closed and only refreshment bars having been allowed to be kept open?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: (a) The sale of foreign liquor at the Refreshment Room of Messrs. E. R. Fanibanda and Sons amounted to 81 and 225 bulk gallons on the 17th and 18th March 1927 respectively.

(b) About 17½ bulk gallons.

(c) Yes.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Is not the object of Government frustrated by allowing the millhands to resort to the refreshment room and consume ten times the average sale of liquor on Holi holidays?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: The Collector was given discretion in the matter, as the honourable member was informed in reply to one of his questions.

Dr. M. D. GILDER: Is the Honourable Minister satisfied that the Collector used his discretion in the proper way, when the sale of foreign liquor rose up by more than 1,300 per cent. on that date?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: It will be considered next time and brought to the notice of the Collector.

Dr. M. D. GILDER: Is the Honourable Minister satisfied that the Collector has used this discretion in the proper way?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: This state of things will be considered next time.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Why was not the sale of foreign liquor at the refreshment room closed on the Holi Holiday in the interest of the preservation of peace ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : Discretion was given to the Collector and he exercised it as he thought fit.

GUJARAT COLLEGE : ADDITIONAL CLOTHING FOR PEONS

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the Principal of the Gujarat College gives Dhotars, Paghdis, white-coats over and above the usual uniforms to the two out of the three college peons whom he uses as his personal peons ;

(b) if so, from what provision of the budget these articles are supplied to the personal peons of the Principal ;

(c) if there is no provision in the budget, the source from which that expenditure is defrayed ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a), (b) and (c) Two out of the four college peons only were given white uniforms in 1926-27 and the cost was met from the Domus Fund.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Is the money intended for the benefit of the hostel students to be utilised for the uniforms and the clothing of the peons ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : It is presumed that the principal has acted within the authority vested in him by the rules.

Dr. M. D. GILDER : What is the Domus Fund ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : It is a fund, made up of the contributions made by the hostel students.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : For what purposes is this fund supposed to be utilised ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : It is used, under the discretion of the principal, for the general interests of the college.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM : What is the constitution, and what are the names of the office bearers of this fund ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I require notice of the question.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : Is this a private or a public fund ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : It is not a fund over which Government have any control ; the college authorities have control over it.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : Are Government satisfied that the principal exercised his discretion in the right way ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Government have not gone into that question.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Then what is the object of this question ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : To elicit information only.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : The answer is that the money has been met from the Domus Fund. The Domus Fund is for the use of the students. Why should it be used for the peons ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Sir, it is an argument ; not a question.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Is this fund not for the use of the students, and if it is, why is it used for the peons ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : All that would be determined by having the rules before the Council.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Will the Honourable Minister do so then ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Will the honourable member give me notice ?

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Certainly, this is notice, public notice.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : What is the meaning of the word " Domus ? "

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Next question.

HOSTEL ACCOMMODATION : R. C. HIGH SCHOOL, AHMEDABAD

(c) the number of vacancies that remained unfilled owing to want of students desiring to avail themselves of the accommodation provided in that hostel during the last five years ;

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) 100.

(b) 43 in 1922-23.
43 in 1923-24.
58 in 1924-25.
59 in 1925-26.
60 in 1926-27.

(c) 57 in 1922-23.
57 in 1923-24.
42 in 1924-25.
41 in 1925-26.
40 in 1926-27.

(d) No. If students of other schools are admitted to the hostel, it will be difficult to exercise proper supervision and maintain discipline.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : When there are so many vacancies, will Government try to make the surplus accommodation available to the students of other grant-in-aid or recognised schools of Ahmedabad ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I have explained in reply to part (b) of the question that the difficulty is that if other schools are admitted to the hostel, it will be difficult to exercise proper supervision.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : If the authorities of a grant-in-aid school would co-operate with the authorities of the R. C. High School for maintenance of discipline, would not Government allow the students of that High School in the hostel ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : When Government receive any proposals which are considered suitable to get over the difficulty, they will be considered.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : (a) Mr. Harvey was serving in the Reclamation Branch of the Development Department and has proceeded on leave with effect from the 3rd January 1928.

(b) Mr. Harvey's pay, when he proceeded on leave, was Rs. 2,150 plus compensatory local allowance of Rs. 225 and overseas pay £13-6-8.

(c) 42 years.

(d) Mr. Harvey belongs to the Madras Public Works Department and will, on return from leave, revert to that Government. He can serve the Madras Government for another thirteen years.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Is it not a fact that Government had undertaken to recover the amount from Mr. Harvey in case he lost the case ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : That question has been put and answered.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM : What reason did Mr. Harvey give in his leave application for going to England ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : He took the sanction of the court before he left, because judgment was not delivered.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM : What reason did he assign in his leave application ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Leave was due to him.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM : Is he returning ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Not to this presidency.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM : Going where on his return ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : To Madras presumably.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM : Are other provinces willing to take him ? What arrangement did Government make when he proceeded on leave to recover the amount from him ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : That does not arise.

REFRESHMENT BARS, AHMEDABAD : CLOSURE ON HOLIDAYS

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the refreshment bars of Ahmedabad where foreign liquor is sold were closed on Katl-ki-Rat and Taboot holidays during the current year 1927 in the city of Ahmedabad ;

(b) if the answer to (a) is in the affirmative, why the question of reasonable facilities for obtaining liquor provided by refreshment rooms was cast aside by Government who allowed the refreshment bars to be kept open during the Holi holidays of the current year 1927 on the ground of affording reasonable facilities to the drinking public ;

(c) the reasons why the refreshment bars of Ahmedabad which are regarded as " foreign liquor " shops liable to be closed in pursuance of Government Resolution, Revenue Department, No. 1459-C, dated 10th April 1922, on Mohurrum public holidays are not regarded as " foreign liquor " shops on Holi holidays and are allowed to be kept open on those holidays ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : (a) Yes.

(b) and (c) Government Resolution No. 1459-C, dated 10th April 1922, to which the Honourable Member refers has been modified by Government Resolution No. 1459-C, dated 16th April 1923, under which refreshment rooms in the mofussil can be kept open during the Holi and Mohurrum holidays. Under section 42 of the Bombay Abkari Act, 1878, however, it is open to the Collector to require that any shop in which any excisable article is sold by retail shall be closed at such time as he may deem it necessary for the sake of the public peace and to order that such shop shall remain closed. It is in the exercise of this discretion that a refreshment room is allowed either to remain open or is closed during the Holi and Mohurrum holidays.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Is it not a danger to public peace to keep the refreshment rooms open on Holi holidays ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : As I have already stated the discretion is vested in the Collector to keep open or close the refreshment rooms on those days. If the Collector has not exercised his discretion properly, it is open to the honourable member or any body to bring the matter to the notice of the higher authorities.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT, AHMEDABAD : GRADUATE EMPLOYEES

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) how far effect has been given to Government Resolutions, Revenue Department, No. L.C.-2627, dated 14th December 1926 and 19th May 1927, regulating promotions of graduates in the Ahmedabad District ;

(b) whether it is a fact that clerks drawing Rs. 65 per mensem are posted on scheduled posts carrying Rs. 85 while graduates possessing the necessary qualifications contained in Government Resolution No. L.C.-2627 of 14th December 1926 are still retained on clerical posts ;

(c) if so, whether they intend to recompense the graduates whose claims have been neglected ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Full effect has been given to them.

(b) Yes. The non-graduates were selected to act in scheduled posts before the issue of the Government Resolution, dated 14th December 1926. Accordingly, when vacancies occurred later, they were reappointed to act, as their experience in the various branches of work made them more useful than graduates with less service and experience.

(c) The claims of graduates are not being neglected. Appointments to scheduled posts are being made in accordance with the orders of Government which enjoin that due regard should be paid both to seniority and other considerations such as merit.

LIQUOR LICENSE, AHMEDABAD : APPLICATION FOR RENEWAL

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether Mr. Nowroji Framji of Ahmedabad applied to the local authorities during the years 1923 and 1924 either for the renewal, revival, restoration or extension of his foreign liquor license which ceased to exist from 1st April 1922 ;

(b) if the reply to (a) is in the affirmative why the request of Mr. Nowroji Framji was refused and what were the grounds of refusal ;

(c) why in spite of Mr. Nowroji Framji being a licensee of very old standing and having not committed any breach of excise rules he was not granted his request in any shape, though during that interval of time a shop in which foreign liquor was to be sold was allowed to be opened in Kapasia Bazar, Ahmedabad, on or about 1st July 1923 ;

(d) if the reply to (c) reveals that a shop for selling foreign liquor was opened on 1st July 1923 in Kapasia Bazar, Ahmedabad, why the claims of Mr. Nowroji Framji were not considered in connection with that shop in spite of his being a licensee of very old standing.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : (a) Yes.

(b) Mr. Nowroji Framji holds a hotel license. He held an "off" license which was cancelled in 1922 as it was found that he paid no attention to his business.

(c) and (d) No "off" license was granted in the locality where Mr. Nowroji's hotel is situated, and this being the case he had, apart from his inability to conduct another shop, no claim to be granted a license so far away as Kapasia Bazar.

TRAINING COLLEGE : REFUSAL OF ADMISSION TO MR. PATEL

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether Mr. Bhikhabhai Kuberbhai Patel, a life-member of the Charotar Education Society and the manager of the D. N. High School, applied to the Principal of the Secondary Training College for admission without a stipend ;

(b) whether it is a fact that the said applicant was refused admission ;

(c) if so, the grounds on which his application was not granted ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) and (b) Yes. It may, however, be noted that the statement made in part (a) of the question that Mr. Patel applied for admission without a stipend is not strictly correct. No mention of a stipend was made in his application.

(c) The application was refused because other candidates were considered more suitable.

FOREIGN LIQUOR LICENSE : RESOLUTION OF AHMEDABAD MUNICIPALITY

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the municipal board of Ahmedabad has unanimously passed a resolution making a demand on 21st September 1927 that the foreign liquor "Off" license granted to Mr. Fanibanda near Sehr Kotda Police Chowki, Ahmedabad, which was temporarily revived against the wishes of the local Excise Advisory Committee, be completely closed on the expiration of its new term ;

(b) whether the resolution of the municipal board referred to in (a) was communicated to Government ;

(c) if the answer to (b) is in the affirmative what steps Government have taken to close the said license on the expiry of its new life ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : (a) A Resolution to this effect was passed. Government are not aware whether it was passed unanimously.

(b) Yes.

(c) None. After reconsideration of the whole case Government have decided to continue the license.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Is not the resolution of the municipality to be taken in account in considering the location of shops ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : There is a huge literature as regards this Fanibanda and Sons. But Government have come to the conclusion that these are manipulated on account of trade rivalry and jealousy.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Has the Municipality of Ahmedabad trade rivalry against Messrs. E. R. Fanibanda and Sons ? Does the Hon'ble Minister impute motives to the members of the municipal board and the advisory committee ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : There are certain persons who are against Fanibanda and Sons on the advisory committee. They passed a resolution to close this shop. They are also members of the municipal board. Consistently with the resolution they passed in the advisory committee they wanted to pass a similar resolution on the municipal board. The resolution was carried. This is a statement of fact.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM : Have Government received official reports to the effect that because those persons have personal grudge they voted in favour of that resolution ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : As they are confidential they cannot be placed on the Council table. Besides, there is a huge pile of applications and petitions which I am prepared to place on the table, if the honourable member desires.

BOMBAY EDUCATIONAL SERVICE : SELECTION POSTS

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the number of selection posts in Bombay Educational Service ;

(b) how many of them have been filled ;

(c) how many of them have not been filled together with the reasons for not filling them in each case ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) 23.

(b) 10.

(c) 13. Government have decided that selection grade posts need not be filled up simply because they are vacant and have instructed the Director of Public Instruction to recommend the appointment of an officer to the selection grade only if in his opinion he is fully deserving of it and his pay is inadequate considering his qualifications, experience and standing in the service.

FOREIGN LIQUOR LICENSES : ISSUE TO COUNTRY LIQUOR TRADERS

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they received a petition from Mr. Naorojee Framjee dated 13th January 1927, requesting them to issue a distinct Government Resolution providing that foreign liquor licenses should not be given to the persons who have permanent interests in the country liquor trade ;

(b) if the answer to (a) is in the affirmative, whether they instituted any enquiries on that petition ;

(c) which officers of Government were entrusted with the work of those enquiries, and what were the reports from those officers ;

(d) what were the final decisions arrived at by the Government on that petition ;

(e) whether any reply was sent to Mr. Naorojee Framjee and the nature of that reply ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : (a) Yes.

(b) Yes.

(c) The Commissioner of Excise was consulted. Government are not prepared to place his report on the Council table.

(d) The decision of Government was that it was not necessary to issue orders debarring country spirit licensees from having any interest in the sale of foreign liquor in the same locality.

(e) The petitioner was informed in accordance with the decision indicated in the reply to clause (d).

" OFF " LICENSE, AHMEDABAD

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they have received complaints that one Mr. Mancher-shaw Burjorjee Karayawalla, a servant of Messrs. E. R. Fanibanda and Sons, Foreign wine merchants, near Saher Kotda Police Chowky, Ahmedabad, has been moving among the people in a motor car of his masters and collecting signatures from the people with a view to mislead the Government about the " off " foreign liquor license of his masters ;

(b) if the answer to (a) is in the affirmative, what steps Government have taken or propose to take to check the activities of Messrs. E. R. Fanibanda and Sons and their employees in connection with the license ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : (a) Allegations to this effect were made in a petition addressed to Government praying that the foreign liquor " off " license issued to Messrs. E. R. Fanibanda and Sons might be discontinued.

(b) Government have taken no steps to enquire into the truth of the allegation, and do not propose to take any.

MAMLATDARS : SELECTION OF PROBATIONERS

Rao Saheb R. V. VANDEKAR (Nasik District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the number of probationers for the post of Mamlatdars in the Presidency selected last year ;

(b) how many of them are (i) Brahmins, (ii) Marathas and allied classes, (iii) Backward classes, and (iv) Mohamedans ;

(c) whether the recruitment is annual and whether efforts are made to select candidates from all communities ;

(d) what is the average time required for a probationer to get the Mamlatdar's post in the Presidency, and Mukhtiarkar's post in Sind ?

(d) 7 to 10 years in the Presidency proper and 3 to 5 years in Sind.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE : Is there any depressed class man among the men appointed under the column of backward classes in the answer given ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I cannot say.

Mr. G. A. D. WASIF (Central Division) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) what is the expenditure which Government has incurred for maintaining the Department of Industries in the Bombay Presidency upto 1926 ;

(b) how many industrial institutions the department has opened and, if any, where ;

(c) how many old industries which were neglected have been revived ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a), (b) and (c) The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the Annual Report of the Department of Industries of the Bombay Presidency for the year 1925-26.

CATTLE CENSUS : POONA CITY

Mr. G. A. D. WASIF (Central Division) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the census of cattle was ever taken in Poona City ;

(b) how many cows are kept by each of the following castes, i.e., Brahmins, Marathas, untouchables, Mahomedans, and the number per thousand of the population of each community ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : (a) Yes ; in 1925.

(b) The information is not available and could not be collected without an undue expenditure of time and money, for which Government can see no justification.

Mr. SYED MUNAWAR : Sir, may I be allowed to ask questions on behalf of my hon'ble friend Mr. S. C. JOSHI ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I have stated yesterday that honourable members should be in their places at question time and that I would not be lenient in the future in case they were not present. Now, I have decided that I should not allow any leniency to members who are not in their places at question time.

Are there any honourable members desirous of taking their seats ?

Mr. H. Dow then took the prescribed oath of allegiance to His Majesty the King-Emperor and took his seat.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : (Satara District) : Sir, at the October session of the Council at Poona, I had asked a question, which is at page 785 of Vol. XXI of the Official Report, in these terms :

" Will Government be pleased to state whether they intend to adopt as an experimental measure the principle of total prohibition in the Satara District, the consumption of liquor in which is the smallest, as leading towards the goal of total prohibition in this province, on the lines followed in parts of Madras and Central Provinces ? "

To that, the Honourable Minister gave his reply as follows :

" Government are unable to make any statement on the subject at the present time. "

In connection with that, I asked a supplementary question in these words :

" Will Government be pleased to say whether they contemplate taking any action regarding prohibition in the Satara District ? "

And the Honourable Minister gave a reply stating :

" The matter is under consideration. "

I find that owing to some reason or other the supplementary question and the answer to it do not find a place in the official report, and I wish to bring that matter to your notice and to request that something may be done to see that the thing is set right.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : To begin with, I would call upon the Honourable Minister to inform the House whether the supplementary question was asked and the answer given.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : Some such question was put and I remember to have answered it in that form.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Now, I must point out to honourable members that I have allowed this statement to be made to-day and the defect to be set right. For future, I should like to lay down very clearly, that I would be reluctant to give any such opportunity, because it is the practice everywhere of all legislatures and the House of Commons, that the report is to be taken as final and conclusive. Here in Bombay, in both the Council Halls of Bombay and Poona, possibly because of the construction of the halls, honourable members are not audible, and it is just possible that the honourable member was not heard by the reporter and the omission was made. It was brought to my notice even this morning that the reporter was not following certain supplementary questions because they were put in low tones. I would, therefore, at this very moment request honourable members to speak as loud as they possibly can to help me and also the reporters.

Now, as to the question of corrections being allowed, it must be brought to the notice of honourable members that when copies of their speeches or of the questions they ask are sent to honourable members for correction, they have an opportunity to see that very moment, on that day or the second day, whether a certain thing they stated is or is not there. And if it is not there it is their duty to bring it to my notice or to the notice of the Secretary that an omission has been made. The honourable member, I am sure, was given a copy of what he had asked that day, and when he saw that his supplementary question was not there, he should have brought that to the notice of the President. To be brief, in future I would not allow any such statements to be made to correct any statements and the report will be taken as the final corrected report.

GOVERNMENT BILLS

BILL No. II OF 1928 (A BILL FURTHER TO AMEND THE INDIAN STAMP (BOMBAY AMENDMENT) ACT, 1922)

(Motion for first reading)

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Sir, I introduce Bill* No. II of 1928 (A Bill further to amend the Indian Stamp (Bombay Amendment) Act, 1922).

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Bill No. II of 1928 (A Bill further to amend the Indian Stamp (Bombay Amendment) Act, 1922 is introduced.

First reading.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Sir, I beg to move that Bill No. II of 1928 be read a first time.

Sir, this bill is a very short bill, and probably the Council will agree it is also a very innocent bill. My remarks, Sir, on the bill will be proportionate to the size of the bill. The history of the Stamp Bill is well-known to the House. As the Council are aware, it was first introduced in 1922, and it was then given a life of four years. In 1922 we followed other provinces, taking their lead, which we do not often like to do. Almost all provinces have got this legislation and the major provinces, namely, Bengal, Madras and the Punjab, have placed their enhanced fees on a permanent footing, but the honourable Council of the Bombay Presidency has thought it right that Government should come up to them for sanction on every occasion. In 1926, therefore, the Government placed this bill before the House, and it was allowed for one year. In 1927 again, the House will remember that after a strenuous debate the House was convinced that it was necessary that it should continue also for another year. I heard an honourable member say two days ago that this bill should not either be introduced by Government or be accepted by the Council, because Government had promised that they would keep it in existence only for one year. Well, I take it that the honourable members are aware that no such promise was ever given, but that on the contrary Government's desire was to place this bill permanently on the statute book. But the Council wished it otherwise, and, as usual, Government succumbed. I mention this, Sir, only to show that there is no breach of any kind of undertaking which was never given.

Now, Sir, the reasons why the bill should remain on the statute book are not very far to seek. I will summarize them very briefly. After the three days debate that we have already had, I do not think that I need mention how necessary it is, from the financial point of view, that the bill should continue. If honourable members are to be taken at their word, I cannot understand how there is any escape for them but to sanction these bills, and probably permanently. We cannot, as I explained last night, undertake any fresh recurring expenditure without having in sight any permanent revenues wherefrom to meet such recurring expenditure. I do not think it is necessary to dilate any further on that aspect.

The other aspect, Sir, is, as was explained last year, that we have been in negotiation with the Government of India for the exchange of a portion of the stamp revenue for a pie rate on the income-tax. The proposals that the Government of India made to us in September 1927 indeed showed, on their calculations, that a fair amount of benefit would accrue to this province; some 22 lakhs were supposed to be derived by this province over and above the amount that they would give up by giving up the items of stamp revenue. I did not altogether accept that calculation, as I had doubts that the advantage is as great as is made out. I think that on certain items of Stamp Revenue sufficient weight has not been given to the expanding nature of these items. I, therefore, did not wholly accept the Government of India's calculations. But there is no doubt that substantial benefit was offered to this Government. As I explained on a former occasion, this Government would have been prepared to accept that benefit with thanks, had it been allowed to do so by the other provinces which were also interested in the question. Some of the provinces stood to gain very little. One province, namely, our sister province of Bengal, sought to gain only Rs. 3 lakhs.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Will the Honourable the Finance Member explain what that pie-rate system is? In what way are the calculations made according to that system?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: The calculation of this system is in this manner. For any amount that each province would give up to the Government of India in the shape of Stamp revenue, the Government of India would take the total assessable income of that province and would fix a pie-rate. It is proposed it should be three pies on every rupee of the assessable income which would be given to the provincial Government in return for the stamp revenue that they give up.....

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: What will be the aggregate amount that the Bombay Government will stand to gain?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: According to their calculation, we stand to gain Rs. 22 lakhs.....

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI: Would the pie-rate be different for different provinces?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: No. The rate will be uniform for all the provinces, namely, three pies on every rupee. We had asked for a differential pie-rate for ourselves in view of the failing of the Devolution Rule 15 and also in view of the expanding nature of some of the items of Stamp revenue that we would be giving up. But that was not agreed to. However, the fact remains that a large number of provinces refused to accept this exchange. One province definitely said that it was a breach of the Meston Settlement, that the Government of India has no business to treat so favourably the Bombay Presidency. However, the Government of India are not prepared to make any change in the Meston Settlement so long as all the provinces do not agree and they were not also prepared to do so in view of the appointment of the Statutory Commission.

Honourable members will remember that I explained to them last year that the proposition brought forward by the Finance Member of the Government of India was altered at the instance of this province and of other provinces that any arrangement that they proposed was merely to be temporary until the whole question was reviewed by the Statutory Commission. Otherwise we were being, so to say, committed to an arrangement in which I saw no progressive income for this province. I, therefore, opposed the original suggestion that was made. But I am glad to say that it has been agreed that any arrangement proposed by the Government of India was merely to be temporary until the whole question was reviewed by the Statutory Commission. We having taken that stand last year and in view of the opposition of the various provinces, the Government of India did not feel that they could proceed further with the proposed exchange. Matters therefore are where they stood last year. The point for this Council to remember is this. The Taxation Enquiry Committee has definitely recommended that stamps—non-judicial stamps—should be a source of central revenue. I will not mention here the reasons that they gave, as I am sure honourable members are fully aware of them. But the fact is there that the Taxation Enquiry Committee has recommended that this should be the case. In pursuance of those recommendations of the Taxation Enquiry Committee the Government of India have made their proposals. I may tell this honourable House that in the discussion both last year and this year in the Finance Members' Conference and also the Sub-Committees that were appointed, it was agreed that a certain portion, at any rate, of the stamp revenue must be made central, because it accrues from transactions which are made all over the country.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE: What about the tax on cheques?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Honourable members will notice that we have to sacrifice about Rs. 3 lakhs on account of cheques. The matter is the subject of legislation by the Central Government. No doubt, our complaint was that we were deprived of this source of revenue. While we are quite in agreement with the desirability of abolishing the stamp duty on cheques, we wanted to be compensated for the loss, but it was not allowed and we lost Rs. 1½ lakhs this year as only the period of six months was affected. But we shall have to lose Rs. 3 lakhs every year in future. The point is, therefore, that the recommendations of the Taxation Enquiry Committee have to be accepted. That is in return for the revenue which all the provinces will lose, a share of the income-tax must be given to those provinces. It is, therefore, a matter for us to see how much we get in the shape of a pie-rate on the income-tax in return of the stamp revenue which, sooner or later, we must give up to the Central Government. The smaller our revenue is shown, the lesser are our chances for getting a favourable return of income-tax. As it is, this fixing of the exchange whereby we were to be benefitted to the extent of Rs. 22 lakhs, was not acceptable to almost all the provinces. It is, therefore, to our interest to see that the amount is not reduced, so that the apparent benefit to Bombay may not appear greater. I would like to inform the House that in all the other Provinces the rates in stamps have been increased in as great or higher proportion than our own. In those provinces—major provinces, Bengal, Punjab and Madras, the Acts are permanent. I would, therefore, request you to consider this point. We will have to see that our revenue is not so small as to make the Government of India reconsider what they will give us in return in the shape of income-tax. This is purely a business transaction which will appeal to every one. On these grounds, Sir, I feel neither the Government nor this Council have any alternative. I, therefore, think that we cannot, under the present financial circumstances, give up this source of revenue. I hope the House will now agree to the first reading of this bill.

[Sir Chunilal Mehta]

Question proposed.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI (Surat District): Sir, I rise to oppose the first reading of this bill, and on the following grounds. We have had a long discussion on the budget, and from the figures printed on page 29 of the Blue Book you will see that during the years 1922-23, 1923-24 and 1924-25 there was an average surplus of well over Rs. 95 lakhs, and during the last three years there have been big deficits, and the deficits seem to be increasing, and in the current year, even though there is less provision of Rs. 53 lakhs under Famine Insurance, still we have a deficit. Still we find that Government have not taken any step to bring about retrenchment in the various departments. They may have made minor retrenchments. They may have refused to increase expenditure, demands for which may have been received from various departments. But they have not placed before us any figures showing that they have made large retrenchments. I think while considering retrenchments we should begin at the top. Before the reforms, there used to be only three Members of the Executive Council and they used to manage all the portfolios. After the reforms, their number has been increased from three to seven. Now, I ask: Is it not possible for Government to reduce these fat jobs, fattest jobs, that we have got in this presidency by at least two? Could we not carry on with two Executive Councillors and three Ministers? I have been informed by several persons who have got a knowledge of the inside working of the cabinet that this is quite feasible. An opportunity will be presented to the Government to bring about a change in the strength of the Executive

[Mr. H. B. Shivdasani]

Council shortly. If they are really in earnest, I ask them why cannot they reduce two Executive Councillors when they happen to fall vacant shortly ? And if they have got any intention of reducing these two posts, why have they not made a smaller provision in the budget for this purpose ? Government must satisfy us that they have made all sorts of efforts to cut down the expenditure to the minimum before asking us to give them fresh taxation. If we proceed further, we find there are other posts which are popularly called " Post Office Jobs." The officers who occupy these jobs do more or less post office work. I do not mean to say that these officers do not do any useful work. But the question arises whether we can afford to have these officers. The state of our finances is so bad that it may be worth considering whether it is not a luxury to have these officers. My own impression is that we are being over-governed. We have got many more officers than we need have. In the old days there were very few Government departments and the officers of the Revenue Department used to do the work of almost all the departments. In the old days there was no separate income-tax department ; there were no non-official district local board presidents ; there were no separate excise officers ; the strength of the educational department was much smaller. As a matter of fact, in the old days the revenue officer had to do almost every one's job. He had to inspect all the schools ; he had to inspect liquor and toddy shops ; he had to do all income-tax work including appeals ; he had to look after district local boards ; he was ex-officio president. Now all this work has been taken away from his shoulders. Is it not, therefore, in the fitness of things now that Government should take all this into consideration and reduce the posts ? In the old days it was necessary that Government officers should do many things which now they need not do. Now-a-days, with improved communications, with better knowledge on the part of the people, it is not necessary. On the contrary, some may be inclined to think that people now are given too much to making complaints and rendering petitions. We have got new Councils every three years. Members have to go round to educate the people about what the Councils are doing and how they can get their grievances redressed, and on the contrary, Government may think that people make too many applications. On that ground also it is not now necessary to have the same number of officers as we were having in the old days to see that the people are not being tyrannised over or harassed. So, on all these grounds, I think it is but necessary that Government should either take immediate steps to reduce the strength of officers in every department or at least should give us a sort of solemn undertaking that they are going to pay attention to this matter. As soon as I entered this Council first, I had given notice of a resolution to reduce the strength of the Executive Council from four to two. That resolution was disallowed by His Excellency the Governor. But I should have thought that the giving of notice of that resolution would have drawn the attention of Government to the desirability of investigating this matter and seeing if it was possible to reduce the strength of the Executive Council.

[Mr. H. B. Shivdasani]

Reducing the number from four to two would by itself, even if you save nothing else but the pay of the two members, save over a lakh and a quarter of rupees. Of course, no members in this part of the House desire retrenchment to begin at the bottom and also to stop at the bottom. We desire that Government should look into the matter of retrenchment and begin at the top, because one post reduced at the top would effect a much greater saving than several posts reduced at the bottom.

Another matter which I would like to press before this House is redress of grievances before giving of supplies. In the district which I have the honour to represent, several schools were in 1921-22 closed owing to non-co-operation. These schools were closed because people would not send their children to schools. They were closed when the Compulsory Education Act was not on the statute book. Now people have changed their views as regards education given in Government schools and they are willing, and eager and anxious to send their children to schools. They are sending petition after petition to Government, and yet during this session I was informed by the Honourable Minister for Education that there are still about 22 villages without schools. The excuse given by the Education Minister was that when these schools were closed down they were transferred to other villages, and now as Government are having a dispute with the local boards they are not going to open any new schools so that the datum line may not be raised. Now, first of all, I may point out that when the schools were transferred from these villages—they were larger villages—to smaller villages, Government had to appoint fewer teachers. If they close a school with 7 teachers in one village and open it in another smaller village, where they have to keep only one teacher they save 6 teachers. As a matter of fact, on the calculation made by the district local board it has been found that though the number of schools may not have been reduced, the number of teachers has been greatly reduced, and in any case, I think it is too petty-minded on the part of Government to look to the datum line and to keep back the hand of progress simply because they have a dispute between them and the district local boards and because Government find that they are not in a position to meet the demands of the district local boards generously. Some of these villages have got a population of over 2,000 and still Government is refusing to open schools in these villages. I hope that they will reconsider their decision in this matter. These schools were closed at a time when there was no question of the datum line and when the Compulsory Education Act was not on the statute book.

Another matter which I would like to ventilate here is the policy of Government with regard to the repair of tanks. In this connection I may point out that some of the replies given in this House are misleading and incorrect. It was proved in a court of law that the replies given by the Honourable the General Member were false as a matter of fact owing to wrong information supplied by subordinates. Now, here is a question which appeared in the third list of questions this session, in which Government give a reply which is not consistent with itself. In reply to one portion they say about the tank that the earthen bund of the tank has subsided in several places and requires raising. In another part of the question (e) they say that the tank has three masonry outlets which are damaged, and later on Government go on to state that the tank appears to be in a fairly good condition and still further they go on to state that the tank requires Rs. 2,800 for necessary repairs. I ask, is it not an insult to the intelligence of this honourable House to expect honourable members to swallow these statements ? The tank consists of nothing but bunds and outlets. The tank is an excavation which has got a bund around it and three outlets. If the bund is broken in several places and if the outlets are not working and if a large amount like Rs. 2,800 is required for repairs of the tank, how can Government go on to state that the tank is in a good state of repair ? At least to me it seems that Government is merely trying to mislead us. How can we believe such a statement when in that very question Government state that the tank requires so many repairs that they will cost Rs. 2,800 ? The bund is not in order, the outlets are not in order. I would like to know what is in order in the tank. Is only the bottom in order ? Government admitted in reply to a question that in ten years from 1913-1914 to 1922-23 Government had recovered as revenue from the tanks in the Surat district alone Rs. 3,66,000 more than they had spent on the repairs of those tanks. Now, if Government were maintaining all the tanks in the Surat district in a good and efficient state of repair, there would be no complaint about Government taking away surplus revenue for other purposes of general administration, but we find from their own admission that this is not so, that the tanks are not all being kept in an efficient state of repair, and still in reply to several questions I have been told that the work will be put in hand as soon as possible in the order of urgency.....

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Is Surat the only district in the presidency ?

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI : The reply implies that Government has no idea of repairing all these tanks, that they want to restrict themselves to a particular amount in each year and that they will go on repairing these tanks in the order of urgency so far as funds permit. I ask when Government have pocketted such a large amount, when they have neglected to do their duty, when they have not maintained the tanks in a good state of repair, are Government justified in giving such excuses, are they justified in restricting themselves to a very small amount and then allowing it to go as far as possible? Even during the last two or three years Government has not been spending on repairs of the tanks as much as they receive.....

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Where ?

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI : In Surat district.....

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : What about the rest of the presidency ?

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI: My contention is that the income which Government derive from a tank is a first charge on the repair of that particular tank and that Government are not justified in misappropriating income they receive from a tank by utilising it for other purposes.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: For other tanks?

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI: Those expenses must come from the general revenue of the presidency. When a tank is paying a certain revenue, certainly the repair of that tank ought to be a first charge on that revenue, and Government are not entitled to utilise that revenue for repairs of other tanks. Of course maintaining a water supply is one of the primary duties of Government.....

Mr. G. WILES: Is the honourable member in order in accusing Government of "misappropriating money"?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member is using that word not in any offensive sense but I suppose because of not being able to find a better word.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI: I mean "wrongly appropriating," not in the sense in which that word is used in the Indian Penal Code.

Another matter to which I would like to draw the attention of the honourable House is with regard to the communications in the Surat district. Those officers of Government who have served in the Surat district or have any knowledge of the condition of communications in that district will be prepared to say that the state of communications in the Surat district is the worst probably in the whole of the presidency. One cannot go from north to south for more than ten miles without coming to an unbridged river or without coming to some break in the communications. If you want to go from Surat to the next taluka to the south, Jalalpore, you cannot go because there is an unbridged river, and if you want to go from Jalalpore to the next taluka to the south, the Chikhli taluka, you cannot proceed for more than eight or ten miles because there is another unbridged river. It you want to go from Chikhli to the next taluka Bulsar which is a very big place, you cannot do so because there is an unbridged river.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. I am very sorry to interrupt the honourable member. I cannot say that all that he is referring to is irrelevant, but I would request honourable members to confine their remarks to the consideration of the first reading of the bill. If they snatch an opportunity to discuss the whole administration now because of not having got an opportunity to join in the general discussion of the budget, I think they would be misusing the time of the House. I would request the honourable member to limit his remarks to such of his grievances as he might think would be relevant on the question before the House.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI: It is one of the established principles of the constitution that redress of grievances should come before supply, and I have expressly put my remarks under that head.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I was only referring to the limit or extent of the honourable member's remarks.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI : I would request Government to bear in mind the fact that the Surat district is one of the districts which produce a very excellent surplus for Government. The surplus is not less than 50 lakhs every year. I do not say that Government should be narrow-minded and spend the revenue it raises from each district in that very district, but I certainly maintain that a district which is contributing such a handsome surplus, that a district which is bringing so much into the Government treasury, is entitled to have as good communications and as good facilities as other districts which do not contribute to the same extent. I am only asking for equal treatment for my district. I do not want that it should be treated better than the Poona district or any other district in the Deccan. I only want that proper and adequate facilities should be provided to the poor people of my district for marketing their produce, for moving about from place to place and for getting access to markets and such other things.

What appeared rather strange in another reply that I received during this session was that I was told that there was no new toll bar near the village of Rankuva but that it was only a check toll bar. Can Government show me any difference between a toll bar and a check toll bar ? In the old days when toll was levied at each toll bar, there was a difference between a toll bar and a check toll bar because no toll was being levied as a check toll bar. Now a toll is levied only once and is not levied at every toll bar and the cart or conveyance can pass eight or ten toll bars without being asked to pay more than once. The distinction between a toll bar and a check toll bar is absolutely valueless, and I do hope that Government will look into this matter from a liberal point of view. Government has definitely committed itself to a policy of gradual abolition of tolls. I hope the term "as funds permit" will not mean that if the financial position becomes worse, that Government will be entitled to increase the number of toll bars.

Another grievance which is a fairly serious grievance is as regards the method in which anna valuations are being prepared in the Surat district. There is a village called Chond in the Chikhli taluka of the Surat district. The village people petitioned that their crops had failed and that they were not up to the normal. The mamlatdar visited the village in the month of October for the purpose of making anna valuation. The Assistant Collector (an I.C.S. officer) visited the village in the month of November for the same purpose, and after the visits of the mamlatdar and the Assistant Collector, a notice was put up in the village chavdi saying that the estimate of the anna valuation of the crops was 7·3. The Collector of the district goes to the village in the month of January 1928, long after all the crops have been removed. He goes there, revises the anna valuation, and increases it to over 8 annas, and then orders the people not only to pay the full assessment of this year but to pay half the assessment of the previous year. Now, this practice is most reprehensible, because it would create consternation and terror in the minds of the village people. When the mamlatdar, a fairly responsible officer, when the Assistant Collector, who belongs to the Indian Civil Service, personally go and inspect the crops, prepare the anna valuation at the time when the crops are in the field, make an anna valuation and publish the anna valuation in the village chavdi, is it right on the part of the Collector to come along, after the crops have been removed, to revise the anna valuation and compel the people to pay higher assessment. Where there is a difference of opinion between two such high officers of Government, it is but right that the poor people should get the benefit of the doubt. Moreover, I might here state that the present Settlement Commissioner, Mr. Anderson, is responsible for one serious difficulty arising at the time of anna valuation. Formerly, those lands which were kept for grazing were shown as not cultivated but he has introduced the innovation that grass should be regarded as a crop. Still, I had a talk with him the other day. He said that if he were the Collector and were preparing the anna valuation he would leave out the area under grass in the anna valuation of crops, because it would not be fair to compel people to pay land revenue when their grass crop has been up to normal but all their money crops like rice and cotton have failed. I was told that in Ahmedabad district the practice was that the anna valuation of grass was never taken at more than 6 annas; even when the grass is exceptionally good, the anna valuation is never taken at more than 6 annas. And yet, what do I find in the anna valuation prepared by the Collector of Surat ? He goes and puts the anna valuation on grazing lands at 11 annas. Those lands measure nearly one-fourth of the entire area of the village ; the lands were kept merely for grazing the cattle of the village, the grass was not cut, it was not marketed ; it was kept for grazing purposes, and yet the Collector goes and puts the anna valuation of the grazing lands at 11 annas, and by that means improperly and unfairly raises the anna valuation to over 8 annas where the anna valuation of no crop is over 8 annas, if we leave out grass. The Settlement Commissioner, who is a responsible.....

Mr. G. WILES : I rise to a point of order, whether the honourable member is not, under the guise of speaking on this bill, raising the whole budget discussion again.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : That is what I have pointed out, and I think it is to the interest of the whole House that the discussion should not now be diverted to the various channels of the whole administration of the presidency, which can be brought under discussion more pertinently in the General Discussion, or later on when the different heads come up for discussion.

An Honourable MEMBER : There is no chance at the time of the General Discussion.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I am glad an honourable member has interrupted me and stated that no chance is given. No chance can be had by every one, and the losing of that chance should not be supplemented by making these remarks on a subject of the nature under discussion. I would, therefore, once again, ask the honourable member to limit his remarks to the bill before the House.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI : I would refer to just one more grievance, which is perhaps the most serious grievance about which I have to complain. That grievance is the revision settlement of the Bardoli and Chorasi talukas. Government appointed a committee to consider and suggest the principles on which revision settlements should be made. While that committee was sitting and considering the matter, while it was collecting evidence and coming to its decisions, Government went ahead with the work of revision settlements, and not only that, but though the committee recommended that the revision settlement officer should not work by himself, should not, so to say, pass an ex-parte judgment but should associate with himself representatives of the cultivators by either asking the taluka local board to select some representatives or getting some other respectable representatives of the area to go round with him and to place the several facts before him, that recommendation was not considered. Further, after that ex-parte judgment was given, Government invited objections from the village people. Objections were sent by the people of all the villages, but I find that they were practically thrown into the waste paper basket. Moreover, afterwards, myself and my honourable colleague Rao Bahadur Bhimbhai R. Naik from Surat prepared a memorial and submitted it to Government for their consideration. In that memorial we placed several figures before Government, and made out a case for making a fresh enquiry. The whole revision settlement report of the settlement officer was vitiated by the fact that he had relied for his proposals on the figures for the years 1918 to 1924-25. Now, all the honourable members of this House would be agreed that the years 1918-19 to 1924-25 were absolutely abnormal. Any proposal based on figures collected for those abnormal years was bound to be misleading. We had made out a case for a diminution in the rates of assessment, but we had coupled it with a request that Government should be pleased to make an enquiry into the figures of rental and sale values as they were in the years 1925-26 and 1926-27. Government turned a deaf ear to those proposals, and now, as almost all the honourable members of this House are aware, they have gone to the length of compelling the poor cultivators to have recourse to satyagraha. As my honourable friend Mr. Nariman pointed out the other day, when we bring the grievances of our constituencies to the notice of Government, they turn a deaf ear to us, and they are practically compelling the people who like to work the constitution to go outside and work outside. The Honourable the Finance Member has paid a well earned tribute to Mr. Vallabhbhai Patel. He is not an ordinary agitator ; he is not like the ordinary run of no-changer. He is a man who has got practical working experience of one of the biggest municipalities of this presidency. He has been president of the Ahmedabad municipality for several years. Moreover, in the last relief operations in Gujarat his assistance was found to be very valuable. He is not a person who is afraid to co-operate with Government. But now what do we find ? Even a gentleman of his position, a gentleman who is not afraid of co-operating with Government, is obliged to advise the people of the Bardoli taluka to have recourse to satyagraha. Now, I again request Government to consider this question. What is the demand of the people of the Bardoli taluka ? Their demand is not that the assessment should be reduced. Of course they make out a case why the assessment should not be increased. Their complaint is that the settlement proposals are based on figures which relate to years which are admittedly abnormal, and their demand is that a further enquiry should be made and fresh figures should be collected for the years 1925-26, 1926-27 and 1927-28 which years are more normal, and if after that further enquiry and after considering the figures which will be placed before Government by the people and their representatives, Government are satisfied that the increase is justified, then Government would be quite justified in increasing the assessment. The people have a right to complain. It is no use their getting revision settlement proposals prepared ex-parte, without giving the people proper notice. It is a well known fact that the figures collected from the record of rights and such books cannot be relied upon, unless allowance is made for several factors. The settlement officer goes on to say that new houses have been built in the Bardoli taluka and therefore the assessment should be raised. No efforts were made by him to find out whether those new houses were built from income derived from agricultural operations or whether they were built from money earned by people in South Africa. If Government take a little trouble they can easily find out. I was told by the postmaster of Navasari and Bardoli that a sum in the neighbourhood of 3 to 4 lakhs is being received every year by money order. During the 30 years of the settlement period nearly a crore of rupees might have been received. If houses are built by people from money earned elsewhere Government will not be justified in increasing the assessment by merely looking at the new houses. I therefore appeal to the Honourable the Revenue Member not to press the people to the extreme course of satyagraha. It is possible that the people may not be able to hold out. It is possible that the campaign may fail. But it ought to be a shame on the Government to compel people to have recourse to unconstitutional means. This will have the effect of making people who are working constitutionally lose confidence in the Government. It may be argued that the department concerned is a reserved one and therefore Government are not bound to accept the recommendation of this Council. That is not the spirit of the reforms that have been introduced. Men like my colleague Rao Bahadur Naik are not agitators, but they are responsible people having a stake and a large estate. If you refuse even a mere enquiry, not to speak of the question of reducing the assessment, to men who have a stake and who ask for mere enquiry, then you have failed in your duty and have compelled the poor people to have resort to unconstitutional means. It is a shame that Government should place people in such a position. Numerous memorials and petitions have been submitted to Government through the representatives of the people. If still Government refuse to hold a mere enquiry, I have no hesitation in saying that they have failed in their duty. I appeal to the Honourable the Revenue Member to reconsider his decision and not to compel people to have recourse to Satyagraha.

[Mr. H. B. Shivdasani]

Moreover as regards this bill (hear, hear) the Honourable the Finance Member has not tried to make out why this bill should be put on the statute book permanently. He himself doubts whether it is advisable to put this bill permanently on the statute book. The question of revision of the Meston settlement is in the melting pot and there is going to be a statutory enquiry. The question of contributions and of the distribution of funds between the central and provincial governments is under the consideration of Government. If at such a time we make provision of such a large amount by way of taxation, we will not be able to get our fair share. It is not to the interest of this Government to show large surpluses. This we can see from the experience of Bengal which showed a bankrupt position. As a result of this the Bengal Government was able to escape payment of its contribution to Government of India for all the years of the reforms. Because we are willing to impose additional taxation, we have been treated in the worst manner possible. As the Honourable the Finance Member pointed out yesterday we were treated worst next to Bengal Government in the Meston settlement. But the Bengal Government by showing a bankrupt state was able to escape from payment of its contributions to the Central Government and did not pay even a pie to them all these years. Because we are making every effort to balance our budget and build a balance, we have not been able to get a fair treatment from the Government of India. I think it is a doubtful matter whether it is wise to have large surplus and to build up large balances. I think it would have been better if Government had invested their large surpluses in the nation-building departments by opening more primary schools and dispensaries. If we had done that we would have received a better treatment from the Central Government. If we want to get our just share from the Central Government we ought to show that we have a great deficit and that our finances are in a desperate condition. There is absolutely no case made out for putting this bill on the statute book permanently. It may be a matter for consideration whether this House should pass this bill for a short period. Still Government do not know where they stand with regard to Meston settlement. But I hope before we pass this bill we will receive a reply from Government that they will make every effort to being about retrenchment and apply the pruning knife to the top by reducing several officers who, though useful, cannot be retained in view of our straitened finances.

Mr. LALJI NARANJI (Indian Merchants' Chamber): Sir, the bill before the House is a permanent measure of taxation. It is really very sad to find that the members of the Opposition are not here in strong numbers when such a permanent measure of taxation is proposed by the Government. Such a permanent measure of taxation will only be justified, according to my light, when Government have made out their case that all possible retrenchment has been affected or that the potential wealth of this presidency has been dealt with by Government in a fashion which is not detrimental to the interests of this presidency. I will place before the House that on these two counts Government do not deserve support for the continuation of such a permanent measure of taxation.

As regards the first (retrenchment), in the able speech that the Honourable the Finance Member made yesterday I did not find that he satisfied the House that Government had carried out the policy of retrenchment which was recommended by the Retrenchment Committee in 1922-23. He has quoted certain figures; against them I will also put before the House certain figures which will satisfy the House that since the year 1923-24 there has been no attempt on the part of Government to retrench any expenditure but that, on the other hand, there has been an increase every year from the year following the one in which this recommendation of the Retrenchment Committee was received by Government. The figures are these. The total retrenchment recommended by the Retrenchment Committee came to about Rs. 76,19,815, in the following departments :—

	Rs.
General Administration	6,20,908
Agriculture	3,64,939
Excise	8,69,226
Land Revenue	15,63,744
Police	27,48,828
Public Works	14,52,170
Total ..	76,19,815

Now, what do we find as a result ? If we take the actual figures that are given in the Blue Book for the years 1923-24 to 1928-29, for the following departments, namely, 22-General Administration, 34-Agriculture, 6-Excise, 5-Land Revenue, 26-Police and Public Works—I take Irrigation 14, 15-A and 15 (1), 15 and 16 and Civil Works 41—the totals of these items for the year 1923-24 (actuals) came to Rs. 7,06,23,051; in 1924-25, Rs. 7,10,00,412. Instead of any decrease as recommended by the Retrenchment Committee, there is an increase. In 1925-26, the total of these items comes to Rs. 7,24,61,214. In 1926-27, the total is Rs. 7,62,53,180; 1927-28 (revised), Rs. 7,99,19,000; in 1928-29 (budget) Rs. 7,99,30,000. Of course the figure for 1928-29 includes the expenditure for the Development Department (No. 42). The following two statements will show clearly the figures for all the departments :

Now, this will show at a glance that Government have not been making any effort to retrench in these departments in which a committee, after full enquiry, advised Government to retrench. Government have not done anything, but have gone on adding expenditure. Yet, this House is urged to sanction a permanent measure of taxation . I do not know how Government can justify a demand for further taxation when they have done nothing to help themselves by retrenching expenditure as recommended by a committee of this House after careful consideration. Yesterday, the Honourable the Finance Member made a speech defending the position of Government. I think it is the experience in this country that our non-officials when they go to the official benches defend the policy of the Government without reason or rhyme (one does not know what inoculation is given), but as soon as they leave the Government benches they become the greatest opponents of Government's policy because of the more intimate and more sound and accurate knowledge that they get from the Government benches. We also entertain the hope that our present Finance Member will follow in the footsteps of his predecessors Sir Chimanlal Setalvad and Sir Ibrahim Rahimtoola, who are no agitators, as the previous speaker said, but most moderate, reasonable, practical, unbiassed men, and who after seeing both sides pronounced the administration of this country as exploitation of the economic interests of this country. I really regret that instead of mending Government, the Honourable the Finance Member, with his sound knowledge, has not carried out the recommendations of the Retrenchment Committee and the wishes of this presidency. It is in the interest of this presidency that those recommendations should be faithfully carried out in letter and spirit both. Instead of carrying out those recommendations, all the Government Departments I referred to in my statement appended above have added and continue to add expenditure, and thus waste the resources of this presidency, both present and potential. When I say "present resources," I refer particularly to the Development Department. Even this year we are asked to grant 48 lakhs, the annual interest on which will alone come to 3 lakhs. Now that we are asked to pass legislation to collect 18 or 20 lakhs, I wish to point out that if we do not spend this 48 lakhs on the Development Department, we can save 3 lakhs interest every year. There are several other items also in which savings can be made if only real genuine effort is made. Any arguments on that line were switched off by the Honourable the Finance Member in a very clever way. He asked us whether we wanted the standard of life to be high or low. Nobody will deny that the standard of life of our presidency, as of every country, should be raised. But may I ask if Government are going to raise that standard if they adopt this policy of raising taxes not for the benefit of the nation-building departments but for wasting in other departments as regards which no attempts have been made to satisfy the House that only necessary funds are spent. It may be that Government feel that in the unique position which they occupy in this country, with power and patronage in their hands, they can get the support of this House by any means fair or foul. But what I would like them to consider is whether, looking a little ahead and taking a little long view, it is in the interest of this country to run this country to the brink of starvation ?

Government have protested that they are not bankrupt but that is so because of their being in a position to pass such measures of taxation.

After proving to this House that no efforts are made by Government for retrenchment I will show now in brief how our potential wealth is being wasted. My strongest protest against Government is that they are administering the presidency not in the interests of this presidency. In the list of Questions and Answers circulated to-day, there was a reply given to the honourable member Mr. Jairamdas Doulatram, who unfortunately was not here and therefore no supplementary questions were asked on that. This answer related to the Sukkur Barrage. I expressed in my budget speech that if this presidency could hope to recover.....

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Sir, I rise to a point of order....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I think I anticipate the point of order. The question was not put and therefore is not on the Council record ; and therefore cannot be referred to.

Mr. LALJI NARANJI : Sir, then I will not refer to that question. I will refer only to the Government Resolution that is before the honourable members of this House. It is dated 14th November 1927, and that deals with the potential wealth of this presidency through which according to me, this presidency can hope to make up for all the follies that they have committed. I would invite the attention of the members of this House to that Resolution. It is not a small matter of a taxation of 20 lakhs as Government is proposing in this bill, but it is a matter in which Government are giving away—in pursuance of what policy is best known to them—the potential wealth of this presidency. I wish honourable members to realise how even our potential wealth is being ruined by this resolution of 14th November 1927. This is a resolution on the policy of Government with regard to Sukkur Barrage lands and Fallow Rules.

You will find, Sir, that at present Government are encouraging a certain class, that is a class of Sind zamindars at the cost of the general taxpayers. Government has a big scheme of disposing of land in Sind.

[Mr. Lalji Naranji]

According to this scheme the Government will reserve about 3½ lakhs acres which would come to about 25 per cent. of the total 14 lakhs of acres of land, and to make which land productive by supplying water it will cost Rs. 20 crores to this presidency. This 25 per cent. of the land is going to be given away at Rs. 15 per acre to the Sind zamindars. It is not to be given to cultivators, but to the zamindars. I do not know by what law this land is to be given to zamindars. According to the tenets of the laws of this country, or even Manu's, this land cannot be given to the class of zamindars as the State is not the proprietor of waste land which can be given by them. This is what is being done by Government in accordance with the resolution. A declaration was made by the then General Member in the year 1923 and mainly on that account Government issued that resolution of 14th November 1927. Here we find that the declarations are made by Government and are interpreted in the way they like. So, according to that resolution the Government got power to give away 3½ lakhs of acres of land at such a low rate of Rs. 15 against minimum cost value of Rs. 150 at present. I always see, whenever there is a question where capitalists' interest is concerned, Government raise the question of middlemen. At the time when the millowners' question was discussed, some of the honourable members told us " We do not wish to support the Capitalists, we do not wish to support the middlemen." Then I ask " Who is a zamindar ?" Is he not a middleman ? I would now refer to the memorandum of the Commissioner attached to the resolution in which he makes out his case. I would like to know from Government why they should unduly at the cost of the taxpayers of the presidency help Sind zamindars in this fashion. I can only say that it is because Government want to get solid support from them. I try to make my remarks as little offensive as possible, but I cannot help. I may say that it is not fair on the part of Government to exploit this House in this way. I hope that Government will not take this step ; by their doing so, we shall save a considerable amount and there will be no necessity of further taxation. In the memorandum of the Commissioner we find a very important passage. It is this :

" We know that in Khairpur, where Talpur customs have been closely adhered to upto this day uncultivated land has been regarded as at the disposal of the State. The law only to which a Sindhi landholder could have referred in Talpur times (if he had ever thought of doing so) would have been the Muhammadan law which recognises no right in land that has been more than three years out of cultivation."

He says that according to the Muhammadan Law also there is no claim of the zamindars to this land. It is stated there that there is no right to the land which is without cultivation for more than three years. I submit that Government are prepared to grant even five years to 20 years in this case. My appeal to this Government is that we should not sell those lands for a paltry sum of Rs. 50 lakhs, when those lands would fetch more amount than five crores minimum cost price. If they at all want to give away, they should not give the land to zamindars but to those who themselves cultivate and as much as one can cultivate. They should give it to the cultivators who work on the field. The cultivators have first claim on the land. I would have not grudged that concession given to the cultivators. But I wonder why Government should feel inclined to give the land to zamindars whose claim once forfeited cannot be reversed under any code of revenue laws of this presidency including Sind.

As I have said previously, Government should try to effect retrenchment and economy in every department. Instead of doing that, they want to incur losses. I appeal to Government to take this House in confidence and show to this House that they have utilised all their resources placed at their disposal in a proper way. They must come forward and say, " We shall preserve all resources, we shall utilise them to your benefit in a proper course." That statement should be made by Government before this House. It is no use bringing forward such suggestions of increasing the taxation, when no such steps are taken. I do not wish to go astray, but I would ask this House to see how much wastage of money there is in respect of Development Department. I have a memorandum on the Development Department in my hand here, which clearly indicates the wastage of public funds.....

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : What is that memorandum about ?

Mr. LALJI NARANJI : It is a Note on the Development Department. I found it in the pigeon-hole this morning. What I wish to say again and again, and what I wish to impress upon this honourable House is this. That we should first try to see whether the resources placed at the command of Government are properly utilised or not. It is useless to depend on the percentages that have been brought forward before this House by the Honourable the Finance Member. He has given us in the Budget the increased percentage on the Transferred and Reserved departments. But, I submit, Sir, that those percentages are misguiding us. He has told us that there is an increase of 30 per cent. in the Transferred departments and 25 per cent. only in the Reserved departments. Sir, this argument of Government is well known to the honourable members on this side. This is simply a misleading argument. I shall just give you an instance. Suppose, there are 25 top posts in a department. Out of these 25 posts, if one is held by an Indian and if only one more Indian is appointed they will come forward and say " There is 100 per cent. increase in the indianisation of services." So, I say, it is a misleading argument. If you see figures from the year 1922-23 to 1927-28, you will find absolutely no increase. In order to convince you I shall just quote a few figures, which are on pages 8-9 of the Blue Book. If you have a glance at those figures, what do you find ? You will observe :

In 1922-23 total expenditure charged to revenue in the Reserved is Rs. 8,99,17 and Transferred Rs. 4,53,40.

In 1927-28 it is Rs. 10,52,27 in the Reserved, and Rs. 5,46,76 in the Transferred.

You will thus find on comparing these figures that there is an increase of Rs. 93 lakhs in the Transferred and Rs. 153 lakhs in the Reserved.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Have you read the note at the bottom of page 10 ?

Mr. LALJI NARANJI : But even there, if you want to see those figures, you will see that charged to capital, reserved, is 5 crores 5 lakhs and 90 thousand, and charged to capital, transferred, comes to 43 lakhs 50 thousand. These are the same figures, Sir.....

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : I have already explained all this before, but I will explain it to you in my reply.....

Mr. LALJI NARANJI : I just complimented you.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I will give the honourable member the time to explain. But I have been noticing for the last three days that the ordinary parliamentary procedure is being given up and the honourable members are addressing each other directly. And I think there are guilty members on either side of the House.

Mr. LALJI NARANJI : Certainly, Sir. I bow to your ruling. In the figures I have shown there is nothing to show that the transferred departments have got something more. There is only an increase of 93 lakhs in transferred and 1 crore and 53 lakhs in reserved. There is nothing in it for Government to deserve special praise. Government ought not to have any sympathy from this side of the House from that point of view also. I do not find any reply as to how all the 86 crores capital expenditure is made by Government since 1921-22 to 1927-28. I wanted an explanation as regards statement 5, but I heard nothing about that.....

Mr. G. WILES : I rise to a point of information. I gave a detailed explanation in my speech in regard to the honourable member's point ; but the honourable member was not present here to listen to it.

Mr. LALJI NARANJI : But I read something in the papers.

Mr. G. WILES : I will give the honourable member a copy of my speech, if he likes. I can also give it to any other honourable member wishing to have it.

Mr. LALJI NARANJI : Thank you, Sir. Without taking any time of the House, I should only impress upon hon'ble members that this House should not support the permanent taxation or even the continuance of the temporary taxation, unless Government have made out a case that they have made all efforts at retrenchment. But I see that no retrenchment has been made and, therefore, they do not deserve this taxation bill even for a moment. Only one argument is again brought forward that, " if you do not give us this taxation, we will not get a further settlement from the Government of India." That was the only consideration that led me to support it last year. But, if that argument is brought forward year after year.....

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Did the honourable member support it last year ?

Mr. LALJI NARANJI : Yes.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : He did ?

Mr. LALJI NARANJI : This bill was supported only on those considerations. If Government are serious to carry out this taxation bill on that account, they should reduce taxation on other matters and continue this. But it is not right to mislead this House and say " Please sanction this stamp tax, because if you will do that, you will get readjustment from the Government of India ; not otherwise." There is absolutely no hope of getting anything from the Government of India, because other provinces simply oppose according to our Finance Member who informed us that we are getting an advantage of only 5 lakhs more for these items that was due to our presidency on the pie system from income tax. On that ground, therefore, Government is not justified in asking for the consent of this House for continuing this taxation measure. The highest authority that I pointed out was the quotation of our ex-President, Sir Ibrahim Rahimtoola, who has conclusively proved that not only this presidency, but the whole of India is taxed to the fullest capacity. When all other countries are retracing their steps with regard to taxation and trying to reduce it, this Government ought not to be congratulated for taking such measures as proposed, but only when they reduce the present taxation. The Honourable the Finance Member himself will see that in all the budgets that are presented in every country they are trying to reduce taxation. It has not been his good luck to present anything to his House in that direction, and it is his misfortune and the misfortune of this presidency that he is asking us to continue this taxation. I would, therefore, impress upon all members that they, with all the force at their command, should oppose this measure and get retrenchment in all directions and concentrate all their force simply on the demands for grants, and we should see that no section of this honourable House will be influenced to pay more taxation and we should insist on retrenchment all round. It is no use our arguing here and merely making speeches, but if we only concentrate our efforts in regard to the demands for grants and if we insist on retrenchment in all directions, then only the chance is to bring the Government round to our wishes. There is no other source at our disposal, Sir, to bring Government round to meet our wishes. They try to spend at our cost and try to get the support from one or the other section of this House. I therefore appeal to all the different sections of the honourable House to oppose the bill of taxation.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Sir, before I come to the merits of the bill, I would repudiate the insinuations that were made by the last speaker against the Sind zamindars. When it suits him, he calls some of the gentlemen of Bombay stalwarts. But when it does not suit him, he says not to carry out the promises made by those stalwarts. And who are those stalwarts ? Sir Chimanlal Setalvad, who is just now praised, and who had carefully considered this question when he was a member of the Bombay Government. My honourable friend, I know, has no knowledge of the revenue system of Sind, and he has been imperfectly primed by some one else.....

Mr. LALJI NARANJI : I have only read the resolution imperfectly.....

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : There is nothing like the fallow rules in any other part of the presidency. Why does land become fallow in Sind ? Because the Public Works Department cannot supply water to every inch of the land. My honourable friend the General Member will bear me out when I say that too often we hear complaints that people want as much water as they can get to cultivate every inch of land. That very fact shows that land becomes fallow because they cannot get water. It is not, as the honourable member the last speaker said, because Government want to pamper the zamindars that they have provided these concessions to the landholders. This question was carefully considered by Government.....(Interruption)..... I do not like interruptions, Sir. The Honourable member should go and do that somewhere else. Now, Sir, the last speaker has no idea that the largest number of zamindars own from 5 to 100 acres, and they number thousands and thousands. Big zamindars are very few in comparison to the smaller zamindars, for whom he just now told us he was solicitious. So this concession is given because it will go to benefit the largest number of zamindars.

Mr. LALJI NARANJI : How many persons will benefit by the new scheme ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : I think thousands of small zamindars owning from 5 to 100 acres.

An honourable MEMBER : What per cent. ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : About 70 per cent. In fact anybody possessing two acres of land is called a zamindar.

Coming to another argument of my honourable friend, he says no retrenchment has been done in spite of the recommendation of the Retrenchment Committee. I am sure my honourable friend would not have remained quiet had Government not carried out the recommendations of the last Retrenchment Committee. He knows the facts, he knows that about 30 lakhs was cut down as a result of the recommendation of the Retrenchment Committee. Last year, another officer was appointed to suggest retrenchment. If I mistake not, Government carried out retrenchment to the tune of fifteen lakhs. So honourable members will see that Government is trying its best to reduce expenditure wherever possible.

But my honourable friend did not reply to the argument of the Honourable the Finance Member who told him that the Central Government want to take up this stamp revenue and to treat it as central revenue, compensating us by a share of the income tax. Suppose this honourable House were not to pass this bill, our revenue from stamps would be very small and therefore in proportion to that we would be compensated by the Central Government. Is this House, by rejecting this bill, prepared to forego additional revenue from the Central Government ? This is not the only presidency that has sanctioned this taxation. All the major provinces have done that.

Now, coming to another honourable member whom I do not see in the House at this moment, the representative for the Surat district, he said that he was not convinced by the argument of the Honourable the Finance Member in support of additional taxation. But I assure the House that when I heard him with great attention, I was convinced by his arguments that there was every necessity for additional taxation. What did he say ? He said " no further revision of land revenue." That means less revenue to this presidency. He said " do away with the tolls. " That means decreasing the existing revenue. And what did he want ? He said " 209 lakhs for education is very little. You must give more liberal grants to schools." That means that we require more money, as our educational needs are not met by the amount that we are giving. He says " have better communications, the crore that you are spending is not enough, spend more." That again means more money. He wants more repairs to tanks. That means more money, but when he said " I oppose the bill " I thought that he was not serious because he wanted more money and he knew the financial position was far from strong.

[Sir Ghulam Hussain]

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI (Kaira District) : Sir, I oppose the bill. The other day I stated that Government, though they told this House that they would make sufficient retrenchment in the budget, had failed to do so and I also stated that in the transferred departments they have been actually giving less. Somehow or other, the Honourable the Finance Member doubted that statement of mine. Of course I was not present yesterday when he spoke, but I was informed afterwards that the Honourable the Finance Member doubted that statement of mine. Perhaps, of all the members of this House the Honourable the Finance Member, by the very virtue of his office, has developed a very short memory. But if he compares the budgets of the transferred departments and of the reserved departments of various years up to the year 1928-29, he will see that in the transferred (or rather nation-building) departments the expenditure from the ordinary revenue in 1921-22 was in the neighbourhood of 491 lakhs and now in the year 1928-29 he will find that the expenditure is between 4 crores and 420 lakhs. As an instance, I will cite the Educational budget. Government brought in bills for additional taxation by means of the entertainments duty, Stamp Act Amendment Bill, Court-fees Act Amendment Bill. At that time Government represented that the additional revenue would be spent on nation-building departments, but unfortunately that additional revenue has not been spent as promised to the extent of that revenue. He will find that in the year 1925-26 the expenditure on education was about 198 lakhs and even in 1927-28 it is exactly the same, namely, 198 lakhs revised estimate and when the accounts will be rendered, it will probably come down to 194 or 195 lakhs and God alone knows how low the figure will go for that year. I ask, where is the additional money gone to ? Government now come to this Council asking this House to continue giving them more money by keeping up the tax on the already heavily taxed poor people of this presidency. Personally, I would be the last man to believe in the professions of benevolence and professions of justice of this Government. In the year

[Rao Saheb D. P. Desai]

1928-29 also the budget for education is put down at 202 lakhs. The same amount was put in the year 1926-27. In the year 1926-27, 202 lakhs were put down but the actual expenditure was about 193 lakhs. As compared with 1925-26 we are not better off but we are worse off and if we add together all the nation-building departments, I must admit that we were far better off in the year 1921-22 than in the year 1928-29.....

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: Where has the honourable member taken his figures from ?

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI: If the Honourable Minister will refer to the budget for 1927-28, he will find all the figures there for all these years.

I request the Honourable Minister to refer to the budget for 1926-27 or the Blue Book that he has got in his hands and he will find that the expenditure actually incurred was in the neighbourhood of about 193 lakhs. I again call to his notice the fact that in the meanwhile we have given about fifteen lakhs more revenue, three lakhs additional revenue is put down by himself for the University which had a revenue in the year 1925-26 of about 10½ lakhs. Now, what is the revenue he has put down from the University, which is to be collected from the poor students of the secondary schools ? It is Rs. 13 lakhs. Now, this Rs. 13 lakhs additional revenue is derived from the University itself, and at the same time an additional Rs. 6 lakhs are from the Scheduled Taxes. In the year 1925-26 the revenue from Scheduled Taxes was Rs. 15,33,000; now, in the year 1928-29 it is Rs. 21,43,000. What I mean to say is that if we consider the educational budget, if the Government were fair and just to the nation-building departments, the educational budget ought to have been in the neighbourhood of Rs. 2,13,00,000. But what do we find ? We find that it is Rs. 2,02,00,000. Perhaps, some of my honourable friends are afraid that if we do not allow this taxation, then what will happen will be that Rs. 5 lakhs will be cut off from education, or that the money that is doled out to the Honourable Minister for Education will be reduced. In this connection, I may bring to the notice of my honourable colleague here that they should have no such apprehension. They should not think that because Government have brought forward these bills for additional revenue, therefore if these bills are thrown out there will be a pro rata reduction in all departments including the Educational, Medical, etc. I say Government are not justified in doing that, and if this House sets its foot against any such attempt on the part of Government, then I think Government can never make pro rata reductions in the nation-building departments. We have been given a promise that the needs of the nation-building departments will be served first and then the needs of the other departments will be considered, because every time Government brought forward taxation bills the needs of the Education and Medical Departments were trotted out before the House. Of course, every time I had discounted the intentions of Government.

[Rao Saheb D. P. Desai]

I never had any faith in those professions, when they said that the money would be given to the nation-building departments. But I think they will not be so unjust as to starve still more these departments. I take this opportunity of requesting the honourable member to realise one fact. I had stated that fact in my budget speech, and I again bring it to his notice that this Government has, during recent years, increased the salaries to the extent of over Rs. 3 crores. In the statement that was presented to this House in the year 1922, it was shown that about Rs. 3 crores were devoted to the salaries of the different establishments. If the Government simply reduces 15 per cent. of these establishments, then, of course I think they will be getting a sufficient, or even a greater amount than what they would get from these taxes.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: I could not follow the honourable member. Will he repeat how the reduction is to be made? Fifteen per cent. of what is to be reduced?

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI: Fifteen per cent. of the establishments. I shall elaborate my point. The total cost, after the last revision, of all the establishments was Rs. 9,99,00,000 in the year 1922-23. That statement was presented at that time. I do not know what it is to-day, as since then no statement has been presented by Government to this House. In answer to a question they said that the total cost, after the last revision of all the establishments came to Rs. 9,99,00,000. Previous to the revision the total cost was Rs. 6,73,00,000 and the difference was Rs. 3,25,00,000. That was the additional amount, that is, the increase in the salaries that was given to the different establishments, of course including the Imperial Services. Of course, I say that in any case of retrenchment the Imperial Services must bear their own share of reduction in salary. The Civil Services have got about three revisions, and the cost on their account has gone up from Rs. 67 lakhs to about Rs. 97 lakhs or a crore. I do not know what the figures come to after the Lee Commission's recommendations were accepted. It was in the neighbourhood of Rs. 67 lakhs for the Imperial Services, and the cost for the Imperial Services is now in the neighbourhood of a crore of rupees. An increase of Rs. 30 lakhs is taken up by the Imperial Services alone, and about Rs. 30 lakhs more are taken up by the Provincial Services; Rs. 2 crores is the increase for the clerks and subordinate services, that is non-gazetted posts, and only Rs. 14 lakhs are given to people of smaller salaries.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: What do you mean by smaller salaries?

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI: That is menials. Of course, I desire that the salaries of the menials should be increased, but the salaries paid to other people may be decreased. As a matter of fact these poor menials have not come in for their due share in the distribution of the huge funds that Government gave away so liberally in the year 1921 and in previous years. In the face of this sort of looting—I again say that it is a sort of robbery—Government should try now to do something. Suppose you reduce one crore out of 3 crores, that is reduce by 33 per cent., all your worries would be gone; all the worries of this side of the House would be gone, and the nation-building departments, that is education, public works and other departments, will be getting their due share. But unfortunately, and here I shall again repeat the remarks that I made the other day, I am a little bit sorry that the present Finance Member has not taken his courage in both hands. I had expected that in the last year's budget he would set matters right, but unfortunately he has not been able to do that.

I echo the sentiments expressed by my honourable friend Mr. Lalji Naranji that when the Honourable the Finance Member is out of those benches and again comes over to this side of the House—I do not wish that he should leave this House, I wish that he should be in this House but on this side of the House—he will give the benefit of his experience to this side also. With these remarks I oppose this motion.

Khan Saheb A. M. MANSURI (Ahmedabad and Surat Cities): Sir, I rise to support the bill. We have heard several speeches in this House opposing this bill. At the same time those speakers who opposed this bill, and especially the honourable member Mr. Shivdasani, said that there was no room for further taxation in the land revenue. It is perfectly true that there is no room at all for imposing any further taxation in land revenue, because the agriculturists have been reduced to poverty in Gujarat, Sind and other districts which are visited every year partially or completely by famine. Last year we had torrents of rain which reduced the agriculturists to a state of absolute poverty. Government certainly deserve to be congratulated on having come to the rescue of the agriculturists in time. The public also under the lead of Mr. Vallabhai came to the help of the people affected by floods in Gujarat. We also see that the excise revenue is dwindling on account of the policy of rationing and it is likely to decrease year after year. We also see that Government have tried their best to apply the pruning knife drastically to the various departments but it does not redound to the credit of Government not to have applied it to the top. It is the fault of the Government and not this House, because this House is not allowed to touch the non-votable items. So long as this cursed system continues it cannot do anything to remove this dead weight. If the House asks to reduce the number of judges, magistrates and mamlatdars and police, Government will say that they should maintain them, in order to maintain law and order; and that unless they maintain law and order both the communities will fight. I do not know how far it is true; but I can say that Government are partly responsible for this. Government say that there is no room for retrenchment in the police. I would like to point that there are more than a dozen sub-inspectors in Ahmedabad city while there were only two before, when we were able to maintain law and order in a better way. It grieves me to place before this House, and I have to say it, that these dozen sub-inspectors, instead of doing their duty, connive at offences. In these days of civilization a number of ways for earning money have been found out by those who cannot earn money by fair means. Some gamblers are earning money by gambling in open bazaars and markets and by a system of lotteries. They place a few dolls and carry on their gambling. I am sorry to say that though these lotteries come under the Gambling Act the sub-inspectors instead of doing their duty are conniving at it. You will see some of these sub-inspectors travelling in the first class with the gamblers and lady companions with them. This is the condition of our police. I am glad to say that we have a competent and able Police Superintendent in the person of Mr. Smith. I have a good many more points to refer to but I think it is sufficient for the Honourable the Home Member to see that steps are taken to remove the existing evil.

I now come to the point at issue. We are in a state of bankruptcy and unless we sanction this bill I think we will be able to give very little for the nation-building departments. I put a question in this session. The following is the question and the answer :—

Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) how many villages have applied to the officers of the Educational or the Revenue Department for getting primary schools in their villages in the districts of Ahmedabad, Kaira, Broach and Surat from 1st April 1923 to 31st March 1927 ;

(b) how many villages have been given schools during these four years ?

The reply is : The following table gives the information required :—

District	No. of villages that applied for schools	No. of villages which were given schools	No. of villages which were given classes only
Ahmedabad	56	11	7
Kaira	88	[illegible]	6
Broach	42	12	9
Surat	66	9	19

You see that many villages have not got schools. The pruning knife has been applied by Government to various departments. I congratulate the Honourable Minister for Education on having secured an additional grant of Rs. 5 lakhs for his nation-building department, when no other department has succeeded in securing an additional grant. There is necessity for money for the department of medicine ; for the department of public health. Unless we give money to Government they will not bring money from England for our rescue. They came to India as merchants and they have come with a view to take away some money to England not with a view to give us anything.

Khan Bahadur S. N. BHUTTO (Larkana District) : Sir, I rise just to say a word in order to remove any wrong impression that might have been created by incorrect statements and wrong facts that were placed before the House by my honourable friend the member from Bombay. It might have been understood by some members of this Honourable House that the 3½ lakhs of acres of land that the Government have agreed to sell on concessional rate are going to be bestowed on the zamindars of Sind as a gift. The fact is that this land and a far greater area extending between 12 to 15 lakhs of acres were belonging to zamindars handed over in case of Begari and forfeited in case of non-payment of fallow assessment to Government, to be deposited on clear understanding to be restored back to their original owners on payment of single assessment. These lands originally belonged to the zamindars. Owing to paucity of water and other causes beyond their control, the zamindars could not cultivate them. Therefore Government took them over but gave not only an undertaking but pledges of the Commissioner from time to time that if the zamindars paid single assessment they could take back their land whenever they so chose. The acreage of these lands totalled about 12 to 15 lakhs of acres. The payment of single assessment on these lands could not be more than Rs. 2 to Rs. 3 per acre. In order to compensate them for the deprivation of this right of taking back 12 or 15 lakhs of acres, Government are now offering them only 3½ lakhs of acres and that also on the payment of five times more than due to Government at Rs. 15 an acre. So, it is not a case, as suggested by my honourable friend from Bombay of the zamindars being patronized by Government. On the contrary, the zamindars have suffered to a very great extent. Government or my honourable friend from Bombay could not have dared to back out from the pledges and to have suggested this course to adopt had this been the case of Bombay merchants or Gujarat agriculturists instead of Sind zamindars. It is unfortunate that the zamindars of Sind or of the presidency are not represented in the Cabinet of this Government. This is the only Government in India where the agricultural class, particularly the zamindar class, are ignored; there is no other Government in the whole of India where these classes are not represented in the Cabinet. That is why honourable members on the Government benches are not able to appreciate our difficulties. They pass legislation after legislation detrimental to the interests of the zamindars, because they do not appreciate to what extent we are suffering. My honourable friend from Bombay (Mr. Lalji Naranji) is suggesting to Government to break all their promises and pledges to rob and loot the zamindars of all properties and rights because we are not as boisterous agitators as this class of people. These are the facts with regard to the question raised by my honourable friend from Bombay (Mr. Lalji Naranji).

As regards the bill, I have not yet made up my mind how to vote; I will decide when I have to vote.

(After recess)

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA (Bombay City, North): Sir, I rise to oppose the first reading of this bill. I say that before Government asked this honourable House to give their consent to this bill, it was their duty to convince the honourable members that they have tapped every source for getting revenue and that they have tried to effect retrenchment in all directions. Sir, this bill proposes a permanent measure on the

[Mr. F. J. Ginwalla]

Statute Book. I would ask the Honourable the Finance Member as to whether he is going to tax this presidency in this way permanently by making this bill permanent. Every time Government try to delude the other side of this House in one way or the other by bringing a permanent bill but I hope the non-official members will not fall a prey to that, and they will watch the interest of agriculturists and the other people of this presidency. In the first place, it is the bounden duty of Government to carry out retrenchment.

In the first Council of 1921, I was told by no less a person than Sir Chimanlal Setalvad that there was a budget of 12 crores of rupees, and a cut of Rs. 50 lakhs was asked to be made by the House. Government first opposed that cut, but they ultimately agreed to a cut of Rs. 50 lakhs. If in a budget of that nature Government agreed to a cut of Rs. 50 lakhs, I certainly submit, Sir, that in this year they can certainly agree to a cut of at least 20 lakhs. Instead of taking steps in that direction, Government want to levy taxation on the people more and more and that is also permanently. I submit, Sir, that it appears that Government is not at all anxious to reduce the expenditure and effect retrenchment where they possibly can. If the Honourable the Finance Member wants to please everybody including the I.C.S., I submit that he cannot do so. He cannot effect economy by pleasing everybody. He must take strong steps to effect retrenchment. When this presidency is suffering at the hands of the Central Government in respect of Meston Settlement and in respect of the treatment given as regards our textile industries, why should we think of having such a bill ? We have been told that the Government of India have refused to give us a refund of customs duty, because they say that we get the remission of the provincial contribution. We were getting such a refund every year before, but in view of the provincial contribution we have been refused that refund. I submit, Sir, that the Government of India is not at all justified in refusing this benefit. Therefore, I say that Government Benches should now join hands with this side of the House and not try to enhance taxation. I may warn Government benches that it will be very difficult for them if they do so.

The next thing I would suggest to the Honourable the Finance Member is that if he is really anxious to effect retrenchment, he should appoint a Retrenchment Officer—officer who has nothing to do with the administration of this presidency. I know that Mr. Shillidy was appointed as a Retrenchment Officer, but he was a Government man and he could not displease certain persons. If a man like Sir Visveswaraya is appointed, I am sure there will certainly be some suggestions made in respect of retrenchment. When I was a member of the Corporation I found the same state of affairs there.

The corporation of those days had a liability of 20 crores. They had to pay heavy interest charges, of more than one crore. And then the corporation also, after a great deal of shuffling and delay, were compelled to appoint Sir Visveswaraya as a retrenchment officer, and from a budget of three crores we got a cut of 10 lakhs. Therefore, I submit that in a budget of 15 crores of this presidency, not only can we get a cut of 20 lakhs but perhaps of 50 lakhs. But if we appoint an outside man as retrenchment officer, he will go into all these things equitably and impartially. If Government are not going to do that, I say they are really not serious about it. The Honourable Ministers and His Excellency the Governor should set an example. But every one wants travelling allowance, sumptuary allowance, and what not, with the result that expenditure increases and retrenchment does not take place. Then, why should other departments accept a cut? The Ministers should set an example by accepting a lower salary. Let them say: We are really serious about it; we will accept lower salary. If they set such an example, the Executive Councillors may follow suit.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: We set an example by giving up Rs. 1,000; but nobody followed the example.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA: I want the Ministers, Sir, to set an example still further. In view of the condition of the finances, let them say they will be still more generous and accept Rs. 3,000 instead of the present Rs. 4,000. Then, Sir, in a similar way the expenses of the Governor could also be reduced. I would ask honourable members to turn their attention to page 70 of the Blue Book. The expenses under Staff and Household of the Governor have increased from Rs. 5,74,000 to Rs. 6,47,000 and the explanation given is that the increase is due to the additional provisions for purchase of new motor cars and for the inauguration grant for furniture and carpets for the incoming Governor. I submit, with due deference to His Excellency and to the incoming Governor, that you can, in view of the desperate condition of the finances, give the old motor cars which Sir Leslie Wilson is using to the new Governor, at least until our finances are in a better position. But, if these new motor cars are allowed at the dictation or under the orders of the Secretary of State, if his orders are that every five years new motor cars must be purchased for the incoming Governor, then I say this Government can at least resist that demand and say that in view of our finances we cannot allow this thing. And then on the same page you will find, Sir, that His Excellency the Governor is allowed sumptuary allowance and contract allowance, amounting to nearly two lakhs. I say, Sir, that comparing or considering the salary of His Excellency the Governor and some other expenses, the Honourable the Finance Member, if he wants to be strong, he should persuade His Excellency to accept much less for expenditure. Until and unless officers getting high salaries are prepared to accept cuts, I do not think others will be prepared to accept cuts. Therefore, there is a great necessity of doing this sacrifice at the top.

Then, I come to another head, customs duties. The Finance Member should insist that we must have our share in these, in the shape of refund.

Then, I come to the High Court, pages 73 and 74. There also I find the High Court expenses have increased to Rs. 11,73,000. Here there is an increase of one lakh, and the reason assigned is that the estimate exceeds the sanctioned and the revised estimates on account of full provision having been made for the continuance of the temporary appointment of the tenth Judge. Sir, in this connection I wish to say that last time I strongly opposed the appointment of the tenth Judge. In spite of my opposition and others' opposition, the appointment was sanctioned on the ground that the High Court was not able to cope with the work. I have got some experience in the High Court for the last 13 or 14 years and I know that the Chief Justice can cope with the work with seven Judges, provided there is the proper quality and not quantity. If the Judges are of the proper stamp and quite competent in law, I say that a competent Judge can do as much as four times the work of an ordinary Judge. Therefore, Sir, the remedy lies not in increasing the number of Judges from ten to sixteen or so, but in appointing competent Judges. Therefore, I wish to give an example of Justice Sir Norman Macleod, who could do four times the work of any other Judge. If the Judge is of right stamp, he can cope with more work. But the question is whether you are prepared to do so. And now the work has fallen down from 5,000 suits to nearly 3,000. And still you want more Judges. I say, Sir, this is a matter which the Honourable the Home Member ought to pay attention to and he ought to see that there are no appointments of additional Judges and that all temporary appointments are not made.

Then, about jails. I visited last year the Yeravda jail, and there also I find the same thing. Sixth century and eighteenth century things are allowed to prevail. Carpets are made by hand labour. I say, Sir, that work by machinery should take the place of work by hand. And in this connection, Sir, I had a conversation with the superintendent of the jail. I do not want to mention his name. He himself was very anxious that Government should permit him to order machinery in the jail, so that they may be able to cope with their own demand without purchasing from outside. But Government have not been good enough to permit him to introduce this reform on the ground that they will be competing with the local industry. I submit that the competition is too little, and by the method I submit that you can manufacture more things. Therefore, I say, Sir, this is an important matter and should receive attention.

Then, about the Secretariat and Secretaries. Last year I criticised that there is a huge army of these. As a result of diarchy, we have got seven members of the Cabinet—three Ministers and four Executive Councillors. The work which could be managed previously by three is now managed by seven. The Honourable the Finance Member says that is not in his hands. I perfectly agree with that proposition. But still in the Secretariat there is a huge army of Secretaries, Under Secretaries, superintendents, and what not. Therefore, I say if the axe is applied to all these, we shall have a saving of a few lakhs at least. Last time, Sir, I criticised and made some suggestions. But some of the Government Members did not relish our remarks. I say, Sir, with regard to the Commissioners, for instance, the Commissioners' work could be done by the Honourable Ministers and other heads of departments. If the Honourable Ministers and Members become more vigilant and visit more districts, Government will be able to save a lakh or two.

As regards Excise, if honourable members turn to page 37 of the Blue Book, they will find that as against the revised estimate of 48,20 thousand for 1927-28, we have 51,89 thousand as our budget estimate for 1928-29. There is thus a clear increase of over 3 ½ lakhs. I submit that a saving of 3,50 thousand can be effected without much difficulty.

As regards Forests, I am bound to say that the forests of this presidency are not being worked to their fullest capacity of productiveness. I assert that the time has now come for Government to practise socialism in regard to forest and other industries such as the supply of electrical energy, railways, tramways and so on. Government appear to me to be moving in the same old grooves. If there is a real desire to effect appreciable retrenchment, I would suggest the appointment of a man like Sir Visveswaraya and I can assure the Honourable the Finance Member that he will be able to give not only 20 lakhs but even 50 lakhs.

Mr. N. B. CHANDRACHUD (Poona City) : Sir, yesterday in reply to some attacks made by honourable members on this side who said that the budget was deplorable, that our financial position was very hazardous and so on, the Honourable the Finance Member said " No, our financial position is not hazardous, it is not desperate, it is as sound, if not more sound, as that of any other province in India. " He said " Why, we have got here a balance of seven lakhs ; add to that thirty lakhs which we expect to get from the Imperial Government ; add to that 120 lakhs lent to the Gujarat Flood Relief ; add to that 125 or 129 lakhs invested in the Sukkur Barrage ; we have also got 150 lakhs in the Famine Fund. And now, look here, my position is absolutely sound, absolutely safe and I should be proud, just as I am proud that my predecessors in office left me a legacy, so I also should be proud and my successor will have this legacy of a surplus budget."

Now, we have been told that we have got these surpluses, and I ask him how it is that in the same breath he wants to introduce this measure and to keep it on the statute book. If you have got your surpluses in your hands, how is it that you come to us and ask that the life of this measure should be prolonged for some years, if not indefinitely ? Now, one can understand the necessity of taxation to have a financial equilibrium. But when we have got these surpluses, one fails to understand the necessity of extra taxation. These surpluses always inflict a double wrong. In the first place, when we have got these surpluses, they are not conducive to economy. Government spend them, spend them in a reckless way, in a speculative manner and they also want fresh taxation. Taxation upon whom ? Upon the poor and the suffering people. Say that your financial position is not sound and then have fresh taxations. Just as you have the right to ask for fresh taxation under those circumstances, so also we have got the right to say " Now you say that your financial position is sound and therefore there is no need for this taxation."

[Mr. N. B. Chandrachud]

Now, this particular measure, the Stamp Act, was introduced in the year 1922. It was introduced at first only as a temporary measure. It may be that, on account of the war, our finances were disturbed, or possibly on account of the huge losses on the Development Department there was a necessity of keeping this measure on the statute book. But at that time it was introduced only as an experimental measure, and it was kept at first for four years. In the year 1926 again it was extended for one year more. In the year 1927 it was given a fresh lease of life. At the time when this measure was introduced in 1926 I was not here, but last year when this measure was introduced we were told that it would be only a temporary measure, and in the meantime they would go on negotiating with the Government of India as regards the share of income-tax to this province, and if Government succeeded in making a satisfactory arrangement, there would be no necessity for this measure. I do not know what has come out of those negotiations with the Government of India, but at any rate we see that the Government of India are willing to surrender a part of the income-tax revenue, or, at any rate, they expect that the Imperial Government would surrender about Rs. 36 lakhs. If the Imperial Government is willing to surrender a revenue of Rs. 36 lakhs to Rs. 40 lakhs, then where, I ask, is the necessity of raising Rs. 20 lakhs by means of this taxation ? This tax cannot realise more than Rs. 20 lakhs, because the stamp duty as it was before the year 1922 is bound to remain, and it is only the additional stamp duty that would be realised. That would mean, if this measure is not pressed, a loss of at the most Rs. 15 lakhs to Rs. 20 lakhs.

Sir, this is one of the most unpopular taxes. The Imperial Government have done away with the duty on cheques and hundis. I really do not know what their reasons were ; perhaps they were rich enough to afford the loss. Cheques and hundis, in my opinion, are a luxury ; the poor people have very little occasion to deal with hundis and cheques. The Imperial Government have done away with the duty on cheques and hundis and they have done away with a revenue of several lakhs. Now, the poor and the needy are paying this stamp duty, and it is this stamp duty which concerns the poor, the oppressed and the needy.

Now, all along, we are talking of retrenchment. In the first place, when Government say that they have surpluses, they have no right to suggest fresh taxation. In the second place, all along people have been urging upon Government—even a paper like the " Times of India," which cannot be accused of any anti-Government agitation, has been urging—that Government should try to economise and retrench, and the retrenchment should begin at the top. I do not want to indulge in this argument any more, but, as a matter of fact, what do we find ? We find that instead of one district officer, be it in the Revenue Department, or the Police Department, we have got more than half a dozen officers. Where we had one officer, we have now three Superintendents, three Assistant Superintendents. And is the work done more efficiently ? No, it is not done more efficiently. They have kept the European element ; they have also indianised the services, indianised the services with a vengeance I think, because the revenue which went into the pockets of Europeans is going into their pockets, and added to that is the increased salary given to the Indians also, and the administration has become top-heavy. However, I do not press the point any further. My only suggestion is that unless and until you show that you have tried in every way to make retrenchment, you have no right to ask for further taxation. A number of suggestions are made, and those suggestions are treated almost in a cynical way, cynical in their utter disregard of popular wishes, utter disregard of popular control and popular aspirations—absolutely cynical. They do not care for the popular wishes, and even when there are surpluses they are coming to us for this fresh taxation.

There is also another point why I oppose this bill, and that is that this is direct taxation. Direct taxation is always very unpopular ; indirect taxation one does not feel. This is direct taxation. If a man has to mortgage his house, or to sell his property, he has to pay stamp duty, and you know, Sir, that in proportion as the stamp duty is higher, the higher are the charges of writing, the higher are the charges of registration, the higher are the charges for attesting witnesses, and so on and so on. So, for every 100 that a man has to borrow, he has to spend about 5 to 10 per cent. This 5 to 10 per cent. is taken away from him, and if you reduce the stamp duty or keep it as it is, that amount will be saved to him.

Besides, we are going through a time when there is great trade depression and depression of agriculture. Now, at such times, our motto should be alleviation and not augmentation. We should try to alleviate the burden and not certainly augment the burden of the people. So, for all these reasons I oppose the introduction and the first reading of this bill.

Mr. P. J. MARZBAN (Bombay City, South) : Mr. President, I rise to oppose this bill in its present form. The Honourable the Finance Member comes from a community that is famed for its sagacity, shrewdness, tact and diplomacy. Sir, I do hope that by this time the Honourable the Finance Member must have realised that the House, or at least a very good portion of this House, is in no mood to pass this bill in its present form,—that is, as a permanent measure. On the contrary, Sir, from what I have gathered within this half a day, a very large portion of this House is in favour of passing this bill as a temporary measure, for one year or perhaps two years, because that portion of the House fully realises that the present financial situation of the province will not warrant us to throw away a sum worth about Rs. 20 lakhs. I do not think any advice is needed to a man of tremendous experience like the Honourable Sir Chunilal to realise that the best policy under the circumstances is the policy of least resistance. Therefore, Sir, if he were in his reply to make a gesture and say that he is prepared to accept the bill as a temporary measure, I am quite sure a good portion of the House will be by his side. It is no use rubbing honourable members the wrong way. There are certain honourable members who would go on voting for the Honourable the Finance Member for the retention of the increased stamp duty year after year, for twenty years if necessary, if it is definitely and opportunely asked. After the very rosy picture the Honourable the Finance Member drew yesterday of the solvent condition of this presidency, I thought he was the last person to ask for the increased stamp duty as a permanent measure. Why is it necessary as a permanent measure ? A time may come after three or four years, when the Simon Commission has had its say, and when we may be getting our fair share of revenue, that the duty on stamps will not be received and it may altogether be abolished. I think it would have been more expedient for Government to take this bill after the cuts are settled, because then the House would have been in a position to realise whether this taxation was necessary. Therefore I do hope and appeal to the Honourable the Finance Member to consider the matter very seriously and not to force this bill as a permanent measure at this stage.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN (Bombay City, South) : Sir, I need not say that I rise to oppose this bill. It is not an opposition with any modification or qualification as we heard from the honourable member who just sat down. But our opposition is an uncompromising one. Our opposition is based on the merits of the question. I oppose this measure because I consider it as the most unjust measure on the grounds of equity and fairplay. I oppose it on the merits of the case and I will presently point out that the measure is not necessary.

Before I come to the merit of the question I wish to remind the House, because it sometimes has short memories, as to what happened when this measure was introduced by the same Honourable Finance Member last year, who gave this as the first gift of the first year of his office. This is now the parting gift, I may say the parting kick, before he leaves so that we may remember the efficiency of his administration by the fact that this presidency has reached its highest limit of taxation. I challenge the Government to point out all over this country or any part of the world a province managed by a civilised administration bearing a burden of taxation to the same level as this presidency. I challenge the Government to show any other province bearing the same incidence of taxation per head as this presidency. In this presidency we have been clamouring for reduction of taxation but the Honourable the Finance Member seeks to make this a permanent measure. When this measure was first introduced it was not introduced as a permanent measure. I will explain why it was not introduced as a permanent measure. It was a mere tactic on the part of the Government that when they first introduced it they said that they wanted it for one year only, because they knew that if they said that it should be a permanent measure there would be strong opposition. They thought that they might befool the House by saying that it was for one year and might bring it every year till the opposition would be softened and then make it permanent on the ground that because they had enjoyed it for so many years they could not afford to lose it. What happened when this measure was introduced ? The Honourable the Finance Member when he introduced the measure last year told honourable members personally who were inclined to oppose it that that was the last time he was asking for that measure for one year only. On that assurance he carried the day by a few votes. (The Honourable Sir Chunilal Mehta rose in his seat) I do not want to be interrupted. The Honourable the Finance Member has got his right of reply and he may contradict it if he likes. But I hope those honourable members to whom he told this personally will come forward and boldly say that they voted for the measure last year on that assurance. Although the assurance was not openly given, it was given personally to several members. That is, Sir, how honourable members on the other side redeem their pledges. The principal reason that was advanced for introducing the measure last year was the financial difficulty of this presidency due to the unfairness of the Meston settlement. It was stated by Government that they wanted this measure till this iniquity of the Meston settlement was removed. Last year we got Rs. 56 lakhs from the Government of India. The measure was introduced for one year because they stated that they were negotiating with the Government of India and that they were on the point of succeeding in their effort. It is not because the Meston settlement is unfair that they want this money; it is not because the financial stringency of this presidency is such for this reason or that reason that they want this money. I know the reason: they want this money from this taxation because they have to pay for the loss they have sustained in the Development Department. Why should they not frankly tell us then? They want to mislead the House and try to have the sympathy of the House by putting it on unfair grounds. Last year the Honourable the Finance Member told us that they should have to pay Rs. 30 lakhs for 30 or 40 years as subvention for Development losses. To meet that expenditure they want this taxation.

I now come to the justice of the measure. Is it fair that this burden which is undoubtedly a burden on the taxpayers of this presidency should be imposed and we should be made to pay for the fraud and folly of those who are responsible for this fraud and folly and who are enjoying their pension and their gratuity. We cannot touch those who are responsible for this state of things and we who had no voice and who had protested against that measure which was put through in spite of our protest, are made to pay for the folly and fraud of those who are responsible. Why should we be made to pay? Is it because we are near and we cannot catch those who are responsible? That is the position. It is extremely unfair on this presidency. We who had no hand in that shabby affair have been made to pay for the frauds and follies of those who retired on full pensions. Nobody is going to touch them. We have got sympathy for the nation-building departments. Have you got a similar sympathy for the nation-building departments? You say that if we do not vote for this bill the nation-building departments will suffer. You say: "You give your vote; otherwise you will not get our contribution to the nation-building departments." That is the attitude taken by Government. I ask the House to consider whether the nation-building departments are living on the charity of the other half of Government. Is it really an act of charity when they contribute two or three crores to the nation-building departments? Is it an act of charity, an act of grace, an act of generosity to the people of this presidency? Is it not your duty to see that nation-building departments are treated on the same level as the other half of Government? Then we are told that we have reached the last stage of retrenchment and that we can go no further. I do not want to go through the details already referred to by my honourable friend Mr. Ginwalla. If we go into the details in the White Book we can show retrenchment all round to the extent of not only 15 or 16 lakhs but much more. But our sphere is very limited and our privileges are very limited. Take page 82 of the White Book. It has been stated by Government that we are on the verge of bankruptcy or in great financial difficulty that so much so we should have additional taxation. Look at the items on pages 82 and 83 which are extravagant, inhumanly extravagant. They are items for expenditure on Government House. Are these items necessary for the welfare of the people? Are these items necessary for the efficient administration of this presidency? I will point out the mentality of the administration which is callous to the welfare of the people: Whatever be the condition of the people, whether they may be dying for want of food or suffer from want of education, their luxuries and extravagance will not abate. If you look into the items it would appear as if it is a budget prepared for a big Pasha of the Arabian Nights and not as a budget of the civilised British administration of 1928. Rs. 34,000 for the purchase and repair of furniture and carpets....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member is repeating what has already been stated by the honourable member Mr. Ginwalla.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN: I did not hear him when he referred to the Government House expenditure. If we touch the Justice Department, if we touch the Police Department, if we touch the General Administration, their reply is that consistent with the efficiency of those departments we cannot touch them. The items of expenditure for Government House to which I referred can be retrenched if the administration is generous enough and willing to sacrifice a little comfort for the sake of the poor people. Here it is not a question of efficiency but callousness on the part of the administration unwilling to give up some luxuries. Look at the item of carpets. I cannot understand whether these carpets are necessary in order that the administration can have better meditation on more costly carpets spread out in each and every room of the Government House. Carpets for Rs. 30,000 are required every year; Rs. 36,000 for the purchase of motor cars. This is not a time of prosperity when we have superfluous funds to spend on carpets, motor cars, pictures, furnitures, gardens and other luxuries. Is it impossible to carry on the administration without them? Add to that the sumptuous entertainments at the cost of the rate-payers, although the hosts and the guests may be somebody else, while people are starving for want of food. This entertainment is a mere formality and dignity not from the private salary but at the cost of the rate-payers.

That is the sort of administration. There is a body guard establishment costing Rs. 80,000, a band establishment costing thousands of rupees. Now, I put it to you, can they really and earnestly suggest that they have come to the very last point of retrenchment and there is no more scope for retrenchment left. If this administration is to subsist on dignity and pompousness, then I do admit that we cannot get rid of it. In difficult days like these, if it is a private individual or a private commercial firm, howsoever well-to-do, they will spend on luxuries like this only if they can afford to do so. We do not mind this expense as far as the people can afford to give it. As we cannot curtail this expenditure, we can only appeal to Government when they speak of so much sympathy "Do not stop with lip sympathy: come forward and give up these luxuries in these days of difficulty. Let these luxuries be suspended for some years. When days of prosperity return you can have these Padshah-like luxuries again."

I ask honourable members on this side to remember the limited privileges this House enjoys. Once this measure is put on the statute book, you have no power to remove it; Government alone can introduce an amending bill repealing this measure. I ask honourable members to realise what it means to the poor ratepayers and to their constituencies; to realise the difficulties we experience when we have to get a cut of Rs. 5,000 or Rs. 10,000 from the budget items; to realise that by passing this measure you will be giving a permanent tax amounting to 16 or 20 lakhs, which, as one honourable member said, will come out of the pockets of the poor as well as of the rich. Therefore, understand the position before you give your votes. A permanent taxation is the last thing you can give, because you have not the power of removing it, once it is placed on the statute book. I hope that that consideration alone will prevail when honourable members go to the lobbies. It is not the position of this gentleman or that gentleman, howsoever great, that may be jeopardised, but it is the position of your constituencies with which you are concerned. I hope honourable members will realise their responsibilities before they record their votes in favour of the bill.

Mr. J. B. PETIT (Bombay Millowners' Association): Mr. President, I take it, Sir, that the underlying principle of the bill before us, is the permanence of this measure on the statute book. If that is so, I think the House will be justified in rejecting it. But, Sir, if it is merely an extension of this measure for another year for supplementing the financial resources of this presidency, then I think the House will be well advised in granting an extension of the measure for another year. Government, however, should at the same time bear in mind the extreme difficulty that the presidency is experiencing in finding resources for meeting even its legitimate requirements. It must be also borne in mind that the taxable capacity of the people of this presidency has very nearly been reached. It is accordingly wise, wherever we can possibly do so, to spare what little additional margin we may yet have in hand, for future use in cases urgent emergencies. I therefore hope that the Government will be satisfied with the extension of this measure for another year and that they will also be pleased at the same time to give an assurance to this honourable House that they will not come forward about this time next year for a further extension of the measure, because regular annual extensions of this character tend to give this measure a permanent place on our statute book,—a condition of affairs, which is very distasteful to this House and is not quite compatible with the resources of this Presidency. We all realise, Sir, that owing to financial difficulties and the manner in which economies have been made in various directions by the Government, it is necessary for this House to sanction the extension at least for one year at the present moment; and I do accordingly hope that this honourable House will agree to the proposal. If the Government agree to have the sanction of this House to its extension for one year, as suggested by me, I think that the debate may be cut short by the Honourable the Finance Member giving an assurance to the effect to this honourable House immediately. If, on the other hand, he insists upon the permanence of this measure, then I venture to think that this House will be justified in rejecting it. It is, Sir, very well to tell us year after year that the financial strigency of this presidency makes the continuance of this measure necessary and that therefore this measure should be made permanent. But, Sir, we have also got to remember that people of this presidency, and particularly, its commercial and industrial classes, can bear this burden no longer. We are all aware of the very great financial stringency through which this presidency, with the rest of the country, has been passing of late, and are prepared to give the Government some measure of relief by continuing this measure for one year and no more. The House will not be prepared to give a similar extension next year; and I think the Honourable the Finance Member should assure the House that he will not come to it again for an extension of this measure. I do hope that he will be able to give that assurance, which will be very much appreciated by the House. If this is done, the House ought to agree to the proposal. With this reservation, I have very great pleasure in supporting the first reading of the bill. If, on the other hand, the Honourable the Finance Member does not do so and sticks to the proposal contained in the bill before us, then I for one will oppose it.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD (Central Division): Mr. President, I have listened to all the arguments which have been advanced in favour of the total rejection of this bill, and I must say I am utterly dissatisfied with them. The Honourable the Finance Minister has pointed out the reasons in favour of this bill very clearly in his lucid speech, and not one single argument has been advanced to dislodge him from his position. My honourable friend for the Indian Merchants' Chamber (Mr. Lalji Naranji) got up to dispute some of the facts and I asked you to give him some more time as he was the principal speaker for the opposition on this side of the House, but I am afraid, Sir, he has not satisfied me. He quoted some ex-Presidents and some ex-Members of the Executive Council who have in their retirement given out that British civil servants and British merchants are here to exploit India. I am surprised that this discovery is made by them in their retirement. During all the time that they occupied the front bench, they themselves needed further taxation and used all the arguments that were advanced by the Honourable the Leader of the House to-day. We cannot believe that they have grown wiser in retirement. That of all persons the honourable member Mr. Lalji Naranji who is himself an expert should have quoted them as authorities is an insult to his own intelligence. I hope, Sir, that the Honourable the Finance Member will not follow their example in his retirement. I do not envy the Indian who does not rejoice in the success of the Honourable the Leader of the House as the first Indian Finance Member of this legislature or any other legislature in India. We must not be trifling. We have asked that there should be Indian Members of the Executive Council to place the Indian point of view. I may tell this House that whether we have Swaraj Government or this Government, taxation will always be necessary. I say "Encourage our Indian members." I know, Sir, the honourable member, Mr. Nariman, is here to oppose us. He goes out and comes in whenever it suits him and his party. Therefore, we, cannot give much weight to his opposition. It is not our policy, to go out and come in whenever it suited us. Mr. Nariman says "we are not serious in opposing the bill." I say that seriousness is not the monopoly of Mr. Nariman and his party. We are also serious. We know the difficulties of the Government and the people. The Honourable the Finance Member is an Indian. When he comes forward and says "Here are the difficulties of Government, advance us some money," I am not prepared to disbelieve him.

Regarding the present bill, I am of opinion that there is no necessity at all for this bill being made permanent. No case has been made out by the Honourable the Finance Member for the perpetuity of this bill. We are not convinced that this taxation is necessary for all time. As it is, I am not satisfied with his argument for its perpetuity.

Last time when we voted for this measure, the Honourable the Leader of the House told us that the money was necessary for Education, that is, for transferred departments, and I do not understand why that money has been spent over the reserved departments. I cannot understand why some resolutions of this House in connection with Muslim Education are not carried out. When we vote money for certain purpose, we expect to know how that money is spent. I would like the Honourable the Leader of the House to explain why this was not done. I do not say that every penny that was obtained by stamp duty should have been spent upon education. But I do say that the sum should have been mainly spent upon it. I am sorry to observe that a palsied hand holds the reins of the Educational Department and no progress has been made in that department. With these words I support the bill.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED (Hyderabad District): Sir, I had really no mind to speak on this occasion, but after hearing the speech of our Deputy Leader, Mr. Rafiuddin Ahmad (Laughter), I could not resist the temptation of addressing the honourable House. Otherwise I had no intention to encroach upon the valuable time of the House. I want to make my position and the position of my other friends from the mofussil here very clear. With our experience of past years, I am not prepared to give, like my honourable friend, any compliments to Government for the way in which they are managing the affairs. It is a fact, Sir, that Government have never tried seriously to effect retrenchment. There are several departments where retrenchment is absolutely necessary. For instance retrenchment can be made in the Public Works Department, the Revenue Department, and many other Reserved Departments, while the Education Department is actually starving. These are matters that have been brought to the notice of Government every time but no notice is taken of it.

We are here to perform our duty to our constituency. We have to watch the interest of our constituency. We, therefore, do not want to give our assent to this bill to be made a permanent measure because we know the money is spent in an extravagant way. I will illustrate my meaning by referring to the expenditure for the upkeep of the Public Works Department bungalows. There is a second class inspection bungalow at Tando Adam ; and what is its establishment ? One mali, drawing Rs. 24 per month as salary ; one nominal chowkidar who works as an assistant mali drawing Rs. 16 per month : One beldar, with a pair of bullocks, drawing Rs. 40 per month ; in all Rs. 80 per month are spent for the inspection of this second class inspection bungalow. That is the case at Tando Allahyar, at Sita, at all the places where there are these inspection bungalows. The same expenditure is incurred on all these bungalows, with this difference that first class bungalows cost double and treble that amount. These bungalows are very sparingly used and the staff lives merely to grow vegetables ; and these bungalows are dotted up all over Sind. That is not all. Many of the bungalows maintain crockery, cutlery, linen, etc. That is all waste of public funds. That is the manner, Sir, in which the public funds are spent. I ask, Sir, where is the necessity of that expenditure ? Is this the way in which retrenchment is effected ?

Therefore, I submit that we are unwilling to allow this bill to be put on the Statute Book permanently. We cannot honestly do so. We cannot do so, because we are in duty bound to our constituency to watch their interests. However, we would agree to allow this measure for the least possible period, and that is for one year only. I wish to be clear, Sir, as to the reasons which prompt us to extend this Act by a year more. During the year, we had floods and an acute situation was created. Both the Honourable the Finance Member as well as the Honourable the Revenue Member have behaved nobly in coming to the assistance of the sufferers. They have done all that they could. It is in recognition of those services of the Government that we are willing to assist Government to tide over their financial difficulties. I have stated publicly in Sind and I take this opportunity to do so again here that both the Finance Member and the Revenue Member could not have done more than they have done. The Honourable the Finance Member went, from place to place, seeing things for himself; while the honourable the Revenue Member did not allow any inconvenience to stand in his way in inspecting the flooded areas. In rain, when we were shivering with cold, the old gentleman went about more cheerfully than ourselves. That has been such a great work of the Government, that we are prepared to pass this bill, for the present, for one year only.

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI (Bombay University): Sir, I rise to oppose this bill in the form in which it is placed before this House. Sir, I read the arguments which are published in the reports of this Council since its introduction in the year 1922 and it appears to me that we are going through same way round every year without advancing any further. I will now try to deal with some of the arguments which appeal to me and some of which do not. I shall take them in the inverse proportion of their capacity to convince me. The first argument, which has been placed before this House, is this. The Government is a very callous Government—a phrase which is equivalent to the classical phrase "satanic Government" and therefore every opportunity should be taken to oppose it. Then again there is another argument advanced by my friend, Rao Saheb Dadubbai Desai for whose love for the people and the country there cannot be any doubt. He advanced an argument which surprised me.....

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN: He is a member of your party.

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI: Yes, he is a member, a very able and influential member of the party to which I have the honour to belong.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN: Then there is no discipline.

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI: The argument of discipline does not lie in the mouth of my honourable friend. He has never been found amenable to it, I know. Sir, my honourable friend Rao Saheb Dadubhai Desai advanced an argument which I wish the other part of the House does not accept in the interests of the people of this country. He said that, on account of the revision of the remuneration given to Government servants, the expenditure had become so heavy that unless it is retrenched, we should not give our sanction to this bill. I wish the other side of the House, in all its callousness, does not accept that argument. I find in the report for 1922 a statement of this revision. My honourable friend says the increase was something like 3 crores in the salaries, and that the same should be cut down. I find that something like Rs. 2,62 lakhs is given to the poor clerks and other Government servants of this presidency, who, on account of the high cost of living which has persisted in this presidency since 1915-16, amply and richly deserve this increase. And therefore, it is no use telling Government to-day that 'out of the 3 crores remove this 2,62 lakhs.' I understand his argument. It is directed against the Civil Service,—the Imperial Service. But the question of Imperial Service, the increase or decrease of the remuneration of the Imperial Service, is not unfortunately in our hands. The increase on that head is 29 lakhs so far as revision is concerned and about 10 lakhs owing to the Lee Commission's report. Whatever that may be, it is not in the hands of this Council and it is no use making a grievance of a thing which is not in our hands to redress.

Then, the other argument is certainly very convincing if sufficient data were before us, and that is that Government do not retrench in proper quarters and, therefore, we must bring this indirect pressure on Government in order that they may retrench expenditure in other respects. Now, Sir, if it were proved to the satisfaction of this House that Government have failed to retrench properly and adequately, then it would certainly be a weapon which this Council would be justified in using for the purpose of bringing Government to their senses. But the argument which was advanced by my honourable friend Mr. Ginwalla, viz., that because we put pressure on Government four years ago Government allowed a cut of Rs. 50 lakhs, if we put forward an opposition to a measure like this, they will give up some kind of expenditure in other directions, I think the argument is not satisfactory. And for this reason. We have to judge the budget in this way: Have Government retrenched in all possible manner, retrenched in such manner as they could, looking to the existing conditions and possibilities? Otherwise, it only means that you tempt them to put before you some kind of fictitious figure and say: "Take back this Rs. 50 lakhs and pass this bill." That is not the proper criterion, I submit, Sir. And on looking at this budget,—though I have been charged with looking at it very carelessly,—I find that the retrenchment effected is such as really reflects credit on the Honourable the Finance Member. For once, I wholeheartedly agree with my honourable friend Mr. Noor Mahomed. He has given the example of the late floods in Gujarat and Sind. In a year where there was such a heavy calamity as this, in a presidency where you find a budget of this character, when you find even contingencies, travelling allowances, and other items on which Government were so steadfast up to now, ruthlessly retrenched, we must give even the devil his due, (Mr. G. L. Winterbotham: Who is the devil?) the Honourable Sir Chunilal—his due, for thus retrenching ruthlessly. And having done so, if he cannot produce a better budget than he has done, we should consider the question whether for a year we should not put the proceeds of this tax in the purse of Government.

The other argument is with regard to the incidence of this taxation. This tax certainly works very oppressively on the city of Bombay more than any other part of the presidency. Practically the largest part of this tax is paid by the city of Bombay. This tax was levied at boom time and properties changed hands not as a matter of necessity, but as a matter of profiteering. At that time this tax which bears heavily at present upon transfer of property was not so very oppressive. But now properties change hands, so far at least as Bombay city is concerned, not as a matter of luxury but as a matter of sheer necessity. When people are driven to the last extremity, they either sell or mortgage their property. Under these conditions, you really take this tax from people who are extremely needy. But it is merely a question of choice, and the choice is whether Government should be allowed to retrench to the extent of Rs. 20 lakhs or whether this burden should be borne for one year more.

Then, Sir, there is the other argument which was advanced by my honourable friend Mr. Ginwalla. I wish he had not referred to it and I wish he had not compelled me to refer to it. That was in connection with the expenses relating to the High Court. Sir, I hold no brief for the administration of justice of this presidency. The honourable member who represents it will be fully able to take care of his department. I only submit that as he is practising as a solicitor for 25 years, the honourable member Mr. Ginwalla should not have referred to it. He said ten judges are too many and the number should be cut down to seven. It seems he either does not know, or pretends that he does not know, that the present Chief Justice has been clamouring for more judges and thinks that justice is not as expeditious as it ought to be. (Mr. K. F. Nariman : He talked about the quality of the judges.) Yes, something was said about quality and quantity. Sir, I protest against reflections of this kind insidiously made against an institution which, however great this Council may be, is as important to the administration of this presidency as even the existence of the Governor himself. I say, Sir, the dignity, the independance and the prestige of the administration of justice by the High Court alone is the justification for this Government, which pretend to govern by law and order, and, therefore, honourable members ought to manifest considerable care before they make any insidious remarks against an institution which is not present here to defend itself. My honourable friend referred to one name in particular, about the ex-Chief Justice Sir Norman Macleod. I am sure even he, in the regime of Sir Norman Macleod, clamoured that the despatch of justice was so expeditious, that not only solicitors but clients felt—rightly or wrongly is not the question—that they did not get full justice. What is the use of making invidious comparisons ? It is really unfortunate that my honourable friend Mr. Ginwalla should have introduced an element of this character here, because, after all, I think it ought to be one of the principles, so far as this Council is concerned, that the highest tribunal which dispenses law and order in this presidency should be held above criticism of this character. This principle alone has induced me to give importance to the remarks of my honourable friend which otherwise they do not deserve.

Then, Sir, I refer to the last argument which I consider so convincing that I have to oppose this bill, and that is the intention of the Honourable the Finance Member to take away the power from this House to sit on judgment on him and on those who come after him every year and say : How have you dealt with the budget of this presidency ? As I stated and as many honourable members have stated, the condition of this presidency is far from satisfactory so far as its finances are concerned. The extreme margin of taxation has been reached, and in spite of the hopeful reply of the Honourable the Finance Member his own attitude has been of the same kind throughout as shown by his first speech as well as by the budget itself. And in that situation it is the right, it is the privilege of this House, to sit down here every year, even at the risk of listening to the same arguments ad nauseum and to decide whether in the preceding year the Finance Member, with regard to the finances, has behaved in a manner in which he ought to have behaved. Therefore, Sir, I feel that it is the duty of every Finance Member to be able to stand the test of the criticism of this House by bringing this bill every year so that the House can judge of the nature and extent of the necessity put forward. I say it is for this reason that I oppose this bill. I oppose it for the reason that it takes away from this House its privilege of sitting in judgment over the present Finance Member as well as his successors. Let them come before this House, let them justify the necessity, let them show that proper retrenchment has been made and let them subject the budget to the fullest criticism of this House and then take this grant of 20 lakhs. But to take away from the power of this House to grant this 20 odd lakhs is, I consider, a flagrant sequestration of the rights of this House and therefore I oppose this bill.

Mr. B. T. DESAI (Bombay City, South): Sir, I oppose this bill and from the remarks that have fallen from previous speakers it appears to me that the Honourable the Finance Member need not be put to the necessity of replying to any criticism that has been passed on this side of the House. I understand the last speaker to mean that he does not give credence to certain criticisms that have been made by other honourable members. So far as the statements made by my honourable friend Mr. Lalji Naranji go, I think, Sir, he has made out a case which is very difficult to meet by the other side. He has made it very clear and he has quoted figures and facts and shown that Government has not retrenched to the extent to which it should have and to the extent to which it was asked to do, and he pointed out that there were several departments where more retrenchment could have very well been effected. He also pointed out the Sukkur Barrage and the Development Department and he also pointed out that a great deal of retrenchment could be done in those capital works. The Government has not done anything whatsoever, and, therefore, in my previous speech I said that it is now up to this House to combine and to make Government do according to the wishes of this House, and unless we do so, I think Government will go on putting forward their demands before us and get them passed.

With regard to this bill, why should there have been any necessity whatsoever for asking for an extension of this Stamp Act or of putting it permanently on the statute book? There are certain departments which have not been retrenched at all by Government. That has been shown and the extra income which this bill will perhaps bring would be from 20 to 30 lakhs, which Government could have obtained from other sources. But the arguments of those who support this bill appear to be that "Government has presented a deficit budget, what is Government to do? Government has already counted upon the House passing this and the other bills because in the budget and in the statement of the Honourable the Finance Member they have provided for expenditure counting upon these two Acts being extended and even after this there is a deficit of 34 lakhs." Therefore, as they have already counted upon obtaining this money, what the Honourable the Finance Member will perhaps get the House to do is to create a situation whereby the bills could be extended to a certain period or put permanently on the statute book.

As far as the Stamp Act is concerned, I may say that it is not a communal question, not a party question, it is not a question of this party or of that party, it is not a question in which any party should bargain with Government and say " we give you our votes, what are you going to do " and perhaps the Honourable the Finance Member will get up and say that they will be prepared to extend it for a year if not permanently. I say this is a question which does not concern any party whatsoever or any community. It is a provincial questi .., a question which affects all the communities because this enhanced tax tion will have to be paid by each and every community that exists in his presidency and not a particular community. Therefore, I appeal to my friends to treat this question in a light no other than a provincial question. I would also ask them not to bargain with Government. Such a thing has been happening for some years past. Every year this bill is put forward and an attempt is made to put it permanently on the statute book. Government say " let us come to terms, give us a year's life," but I am afraid this year's life will never come to an end at all. Therefore, I think it is up to the House now to fight out this question finally, whether the tax remains or goes, and I would ask all my honourable friends who have come here to consider the question very carefully and not to be led away because if it were allowed to be extended for one year, it might be there on the statute book permanently and it might prove very difficult to dislodge it from there. The argument of temporary extension should not be allowed to weigh with us, it won't do because last year Government had promised definitely that they wanted it only for a year and so got the honourable House to pass it on that promise. This year we are placed in the same situation. If we go on giving it life year after year, perhaps we shall be faced with the same situation and this process might go on perennially and thus the Act might find a permanent place on the statute book eventually. Therefore, let this House decide once for all whether they are going to have this tax or not, and I am quite sure that all the honourable members who have spoken are not in favour of the retention of this tax. Some of them say that " Government has done so much for flood relief, so much for this and so much for that, that therefore they must have money, so give them money, what will they do without more money." My honourable friend Sir Ghulam Hussain said that my honourable friend from Surat wants Government to do so many things but where is the money to come from ? He, therefore, said " extend this tax, this is the only way of raising money for the much needed improvements and progress." I am surprised that Government cannot think of getting money from any other means except additional taxation, and for this reason I say that it is we, who are the elected members, who ought to come in the way of Government's attempt to enhance any tax and it is we who must tell them plainly that no sort of a tax would be encouraged by this honourable House. Therefore, Sir, I would ask and earnestly ask my friends to consider this matter very carefully and to pay much attention because it is no use extending this tax for a year and it is no use bargaining with Government, and I sincerely hope that no honourable members will yield to any inducement from Government but will fight this question out on its merits and on the question of the interests of the public of this presidency.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I see two honourable members stand up, Mr. Hooseinbhoy Lalljee stood up twice. I propose to continue this sitting till 6-15 p.m. if the House is agreeable and finish the discussion within that time. For that there are only twenty minutes from this moment and some little time will have to be given to the honourable the mover. I therefore would ask the honourable members Mr. Hooseinbhoy Lalljee and Mr. Pahalajani to finish their remarks within a few minutes.

Mr. HOOSEINBHOY ABDULLABHOY LALLJEE (Bombay City): Sir, I had no intention of taking part in the discussion on this subject since so many speeches have been already made but I cannot help saying a few words after what I heard from my honourable friend Moulvi Rafiuddin Ahmad. I assure him that we on this side have very good regard for the Indian Members on the opposite benches, and if we offer any criticism it is not because we have any intention of treating them differently than the other members, but because we feel that such criticism will be accepted in the spirit in which it is offered.

Well, I ask the Honourable the Finance Member only one question. He has been a merchant, and I have been a merchant; he is a Bombay man and I am a Bombay man. I ask him in all earnestness, does he consider for a moment that the condition of the people of Bombay is such that they can bear this or any taxation at present? He has stated in his budget speech, and he himself will agree that the condition of the people of Bombay is very miserable. They are unable to bear any further taxation. Honourable members here have suggested retrenchment, hence I would not touch that matter, because a lot has already been said upon it. I would really point out one thing. It has been said that the condition of the people also in the mofussil is not good. There have been floods and all sorts of other calamities which this year have made the people of the districts as poor as the people of Bombay city. Sir, Bombay depends upon industry, but the industries of the city are in a miserable condition; there is unemployment, and I ask the Honourable the Finance Member in all earnestness whether this is the time to propose any additional taxation. He must consider the condition of the people, he must see whether they can pay; he must not be a Shylock and ask for the last drop of blood although the person is dying. He himself has said that the condition of Bombay is miserable. I ask him as a Bombay man, as a merchant, whether he considers it is fair that this city ought to be taxed at the present moment. Several honourable members have quoted figures, but I should like to give figures which will show that this city by itself is paying no less than Rs. 11 crores in the shape of taxes besides Custom, Salt and Foreign Liquor Revenue and that with a population of about 10 lakhs. The provincial taxation for the city is Rs. 2,92,00,000; the municipal taxation is about Rs. 3¼ crores and about Rs. 4½ crores income-tax besides the Customs and Salt with Foreign Liquor Revenue will together bring an average of about Rs. 150 per head. I ask him, Sir, to consider these figures seriously and see how heavily we are taxed in this city and to consider also very seriously whether this is the time to recommend this or any additional taxation. He should not insist upon this taxation at the present time. He should give time for the city to regain its prosperity and so also this presidency, and when the people are able to pay additional taxes, he may if there be need, impose them. Now, Sir, if he cannot help it, if he cannot effect any retrenchment, it is up to him to say "Well, I cannot do anything; I am forced to do it, and I am putting this only for a year, so that if your condition does not improve you will have the chance to say that you cannot bear any more, but if your condition improves hereafter, then also you will have an opportunity to say you will consider the position again" in view of that position. But for him, as an Indian, knowing the condition of the people, as a merchant, as a resident of this city, at this time to ask us to agree to this taxation as a permanent thing is a thing which I cannot understand. He is a business man, and I appeal to him to consider the condition of the people in this city and the condition of the people in the mofussil, to see whether this is the right time for taxing people. Sir, we have heard one of the Honourable Ministers say that they have not got sufficient money, and they have not got it because the people do not give them taxes. But I ask the Honourable Ministers whether they think it fair at such a time to ask for more or for contribution from the Government of India taxes or for retrenchment. I am sure they will also agree that it is not fair to put taxes at present and if that is so, they must also join us and ask the Honourable the Finance Member not to press for this tax at this time.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI (Western Sind): Sir, I had no intention of getting up to speak on this bill, but I only want to say this that the House is strongly opposed to the bill in its present form, as far as it seeks to perpetuate the increased stamp duties. Two statements were made by the Honourable the Leader of the House. The first was that he was actually negotiating with the Government of India to carry out a scheme of exchange of income tax for the stamp duties. If the negotiations are not complete, and if the negotiations have to go into the next year as they have been carried on during the last year—and three years is a pretty long time for their completion—then there will be no justification whatever for perpetuating the increased stamp duty, or carrying it beyond the next year. One year is enough. During that time the present Finance Member will be six months in office, and his successor will be six months more in office before the bill will come up again. Twelve months is sufficient time, and he should, under no circumstances, move for the perpetuation of the bill. The other argument, which I might also consider, is that the Simon Commission is sitting. Whatever the opinions of Indians on the point may be, the fact remains that the Commission will proceed with its enquiry; Sir John Simon and Lord Birkenhead have said so. And if that Commission is to be entrusted with the duty of investigating the distribution of finances between the provinces and the Imperial Government, certainly stamps may be taken away from our resources and something else given to us in exchange. Therefore, there is no justification whatever at the present time for a bill to perpetuate the increased stamp duty. By 1929 or 1930 the Commission's report ought to be out, according to the programme laid down by Lord Birkenhead. I should not be taken to be conceding the legitimacy of appointing such a Commission, but if the Government is determined to have that Commission, and if this Government is determined to act upon that Commission, that is another reason which ought to weigh with the Honourable the Finance Member in acceding to the demand not to perpetuate this increased tax upon this province. I think he has from all sides observed the feeling of this House sufficiently to realise that no elected member in this House, and even no nominated member will be in favour of having this as a permanent measure. One year is enough for a trial, if at all it is necessary. Moreover, the Honourable the Finance Member may know that, as my honourable friend from Hyderabad said, in the Public Works Department and in the Forest Department, which he had once the honour of being in charge, there is a great deal of retrenchment to be done. The Honourable the Finance Member has to put his foot down to carry out the recommendations not only of the Retrenchment Committee but of the Retrenchment Officer and compel his colleagues—that is the word I am using—compel his colleagues, by the force of his financial strength, to consent to the retrenchment that has been advised by two responsible officers of Government. In view of this, so far as the bill in its present form is concerned, I would certainly oppose it, pointing out at the same time, that it is open to him to move it in any other form.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Sir, I take it that it is your intention to come to a decision on the whole of this bill at a quarter past six. I do not propose, therefore, to take long in my reply.

In the first place, I want to contradict, as emphatically as I can the statement made by the honourable member Mr. Nariman that, last year, I obtained the consent of the House to the passing of this bill by giving an undertaking that the bill would be in existence for one year only. I did nothing of the kind. I got up to contradict the honourable member Mr. Nariman who, though he has asked for fairness from everybody, refused to give that fairness to me. Sir, that statement was also made by the honourable member Mr. Balubhai Desai. Unfortunately, he was not present here this morning when, in moving the bill, I stated that as I heard from him words to this effect in the general discussion of the budget, I made it perfectly clear to the House that, on no occasion, have

[Sir Chunilal Mehta]

I myself, or anybody on my behalf given any member of the Council to understand that Government would not ask for this bill for more than one year. I think, Sir, that ought to be made perfectly clear to the House. Secondly, Sir, in the various speeches that were made it seemed to me that while the honourable member Mr. Shivdasani spoke against the bill, he asked for various items of expenditure which must necessarily add to the cost of the administration. I cannot understand how, when honourable members get up and ask for more expenditure in various directions, some for their own districts and some for the whole of the presidency, it lies in their mouth to say that Government will have enough money if these bills are cut out. I think it is hardly necessary to expatiate at all on the point.

Now, as to the life of this bill, I explained to the House why it is that originally in 1922 the bill was asked for as a permanent measure. It is wrong to say that Government at any time introduced the bill as a temporary measure. In 1922 it was asked for as a permanent measure, but the Council passed it for four years. The Council then stated that they would examine what the financial condition of the Government would be and they would then consider whether a further lease of life should be given to the bill or not. In 1926, they again considered it, and they came to the conclusion that a further lease of life was necessary. It is being brought forward again this year, and the reasons why I have asked for it as a permanent measure are these. In the first place, I think that it will not be possible, circumstanced as we are and within the limitations of the Act, so far as I can see at present, unless there is a very great revival of trade and of Government revenues, to undertake recurring expenditure unless you have assured yourself also of recurring revenue. I do not think any honourable member who has spoken so vehemently about the stability of the finances of this Government will be able to doubt that statement. Secondly, I explained to the House that a longer period of life for this bill was necessary, because of the negotiations that are going on with the Government of India. We hoped that the negotiations would come to an end within the current year. I explained to the House in detail the circumstances under which it was not possible for this Government to come to a final settlement with the Government of India. We are not alone in this matter. All the other provinces are concerned, and certainly the Government of India is also concerned. I have no hopes that next year the negotiations will be completed. In the very nature of things, as I explained this morning, it will not be possible to come to a settlement on this question until the whole of the Meston settlement is revised. The revision of that settlement may take perhaps a couple of years; I think it is bound to take a couple of years. If the Statutory Commission, as it is at present constituted, will not have the time to deal with this matter, they will no doubt appoint a financial committee of experts to consider the needs of the various provinces. This, in the nature of things, must necessarily take time, and on that account I have asked for a longer period than the one that has been suggested. If the Council give any weight to that argument, if they will see that it is absolutely impossible, physically impossible, to come to an understanding within the next two years, they might, I consider, give a life to this bill of two years. I would leave it to the honourable members of this House whether they will consider that a reasonable ground for passing it for two years.

Some Honourable MEMBERS: One year.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Sir, as I said, I leave it to the House. I have always endeavoured to work in harmony with the House. I say that all these schemes for taxation or administrative schemes are best carried out by harmony between Government and the opposition. On the grounds I have stated I think it would be advisable to sanction this bill for a period of two years, the life time of this Council. (Honourable members: One.) I leave that to the sense of the House. But I wish to inform the House that the bill should be passed this evening. If the first reading is carried it can be determined in clause by clause reading whether it should be for one year or two years.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: If I may interrupt, I think it is due to the House to know definitely the period, because from the arguments of various honourable members I understand that they want a definite statement whether it is going to be for one year or two years or permanently. The voting on the motion for first reading depends on that point. On behalf of the non-official side of the House I wish to request the Honourable the Finance Member to make a definite statement on this point.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: I have no objection to follow that procedure. I wish to make it clear that I give no undertaking of any kind that even if we accept one year that the bill will not be brought again next year. I do not wish nor have I the power to tie the hands of my successor. I do not think that the circumstances next year will be such as to relieve us of the necessity of asking for a further lease of life for this bill. However I wish to meet the House in the spirit in which they wish to meet Government. I will have no objection to agree to one year. (Applause.)

Bill read a first time. Question put and carried.

Second reading. The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: I move, Sir, that the bill be read a second time.

Bill read a second time. Question put and carried.

Bill read clause by clause

Clause 1 (Short title).

This Act may be called the Indian Stamp (Bombay Amendment) Act, 192 .

Mr. BALAK RAM: Sir, I move:

"That the figure '1928' be substituted for the figure '192 '."

Question put and carried.

Clause 1 as amended ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 2 (Amendment of section 1) (iii) of Bom. II of 1922

In clause (iii) of section 1 of the Indian Stamp (Bombay Amendment) Act, 1922, the words " and shall be in force for six years thereafter " shall be repealed.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI (Western Sind): In view of the undertaking given by the Honourable the Finance Member I move :

In clause 2 for the words ' " and shall be in force for six years thereafter " shall be repealed ' substitute the words ' " seven years " shall be substituted for the words " six years " '.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The clause, if the amendment is carried, will read as follows :

" 2. In clause (iii) of section 1 of the Indian Stamp (Bombay Amendment) Act, 1922, the words ' seven years ' shall be substituted for the words ' six years '. "

Question put and carried.

Clause 2 as amended ordered to stand part of the bill.

The Preamble ordered to stand part of the bill.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Sir, I beg to move that the Bill be read a third time.

Third reading.

Question proposed.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District): Sir, the bill cannot be read a third time at present. I refer to rule 11 (2) (a) at page 247 of the Council Manual.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I think that rule is not so binding as the honourable member thinks.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : Sir, the wording is :

" and such objection shall prevail, unless the President in exercise of his power to suspend this provision, disallows the objection."

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Well, I suspend the provision.

Bill read a third time. Question put and carried.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Bill No. II of 1928 [A Bill further to amend the Indian Stamp (Bombay Amendment) Act, 1922] is read a third time and passed into law.

The House is adjourned till half past ten to-morrow, Saturday, the 25th February 1928, and will sit till two o'clock.

GOVERNMENT BILLS

BILL No. III OF 1928 [A BILL TO AMEND THE COURT-FEES (BOMBAY AMENDMENT ACT, 1926.]

(Motion for first reading)

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Sir, I introduce Bill* No. III of 1928 (A Bill to amend the Court-fees (Bombay Amendment) Act, 1926.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The bill is introduced.

First reading.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Sir, I beg to move that the Bill No. III of 1928 be read for a first time. The position is that this bill is required for financial purposes. As the whole question of finances was debated upon yesterday, I do not propose to say anything more as to the necessity of continuing this bill in operation. There is only one remark that I would like to make. At the time of discussion that took place on this bill in 1926, honourable members had raised certain objections. Those objections were removed both in the select committee and also in this Council. I, therefore, do not think there is anything further to be said on the merits of this bill. I take it that honourable members will, perhaps, raise some questions with regard to the duration of this bill. And I say that any suggestions to that effect will have my consideration.

Question proposed.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District): Sir, I do not wish to enter into the pros and cons as to the necessity of this bill. During the course of the debate that took place yesterday the finance situation has been much debated upon. But I wish to say a few words with regard to the genesis of this bill. I would say, Sir, that Government have not been able to satisfy us with regard to certain matters which were placed before them when this bill was introduced in 1922.

Sir, this bill was introduced in 1922 as a permanent measure. At that time honourable members of this Council objected to that measure and asked Government with one voice that the sources of economy and retrenchment should be explored. In order to give Government some time to re-consider the matter, the Council at that time passed this measure only to remain for two years. Now, we have arrived at the year 1928 and what do we find? There is no doubt that the proposals in respect of retrenchment were made by the Retrenchment Committee and some of them have been taken into account, and some are pending consideration.

*Appendix 2.

[Rao Bahadur R. R. Kale]

With regard to these suggestions for retrenchment, I would like to make one observation. It is this. I think all such proposals that the Committee has recommended should be settled once for all. They should be placed before the Finance Committee, representing various cities, rural as well as urban, as also the members of different departments. Such a Committee should be asked to go into the question of retrenchment and the matter should be threshed out once for all. This Committee will consider what suggestions should be taken up and what should not. If that course is adopted, we shall reach the finality in this respect and the time of this Council will be saved.

Turning to this bill, I would say that in 1922 I had proposed an amendment to the effect that the Original Side of the High Court should be brought under the operation of this Act. A great deal of discussion took place on this question both in the select committee and in the Council itself. I had proposed, Sir, that Section 4 of the Court-fees Act should be so modified as to include High Court, so far as the institution fees on the Original Side are concerned. By the present Act the mofussil courts are made to suffer whereas the litigants in Bombay are profited. I, therefore, see no reason why the High Court should not be brought under this Act. From the discussion that took place in 1922, we find that the then Advocate-General told this honourable House that there was no legal bar for this being done. But the then President thought that, time might be required for Government to consider the question, and the matter was then shelved by an undertaking given by the then General Member, Sir Chimanlal Setalvad, who was in charge. He told the House that the matter was very important and he would require time to make investigations. He said it was also necessary to take the opinion of the Incorporated Law Society and other Associations connected with the High Court, which would require some time. I was insisting and the House was insisting on the matter being investigated then and there. But owing to the urgency, the House was persuaded to wait, but on a distinct assurance that the matter would be brought up as soon as possible. I now want to ask honourable members belonging to Government; what has been done further in that direction, whether the matter was investigated, whether any consideration was applied to this question,and with what result? I only am anxious, Sir, that having given that undertaking, it was really up to Government to show us members of this Council what steps they had taken, because, after all, as I stated, this burden of additional taxation must be borne equally by all. I am not making any distinction between the presidency town and the rural areas. But I do submit that if any taxation is to be resorted to, it must be borne equally by both these areas. It was pointed out that the fee in the High Court given to solicitors had increased by the rules made by the High Court from time to time, and so on. That may be. But, so far as the revenue of the Government is concerned, I think it is necessary to see whether Government have taken any action in this matter. I, therefore, appeal to the honourable members on the other side to give us an explanation as to what has been done and whether this point was taken into account. If the material is available, then perhaps it may be necessary, after the members of this House pass the first reading of the bill, to refer the matter to the select committee for a short time and to see whether any steps cannot be taken to have that provision incorporated in this very bill. With these observations, I leave the matter for being explained by the other side.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV: Sir, I do not wish to take much time of this House because the principle of this bill and the bill we discussed yesterday at such great length is the same. I shall only say that the enhanced court-fees are pressing rather heavily upon the ryots, as those who have to defend suits and also to institute suits have to pay these enhanced fees. But I do not think the burden is so very heavy as the burden that has been increased in the shape of fees of the pleaders. The pleaders' fees, Sir, were charged before at 3 per cent. But that rate has been raised now to 5 per cent., and that, Sir, is really a heavier burden. If Government will see its way to restore this rate to its original rate, it will be a great relief to those persons who have either to defend suits or to institute them. With these remarks, I would lastly observe that if the Honourable Member in charge will accept one year for the duration of this amending bill, I would support it.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Sir, this is the bill which was rejected in the year 1924 after a duration of two years. Then it was dropped for two years, and again received only for two years in the year 1926, and now it is proposed to extend its life. The only way in which this House can compel Government to make retrenchments is by refusing its assent to this bill. Every year we are giving this amount of money to Government, and still they are not satisfied. Every year they come forward and ask that its duration may be extended. They put it down as a permanent measure, but by some sort of compromise they get its life extended for a year or two. Now, it is necessary for this House to compel Government to make effective retrenchments. In the year 1922 this honourable House could compel Government to make retrenchments when they refused to pass the money bills unless retrenchments were effected. In this case also we should wait and see whether Government offer to make proper retrenchments in the expenditure, so that we may be led to think whether the life of this bill should be extended or not. I would, therefore, request Government to take up this bill after the demands for grants are finished, because even if we give this additional money to Government, their greed is not such that they will be satisfied, because just now also even though they get court-fees money, they are following their very sinister policy in the matter of land revenue assessments. That is to say, if you give this money, have you any satisfaction that Government will not pursue their wrong policies in other directions? When they are going to wring additional revenue from the poor cultivators by means of these revision settlements, which this honourable House by means of a resolution has decided to stop till the new statute is framed,—and even though there is no statute framed so far, they are still continuing their policy, and in season and out of season, without making proper enquiry, without looking into the actual condition of the cultivators, whether they are capable of paying additional revenue or whether that land is capable of yielding that land revenue, and without taking proper measures and without exercising the powers of control that the former governments were exercising in olden times, they are paying no attention to the history of the tract or its economic condition and they are putting into effect the enhanced rates without care or caution. Instead of doing the right thing, they are trying to force agriculturists to practise civil disobedience as in the case of Bardoli. Sir, we know these agriculturists will be very glad only if you make even small concessions and if you show little hurry. Even if you give this money to Government the Government will not yield to the agriculturists' demands. They drive the cultivators to despair. Now, if the agriculturists are driven to despair, what will be the result ? If the agriculturists are not at ease, and if they feel that everything that they will produce is to be taken away, agriculture will have to suffer, the agriculturists will have to suffer, and as a result the Government also will have to suffer. Now, we are going to give this money ; but are Government going to change their policy in land revenue matters ? No. And they expect us to respond to their suggestion and extend the life of this bill ! Therefore, it is necessary that this House should sit tight at the time of the finance bills. If they do not sit tight and in light-heartedness allow Government to have money by taxation, then they will not be able to make any change in Government policy. We are here to make effective change in Government policy. We are not here for the purpose of carrying out the policies of the Government benches and for doing nothing. We want to see that Government work in the right spirit, with proper attention to the condition of the masses, the cultivators, and in order to make Government concede to our desires it is necessary that we should sit tight on this measure and we should not allow Government to have this measure passed even for one year at this moment. But, then, when the demands for grants are finished and when we realise that Government are in a mood to change their policy with regard to the agriculturists, then and then only we should see whether we can consent to the extension of this bill.

I appeal to honourable members not to be in a hurry, and I endorse the proposition moved by the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale that the passing of this bill should be stayed for a short period of time namely, till after the demands for grants are voted so that we shall then be in a position to see whether or not we should allow this bill to be passed.

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR (East Khandesh District) : Sir, I wish to make a few observations in regard to this bill. This is practically a bill for additional taxation on civil litigation in the moffussil. With regard to this, what I have to submit is that such additional revenue ought to be primarily spent for extending facilities given to litigants in the moffussil. I find that so far as my district of East Khandesh is concerned, civil litigation has nearly doubled itself and it is mentioned in the last report that the highest number of civil suits in any one district were from my district. The number of pleaders has also nearly doubled itself in the various civil courts but I find that the number of sub-judges has remained practically the same. The additional revenue raised by the imposition of this additional tax does not seem to have been utilised for bettering the facilities given to litigants who have to go to these courts in the moffussil.

Another aspect of the question to which I would like to draw special attention is that with the increase in civil suits there has been no proportionate increase in the number of sub-judges who have to deal with them. Sub-judges have necessarily to keep their eyes on the need for controlling their files of part heard and numbered suits in their anxiety to show quick disposal of work and absence of arrears with the inevitable consequence that proper justice is not in many cases done to the litigants concerned. The ability of a sub-judge should be judged by his capacity for doing full justice to the litigants who resort to his court both in the matter of quickness of despatch and in the matter of the quality of justice which he dispenses. What I object to is the tendency to spend money raised by additional taxation on objects for which it was not primarily intended. At least such is the case as far as my district of East Khandesh is concerned. I would therefore withhold my support from this bill.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI (Kaira District): Sir, I oppose this bill. My honourable friend from Satara Rao Bahadur Kale said that this bill might be sent to a select committee where it might be made applicable to the people of Bombay city who are not now subject to court-fees and therefore he suggested those people should also be included in the purview of the provisions of this bill.

Our experience of the attempts of the Government to set aright anomalies of this kind in the past have given us sad experiences. In the land revenue administration of our presidency, those villages in which communities showed better intelligence than the people living in their neighbouring villages naturally fared better than their neighbours showing less intelligence in their agricultural occupation, but with the result that these latter communities came to be taxed more than the others though under law such distinctions could not be made. Such anomalies can only be removed by abolition of illegal revenue. This court-fees measure was in effect initiated by this Government in spite of the protest of the non-official side of this House and there was some compromise arrived at afterwards. After that compromise this bill should never have been brought forward and I would wish that the rest of the presidency should have been placed on the same level as Bombay. If Bombay goes scot-free from unjust taxation, then I say that Bombay is done justice and the rest of the presidency is done injustice and therefore the injustice should be removed and not that the people who were treated justly should be subjected to the injustice done to people in other areas.

Yesterday I showed to this House that although more money has been given to Government, less money has been spent on nation-building departments, and I think there has not been any difference of opinion as regards that on the Government benches, especially on the part of the three Ministers who, I have reason to believe, are practically agreed on the point that the nation-building departments such as the Public Works, the Education and the Medical Departments have been provided with less money in 1928-29 than in the year 1921-22.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Do you refer to post-reform or pre-reform days ?

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : What was the position of the Public Works Department in 1921-22 and in 1926-27 and what is it now. I say that in spite of the additional taxation, the Public Works budget has not been proportionately increased from the ordinary revenue. The Honourable the Minister for Public Works seems to doubt that statement. Be that as it may the fact is there. Again I doubt if the Honourable the Minister for Education has reason to be proud of the allotment made for his department. His budget in 1926-27 was 198 lakhs and in 1927-28 the revised figure for it comes to 198 lakhs though 202 lakhs had been budgetted. This year the education budget is 202 lakhs and God alone knows where the revised estimate will be. As a matter of fact that budget should have been in the neighbourhood of 213 lakhs but in fact that budget has not come up to that level. The same remarks apply to the agricultural budget and the Public Works budget. In the budget for 1921-22, about 30 lakhs was provided and now we are where we were, that is to say, we are going to spend in the year 1928-29 only 29 lakhs. All these things go to show that the expenditure from ordinary revenues and the expenditure of additional revenue is given over to the reserved side. Even if part of it goes to the Excise Department, I refuse to recognise the Excise as a transferred nation-building department for all practical purposes, because I do not consider it to be a nation-building department.

With these remarks I oppose the bill and request my honourable friends on the non-official side to remember that it will be far better to reserve all such bills until we get complete control over the finances of the presidency. In that case if there is any reserve capacity in the population to bear additional taxation, which I doubt, and if Government then choose to bring forward such bills, the House can sanction them only if they are likely to be conducive to the betterment of the economic and educational progress of the presidency.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (Karachi City) (Addressed the House in Urdu) : Mr. President, during my one year's experience of this Council I find that Government have been showing a tendency to show smaller and smaller balances and every now and then they come in with bills for additional taxation. This bill was first brought in in 1922 and remained in force till 1924. When it was renewed in 1924, the Council rejected it but again in 1926 Government succeeded in getting it passed and it then remained on the statute book until 1928. I wonder if Government think that people in the Bombay Presidency are capable of bearing all the additional taxation which they choose to levy on them. They themselves admit that there is trade depression and the general condition of the people is at a low ebb, so much so that one would be justified in stating that the people have been so very much impoverished that even if they are pricked with the point of a needle or even with the blade of a knife, no blood will ooze out as the population has become bloodless having been ground down under the weight of heavy taxation. The people will therefore experience very great difficulty in paying this taxation. In spite of this fact, we know that the Lee loot has been going on for all these years. Why is it that Government do not make any effort to reduce their expenditure in that direction? Why should these extra taxes be levied on the people specially when a great burden has been put on the zamindars and cultivators and when fresh extra taxation has been put on the people in Alibag and Bardoli even when they are in distress? I would request the non-official members to remember that if this bill is passed, Government will become emboldened and bring up another taxation bill to-morrow and a third one the next day. I therefore say that this bill should be strongly opposed, and Government should be explicitly told that they ought to reduce their expenditure. Sir, it is not necessary for me to say anything more on this bill, as I feel sure that the non-official members in a body will throw out this bill.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District): Sir, this bill is required for increasing revenue, but we are told in the revenue estimates that there is a decrease under this head of nearly Rs. 8,77,000, and it is said that this is due to less litigation. I think litigation has not decreased, because we see that the appointment of one additional Judge in the High Court has been made. So, the decrease in the revenue is not due to less litigation, but due to the increase in the court-fees. When we were told that increase of Rs. 8,77,000 was needed, we found in the revised budget it is estimated that the revenue will not come up to that standard.

One thing more. We were told yesterday that the Government of India will give us a pie rate in the income-tax. I do not know whether this court-fee is to be included under Stamps, but for budget purposes court-fee is included under Stamps. I would be obliged if the Honourable Member tells us whether Stamps and court-fees are to go together to the Government of India and the pie rate in income-tax is to be given to this Government in exchange. Besides, 3 pies in the rupee, if calculated for a total of Rs. 5 crores of income-tax that is paid by this Government, comes to about Rs. 7 lakhs, and I do not know whether the exchange of Stamp duty for a pie rate in income-tax will in any way help this Government. I would like to hear an explanation with regard to this, because I am really not satisfied with the information available to us.

The next thing is that court-fee, as has been pointed out by my honourable friend from Satara, is not imposed in the presidency town as it is imposed in the mofussil. So, if this question has to be discussed, it will necessarily mean that this bill will have to be sent to a select committee. With these remarks, I am unable to support the bill in its present form.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI (Western Sind): Sir, I think the sense of the House which was unanimously expressed yesterday is a sufficient guide to the Honourable the Finance Member as regards the period for which this bill ought to subsist. The House declared itself yesterday that the increase of stamp duty should be made for one year, and that was the opinion of every party in this House. I do not think that that question now remains open, and I think the Honourable the Finance Member may take it as settled that the sense of the House on the point is that it should remain in force for one year only.

Now, as regards the other objections that have been raised, especially the objection of my honourable friend from Satara, these objections were raised in 1922. When this bill came up before the House in 1922, the attention of Government was invited to the difference in the court-fees charged in the High Court and the mofussil courts. That difference is that in the mofussil courts and the Small Causes Court in Bombay the court-fee is paid ad valorem, that is to say 7½ per cent. upon the value of the suit, but all suits in the High Court are filed on a ten rupee stamp. By the rules of the High Court, court-fee stamp is paid for on many applications and miscellaneous proceedings connected with suits. The result is that in a highly contested suit in the High Court the court-fee that is paid into the Government treasury usually comes to the figure that is paid in the smaller courts in the mofussil courts by the time the suit terminates. But in uncontested suits, whether it be for lakhs or crores of rupees the stamp duty that is paid is only Rs. 10, and there it is that Government are put to a loss. It was, therefore, necessary, in 1922, for the Government to give an assurance to the House that this inequality will be removed. Sir Chiminlal Setalvad, the then Member in charge, promised that he would address the Government of India on the point, because it was after all a fiscal bill, and therefore the sanction of the Government of India would be necessary. Even in the select committee, it is extremely doubtful whether that question can be considered, as only section 3 of the Act is proposed to be amended and not section 4. But it is open to this House at the present moment to be assured by the Honourable the Finance Member and by the Honourable the Home Member, the former of whom is in charge of this bill and the latter in charge of the High Court, whether they have any intention of adhering to the undertaking given by Sir Chiminlal Setalvad as Member in charge in 1922, that the question will be considered. Unfortunately the promises and undertakings of Government take too long to materialise. We are always asked to believe in Government undertakings, and we are ready to believe them, but the delay in carrying them out sometimes makes us suspicious. Therefore, my honourable friend from Satara again raised that question, and rightly too, that the Government should let us know exactly what they are doing as regards the undertaking given by Sir Chiminlal Setalvad, and this House has the right to insist upon that undertaking being carried out. I do not think that this bill, after the full debate yesterday, requires to be gone into further now. The only serious question is as regards the duration of the bill, and I hope the Honourable the Finance Member, like yesterday, will agree to keep this bill for one year only, as that is the wish expressed by all parties yesterday.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK (Surat District): Sir, I rise to oppose the bill. The City of Bombay is exempt from the operation of the bill; this tax is to be imposed only in the mofussil. It has been stated by the honourable member Mr. Pataskar, that civil litigation in the mofussil is increasing year after year and the economic pressure on the agriculturists is increasing. In spite of the contentions of the honourable members opposite let me again tell them that the economic condition of the agriculturists is getting from bad to worse, and that the consequence is that the sowcars have to go more often to civil courts and file suits against the agriculturists to recover the loans advanced. Therefore this burden is mainly falling on the agriculturists who are already very heavily taxed. Sir, it has been stated that the Honourable the Finance Member has not brought any new taxation bill and that the present bill is brought forward only to renew a tax which has already been in existence. But one thing is quite forgotton by Government, and that is that the honourable member sitting next to the Honourable the Finance Member has been increasing land revenue in the whole presidency year after year not by thousands but by lakhs. That increase in land revenue is never brought before this Honourable House for sanction. There is no other country in the world where land revenue is imposed in the fashion it is done in this presidency. The system is autocratic and is governed by the whim and discretion of the official in charge. If the official is sympathetic, then he takes into consideration the economic condition of the agriculturists before fixing the revenue; otherwise he raises it arbitrarily. As stated by my honourable friend Mr. Swaminarayan the struggle is going on to-day in several talukas of the presidency in that connection. The representatives of those parts have appealed to the Honourable Member of Government to give due consideration to all the objections and petitions of the people, but all to no purpose. I know that whatever I may say now or in the future will fall on deaf ears, as has been the case in the past, but let me warn the Honourable the Revenue Member as far as my district is concerned there is a real grievance. I appealed to him the other day, and I again repeat it, that he should make an impartial inquiry into the matter in Chorasi, Bardoli and Alibag talukas. If Government are in the right, then they do not stand to lose anything by such an inquiry. They should not let their prestige stand in the way. The honourable member the Settlement Commissioner told us that the policy of Government was to base land revenue assessment on rentals and that the assessment should be 40 to 50 per cent. of the rentals. I would ask him very respectfully whether he knows that this Government has collected from 1897 to 1914 about 50 per cent. on Jarayat land and from 60 to 80 per cent. on rice and garden lands? And are Government going to refund all the excess revenue collected during all these years? How are Government going to defend this taxation which was collected by them beyond the maximum limit prescribed? Sir, if the Honourable the Revenue Member does not know, I believe the Honourable the Settlement Commissioner knows that I am a holder of two alienated sarakati villages in Chorasi Taluka and they are surveyed and settled and hence by the enhancement of the assessment I am a gainer by about eight hundred rupees a year and yet I protest against the enhancement because I know the condition of the people. They will not be able to pay for thirty years. Whenever Government want to carry out their own measure they will say "we have given our solemn promises." When they do not want to do a thing, which is not in their interest, they say: "it was not a promise; there was no declaration." I will remind the honourable House that a solemn declaration was given on the floor of this honourable House by the Honourable the Revenue Member only twelve months ago, that all abnormal years would be excluded whenever a revision took place. I asked him then whether he had taken those abnormal years into consideration in connection with the revision settlements of Bardoli and Chorasi Talukas, but no reply was given. In a certain letter he asked me what I considered to be abnormal years. I say he has taken the most abnormal years of this century into consideration in fixing the revised rates.....

[Rao Bahadur B. R. Naik]

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: May I ask the honourable member what he considers to be abnormal years? Does he not intend that all years after the war should be treated as abnormal years?

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: The last was the greatest war that was waged in the history of the world. After the close of the war, the years 1918 to 1924, as every business man knows, as the man in the street knows, were abnormal years. The Government of India had to sell reverse council bills, the Finance Member of the Government of India had to manipulate exchange, the rupee was appreciated to two shillings and seven pence from one shilling and four pence. In Japan and Western countries they were on the point of declaring moratorium. I do not know if the years in which these things had to be done cannot be called abnormal, which years of the country were abnormal. It is quite plain, Sir, that it is from the year 1924 that the prices have been again going down. My request, therefore is very reasonable and ought to be considered by Government. If I had made any request, as President of the District Local Board, to the Revenue Commissioner, or to the Honourable the Revenue Member he would have listened to it, but as member of this Council, I cannot make my voice felt by the Government. I understood that they are taking extreme measures to collect the revenue. It has come to my notice that in the Chorasi and Bardoli talukas, they have taken some coercive measures. I know that the Government are powerful enough and have got well organised machinery to enforce their demands. But then, are they going to deny, is the Honourable the Settlement Commissioner going to deny, that Chorasi is the most highly assessed taluka in India?

Mr. F. G. H. ANDERSON: It is not.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: The dry crop assessment is Rs. 9 per acre for land in group I without any irrigation which grows only grass, jowari and cotton. For group II lands the assessment is Rs. 7-12-0 per acre. If this assessment is not high for the honourable member the Settlement Commissioner, I do not know what assessment he would call high. Then, the honourable member the Revenue Secretary argued, if the economic condition of the people is getting from bad to worse why do they stick to their land and not abandon it? I want to know from the honourable member where are they to go. Some of the officials are crying that they are not sufficiently paid, they cannot make both ends meet yet they are still in service. What I say is that there is no place for them to go to; when 70 per cent. of the population is solely dependent on agriculture, where are they to go and what they should fall on? Government should consider their representation sympathetically and make an impartial enquiry into the matter. Instead of that they throw out whatever representations are made. I know the real economic condition of the people. The people may be able to pay for a year or two and that too by borrowing at a high rate of interest; but if the collection is made for five years continuously they will have nothing left to pay from. The argument advanced by the Honourable the Revenue Member is that the rules made are not drastic and in times of scarcity Government will give them suspensions, and remissions. But what are the rules about suspensions? When it is a 6 anna crop, Government take full assessment and remission is only allowed if the crop is under four annas. Now according to Government they take 50 per cent. of the rentals as the assessment based for normal years, that is when there is 12 to 16 annas crop the rental is taken to be the net profit of cultivation, but when the crop is only 6 annas that is almost 40 per cent. and if the cost of labour is deducted from it, there will be no margin left to pay the assessment; and what about the maintenance of the agriculturist himself and his family. This is, Sir, how the rules are made and administered.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. Yesterday I brought it to the notice of this House, when the honourable member, Mr. Shivdasani, was speaking, that although honourable members are right and have a right to refer to matters, when there is a money bill, which arise out of the budget, they should refer to those items generally. They should not take a single item from the budget for discussion and discuss the merits of that particular item. The honourable member (Rao Bahadur Naik) is now discussing the details and the minor details of a particular item and I, therefore, do not think he is strictly in order.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: Very well, Sir, I bow to your decision. What I want to convey, Sir, is that the land revenue is being increased in various talukas of the presidency. I see no reason why this bill should be given effect to. There is this bill to-day before us for further taxation; yesterday we also passed one more bill and there will be several bills of such a nature. So, I do not know how much further taxation will be put on this presidency. I, therefore, oppose this bill for the simple reason that this presidency is unable to pay more taxation at the present moment.

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: Sir, most of the members whom we have listened this morning referred to the undertaking said to have been given by Sir Chimanlal Setalvad in 1922 and the manner in which it has been carried out.

As Sir Henry Lawrence told this honourable House in the year 1926, references have since 1922 been made more than once to the High Court on the subject of the scale of fees in that Court. At the present moment, I may tell this House, a very considerable number of questions are pending settlement between the Government and the High Court, including questions of Retrenchment, reorganisation of various branches of the High Court and its dependent offices, and means of raising additional revenue. These questions are still under consideration and I can promise this honourable House that the points raised in to-day's discussion will be brought to the notice of the High Court and that we will again ask them to consider carefully what they can do to meet the wishes expressed by this House to-day.

The honourable member from Kaira (Rao Saheb D. P. Desai) made a remark which has caused considerable astonishment to me. I do not know whether any honourable member from Bombay was present at that time. I do not think there was any. The honourable member from Kaira said that in Bombay no court-fees are paid. Well, I am sure that any person who has any knowledge of litigation in Bombay would agree that this is diametrically opposed to an accurate exposition of the facts. It is perfectly true that there are no institution fees in the same sense as in the mofussil, that is, fees fixed on an ad valorem basis. But that matter has been explained at very considerable length in 1922 and honourable members will find that explanation in the Council Debates for that year. I shall, therefore, not take up the time of this Council in repeating it again. The fees are arranged on a different scale in the High Court, as my honourable friend from Sukkur has mentioned. I may tell this House that the fees paid in litigation in the High Court are considerably higher than those paid in similar litigation in the mofussil courts.....

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE: The Taxation Enquiry Committee has not said so.

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: I have sent for a copy of the Report of the Taxation Enquiry Committee and I will look that point up. But I know that the fees paid in the High Court in many classes of litigation are higher than those paid in the mofussil courts. I would further point out to this honourable House that however the scales may compare, it is not within our power to enhance the scale or effect any change in the scale of fees in the High Court. This matter has been entirely left to the High Court and neither the Government nor this Council can compel the High Court to make any changes. A further point on which stress has been laid here is that the court-fees fall more on the mofussil than Bombay. But I submit, Sir, that the Taxation Bill which was passed by this Council yesterday falls very much more on Bombay than on the mofussil. This has already been pointed out several times to this House.

[Mr. J. E. B. Hotson]

Another question which has been raised in this House more than once is this. It is said that it is not proper that Government should make any profit out of the administration of justice. I say, Sir, that this argument is not based on facts at all. Government do not make any profit out of the administration of justice. If you take the cost of the courts and the cost of their establishments and set against it all the receipts from fees and fines and other sources, you will find that a small profit does remain. But if you add to the cost of those items the large commitments for pensions which fall upon Government, the large sums of interest which they have to pay yearly on capital cost of the buildings occupied by the judicial courts, and the very considerable cost of the magisterial work which is still performed by revenue officers paid by the revenue department—if you add all these items, then you will find that it is not true that Government gain from the administration of justice. On the other hand there is a loss on this department.

Now, Sir, there is a further argument advanced by my honourable friend Mr. Deshpande. He has made a very surprising application of the law of diminishing returns. He says: "There is now more litigation than formerly and the fees are higher, and yet owing to the operation of the Court-fees Act there is a loss in revenue." It is certainly surprising that in spite of the higher scale of fees and more litigation, there is less revenue. By some curious logical process my honourable friend has come to the conclusion that this is simply due to the operation of the Court-fees Act. But this is not the case. The fact is simply this. There is depression of trade everywhere and the value of land has gone down. That is the real reason. The loss of revenue is not at all due to the operation of this Act. If the increased court-fees had had any effect it could only have been in the direction of reducing litigation, which has not occurred. I think these are the only points which were raised in the course of to-day's discussion and I hope my answers to them will satisfy the House.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD (Central Division): Sir, my task has been considerably lightened by the speech of my honourable friend from Sukkur, Mr. Pahalajani, the Leader of the nationalist party—nationalist only into brackets.

In 1926 when this bill was before the Council my honourable friend was very much against it, and he said that the Government would not be benefitted by this bill at all. And he said it would be the hardest bill upon the poor. And only yesterday we were told that the Moslem brigade was always at the disposal of Government for supporting their measures of taxation. I am glad to notice now that we have got many additions to our party. And the first convert is the honourable member for Sukkur, who is supposed to be a jealous guardian of the public purse. "Of all the faithless faithful only he." I am very glad to see that a change has come over all the portions of the House. I really do not know the cause of it, excepting that the position of the parties has been considerably changed since the introduction of the University Bill. We were told, Sir, that the Honourable the Leader of the House was a very great juggler in finance. But I find that he is a greater juggler in converting parties to Government side. Sir, there have been a few recalcitrants in the party of the honourable member for Sukkur, and I do not know whether he would be able to reconcile them. But I am very glad to notice that parties are coming to the solid, and serious and sound views taken by the Moslem party in this House. Sir, Moslems are the balancing party in this House and we are always glad to make additions and to convert members to the view that Government are the friends of the poor and it is no use non-co-operating with them. I do not think it is necessary now for me to speak more as there is no opposition to the bill, asthe honourable memberMr.Pahalajani is already a convert to our view. (An Honourable Member: Not the bill as it is; it is only one year). I do not care for what period as long as he accepts the principle of the bill. I think all the opposition of the honourable members on this side hitherto was to its principle. Now even the principle is conceded. We are all glad to notice it. But let it be not said by anybody that the Moslems only are the supporters of Government. I support the bill with very great pleasure as it is to be renewed only for one year.

Mr. V. A. SURVE (Ratnagiri District) (Addressed the House in Marathi): Mr. President, we members on this side of the House have repeatedly demanded that Government should retrench their expenditure and reduce the grievances of the poor. When in spite of all that our expenditure is increasing, our liabilities are increasing, and we have deficit budgets continuously in this presidency, and more and more taxation is asked for, we must say that Government's sense of humanity, their sense of being humane in their treatment of the masses, is completely lost. Last year one reason was advanced for the bad state of our finances. This year another reason is advanced. It is said to be trade depression and so forth. Now, our land revenue is less, which means our agriculturistsare becoming more and more helpless and therefore less able to pay revenue. Even in these circumstances, Government is not fully alive to the necessity of seriously doing something to ameliorate their condition. In the old days, if an agriculturist could manage his affairs within say Rs. 500 a year, now he is unable to do so even within a several times bigger amount. He is able to earn less and has to pay more and more in the shape of assessment. When people are in such helpless condition, what is the first duty of Government? That duty is to remove even the existing taxation permanently. Instead of doing that, Government are putting proposals before us to add to existing taxation. Now, as Government is aware, from the moment a poor litigant steps into a court he has to spend lots of money. First of all, he has to purchase Government's stamped paper even to present his complaint. This stamp duty falls heavily on him already as it is, and yet Government wants to add to that taxation. Now, when it is admitted on all hands both by Government and by the people that there is universal depression, trade depression and agricultural depression, and every possible kind of depression, and when the masses are already heavily burdened with taxation, is this an opportune time for further increasing the taxes ? Or is it rather the duty of Government to reduce taxation in such circumstances ? When such proposals are coming from Government in spite of all these circumstances, can we not rightly say that Government has become blunt to all sense of humane feelings ? It is not their primary duty to be humane in their treatment of the subjects ? If notwithstanding all this, there are representatives in this House who would be ready to support such taxation proposals, I really do not know what confidence can be placed by the people on such so called representatives. Can they be said to be the true representatives of the people ? You yourselves say there is no money with the trade, there is no money with any one, there is depression everywhere, and yet you are ready to ask for more taxes ! Is it consistent ? The Honourable the Revenue Member, Mr. Rieu,will be retiring shortly after finishing his service. Why ? Because his energy is becoming less and there will be no power left in him for further work. Similarly, when the power of the people to pay taxes has become less and is leaving them, it is not proper that further taxes should be asked for from them. I therefore submit that this bill should be rejected by the House completely, and I would not support the extension of the bill even for a temporary period.

Mr. F. G. H. ANDERSON : Mr. President, I came to this House this morning in the hope of listening to a most interesting debate upon court-fees. But there is a hobby horse kept by some members which must be trotted out on every possible occasion. We already had references to it several times. That is this question of Bardoli and Chorasi settlements. In the general discussion of the budget, of course, there was some relevance in discussing such grievances, but what it has to do with court-fees I really cannot say ; that towards the end of my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Bhimbhai's speech its irrelevance was also noticed by yourself. This is not at all the time for a reply to those attacks. But, lest it should be thought that the arguments and statements that have been produced by the honourable member from Surat cannot be answered, or have any substance in them at all, I take the opportunity briefly of informing the House that on a suitable occasion and on some relevant matter I propose, both myself and some of my colleagues, to give a full reply ; which I hope will convince the Council ; and will reduce the exaggerated statements the unsustainable figures which have been brought before this House on several occasions to smithereen as they deserve.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Sir, I do not think many words from me are necessary in reply. I think the Honourable the Home Member has stated the position with regard to the High Court quite clearly and also the honourable members have expressed themselves in favour of this bill provided only that the duration that is mentioned in the bill is altered. I have no objection to altering the period of the bill as suggested by all the parties of this House.....

Mr. N. B. CHANDRACHUD: What is the additional revenue expected from this amendment?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: I think we ought to get somewhere near seven lakhs of rupees. I was saying, Sir, that all parties seem to agree that the bill may be allowed to be passed if the period is fixed at one year. With regard to the remarks of the honourable member Mr. Moulvi I may say that in the mind of Government at any rate there is no discrimination as regards any of these parties, they are all friends of Government, at least I have always recognised them as such and neither our friends the non-Brahmins nor the Muslims nor the new party that has come into existence exercises any more influence than the others on Government. We are amenable to all these parties.

Bill read a first time. Question put and carried.

Second reading. The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: I beg to move, Sir, that Bill No. III of 1928 [A Bill to amend the Court-fees (Bombay Amendment) Act, 1926] be read a second time.

Question proposed.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Sir, I move:

That the consideration of the second reading of Bill No. III of 1928 [A Bill to amend the Court-fees (Bombay Amendment) Act, 1926] be postponed to the 14th March in this session.

I move this amendment under Standing Order IV, 4 so that we shall be able to know what the exact position is after the demands for grants have been disposed of.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: I beg to oppose the amendment moved by my honourable friend Mr. Swaminarayan. I think no useful purpose will be served by making this postponement as we have come to this understanding by agreement with this House and I do not think that it is desirable at this stage to raise any new question.

Question put and lost.

Bill read a second time. Question that the bill be read a second time put and carried.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The bill is now read a third time and passed into law.

BILL No. IV OF 1928 (A BILL TO PROVIDE FOR THE GRANT OF LOANS BY GOVERNMENT TO NON-AGRICULTURISTS FOR THE RELIEF OF DISTRESS OR OTHER CALAMITIES AND FOR THE RECOVERY OF SUCH LOANS.

(Motion for first reading)

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: Sir, I introduce Bill* No. IV of 1928 (A Bill to provide for the grant of loans by Government to non-agriculturists for the relief of distress or other calamities and for the recovery of such loans).

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The bill is introduced.

First reading.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: Mr. President, I beg to move the first reading of Bill No. IV of 1928 (A bill to provide for the grant of loans by Government to non-agriculturists for the relief of distress or other calamities and for the recovery of such loans). The necessity for this measure arises from the desire of Government to help, so far as lies within their power, those non-agriculturists in Gujarat and Sind whose houses have been either demolished or have suffered severe damage by the recent floods. As the honourable members are no doubt aware, Government has statutory powers in regard to giving loans to agriculturists. These powers are embodied in Act No. XIX of 1883, the Land Improvement Loans Act, and the Act XII of 1884, the Agriculturists Loans Act. These statutory powers are confined to agriculturists, that is to say, in the case of the first of those two Acts to the persons who have the right to make those improvements for which the loan is made or to any other person provided the consent of the first person is obtained, and in the case of the other Act, the Agriculturists Loans Act, to the owners and occupiers of arable land. In those cases, the principal security which Government have, although there are other forms of security admissible, is the land held by the agriculturist borrower. In the case of non-agriculturists the position is entirely different. This is the first occasion on which Government have adopted the policy of advancing loans to private individuals who are not holders of agricultural land. They have no statutory powers to do so, nor have they any statutory means of recovery other than those of the ordinary normal processes of the civil law, subject to one exception, that is one of the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act. It was with considerable hesitation that Government embarked on this entirely new policy of granting loans from State funds to private individuals who do not stand in the relation of landlord and tenant as in the case of agriculturists. Government realised that the extreme seriousness of the calamity which had befallen Gujarat and Sind necessitated special measures. They realised that the credit resources of these areas were likely to be inadequate to meet the situation, and they therefore felt that it was highly desirable that they should come to the assistance of the people. But they have to consider what steps they can take to secure themselves at the time of making these loans, and it is with this object that the present measure is now placed before this honourable House. I may concisely describe the measure, in perfectly general terms, as one having for its object the placing of non-agriculturists, so far as possible, in the same position as agriculturists in respect to the recovery of loans. They cannot be placed entirely in the same position, because non-agriculturists, ex-hypothesi, have not the same security to offer as agriculturists, but so far as possible it is the intention of Government to put non-agriculturists in exactly the same position as agriculturists. Government are giving them the same assistance that they afford to agriculturists, and it is only fair and reasonable that non-agriculturists should be placed under the same obligations towards Government as agriculturists. I will now run briefly through the provisions of this bill.

Appendix 3.

[Mr. J. L. Rieu]

As honourable members will see, the bill is not an ad hoc bill. It is not confined to the present situation in Gujarat and Sind, but is of a general character, so that Government, supposing unfortunately a similar situation should arise in the future, would be able to deal with it on the same lines as they are dealing with the present situation. Therefore, clause 2 of the bill provides that the bill shall be made applicable to any part of the Bombay Presidency by notification. Clause 3 of the bill defines the purposes and the class of persons to whom these loans may be made. Clause 4 provides for retrospective effect being given to the operation of the bill. Clause 5 is the most important clause. It is based principally on section 7 of the Land Improvement Loans Act and defines the various means which Government will have for effecting the recovery of loans. Finally, clause 6 is the usual rule-making provision.

I trust that honourable members will recognise the reasonableness of this measure. Its effect will not only be to secure the position of Government in respect of these loans, but it will also be beneficial to potential recipients of loans. With these statutory powers conferred upon them Government will be in a position to advance loans much more freely than they would otherwise be able to. They would not be hampered, as they are at present, by the necessity of having recourse to the ordinary procedure of civil litigation for the recovery of these loans. Such litigation is bound to be both very tedious and costly, and it will inflict a burden both on Government and on the recipients of loans. Therefore, this measure must be regarded as one not only for the assistance of

[Mr. J. L. Rieu]

Government but one by which the non-agriculturists will themselves very largely benefit.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI : Have such sums been already lent out ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : It is so. I have not the statistics at hand, but I presume that some loans have already actually been paid out to non-agriculturists. Certainly it is Government's intention that such loans should be paid. I wish to impress upon the House that the procedure of giving out loans to non-agriculturists will be made very much easier and speedier by this measure. Government officers will feel more confident of their position, and the whole procedure of making enquiries, etc., will be very much shortened. I trust, therefore, that this House will look upon this measure not only as a beneficent one but as one which it is desirable to pass into law as quickly as possible.

Question proposed.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI (Kaira District) : Sir, I support the bill, but at the same time I would bring to the notice of the Honourable Member that it is doubtful whether any provision is made for free grants in cases of the nature which I am just going to mention. Suppose a small shopkeeper has his goods destroyed or damaged by floods ; again his goods may have been mortgaged, and his shop also may have been mortgaged. In that condition, he is not likely to give any security. On reading through the bill I do not find that Government can meet such a case, and, as a matter of fact, during the recent floods such cases are not met from Government funds at all. In the case of the recent Gujarat floods, they were met from the Flood Relief Fund started in Bombay. Therefore, if Government can make provision to include such cases, that is cases which require out and out free grants from Government, then I think it would be a complete relief measure. Again whether Government have reserved to themselves that power or not is not clear from the bill. They ought also to have the power to grant loans free of interest and to make free grants in cases which are worse than the cases in which securities are got.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The bill deals with something quite different. It is a loan bill.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : Then, the other point that has occurred to me is that the securities should not be touched so long as Government can recover their loan from the original property. Otherwise, what would happen is that the Collector would at once press the surety and not touch the original property. In any case an attempt should be made to recover the loan from the property mortgaged to Government (Moulvi Rafiuddin Ahmad : In the first instance ?) Yes, in the first instance from the property mortgaged to Government and not of the surety. So, if that amendment is made, this bill will be acceptable to the House.

Mr. S. A. SARDESAI (Bijapur District) : Mr. President, I wholeheartedly support this generous bill brought by Government to grant loans to non-agriculturists. The non-agriculturist population do not at present get loans under the old Agriculturists' Loans Act of 1884.

[Mr. S. A. Sardesai]

But I wish to ask whether loans can be advanced under this bill without charging interest. It should be open to Government to advance loans in some cases without interest. I am reminded in this connection of a short story in Chambers' "Short Stories." A small boy was always found taking loans from strangers. He was taken to task for this by his parents and he was enjoined not to take loans from strangers. The boy invented a remedy; he continued taking loans, but asked those from whom he took loans not to ask them back. I am surprised to see that Government confine this bill only to loans bearing interest. In some cases I feel that they should advance loans even without interest.

I also feel in this connection that the old Loans Act (Agriculturists' Loans Act) is not a perfect one. I brought to the notice of the Honourable the Revenue Member sometime back that it was necessary to bring a new Loans Bill applicable to the agriculturists, whereby Government could grant large loans as well as small loans.

There is one other point. The Honourable the Revenue Member stated that Government have no statutory powers to recover loans except by the ordinary procedure. But I wish to point out that if Government will advance these loans through co-operative societies they can easily recover them without having resort to the ordinary procedure, because if they advance these loans through the co-operative societies, the executive officers of Government have power to recover such loans according to the new Co-operative Societies Act. And as this bill relates only to Gujarat and Sind.....

An honourable MEMBER: It applies to the whole presidency.

Mr. S. A. SARDESAI: Even if the bill refers to the whole of this presidency, the Honourable the Revenue Member ought to bear in mind that these loans can very well be advanced through co-operative societies, and if he does so, whether they are agriculturists or non-agriculturists they have not then the protection of the Deccan Agriculturists Relief Act. I think, Sir, that as Government are going to be equipped with powers to recover these loans without having recourse to the ordinary procedure, of recovering them through civil courts, I would suggest to Government to grant loans without interest in deserving cases. With these few remarks I support this bill.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District): Mr. President, I do not think that there can be any doubt that this is a very good bill, and I may be permitted to offer my congratulations to the Honourable the Revenue Member for bringing forward this bill. When I came across the Agriculturists' Loans Act of 1884 and had occasion to refer to it, it occurred to me whether something of that kind could not also be done for those who could not benefit by that Act, even irrespective of the calamities which have induced Government to bring forward this bill. There are one or two things, however, about which I should be extremely grateful to the Honourable the Revenue Member if he would be so good as to give us information. The bill does not—and rightly does not—fix the rate of interest at which loans can be advanced. That is a matter which is left to be determined or prescribed by rules. But I would be grateful if the Honourable the Revenue Member would give us some indication of the rate of interest that would be levied on the loans that would be advanced. I sincerely hope that they will be very moderate rates of interest and that no attempt will be made by Government to make any revenue out of the bill. I therefore beg to suggest that loans should be advanced very liberally and that instructions should be given to subordinate officers that when applications for loans are made under this bill, they should be treated with the greatest sympathy. If such instructions are given, if the rate of interest is fixed low, and if in cases where it will not be possible for a man to repay the loan strictly according to rules no harshness will be shown, as much leniency will be shown as is possible without any detriment to the interests of Government, then, I have not the least doubt that the people of the presidency will be grateful to the Government for bringing forward this bill. With these remarks I sincerely support the bill.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District): Sir, speaking on the principle underlying the bill, I wish to make one or two observations. The first is, the time has come—and I am glad that Government have recognised it—when the system of advancing loans under the Agriculturists' Loans Act should be extended to purposes other than those provided for in that Act. No doubt the present bill is confined to non-agriculturists for the relief of distress owing to flood or other calamities. But I hope that this principle will be extended to distress caused to individuals or corporate bodies, when they are struggling for industrial development. I do not know whether the present scope of the bill includes people of that kind. Perhaps, the Honourable the Minister in charge of the Transferred department will see his way, I think, to bring in such a legislation specifically dealing with the case I have mentioned. I am sure that once the principle has been recognised by Government, it will not be far distant when that provision will be made.

Coming to the present bill, I find that the question of rule-making powers given by section 6 to the Executive is of a very ordinary kind, but I find that there is no provision made for previous publication of such rules, that is to say, the provision for publication of rules framed in the Government Gazette calling for objections before they are passed into law. I would go further and suggest that although the power of rule-making has been given to the executive, the rules framed by them should be placed before this House so that we shall get an opportunity of seeing whether the rules are harsh or otherwise. You will see, Sir, in the present instance, that although the bill is very small, the machinery for enforcing the provisions of this Act has to be created by the rules. The manner of making applications, the officers by whom the loans may be granted, the nature of security and the rate of interest—all these questions are not of less importance and this House should get an opportunity of knowing them. My honourable friend from Nasik, Mr. Pradhan, suggested that the rate of interest should be laid down in the bill itself.....

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN: No, I do not suggest so.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE: I am glad to hear that. I submit that the question of interest in a particular case is an important one and for that purpose it will be better if the rules are placed before the Council in the manner I have suggested.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Sir, I support this measure gladly. I am glad because this bill is not only applied to the places affected by floods, namely, Gujarat and Sind alone, but it has been extended to all over the presidency. By this bill the non-agriculturist class will get the same benefits in respect of loans that are given to the agriculturist class. I may point out, Sir, that Government should not make the provisions of this bill very drastic. If the people found that the provisions are drastic, they would refrain from making any applications to Government for loans, although they may be badly in need of such loans.

In the first place it is necessary I may suggest that the surety should not be placed on the same footing as the borrower. In many cases it so happens that if the money is not paid by the borrower, the property of the surety is attached, and the borrower goes scot free. Therefore, I say there should be a distinct provision made that a surety will not be touched in the first place for the recovery of the loans to those for whom he is a surety. Firstly the borrower and his property should be attached and then as the last recourse the surety must be touched. Besides the subordinate officers who may be in charge of recovering loans, should be instructed by Government not to be very strict in the matter of recovery. Sir, these loans have been necessitated at a time when the people are in distress and when they are not in a position to return money as quickly as Government would desire. Therefore, Government should give them liberal terms and greater facilities of making payments by smaller instalments. All these facts should be taken into consideration. I know that people in Gujarat, who have been affected by reason of floods and distressful conditions, are very much afraid to apply for loans as they think that the demand for recovery of such loans will be very strict, drastic and harsh, and therefore many people do not do so. That is the situation. Sir, I think that the rights of making recoveries should not, therefore, be handed over to the Government officers solely. Those rights should be under the popular control. I say, Sir, that these rights should be controlled in a proper manner. All the rules framed should be brought under the purview of this House. It is absolutely necessary that the rules made should be kept on the table of the Council, so that it will give an opportunity to this House to make an amendment or otherwise.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA (Bombay City, North): Sir, I rise to oppose this bill. My reason for opposing is that I do not want to give arbitrary powers to the executive. Sir, our experience is very sad in this respect. Whenever the executive are given powers, they are always misused. In this connection, I want to draw the attention of the honourable House to this fact that there is the ordinary law of the land. It is open to Government to follow the same process. If a citizen is asked to recover his dues through the process of law, why should Government be placed in a better position than a private citizen in this matter. In addition, Sir, I understand that agreements have already been taken for the advances given by Government to non-agriculturists even before this measure is placed on the statute book. If that was possible, and if people are willing to sign slave bonds, let them sign them at their own risk, but I do not want to be a party to anything like this legislation being put on the statute book, the effect of which is that people will be oppressed. In this connection, I also want to draw the attention of the House to the several clauses in the agreements that have been taken in other parts, for instance, in Zanzibar and East Africa. The other day an engine driver came to me for help, and that man was dismissed summarily because he had some differences with his superior. The matter was taken up by his English solicitors on his behalf. The matter was taken to His Excellency the Governor of Zanzibar and East Africa. Still that gentleman did not get redress, and he was told "Since you are fighting out your case here through solicitors, we are not going to give you return passage." Cudgels were taken up on his behalf by his English solicitors, and then he and his family were allowed to return to India. Because there was a clause in the agreement which says that Government have any right at any moment to terminate his services without giving any reasons whatsoever, all his difficulties arose. And these are the clauses which I find are also entered up in agreements taken from labourers in the G. I. P. Railway and B. B. & C. I. Railway Workshops. There also the company reserve absolute right to terminate the service in any way they like without assigning any reasons whatsoever. Therefore, I am asking my men that "You should come to us before you sign these slave bonds." Therefore, I say this House ought not to be a party to such slave bonds which are to be given by non-agriculturists. The men cannot resist any opression due to such slave bonds. It may be that my honourable friend is a kind hearted man. But is the Honourable Mr. Rieu going to stay long or is he going to live up to eternity? His successors may be cruel and his Collectors may take a different view. It may be a beneficial piece of legislation, but Government should not act like a Marwari. I do not want that Government should copy the example of a Marwari. Even in Bombay, in Khar for instance, there also Government give loans to private individuals who purchase plots of land. Government ask them only to contribute 25 per cent. for land. They are to pay three-fourths to Government by instalments and the building remains as a mortgage to Government. But Government do not say "We will forfeit building, land and everything." If that is done in connection with Khar and other cases, I do not understand why different treatment should be given to those persons who are in need of money and who are not agriculturists. I therefore hope the House will set its face to giving of any arbitrary power to the executive, which power it is our experience is abused time and again. Some people say these powers should be given, but they do not understand that these powers will be liable to be abused, and are abused very often. Therefore, I do submit, Sir, that either the worst clauses of the bill should be taken out or the bill should be thrown out. I hope, therefore, that the honourable members will think twice before giving their support to this bill.

[Mr. F. J. Ginwalla]

Mr. N. B. CHANDRACHUD (Poona City): Sir, I do not oppose the bill. I am also not much enamoured of this bill. Personally I think that the State ought not to act the part of a money-lending Marwari. If arbitrary power is given, it is likely to be abused sometimes; as a matter of fact, it is abused. Now, in the first place, if a man has got credit, he will get loan from any one. If he has no credit, how is he to get it from anywhere? So, I rather wish Government should not act the part of a money-lending Marwari. I would wish that Government should come to the rescue of the oppressed and the poor rather from charitable motives. Government should say "their houses are washed away, we give one lakh or more and we are going to build houses for those persons whose houses have been washed away." But to my mind it appears that Government agency is abused, abused both by the recipient and also by the officers of the Government. We have had, Sir, very sad experience of the tagai loans and advances. In several cases we find that Government advance tagai to persons who do not deserve it. Tagai advances made by Government are not spent on the object or on the purposes for which they are taken. Tagai is taken for constructing a well and the amount is spent for the marriage of a son; tagai is taken for the improvement of land and the amount is spent in paying Government assessment. We have several cases where we find that Government with one hand advance tagai and with the other they recover assessment. In the second place, Sir, Government agency is also not quite fit to distribute such loans, because it is the select few or the fortunate few who get loans at the hands of Government. I may mention the case of a tagai advance. A woman took a tagai advance of Rs. 100. She paid this man one rupee, that man one rupee, and so on, and in that way she had only Rs. 15 left. She went to the mamlatdar and told him that "as you are the biggest God, let me give you the biggest dakshina,—the Rs. 15—and let me go home quietly." What I find is that Government agency is abused both by the recipient and also by the officers of the Government. Now, however, I think that this measure is more or less of an experimental nature, and with that object I am making a few suggestions. Much will depend upon the rules which the Government have to make, and I join my honourable friend Mr. Swaminarayan in making a suggestion that the rules be approved of by this Council, because though clause 6 appears to be quite harmless, much will depend on the way in which the Act is administered and the administration of the Act will depend upon the rules that will be framed under this Act. What I submit is that the rules should have the approval and sanction of this House, so that if the House wants to suggest any changes, either with regard to the rate of interest or with regard to the persons to whom the loans should be advanced, that may become possible.

[Mr. N. B. Chandrachud]

I would also like to make one suggestion as regards clause 5 (d), that the debt should be a first charge on the house, because when a loan is advanced for the building of a house, it is only proper that the loan should be repaid from the sale-proceeds or from the proceeds of the house if possible. I would also suggest that the amount which Government advance for construction of houses should be made a charge on the house, because what will happen is this : a man takes a loan of Rs. 500 and gets another man to stand surety for him in respect of that loan. If it becomes impossible for either the borrower or the surety to pay back the amount, Government loses the amount advanced as loan. So I submit Government should take steps that the amount which they advance should be made a first charge on the property and unless and until that amount is made.....

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : That is provided for in clause 3.

Mr. N. B. CHANDRACHUD : No, it won't be a legal charge.

Mr. F. G. H. ANDERSON : I may explain, Sir, that the words " as if it were arrears of land revenue due in respect of the land on which the house stands " which are put into the clause make that loan an absolutely legal charge on that land. The bill has provided for it and there is also the notice (through the registration office) to everybody that this charge exists upon the land.

Mr. N. B. CHANDRACHUD : I have only made that suggestion. If the legal talent at the command of Government thinks it is a legal charge, I have no quarrel with Government but personally, I do not think that it amounts to a legal charge. I feel that instead of leaving the interpretation of the words to legal quibbling hereafter, it is better that the meaning should be made perfectly plain.

Also, if possible, I would also make a suggestion that the loan, instead of being distributed through the agency of mamlatdars, should be distributed through the agency of village panchayats, because in several villages we have these panchayats. At any rate, before making any such loans or advances, it is better that Government should consult not only their officers and village officers but also some of the respectable persons in the villages such as the heads of " gram panchayats." I support the first reading of the bill.

Khan Saheb A. M. MANSURI (Ahmedabad and Surat Cities) : Sir. I think this is the first measure of its kind which has been introduced into this legislature by Government since the Reforms have been introduced for the last eight years. I think the Honourable the Revenue Member deserves to be really congratulated for this piece of legislation.

Sir, it has been said that there will be a good many drawbacks in the bill if it is passed as it is. But I wish to point out that Government will no doubt appreciate the existence of these difficulties and try to remove them at the time of framing the rules which I hope they will place before this House for approval and sanction.

One of my honourable friends recently argued that the money might as well be borrowed from sowcars, but he seems to forget that our country is visited often and often by famines and floods and agriculturists have been rendered penniless with the consequence that sowcars are not in a position to advance the loans to non-agriculturists. My solicitor friend is not here just now, otherwise I would have asked him whether or not his brethren in this profession do not suck the blood out of their clients and I would have asked him how many solicitors in Bombay are humane beings while acting as solicitors. I think this is a beneficent measure introduced by Government and deserves to be passed immediately.

Mr. W. W. SMART: Mr. President, I only wish to give my own personal experiences of the giving out of these loans. I have been over the whole flooded area and have examined a large number of cases. My experience is that there are a large number of persons in towns who are not agriculturists, who experience considerable difficulty in obtaining loans. If their houses have fallen, it is obvious that until rebuilt they are of no value, and in small villages the value of the plot is purely nominal. In a large town like Ahmedabad or Surat or Broach, a plot of land has a very high value but in a village, I submit, the value of a plot of land is purely nominal as there is no demand and even if there were, neighbours would not buy the plot because they would fear the enmity of the owner. I implore this House to pass this bill immediately. The facts, as they stand at present, are that under the Transfer of Property Act a property mortgaged for a loan can be attached by Government without recourse to a civil court, but supposing I give a man a loan and he does not spend the money on building his house. In that case I have nothing to fall back upon except the value of the plot and any surety which that man may have provided or any other moveable or immoveable property which he may possess. Now under the present bond all that Government can attach without recourse to a civil court is the actual plot mortgaged, and on that account it is only natural that revenue officers should be rather chary of giving out loans to persons who are not able to give sufficient security. If this bill is passed, however, and the man happens to be a shopkeeper, we may go to his shop and attach his stock-in-trade or we may sell his shop. Finally we can fall back upon his surety and therefore Government officers will give larger loans to non-agriculturists if this bill is passed into law.

Some of the honourable members, who have asked for the rules to be framed to be put before this Council for its sanction, have argued that Government executive officers may abuse their power. I do not know how many years ago the Agriculturists Loans Act or the Lands Improvements Act was passed—probably in 1883 or 1884—but Government officers have exercised these powers all this time and I am not aware that any cases of improper use of these powers by Government officers have ever been brought to the notice of this Council. Why, in the case of non-agriculturists alone, Government Officers should suddenly develop a desire to abuse their power of recovery, I am unable to understand, and I submit that it is absolutely necessary that this bill should be passed immediately, for the reason that, unless the money is paid over to these people before the end of April, they will have no roof to cover their heads in the next monsoon. On that account alone I think this Council will be well advised, in the interests of the poor persons whose houses have been destroyed, in passing this bill immediately and in not insisting that the rules should be submitted to this House again for sanction. After all, the rules will be on exactly the same pattern as the existing rules under the Lands Improvements Loans Act.

As to the question of interest, I am surprised that honourable members have raised that point, because, at the last session of this Council, Government have stated their policy, and the rate of interest which they will charge, and that rate of interest is entered in the bond under the Transfer of Property Act. Therefore, the question of rate of interest does not arise. It has already been settled and approved by this House. So that, on this ground, I do not see why there should be any delay, and I say if any delay does occur, it would be absolutely fatal to the interests of the people who are chiefly concerned. The present state of affairs is that we have not been able to give money to non-agriculturists, simply because the question at present is before Government as to whether stamp duty should be remitted on the bonds under the Transfer of Property Act. Under the law at present, advances even of Rs. 100 and under are subject to stamp duty, and the legal question has arisen whether it is possible to register these documents before the stamp duty is paid or not. I issued orders only three or four days ago to the effect that, to avoid any delay, these bonds must be registered before stamp duty is paid. I have stretched the law in the hope that Government would grant the necessary exemption. If they do not do so, I propose to apply section 41 of the Stamp Act, by which, in cases of emergency, it is possible to fix the stamp duty after the registration of the documents. If I rather stretched the law in this case on my own personal responsibility, I did it because I considered this matter of vital urgency, and I implore this House not to delay the passing of this bill.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK (Surat District): Sir, I support this bill. I do not think there is any reason why there should be any opposition to this bill. This bill is in conformity with the Agriculturists' Loans Act which is in existence for the last several years, and there is no reason why non-agricultural people should not be placed on the same footing. Moreover, it is not compulsory that any one should go to Government to borrow money. If he can get a loan from the market or from a private sowcar, he is at liberty to do so, but if he cannot get a loan anywhere and he is in distress, and if he comes to Government and borrows money, then Government must have some instrument for the recovery of the money advanced under some Act. Therefore, I think it is in the interest of the borrower that this Act should be passed. Sir, I do not know the other parts of the Presidency, but I know Gujarat. In Gujarat, a non-agriculturist, if he is in a position to get a loan from a sowcar at a cheaper rate of interest, will not go to Government, but there will be many who cannot get any money from anywhere, and if they get it at all it will be at exorbitant rates of interest. In such cases, they will be benefited by coming to Government and borrowing money under the terms of this Act. I therefore support this bill wholeheartedly. But I would suggest one thing to the Honourable the Revenue Member. Clause 5 (1) (b) provides that the loans shall be recovered from the surety (if any) as if they were arrears of land revenue due by him. What I say is that Government should not go against the surety in the first instance. The property of the borrower should be first touched, and if they cannot realise the money from the property of the borrower, then the surety must be touched. It is quite clear that a man in distress will not go to Government unless he is in a very bad economic condition. If he is in a good condition, he will go to a sowcar to get his loan. But if he is in a bad condition, he will hardly be able to find a surety if, in the recovery of the loan, without the property of the borrower being first touched, the surety is to be touched. That is what I think. The object of the bill will not be properly served if this clause is passed as it stands, and the surety is touched in the first instance if the borrower fails to repay. I want to make it clear that if the borrower fails to pay, if he has got any property, that property must be attached, and it is only when he has got no property, or if Government cannot recover it from the property of the borrower that the surety must be touched. That is my contention.

Lastly, it has been suggested by several honourable members,—and I think Government have accepted the principle in the case of the Cotton Markets Bill—that the rules made under this Act should be subject to the control of the Council, and I heartily endorse that suggestion. With these observations I support the bill.

Mr. B. T. DESAI (Bombay City, South): Sir, I oppose this bill. I do not oppose it so far as the powers to grant the loans are concerned, but realy the power of recovery is extraordinary. To say that Government have to recover the loans that belong to Government and therefore these powers are given and they should be included in the bill is no argument, because I think Government is acting in a way which is detrimental to the interests of the public. Because these powers have been incorporated in other Acts is no reason why they should be incorporated in this bill. I think the main effect of the provision about the recovery of loans would be to scare away the borrowers, and, to my mind, this is an indirect way adopted by Government to scare away the people and not to give them proper relief. Government say "We have got the money, 10 lakhs, 20 lakhs, 30 lakhs; here you are; you can take the money, but on our own terms and conditions," and they put such conditions that the people would not like to borrow. If that is so, where is the genuine desire to really assist the people? This is not an ordinary loan that Government are giving; this is not the ordinary revenue that they are realising from the agriculturists. This is an emergency loan. The people have suffered on account of the floods, and Government in showing their sympathy say "We are your saviours; here is the money, but you cannot have that money in any other way except by satisfying these conditions." I think these conditions are strict enough to scare away any genuine borrower, and the effect will be that honest people who are in need of money will be put in the clutches of moneylenders. It will be far better to take money without these conditions from the ordinary moneylenders, because, what does the moneylender do ? He would charge a higher rate of interest, but when the question of recovery comes he goes to court ; the judge may say " Settle this debt, or do this, or do that ; " the borrower may gain time, two years or three years. But under these powers Government would not give him any time at all ; he would be given no chance ; Government would attach his property and exact as much money as possible from the persons whom, they say, they are going to help. I think, Sir, this bill will not serve the purpose for which it is intended. I should like to point out that Government are acting worse than the ordinary Marwadi. The Marwadi may take away interest in the beginning and give out of Rs. 100 only Rs. 60, Rs. 70 or Rs. 80 ; but at the time of recovery, he files a suit, then there is some compromise and instalments are fixed. But here, Government get the mortgage of the whole property, have not to go to a court of law, they can arrest the man or auction his whole property. Is this the way in which we are going to be sympathetic to the persons who have suffered from a great distress ? I think there is no reason why Government should be given more powers than the ordinary creditor to realise these moneys. Sir,.....

Mr. F. G. H. ANDERSON : Sir, may I ask the honourable member whether the powers he has just described are not exactly the same powers as every ordinary creditor has already got ?

Mr. B. T. DESAI : If you have got these powers already, why do you come here. If Government have got the same powers to realise the loan as any ordinary creditor, then I do not think there is any necessity for Government to come before us to get sanction for these stringent powers. I am just pointing out to the House that the bill is contrary to the wishes of the public as well as of the Council, which are to help the people who have suffered from the floods. Certainly, I consider a Marwadi a better man, a more sympathetic man than Government. He may exact a little more money from me—that is a different thing—but at the same time the relief I get at his hands is better and far more preferable to that offered by Government which insists on getting my whole property to be dealt with in any fashion. Certain honourable members have advanced the argument that only those persons who cannot get money outside will go to Government. But what I wish to suggest is that the fact that people are driven to borrow is no reason why stringent conditions should be imposed. You may as well say : " If you want to borrow, accept my conditions. " There is no sense in imposing such conditions as will scare away people who are driven to borrow on account of adversity and distress. This bill will not help Government's purpose because of its stringent conditions. Therefore, this bill ought not to be accepted.

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO (Larkana District) : Sir, I wish to say a few words in connection with this bill. I am indeed surprised to find opposition offered to such a beneficent measure offered by Government to non-agriculturists. It is absurd to suggest that this measure is going to impose any conditions which are more stringent than those offered by money lenders or Marwadis. I would ask those honourable members who advanced that argument to remember that the rate at which Government will advance loans will be only one-fourth or one-fifth of what the money lenders and Marwadis charge either in Sind or outside it. The rate of interest ordinarily charged by money lenders and Marwadis in Sind is 24 per cent. In four years the principal amount will be at least doubled. It has been suggested that if the matter goes to the civil court, the borrowers get the advantage of having to pay in instalments. But may I point out to them that the loans advanced by Government will be payable in such easy instalments in this case that it will not at all be difficult for the borrowers to repay? As honourable members know, Government at present advance loans to agriculturists, and I have known of no instance in which an agriculturist has been compelled to sell his property. The instalments fixed by Government are very easy as also their rates of interest. Such instalments and such rates will be a great boon to the non-agriculturists. Up to now, such loans were confined to agriculturists, and Government are now going to extend the benefit to non-agriculturists. I think the conditions imposed are absolutely necessary, because if those conditions are not there the result will be a man who gets the loan from Government may sell his property and run away with the money, and in that case it will be very difficult for Government to recover the amount. Why should Government risk the taxpayer's money? Unless properly secured the money may be lost altogether. In these circumstances, it is only just and necessary that safeguards must be provided against loss of money which is chiefly contributed by agriculturists. The facilities offered are exactly the same as those offered to agriculturists; we don't wish non-agriculturists to enjoy better privileges than the agriculturists. In these circumstances it is futile to offer any opposition to this measure.

Mr. J. W. SMYTH: Sir, I move a closure.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I accept the closure.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: Mr. President, it is very gratifying to me to see the manner in which this House has welcomed this measure and accepted it as one which is a genuine effort on the part of Government to put itself in a position to afford assistance to people of the non-agriculturist class who may be in distress.

There is one point that I wish strongly to emphasize in connection with this measure and which does not seem to be fully realised by all honourable members, and that is that the provisions of this bill follow as closely as possible the conditions of the existing Acts for loans to agriculturists. They are practically, so far as they can be, identical with those provisions, and also the intentions of Government are exactly the same. The last thing they desire to do is to enforce any harsh measures on borrowers under the bill, but they wish to deal with them reasonably and justly. There is no intention, as the honourable member Mr. Swaminarayan apprehends, on the part of Government to exercise their powers under this bill in a drastic and harsh way. Why should they treat these people whom they desire to assist, harshly and unjustly? I may point out that the provisions regarding recovery follow as closely as possible the existing provision in the Land Improvement Loans Act. If honourable members compare the provisions in clause 5 of the bill with section 7 of the Land Improvement Loans Act, they will see that except for the fact that it is not possible to include the forfeiture of agricultural land among the methods of recovery, the measures for recovery are in every respect identical.

Another point which I wish to emphasize is that this bill —and the remarks apply similarly to the existing Acts—does not enforce any measures for the recovery of loans which are not already provided for by the ordinary Civil Procedure Code. The only difference is that Government in these cases, under the existing Loans Acts and under the proposed bill, are not bound to resort to litigation in order to obtain a decree. The reason for this is perfectly obvious. When Government are making loans of this nature, the question whether or not the money was advanced, or on what conditions it was advanced, are naturally not open to discussion—they are not contentious questions—and therefore Government can go direct and exercise their powers without first having their claim arbitrated upon by a civil court.

Then as regards the method by which they will proceed to effect the recovery of loans, Government will naturally proceed in the first instance against the property of the actual borrower. There is no ground for apprehending that they will act in any unreasonable manner as has been suggested by one or two honourable members. They will, in fact, follow as closely the policy which has been consistently adopted in the administration of the existing acts for loans to agriculturists, regarding which no complaints exist.

The honourable member, the Commissioner of the Northern Division has in his speech emphasised the necessity for the very early passing of this measure, and I hope, therefore, that since the House has already expressed its general approval of the measure, it will pass it into law without further discussion.

Bill read a first time. Question put and carried.

Second reading. The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Sir I move that the Bill IV of 1928 (A bill to provide for the grant of loans by Government to non-agriculturists for the relief of distress or other calamities and for the recovery of such loans) be read a second time.

Question proposed.

Mr. D. A. JANVEKAR (Southern Division): Sir, I move an amendment. It is this :

"The Bill No. IV of 1928 be referred to a Select committee consisting of the Honourable the Member in charge, Moulvi Rafiuddin Ahmad, Rao Saheb D. P. Desai, Mr. J. C. Swaminarayan and Mr. M. S. Khubro, to report within a week and the quorum being 3."

Question proposed.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: Sir, I suggest that in order to facilitate the consideration of this amendment, the first portion of the amendment moved by the honourable member, Mr. Janvekar, be put to the vote, namely whether or not the bill should be referred at all. If that is passed, then we should consider the question of appointing the members of the select committee.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I am agreeable to your suggestion. I will split up the amendment of the honourable member Mr. Janvekar into two parts for the purpose of voting or for taking the opinion of this House. The first part is this:

"That the Bill No. IV of 1928 be referred to a Select Committee."

Question proposed.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: Sir, I oppose the amendment of the honourable mover. The provisions of the bill have practically been taken from the existing Agriculturists' Loans Act. I submit, Sir, that there is absolutely no reason why the provisions which will deal with loans to non-agriculturists should be different from those which are already in operation for agriculturists. Any amendments that honourable members may desire to make in this connection can be discussed here on the floor of this House, and I think it only unnecessary, and undesirable delay will be incurred by referring the bill to a select committee. This is an urgent measure which should be passed with the least possible delay. I, therefore, must press that this bill be passed at the present sitting.

Question put and lost.

Bill read a second time. Question that the bill be read a second time put and carried.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: Sir, I beg to move that the Bill No. IV of 1928 be read clause by clause.

Bill read clause by clause

Clause 1 (Short title) ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 2 (Extent) ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 3 (Purpose for which loans may be granted) ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 4 (Loans already granted to be deemed to have been granted under this Act) ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 5 (Recovery of loans):

(1) All loans granted or deemed to have been granted under this Act, together with all interest (if any) chargeable thereon, and costs (if any) incurred in making or recovering the same shall be recoverable at the discretion of the Collector in any one or more of the following modes, namely:—

(a) from the borrower—as if they were arrears of land revenue due by him;

(b) from his surety (if any)—as if they were arrears of land revenue due by him;

(c) out of the assets left by a deceased borrower or surety or out of the property comprised in the collateral security (if any)—according to the procedure for the realization of land revenue by the sale of a defaulter's moveable or immoveable property other than the land on which that revenue is due;

(d) if the loan is for the benefit of a house, out of such house,—as if it were arrears of land revenue due in respect of the land on which the house stands.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District): Sir, I beg to move the following amendment to clause 5:

In clause 5, after the word "recoverable" in line 3, delete from the words "at the discretion" up to the word "namely" in line 4 and insert instead "by the Collector in the following ways but he shall have recourse to the succeeding way after he has exhausted the preceding one."

Sir, I bring this amendment because the clause at present empowers the Collector to recover the loan from the debtor as well as his sureties and to recover it by any or all of the following modes, that is he may recover it from any one that appears to him to be solvent. Now, every one who is connected with the affairs of the co-operative societies knows that it is very often that the surety has to pay for the borrower. A person in need goes to somebody else and seeing that he is in distress another person comes forward and becomes a surety, because if none comes forward, that person does not get the required loan. So, in order to give him relief, the surety comes forward and for that he has himself to suffer, because when once the date of instalment is fixed by the Collector, it will be very difficult for such borrower to repay it in time, and in case the Collector is unable to recover it easily from the borrower, that is, without using cœrcive measures—it is natural that instead of having such recourse to cœrcing measure he will ask the surety to pay it instead of recovering it directly from the borrower. And thus the surety will be liable to pay an amount which is really due from the borrower in the first instance.

It has been said that the mode of recovery provided for in the present bill is exactly the same as in other existing Loans Acts. But I do not mean to say that any special provision is made in this bill. But the experience of all these Acts goes to show that the persons other than borrowers have at times to suffer though the borrower is set at large. I do not propose to delete any of the powers given to the Collector, but I simply propose that he should recover the amount in the following ways, namely, in the beginning he should recover it from the borrower, and after he has exhausted all his efforts of recovering it from the borrower, then alone he should have recourse to succeeding measures. Even though there are similar provisions in other Acts, it is very difficult to amend them though the difficulty has presented itself to many others. These are measures relating to money matters and it is not so easy to introduce amendments to such measures as in other cases. So, when the opportunity has presented itself now, I think the difficulty felt by so many in this matter should be brought to the notice of this House and I hope the Honourable Member in charge will agree to the proposal and there is no loss to Government in any way. With these words I move the amendment and hope that it will be accepted.

Question proposed.

Mr. BALAK RAM: Sir, I have to oppose this amendment, on several grounds. First of all, the drafting is not very satisfactory. But I suppose this is a point which the honourable mover of the amendment will help us to put right afterwards. Sir, my principal objection to the amendment is of principle. As you know, Sir, very often when a man borrows money from another person, somebody stands surety for him.

[Mr. Balak Ram]

and the transaction is governed by the ordinary law contained in section 128 of the Contract Act to the effect that the liability of a surety is co-extensive with that of the principal debtor unless it is otherwise provided in the contract. That is to say, normally, the liability of the surety and the liability of the principal debtor are identical. It is only in very rare cases that a surety is allowed by the lender to contract himself out of this normal liability and be put in a subsidiary position. The cases are so rare that in all my nineteen years of judicial experience I do not remember having seen any bond or mortgage deed or any other contract in which the surety was allowed to take a subsidiary position in the proposed fashion. Government also advance loans to agriculturists and others under the various Acts and in these cases too the surety is placed in the same position as section 128 of the Contract Act would place him. Of course, Sir, the question of the legal liability of a surety is not always the same as that of the practical liability, because, as the House knows, every creditor makes his first effort to catch the debtor, and it is only when the debtor is insolvent or is absconding or is a budmash placing difficulties in making payments that the creditor goes to the surety, and it is rarely indeed that it becomes necessary to drag the surety to court. Even when he is dragged to court, he has his remedy against the debtor by another suit afterwards. So that, in the long run the surety escapes making payment. But, if the amendment proposed by my honourable friend Mr. Deshpande is accepted we shall have confusion. We shall have persons of substance and no scruples borrowing money and offering as sureties people who are men of straw ; and men of straw offering sureties who are substantial men. In either case the trouble would be that the Government would find it very difficult to recover its dues and there will be unnecessary loss of public money.

Mr. S. A. SARDESAI (Bijapur District) : Sir, I am inclined to oppose the amendment, because it is evident now that the money is primarily recoverable from the debtor and if that is not possible, the money will have to be recovered from the surety. This is a sort of discretion and if Government think that money can be speedily recovered from the debtor, they will take that step and if they think that they can recover this money very speedily from the surety, they will take that step. This gives Government discretion and to do away with that discretion is completely harmful. I think this discretion should always rest with Government so that the debts will be speedily recovered. I oppose the amendment before the House.

(Rao Bahadur B. R. Naik rose).

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I expect in a discussion like this only fresh points should be dealt with. For instance, the honourable member, the last speaker, repeated in another form what the honourable member, the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs, had placed before the House. I would like to ask the honourable member Rao Bahadur Naik to place his point of view before the House if he has anything fresh to say, as otherwise, we would be losing our time over a small matter.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK (Surat District): Sir, only one point. I support the amendment before the House. It is quite fair and proper that the borrower of the debt, as I said while supporting the first reading of the bill, should first be made to repay it. The honourable mover of the amendment, Mr. Deshpande, wants that Government should strain all their energy and resources towards recovering the debt from the borrower or from the property of the borrower and if Government fail to recover, then the surety must be touched. If this amendment is not carried, I say that the whole object of the bill will be frustrated because the borrowers will not be able to get sureties in the proportion they expect to get. The sureties will see, as the honourable member, the Legal Remembrancer said, that if there is a cunning borrower, whether the borrower has any outstanding liabilities already and if he has, then the surety will say "I am not going to stand surety for him because if I do so, Government will catch hold of me." The result will be that no surety will come forward to help the borrower even in time of distress. I think it is being done everywhere that the borrower's property is first seized upon for recovery of the debt and then the surety.

Mr. Syed MUNAWAR: I rise to oppose the amendment for the simple reason that the safeguard provided in this bill is exactly similar to the provisions of the Indian Contract Act and the rules made under the Co-operative Societies Act which lay down the principle that the liability of the surety is co-extensive with that of the principal. If the material change suggested by the honourable mover of the amendment is accepted, a similar change will have to be made in other Acts. I think there is sufficient provision made in order to recover the amount from the borrower or from the property of the borrower and failing that, the surety will be tackled. So, there need be no apprehension as regards recovery in the mind of my honourable friend, the mover of this amendment. Under the circumstances I oppose the amendment.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District): Sir, I would like to ask the honourable mover whether he thinks that his amendment would meet the object he has in view. He wants every succeeding remedy to be enforced before proceeding against the surety. In the clause as it stands assets come after surety and this is what raises doubts in my mind as to whether the amendment proposed by my honourable friend would meet the object he has in view.

Secondly, I want to say that people in this country do not seem to realise their responsibility when they offer to stand surety. I am connected with a bank and I find that when people are asked by borrowers to stand surety, they readily assent and go up to the bank and stand surety for the borrowers. But when the time comes, they say "Oh, why did you ask me to stand surety when I myself am a debtor?" In order to make people realise their responsibility when they agree to stand surety, the liability provided by the General Contract Act must be there. The general rule is that the liability of a person who stands surety is co-extensive with the liability of the principal and there is no reason why the surety should be exempted from that general and wholesome rule.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI (Kaira District): Sir, I think the difficulty pointed out by the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale could be met by making provision at the end of the clause of the following proviso:

"Provided that the recovery shall be made from the assets of the borrower in the first instance."

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale has raised the difficulty that it would frustrate the object for which the amendment of the honourable member Mr. Deshpande is proposed. Do I understand from the honourable member Rao Saheb Desai that he wishes the amendment of the honourable member Mr. Deshpande to go and in its place this proviso which he himself has proposed should be inserted, that is to say, the honourable member opposes the amendment. What he proposes as a remedy is, I suppose, a fresh amendment to the clause. I think that would be out of order at this stage.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: As long as there is no select committee appointed, how are members to put forward their amendments?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I would allow it as a separate amendment.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE: The honourable member the Legal Remembrancer just now said that the wording is not clear. I admit that but I say all that can be put right when the proper time comes. Only the principle is to be discussd just now. That is what I think. I have expressed clearly my point of view.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member Mr. Deshpande has not offered an explanation of the point raised by the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale. I am going a bit out of my way in order to make matters very clear to the House. I would like to bring to the notice of the honourable member that he, in his arguments in support of this amendment, stated that the surety should be dealt with after all the means against the original debtor are exhausted and similarly each remedy must be taken after the previous one is exhausted. The honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale's difficulty is that the surety would be taken first and then resort will be had to the other remedies. What is the explanation to that?

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE: I say the borrower should be taken first, not the surety; (a) reads "from the borrower—as if they were arrears of land revenue due by him." That means that the borrower is to be tackled first.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable mover does not mean that all the steps mentioned here should be exhausted before the surety is approached?

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE: The surety should be approached last.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: That is the point raised by the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale that if that is the object it would be defeated because the surety stands before the other assets as the bill at present stands.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : I beg leave to withdraw my amendment, Sir.

Question put and leave granted.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The second amendment is

"Add a proviso at the end of clause 5, as follows :
'Provided that the recovery shall be made from the assets of the borrower in the first instance'."

Has the honourable member moved it ?

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : Yes, Sir. I have moved it.

Mr. BALAK RAM : Sir, I beg to oppose this amendment also, and for the reasons which I have already given.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : Sir, I have no further remarks to make in this connection except the one that I made previously, that in these cases no asset of the surety should be touched before all the steps have been taken against the assets of the borrower. The assets of the borrower should be touched first, and then those of the surety.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Sir, I strongly oppose this amendment. In the first place, it is not clearly intelligible exactly what it means. Apparently the object which the honourable mover has in view is that the assets of the borrower should be proceeded against first before any action is taken against the surety. But I do not understand how that will work in with sub-clause (d), because, after all, our most important asset will be the house. That might have changed hands. Under sub-clause (d) we still have the right of attaching the house ; that might have changed hands, and it may no longer be the property of the borrower, and yet that is the most important asset we have. In any case, I oppose the amendment on the wider ground that this is introducing an entirely novel principle in the statutory relations between debtor and creditor. It has no precedent that I know of in the existing law, and I see no reason why in connection with this particular measure we should depart from the ordinary statutory law. I therefore strongly oppose the amendment.

Mr. N. B. CHANDRACHUD : One word, Sir.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : No ; the final reply has been given.

Question put and lost.

Clause 5 ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 6 (Power to make rules).

(1) The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the Bombay Government Gazette, make rules to carry out the purpose of this Act.

(2) In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, such rules may be made for the following matters, namely :—

(a) the manner of making applications for loans;

(b) the officers by whom loans may be granted;

(c) the nature of the security, if any, to be taken for the due application and repayment of the money, the rates of interest at which and the conditions under which the loans may be granted and the manner and term of granting loans; and (d) the instalments by which and the mode in which loans shall be repaid.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District) : Sir, I move the following amendment :

" Add sub-clause (3) to clause 6, as follows :—

' The rules so made shall be subject to the condition of previous publication and to the further condition that the rules so made shall be laid on the table of the Bombay Legislative Council for one month previous to the next session of the Council, and shall be liable to be modified or annulled by a resolution of the said Council tabled at such next session '. "

My amendment is in the same terms as amendments which have already been incorporated in various Acts which this Council has passed, for instance the Co-operative Societies Act, the City Municipalities Act, the Cotton Markets Act, etc. They are all Bombay Acts, and this Council has laid down the very wise principle in those Acts that the rules which may have to be made under them should be first of all published in the Gazette and also placed on the table of the Council a month previous to the next session of the Council, and if, in the meantime, at such next session, any resolution is brought by any member proposing any modification or change, and passed, that should be incorporated in the rules. That seems to me to be a very sound principle. If we look to the history of legislation in England, we shall see that all statutes were self-contained. The power that was to be given to the executive was clearly laid down in the statute itself. But in course of time the statutory provisions became so cumbrous that it was impossible to have all the various details incorporated into a particular Act. Hence it was that the system of making provision in the enactment by which a rule-making power was given to the executive Government came to be observed, in order to save time. No doubt, the rules that are made may ordinarily be such as are unobjectionable, but occasions have arisen, in my own experience, when we have found that the rules which are made by the executive department are, in some cases, such that they are faulty, and we have met with difficulties. It is for this reason that there was an innovation introduced some time ago about previous publication. Previous publication, as defined in the General Clauses Act, means that the rules should be published in the Government Gazette. But mere publication in the Government Gazette, we all know, is not noticed by the generality of the people, and our attention is not drawn to the particular rules. Hence it is that this further innovation of placing the rules on the table of the Council before the next session has been very properly introduced, and I think the same precaution may be taken in the matter of the present legislation. It may be said perhaps that it is a very urgent matter and the rules may be delayed, but there is a clause giving retrospective effect to this legislation. The loans which have been already advanced and which will be advanced will be legalised by the Act and the rules that will be framed which will also have retrospective effect. So, I do not think that any argument about the delay in the publication of the rules will stand in the way of my amendment. For these reasons I move my amendment.

Question proposed.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Sir, I oppose this amendment for the following reasons. If honourable members will refer to the matters which will be the subject of rules under the Act, they will see that they include such questions as the officers by whom loans may be granted, the nature of the security, if any, to be taken for the due application and repayment of the money, the rate of interest at which and the conditions under which the loans may be granted and the manner and term of granting loans. These, I submit, are matters which must be left to the executive government to deal with. It would be most inadvisable that this House should have, for instance, the power of determining the rate of interest at which Government will give loans. That is essentially a matter for the executive government to deal with; it cannot be a question for decision and control by this House. I submit therefore that there are strong reasons for objecting to this amendment, which provides that the House can modify, to any extent to which it desires, these rules. I take special exception to this amendment in respect of the question of the rate of interest, which is a matter which must be decided by Government. I may remind honourable members that the rules made for loans granted to agriculturists have for many years been made by Government without the control of the Legislative Council, and I am not aware that there has ever been any complaint as to these rules being in any way objectionable, unreasonable or involving undue hardship on borrowers. And there is no reason to suppose that Government are going to make rules entirely different in the case of loans to non-agriculturists; the rules will naturally follow the rules which already govern loans to agriculturists.

A point which I wish to bring forward especially is that Government have given the most satisfactory evidence of their desire to be as lenient as possible in the administration of these loans in the terms of the reconstruction loans which I announced in the September session of the House. Honourable members will remember that there was special provision to exempt those loans from interest in certain cases and to make partial exemptions from interest or to provide a lower rate of interest than that charged for ordinary tagavi loans. That should surely be sufficient to remove from the minds of the honourable members of this House any apprehension that Government are going to administer the rules unduly harshly. I therefore ask the House not to accept the amendment.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD (Central Division): I am very sorry, Sir, that when my honourable friend the Mahomedan member for Bijapur District asked for a select committee, the Honourable the Revenue Member opposed it. It is only in urgent and exceptional cases in which you, Sir, are authorised to dispense with the usual rule. We have had no opportunity of discussing the details of this bill. My honourable friend Rao Bahadur Kale proposes an amendment that a provision similar to that incorporated in many Acts of this legislature should be inserted, viz., that the proposed rules should be placed before the Council. He has mentioned the several enactments in which that provision has been made and I need not repeat them. In reply to him the Honourable the Revenue Member says: "Why do you suspect the Government?"

[Moulvi Rafiuddin Ahmad]

I may put the same question to him. If Government are not afraid of anything, why do they not place the rules before the House? If the rules are reasonable, there will be no harm done to Government by placing them before the House. With regard to the urgency, the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale has already pointed out that there is a provision that this enactment is to be retrospective. Then, where is the difficulty? Government are not treating this side of the House in a reasonable manner by saying: "Whatever we do will be all right, and you need not doubt our word." When we have agreed to pass this legislation, at once a very moderate amendment like that should not be opposed. I think it is contrary to the statement of the Honourable the Leader of the House that Government are prepared to meet the wishes of this House in every reasonable way. I think they have taken up an unreasonable attitude and they would be better advised to stick to the spirit of the statement of the Leader of the House and accept this amendment.

Mr. N. B. CHANDRACHUD (Poona City): Sir, it is a matter of regret that even such a modest and moderate amendment should not be accepted by Government. The reason given is that the executive must have the power of making rules as to how the money should be distributed and to whom it should be distributed. May I ask to whom does the money belong? Are the executive advancing money from their own pockets? They are advancing public money. How can they then say that the public should have no voice. If the money belonged to a private gentleman, then I can understand that a man who wants that money should submit to his conditions. But here Government is advancing public money, and yet say: "We will advance it as we like, and the public should have nothing to do with how we do it." Some of the honourable members in opposing this bill rightly threw a hint that Government have not quite laudable motives in bringing forward this bill. If Government do not accept this moderate amendment, I say those honourable members will be justified in making that suggestion. If Government make the rule in such manner as to make it impossible for people to take the loans, what is the good of this bill? Supposing they say that they want ten securities or that the kind of security offered should be this property or that, or that the interest should be 12 per cent. or that the loan should be repayable in one year or two, or if the conditions are too hard to make it advisable for the people to go in for their loans, then this legislation will be absolutely useless. As I have already said, the result of this legislation will depend upon the rules and the spirit in which those rules are made and administered. If you make the rules harsh, then this legislation will be absolutely useless. Therefore, I suggest to Government that they should accept this moderate and modest amendment, so that the Council may have an opportunity of knowing what the rules are. It is no use leaving the making of the rules entirely to the executive. With these remarks I support the amendment.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI (Belgaum District): Sir, I rise to support the amendment so ably moved by my honourable friend, Rao Bahadur Kale. We are told by the honourable mover of the bill that the rules made already under certain enactments have been just and that no complaints have been received. In regard to that statement, Sir, I would like to say that in the case of Primary Education Act, when the rules were framed and published for criticism, I believe more than one thousand amendments were sent in and we know the fate of those amendments. Not a single amendment was accepted. We have therefore strong reasons to believe that once the power has been given to the Executive for framing rules without bringing them before the Council, we do not know whether they will frame those rules with the same view as that of this House.

With regard to the argument of fixing the interest on loans, if it was thought that it was very important, Government ought to have incorporated it in the Statute itself. Then that question would have come before the House for discussion. Government should know that in the matter of fixing the interest this House is equally responsible as Government. We are the representatives of the people and we are here to watch the financial interest. Government should not be anxious that we shall be opposed to any reasonable rate of interest. The principle has already been admitted on more than one occasion that this House has the right of having the rules submitted to the House for approval and the Government will not be justified in going back upon that policy. I, therefore, support the amendment of my honourable friend Mr. Rao Bahadur Kale.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District): Sir, the honourable mover of the bill tells us that no complaints have so far been received as regards the framing of the rules for any enactment of this nature. I can cite an instance for the information of the honourable member. In respect of rules framed for the Irrigation Act, I applied to His Excellency the Governor that some modifications were necessary and therefore I would like to bring some amendments in that connection. But I am sorry to state, Sir, that I was not allowed to do so. I say that it is the right of this House to frame rules or to sanction the rules that are framed. Consequently, this power should not be given in the hands of the executive. I therefore support this amendment.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI: Sir, I move for a closure.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I accept the closure.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Sir, may I address the House a few words?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Yes. The Honourable member should be very brief.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Sir, what I understand from the discussion that has taken place just now is this. I find that the objection of the honourable members is not really about the rule making powers of the Government, but their objection is that these rules should not be framed and passed without being placed before this honourable House. I may say, Sir, that the power of examining rules has been given to this House on some occasions before. I see that the House is a little bit nervous that if they do not ask for this right there will perhaps be a breach of the practice which they would like to see established. That is what is in the mind of this House just now as I understand it.

I will now ask the honourable members to refer to clause 6 as it stands. What does it say ? It says :

"the rules may be made for the following matters, namely :—
(a) the manner of making applications for loans ; "

Government are not at all keen on making any special rules for the purpose of making any applications for loans. Applications have already been made and the manner in which they are to be made is simple. The next clause (b) says :

"(b) the officers by whom loans may be granted. "

This power is inherently that of Government.....

An Honourable Member : Why ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : It is the right of Government. Government may depute any person they like. They may depute a Collector or any other person. No special powers are required. For that purpose no rules are necessary at all.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : May I know whether the payments of loans will be by cheques on banks ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : What have cheques to do with this ? I do not understand what this has to do with an Officer, A, B or C, whom the Government may appoint. Therefore, you will see that so far as this clause is concerned neither is any power required by Government nor are any rules necessary for this purpose. Let us now come to clause (c). It says :

"(c) the nature of the security, if any, to be taken for the due application and repayment of the money, the rate of interest at which and the conditions under which the loans may be granted and the manner and term of granting loans, "

As regards this clause, I submit, Sir, that the conditions and terms of payment and also the rate of interest have all been announced publicly and they have been approved by the House. So also about the instalment by which loans are to be repaid, it has already been determined. House is well aware that various amounts of loans have already been granted to various parties ; honourable members are also aware about their terms. Besides the power of determining these must remain with Government alone and cannot be left to be exercised by any one else.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I hope the Honourable the Leader of the House will finish his remarks soon. I have allowed him to speak as a special case after I have accepted the closure.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Thank you, Sir. If the House still thinks that their demand is vital then Government will have no objection to consider the suggestion of Mr. Jairamdas Daulatram.....

An Honourable MEMBER : Why not the amendment ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : No, we cannot accept the amendment. Our position is this. If we accept the amendment, there is likely to be a conflict. Supposing the rules are framed in accordance with the terms of loans we have already accepted, and if in the July session of this Council, those terms are altered, then the position becomes impossible.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM : Is it not that the rules so framed would refer to the relief for people in other districts in accordance with my suggestion ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : On that account I propose that we should consider your suggestion so that no rules will be made in accordance with your suggestion. But there is otherwise chance of an absolute deadlock, which we wish to avoid.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District) : I must say, Sir, that the honourable member is taking up the position as if the action that has been taken by the executive Government in the matter of Gujarat floods is all that is to be covered by this Act. We are prepared to justify that action and add a proviso that whatever has been done in regard to the Gujarat and Sind floods heretofore shall be final and is not subject to being re-opened. But this is a permanent enactment which you are going to enact for the future distress that may occur, and there must be certain rules which must govern any executive action to be taken. Of course, as a lawyer.....

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : I am not a lawyer, Sir.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : He is not one, I am sorry. As a practising lawyer can appreciate, an Act without any rules will be really not capable of being worked, and the things which are mentioned here are merely specimens. The rules may be numerous and may provide for many things. Among other things some things are mentioned here. There must be some rules laid down, and all that this House is anxious is that those rules should be before us. We are not in any way encroaching upon the discretion of the executive officers when the rules are once made and approved by us. The honourable member seems to think that we are going to usurp the power of the executive. Nothing of the kind. The executive power is left to the executive. But the rules must be there, and what those rules are going to be by which the executive officers are to be guided, should be known to the House and approved by them. Even in fixing a rate of interest, it may be 2 per cent. it may be 3 per cent. or it may be anything. We are now required to give a blank cheque to executive officers to give even 12 per cent. Who knows ? Our only object therefore is to lay down the principles which are to guide the various executive officers of Government to carry out those provisions. Rules are nothing but provisions of law. But rules, when once made, have the effect of law. I do submit, Mr. President, that that is a fundamental principle, and if in the past the councils did not ask that such rules should be always laid before them, that was because the Councils were not representative. Now that the Councils are fully representative, we insist on this, but we shall not be unreasonable. Why should the executive officers be so nervous as to think that the honourable members of this House will be so unreasonable as to reject and disapprove the rules which are really in the interest of the public and which are reasonable ? I think we must trust the executive officers to carry out the rules in the proper spirit and with discretion, once the rules are there. Even in the past, I ask my honourable friends opposite, in regard to the rules under the three enactments which we have hitherto passed and which were placed before this House for confirmation, were there any unreasonable suggestions or amendments put forward by this House ? I do submit, Sir, that the honourable members on the opposite side will be really well advised to accept my suggestion, and if the fears are that whatever has been done in regard to the Gujarat flood and the Sind flood may come up for further criticism, I submit that we are prepared to even accept a clause that those rules which have already been carried into effect with regard to these floods need not be regarded as subject to any revision. Any safeguard of that kind we are prepared for.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : All loans are not yet given in regard to these floods ; some are to be given during this year.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : What I was saying was that if Government have made certain rules for dealing with these two specific cases in the past, and if they are afraid of the action taken by Government under them being questioned by the Council, a provision can be made that whatever rules have been made hitherto for the purpose of dealing with the Gujarat and Sind floods may be outside these rules, and these rules may be applied to future measures or cases. I have no objection to that. The honourable member, the Legal Remembrancer, may take care to safeguard the action already taken. As a result of past experience, I do submit that honourable members of Government will see their way to accede to this amendment without going to any division.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : It will take me some time to reply ; therefore, I suggest it may be taken up on Monday.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Before we adjourn to-day, I should like to tell the House the order in which we will take business on Monday. On Monday this bill will be continued directly we meet. After this bill is disposed of, the demands for supplementary grants will be taken up.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The House is adjourned till 1 o'clock on Monday, the 27th February 1928.

BOMBAY : PRINTED AT THE GOVERNMENT CENTRAL PRESS.

The Honourable the PRESIENT : Order, order. Questions.

DISTRICT LOCAL BOARD, THANA : ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICER

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that Mr. Gatne who was selected as the school board administrative officer of Thana by the district local board had been working under the Poona City Municipality previous to his selection by the district local board ;

(b) whether it is a fact that Government have approved of the selection of the district local board ;

(c) whether the fact that Mr. Gatne's work under the Poona City Municipality was not found satisfactory was brought to the notice of Government ;

(d) whether it is a fact that the Poona City Municipal School Board passed a resolution on his application for the post of the administrative officer of the said municipality to the effect that his application deserved no consideration as in the opinion of the said board he was found unfit even for the post of a supervisor ;

(e) whether at the time of according approval to his selection Government had taken into consideration the opinion of the Chairman, City Municipal School Board, Poona, under whom Mr. Gatne had worked.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a), (b) and (c) Yes.

(d) Yes, but the resolution was passed after the question of his appointment by the School Board of the District Local Board, Thana, was raised.

(e) Yes.

DISTRICT LOCAL BOARD, THANA : ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICER

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that the District Local Board, Thana, had repeatedly recommended Mr. Vedak, the present incumbent of the post of administrative officer and whose services have been offered to the Board by Government for three years and the offer has been accepted by the school board ;

(b) whether Government were aware that the work of the school board was likely to suffer by according approval to the selection of Mr. Gatne who was not recommended by the school board ;

(c) whether it is a fact that the Director of Public Instruction also considered Mr. Gatne to be inferior to Mr. Vedak ;

(d) whether there are any cases in which Government withheld their approval to the local authority's selection of a person recommended by the school board ; if so, to name them with reasons ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) The Thana District Local Board did not favour the appointment of Mr. Vedak.

(b) No.

(c) Government regret that they are unable to supply the information required as the opinions of their officers are meant for the information of Government only.

(d) Government refused to accord approval to the appointment of Mr. Betgeri as School Board Administrative Officer, District Local Board, Dharwar. The reason for refusal was that Government considered the qualifications of Mr. Betgeri inadequate for the post to which it was proposed to appoint him.

SCHOOL BOARD, SATARA : ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICER

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware that by resolution No. 3651, Educational Department, dated 1st June 1926, they approved of the rules for appointment of an Administrative Officer by the School Board, Satara ;

(b) whether it is a fact that the name of a qualified candidate appointed according to rule 2 of the Rules by the local authority, Satara, on the recommendation of the school board, Satara, was submitted for the approval of Government under section 9 (1) of the Bombay Act IV of 1923 ;

(c) whether it is a fact that Government refused approval, and if so, the reason for such refusal ;

(d) whether they are aware that the ground for refusal of approval is not covered by the sanctioned rules ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) Yes.

(b) Yes.

(c) Yes. The candidate selected by the District Local Board was considered too inexperienced to hold a post of such importance as that of a School Board Administrative Officer of a District Local Board.

(d) No. The sanctioned rules only lay down that no one shall be appointed as Administrative Officer unless he possesses certain qualifications. It does not follow that any one possessing these qualifications must be accepted by Government as suitable when they have reason to believe that for lack of experience or any other cause he is not suitable.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : What was the reason of Government's sanction ? Was it lack of educational qualifications or a matter of administrative convenience ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: The lack of necessary experience.

BRIDGES IN KAIRA DISTRICT

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI (Kaira District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) how many bridges have been constructed from provincial funds in the Kaira District over the rivers in that district;

(b) whether it is a fact that the existing bridges were constructed by the district local board;

(c) whether they intend to construct bridges over the rivers Vatrak, Shedhi and Mohor;

(d) whether it is a fact that the want of a bridge over the river Vatrak completely isolated the Collector's headquarters from Ahmedabad and the Khari cut villages from the rest of the district during the recent floods?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: (a) Seven.

(b) Out of the remaining 15 bridges, 14 were built by the District Local Board and one, it is understood, from Municipal Funds.

(c) The question of constructing a high level causeway over the Vatrak river is under the consideration of Government. Government do not propose constructing bridges across the Mohor River and the Shedi which are already provided with bridges at Kapadwanj, Dakor, Belodra and Kaira.

(d) Yes; the construction of the proposed high-level causeway over the Vatrak River will meet this difficulty.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI: Do Government realise that the construction of a bridge over the river Vatrak will add to the ordinary conveniences of the people?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: I would refer the honourable member to my honourable colleague, the Minister for Public Works and Local Self-Government.

BANKOT PORT: FERRY STEAMERS

Mr. HAJI IBRAHIM HAJI MAHOMED JITEKAR (Southern Division): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware of the inconveniences caused to the people of Bankot and adjoining villages by coasting steamers not touching at the port of Bankot in the Ratnagiri district;

(b) the reasons why the port of Bankot has been abandoned by the ferry steamers;

(c) whether representations have been made by the people to the Collector of the district and the Collector of Salt Revenue in this connection;

(d) if so, what replies have been given and what actions have been taken in the matter ;

(e) whether there is any accumulation of silt and sand offering an impediment to the calling of the ferry steamers at the port ;

(f) what would be the cost of removing the silt and sand ;

(g) whether it is a fact that the people concerned are willing to submit to an additional impost of Landing and Wharfage fee as a contribution towards expenditure for the removal of silt and sand ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Yes.

(b) The port of Bankot has been abandoned by coasting steamers since 1905 owing to the want of sufficient water at the bar at the entrance of the river at all stages of the tide.

(c) Yes, to the Collector of Salt Revenue.

(d) After a re-survey of the creek had been carried out at a cost of Rs. 27,519-4-7, and the opinion of the Royal Indian Marine Survey Officer had been obtained, the people of Bankot were informed that the entrance to the creek is too dangerous for Bankot to be used as a port of call after dark and that even by day the entrance is only safe for coasting steamers up to half tide spring and neap alike. Orders were accordingly issued prohibiting steamers from calling there after sunset and the masters of coasting steamers were warned through their respective steamers companies of the dangers of attempting to make the port by day.

(e) Yes.

(f) The total cost including the purchase price of a suction hopper dredger is estimated to amount to nearly Rs. 1½ lakhs or Rs. 1,100 per diem. It is reported that dredging even at such a prohibitive expense would only give temporary relief and would have to be repeated at least once a year or supplemented by expensive training works, the utility of which is not certain.

(g) No ; but even if the people concerned were to pay the additional fee the amounts so collected would not suffice to cover a day's working cost of a dredger.

BHIMA RIVER BRIDGE : OWNERSHIP

Mr. SYED MUNAWAR on behalf of Mr. S. C. JOSHI : Will Government be pleased to state whether the property in the Bhima river bridge is vested in Government or Barsi Light Railway Company ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : In the Barsi Light Railway Company.

PROVIDENT FUND FOR SUBORDINATES

Mr. SYED MUNAWAR on behalf of Mr. S. C. JOSHI : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they have under consideration the scheme of introducing a scheme of Provident Fund in lieu of pension for their subordinates and inferior staff ;

(b) if not, what are their reasons for not introducing such a scheme ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL V. MEHTA : (a) Yes.

(b) Does not arise.

DECCAN AGRICULTURISTS' RELIEF ACT : ARTHUR-BODUS COMMITTEE REPORT

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) when the report of the Arthur-Bodus Committee appointed by them to revise the Deccan Agriculturists' Relief Act was received by them ;

(b) what action, if any, they have taken upon the same and upon the questions raised and statements made in this Council from time to time ;

(c) whether their attention has been drawn to the Full Bench decision of the Bombay High Court in the case of Maneklal vs. Mahipatram, reported at page 1109 of Volume XXIX of the Bombay Law Reporter and particularly the observation of Mr. Justice Crump at page 1116, viz.—

" Since the enactment of Usurious Loans Act, X of 1918, much of the Deccan Agriculturists' Relief Act is out of date, but until the legislature can find time or inclination to deal with the existing chaos the courts must make the best of it."

(d) whether they intend taking steps for amending or repealing that Act at an early date ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : (a) 1912.

(b) The Honourable Member is referred to the reply given to the Honourable Member Mr. N. R. Gunjal printed at page 293 of the Bombay Legislative Council Debates, Volume XVII. At the present time proposals for the amendment of the Usurious Loans Act are under consideration.

(c) Yes.

(d) Yes, but the question of the best way to proceed is very difficult and has been the subject of much correspondence.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : I am referred to the reply given to the honourable member Mr. Gunjal but there is no indication of what proposals are under foot in regard to the matter.

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : That answer gave the position as it was on the date on which it was prepared. The action taken since that date is as stated in the last sentence of the answer to (b) of the present question, viz., " at the present time proposals for the amendment of the Usurious Loans Act are under consideration ."

RECORD-OF-RIGHTS : ENTRY OF KABRISTAN LANDS, AHMEDABAD

Khan Saheb A. M. MANSURI (Ahmedabad and Surat Cities) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the number of 'Kabristans,' Rozas, Durgahs, and mausoleums in the city and suburbs of Ahmedabad ;

(b) whether it is a fact that in a good many cases the land belonging to the said Kabristans, Rozas, Durgahs and mausoleums have been wrongly put down as Kharaba land in the record-of-rights by the talatis ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) In Ahmedabad City there are 551 properties containing kabristans, rozas, durgahs and mausoleums. Of these, 483 have been entered in the Government records as revenue-free Wakaf or Dharmada grants, and the remaining 68 properties have been entered as Government properties containing graves.

In the suburbs there are 89 properties containing kabristans, etc. Of these 37 have been entered in the Record-of-Rights as Dewasthan inam, 2 as Personal inam and the remaining 52 as Government Kharaba land.

(b) Government are not so aware.

Khan Saheb A. M. MANSURI : Is it a fact that after the talatis wrongly put down these kabrastans as kharabis, Government refused to entertain the right of Muslims ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : If the honourable member will refer to the reply to (b), he will see that Government do not admit that there has been any wrong recording by the talatis.

FIRST CLASS MAGISTRATE : HONAVAR

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District) : Will Government be pleased to state :—

(a) the number of cases sent by the local Police to the present Mamlatdar of Honavar for trial in his capacity first as a Magistrate II Class and then as a Magistrate First Class from the time he took charge of the office of Mamlatdar there till the end of May 1927 ;

(b) the number of cases in which he discharged, acquitted and convicted the accused respectively up to the end of May 1927 ;

(c) after how many years' service as Second Class Magistrate he was made a First Class Magistrate ;

(d) the reasons which led them to make him a First Class Magistrate so soon ;

(e) whether it is a fact that the District Superintendent of Police took the initiative in making the Mamlatdar of Honavar a First Class Magistrate ; if not, on whose initiative he was recommended to be made a First Class Magistrate ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: (a) 16 cases had been sent by the police for trial to Mr. Koundinya, Mamlatdar of Honavar, up to the end of May 1927, all while he was a Second Class Magistrate.

(b) 1, 0 and 15 respectively.

(c) One year.

(d) He was considered to have gained sufficient experience as a Magistrate of the Second Class and to be fit to exercise higher powers.

(e) This appointment was made on the recommendation of the District Magistrate, Kanara, and the Commissioner, Southern Division. The District Superintendent of Police brought to the notice of the District Magistrate the inconvenience caused to both the Police and the public by the absence of a First Class Magistrate from Honavar, where there had always been one until recently.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM: With reference to (b), was not the case in which there was a discharge, tried by the shirastedar of the magistrate and not by the magistrate himself ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: These are the facts as sent to us by the local officers. I am afraid I have not got the dates of all the cases and I cannot say who tried the particular case to which my honourable friend refers.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM: Are Government aware that this magistrate only delivered the judgment and did not conduct the case ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: Government are not aware of that.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM: With regard to (d), is there any first class magistrate at Kumpta which is close to Honawar ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: There may be, but the fact remains that it is very inconvenient not to have a first class magistrate at a place of the importance of Honawar.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM: Did not the District Superintendent of Police suggest that first class powers should be given to the magistrate after he conducted and convicted the accused in all these fifteen cases ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: The question of dates does not seem to arise. The appointment was made on the recommendation of the District Magistrate and the Commissioner.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM: But after he conducted and convicted all these fifteen cases ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: It is not improbable, but the convictions may have been quite proper, not wrong in themselves.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM: I want to know whether it is a fact or not.

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: Very probably.

HINDU MOSLEM TENSION: GODHRA

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that a Round Table Conference of Hindus and Muhammadans was called at the Collector's Bungalow at Godhra on the 19th September 1927 to discuss the question of the Hindu Moslem tension at Godhra and met under the Presidentship of Mr. H. V. Braham, the Collector of Panch Mahals and discussed the question for more than 3 hours;

(b) whether it is a fact that in the Round Table Conference the Hindu leaders showed their desire to stop music before the mosques at the time of their prayer to please their Muhammadan brothers if they fix and declare proper time of their prayer;

(c) whether it is a fact that the Muhammadans present said that all 24 hours of the day are their prayer hours and the Hindus should not play music before the mosques at all;

(d) whether it is a fact that the Hindus considered this demand of the Muhammadans of Godhra quite unreasonable and said that they are not going to yield on unreasonable terms and that that situation would remain as it was and the procedure in existence regarding the question of music would remain;

(e) whether it is a fact that this Round Table Conference was postponed for the 27th September 1927 or so without settling any points with the clear understanding that the leaders of both the communities should see that nothing unpleasant happened at least up to the date of the postponed conference;

(f) whether they are aware that after the Round Table Conference of the 19th September, on the evening of the 20th September 1927 at about 7 p.m. one Mr. Vallavdas Muljibhai Patel a Shrimali Bania was assaulted and beaten by Ghanchis in Godhra;

(g) whether the Police have been able to find out the culprit;

(h) whether it is a fact that on 21st September 1927 one Mr. Mahasukhbhai Bapuji a Bania merchant of Adadra in Kalol Taluka was assaulted and beaten by Ghanchis in broad day-light on a public road near the Dadi building at Godhra?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: (a) The District Magistrate of the Panch Mahals invited the leading members of both communities to meet him in his office on the day mentioned. The discussion lasted several hours.

(b), (c), (d) and (e) The Honourable Member will admit that it would not be in the public interest to disclose any statements made at informal meetings arranged by district officers with a view to reconciling conflicting parties.

(f) and (g) The assault in question took place, and the case was registered by the Police under section 147, I.P.C. The complainant was unable to identify his assailants and the case was classed as "undetected."

(h) No such complaint has been lodged with the Police or referred to the Police by any Magistrate.

INFLAMMATORY SPEECHES BY MOULVIS

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware that a Northern Indian Muhammadan Moulvi had come to Godhra and delivered inflammatory speeches in the month of September;

(b) whether it is a fact that this Moulvi was preaching to Muhammadans to beat Hindus and kill them if they do not embrace Islam on a public road at Godhra in the month of August or September 1927 and was stopped by the Godhra City Sub-Inspector of Police and was asked to go away from that place;

(c) whether the Godhra City Sub-Inspector of Police reported to the District Superintendent of Police the fact that such a Moulvi has come and delivered such speeches in the city?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: (a), (b) and (c) No.

PAY OF PRIMARY TEACHERS: AHMEDABAD DISTRICT

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN on behalf of Mr. G. I. PATEL (Ahmedabad Millowners' Association): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that some of the primary teachers serving in the local board schools in the Ahmedabad District have not received their pay for about 11 months;

(b) if so, the number of men affected and the total amount due to them till 1927 (June ending);

(c) whether poor teachers who are practically starving will receive their dues during the current year;

(d) whether they intend to move in this matter immediately with a view to settle the disputes, if any, and to accord justice to the suffering teachers?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: (a) No, the teachers have since been paid.

(b), (c) and (d) Do not arise.

PENSIONS: PAYMENT AT NASIK

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware that pensioners at Nasik, drawing pensions at the Nasik Treasury, from Rs. 41 and above, are paid their pensions on the 7th of each month;

(b) whether they are aware that these pensioners belong to a class of society, who are expected to make payments on account of house-rent, education of their children, etc., much earlier than that date;

(c) if so, whether they are aware that these pensioners are put to considerable inconvenience on account of the delay in getting their pensions?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: The attention of the honourable member is invited to the answer given to question put by Mr. S. S. Dev and printed at page 430 of Volume XVIII of the Bombay Legislative Council Debates.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN: May I point out that the answer given to Mr. Dev's question does not cover the whole of my point, particularly part (b) of the question and part (c) also partially ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: The whole question was carefully considered, as I stated in reply to the question of Mr. Dev, and I do not think that any alteration can now be made which will not cause greater inconvenience than is being caused at present.

DRINKING WATER: DELASA

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK on behalf of Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI (Surat District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether in reply to my question printed on page 204, dated 19th July 1927, they have stated that the people of Delasa, taluka Olpad, district Surat, experienced some difficulty owing to the wells in the village having become useless for drinking purposes ;

(b) whether they have admitted that the people of this village had to walk about half a mile to get water for drinking purposes ;

(c) whether they admitted that the people of the village expressed their willingness to contribute to the expenditure that may have to be incurred for boring purposes ;

(d) whether Government realise their responsibility to the village people for making arrangements for drinking water ;

(e) if so, what steps Government intend to take to remove this grievance of the village people ?

Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: (a), (b) and (c) Yes.

(d) The provision of village water supply is a function of the District Local Boards, which are subsidised by Government for the purpose. Government have undertaken to make a contribution towards the cost of water supply up to a maximum of two-thirds of the expenditure. The actual amount of the grant is determined by the Collector according to the circumstances of each case.

(e) One power boring machine was sent to Delasa village and boring was carried out to a depth of 148 ft., but as the water found was brackish, further work was stopped at the instance of the President, District Local Board, Surat.

PRINCIPAL, GUJARAT COLLEGE, AND PRINCE OF DHARAMPUR

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the Principal of the Gujarat College is keeping the Prince of Dharampur, a student of the B.A. class in his bungalow and charging him Rs. 400 (Rupees four hundred) per month for his food, lodging, etc., since the month of July 1927 ;

(b) if the answer to (a) is in the affirmative whether the principal had obtained the permission of the head of the department or the Government for doing this ;

(c) if the answer to (b) is in the negative, what steps Government propose to take in the matter ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) Yes. The arrangement is a private one with which Government are not concerned.

(b) The Director of Public Instruction was informed of the arrangements made. He did not, however, consider that his permission was required.

(c) In view of the reply given to (b) this question does not arise.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : The bungalow that is used for the purpose of this arrangement is the property of Government. It is a Government bungalow. How is it that Government are not concerned in this arrangement ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : It is entirely a private arrangement, and the principal occupies the bungalow free of rent.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : Are Government servants occupying rent-free Government quarters allowed to sublet their bungalows ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : There is no sub-letting in this case.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : May I ask if the department has no rules with regard to private arrangements of this sort by officers of colleges ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I do not think there are any rules.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : Is it not a fact that out of this amount of Rs. 400 something is taken as rent for the rooms occupied by the Kumar ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I do not know.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Am I to take it that any officer of the Educational Department is at liberty to make private arrangements for as many students as he likes and charge them as much as he likes for private tuition ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : This is only arrangement for boarding.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : It is boarding and tuition ? I want to know whether any officer of the Educational Department is at liberty to take in students for tuition and as lodgers ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : There is no case in this matter of the person concerned being taken in for tuition.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : Does the Honourable Minister mean that the principal is simply keeping a lodging and boarding house and not looking after the Kumar's education ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: I think any schoolmaster is entitled to have students staying with him.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV: Does not the question of tuition come in there ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: I do not think it comes in.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: Even in cases of pure residence, I want to know whether it is not a fact that if students remain with teachers it creates a wrong inference as to partiality in the minds of the public, and therefore, is it not a fact that the department has rules with regard to the residence of students with professors ? If the Honourable Minister says there are no rules, I will accept his word.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: There are no rules, so far as I know.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM: May I know whether the principals of colleges are prohibited from keeping any students for boarding, lodging or tuition purposes ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: There is no such prohibition.

Mr. J. B. DESAI: Has not the principal passed a receipt for rent among other things ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: I want notice of that question.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: The principal is occupying a Government bungalow free of rent. Then, are all Government servants occupying Government bungalows free of rent permitted to take in lodgers and make a profit out of the arrangement.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: There is no rule, so far as I am aware, prohibiting them from doing so.

Dr. M. K. DIXIT: Are Government officers getting bungalows free of rent allowed to profiteer ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: I do not think there is any case of profiteering here.

Mr. S. K. BOLE: Are these students taken as free lodgers ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: For boarding they are charged.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM: May I know how much of this sum of Rs. 400 is allotted for lodging ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: I cannot differentiate.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM: The question is asked about boarding and lodging both. At least a farthing of it must go for lodging. Unless that was so, the question could not be asked.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV: Are not Rs. 400 a month for boarding excessive ?

Mr. J. B. DESAI: (Asked a supplementary question which was inaudible).

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. Next question.

FLOODS AT RAMGADH: DAMAGE AND RELIEF

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether Ramgadh, a para of Chekhla in Sanand Mahal of Ahmedabad District, was almost completely destroyed by floods in July 1927;

(b) the amount of tagavi advanced by Government to the residents of the said para Ramgadh;

(c) the amount of housing loan given to them for the reconstruction of their houses?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: (a) Some 40 houses collapsed and 10 houses were damaged in the floods.

(b) Rs. 305-0-0 as tagai for kharif seed.

(c) Rs. 3,000 have been proposed to be advanced for the purpose.

RAILWAY PROJECT: AHMEDABAD-KAPADVANJ

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether a regular survey was made to construct a railway line between Ahmedabad and Kapadwanj via Nawda-Anasan-Pardhol-Vehelal Kadadra-Kothi-Bahial-Madadra-Atarsumba by B. B. & C. I. Railway;

(b) whether traffic statistics were obtained by B. B. & C. I. Railway for that line;

(c) if the answers to (a) and (b) be in the affirmative, what are the reasons for suddenly abandoning that route and of ordering another survey via Asarva-Sahijpur Singarva-Kanbha-Kuba by a notification in Government Gazette of 20th October 1927;

(d) whether traffic statistics have been obtained for the new project;

(e) if the answer to (d) is in the negative, what are the reasons for undertaking the survey without obtaining traffic statistics?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: (a) No.

(b) Yes.

(c) The alignment from the Naroda end as originally proposed was rather close to the Ahmedabad Prantij line and at a considerable distance from the main B.B. & C.I. Railway line. The purpose of the line would be better met if it were aligned so that the intervening tracts of country on both sides would be more equally served. This object would be secured by diverting the proposed alignment somewhat Southward at convenient points between Vehelal on the one side and Kanbha and Kunhha on the other, so that instead of Vehelal getting the exclusive advantage of the proposed line, the villages situated in the North East portion of South Daskroi Taluka would also derive benefit, also the important village of Kathwada and other Baroda villages.

(d) Traffic statistics for the new project are being obtained in conjunction with the work of the engineering survey.

(e) Enough is known of the general conditions of the locality to justify the execution of the engineering survey prior to the completion of the traffic survey.

RAILWAY PROJECT, AHMEDABAD-KAPADVANJ : PUBLIC MEETING RESOLUTION

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they have received a resolution, passed by a public meeting of the inhabitants of Vehelal held on the 21st November 1927, urging Government to construct a railway line between Ahmedabad and Kapadvanj via Nawda-Anasan-Pardhol-Vehelal-Kadadra-Kothi-Bahial-Madadra-Atarsumba ;

(b) If the answer to (a) is in the affirmative, what action they have taken on that resolution ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Yes.

(b) The matter is under the consideration of Government.

MEHLOL ESTATE : GRANT TO KAZI JAMALUDIN

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased—

(a) to place on the Council table all the correspondence up to the date of Government Resolution No. 1922/24 which passed between the Prant Officer of Godhra Taluka, the Collector of Panch Mahals, the Commissioner of Northern Division and the Honourable the Revenue Member in connection with 131 acres and 1 guntha of land of Mehlol Estate given to Kazi Jamaludin Amir Mian in the year 1922 by private arrangement ;

(b) to state whether by Government Resolution No. 1922/24 the land was ordered to be resumed after the expiry of ten years from the date of the gift ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Government regret that they are not prepared to comply with this request as the correspondence contains the report of Government officers which are intended for the information of Government only.

(b) Yes, from the date of the termination of the leases entered into with the sub-tenants.

GUJARAT COLLEGE : TUTOR IN ETIQUETTE

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether a missionary lady was engaged by the Principal of Gujarat College for teaching manners to the lady students of the college ;

(b) if so, whether any amount of money was paid to her;

(c) if the answer to (b) is in the affirmative, what was the exact sum paid to her and from what source the payment was made ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: (a) No. In the first term of 1926-27 and after consulting the lady students the Principal decided to ask as an experimental measure an English lady (1) to help the lady students in their essay writing, (2) to look after their interests especially in regard to magazines, books, etc., and (3) to meet them once or twice weekly in their room. There is as yet no lady member on the teaching staff and the Principal thought it desirable to make the experiment. The Irish Presbyterian Mission (close to the College) was asked to allow one of their lady members to come to the College for this purpose. The experiment was not continued after the first term of last year.

(b) Yes.

(c) Rs. 50 only from College non-government funds (the Petit Fund).

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: As regards (c), is not the Honourable Minister aware that the Petit Fund is only meant for buying books for the library, and not for any other purpose ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: I am not aware of it.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they have received a resolution unanimously passed on 17th December 1927 in a joint meeting of the five villages of South Daskroi Taluka named Kubadthal, Zanu, Vehelal, Lalpur and Huka praying for a railway station at some central place equidistant from those villages in the Ahmedabad-Kapadvanj Railway proposed to be newly constructed;

(b) if the answer to (a) is in the affirmative, what action they took in the matter ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: (a) Yes.

(b) The matter is under the consideration of Government.

GOVERNMENT SERVANTS, AHMEDABAD: HOUSE RENT AND LOCAL ALLOWANCE

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(b) the house rent at present paid to sub-registrars and karkuns stationed at Ahmedabad with the amount of pay drawn by them;

(c) the percentage house rent which they have to pay;

(d) whether house rent or local allowance is given to any of the officers stationed in Ahmedabad; if so, what and to whom?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Information has been called for.

RAILWAY PROJECT, ASARVA-KAPADVANJ: OBJECTION OF BHUVALDI PEOPLE

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they have received a representation from the inhabitants, farmers and land-owners of Bhuvaldi, a village of South Daskroi Taluka of Ahmedabad district, protesting against the Asarva-Kapadvanj Railway route proposed to be surveyed as notified in the Bombay Government Gazette of the 20th October 1927 on the ground that the said route would lie to the south of Bhuvaldi and destroy precious fertile lands of the said village and that it would threaten eventual destruction of the said village and its fertile lands by intercepting the natural flow of rain-water which is in the southern direction of Bhuvaldi;

(b) if so, what action they have taken on that representation;

(c) whether Government have made enquiries on the grounds adduced in that representation;

(d) whether Government intend to take into account the dangers apprehended by the people of Bhuvaldi at the time of finally deciding the route;

(e) whether attention of Government is drawn in the said representation to the fact that the route north of Bhuvaldi would be less costly, shorter and cheaper and at the same time more beneficial to the villages of South Daskroi Taluka;

(f) if so, whether Government have taken or intend to take into consideration the suggestion of the people of Bhuvaldi, mentioned in (e)?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: (a) Yes.
(b), (c) and (d) The matter is under the consideration of Government.
(e) Yes.
(f) Vide reply to (b), (c) and (d).

PORT OF BANKOT: REMOVAL OF SILT

Mr. SYED MUNAWAR: Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware of the inconveniences caused to the people of Bankot and adjoining villages by coasting steamers not touching at the port of Bankot in the Ratnagiri district;

(b) the reasons why the port of Bankot has been abandoned by the ferry steamers;

(c) whether representations have been made by the people to the Collector of the district, the Collector of Salt Revenue, and the Commissioner of Customs, in this connection;

(d) if so, what replies have been given and what steps have been taken in the matter;

(e) whether there is any accumulation of silt and sand offering an impediment to the calling of the ferry steamers at the port;

(f) whether the silt and sand can be removed, and if so, at what expense;

(g) whether it is a fact that the people concerned are willing to submit to an additional impost of landing and wharfage fee to enable Government to meet the expenditure on the removal of silt and sand;

(h) if so, what steps Government propose to take for the purpose of reopening the port of Bankot;

(i) whether it is a fact that the Janjira State which levies a wharfage fee of one anna per passenger has been duly apprised of the inconvenience to the people?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: (a) to (h) The Honourable Member is referred to the reply given to the question put by Mr. Haji Ibrahim Haji Mahomed Jitekar. In view of the reasons given therein it is not considered advisable to reopen Bankot Port.

(i) No. Janjira State has no jurisdiction over Bankot Port.

LEVEL CROSSING, NASIK ROAD

Rao Saheb R. V. VANDEKAR (Nasik District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware that there is great hardship to the motor and other vehicular traffic between Nasik and Sinnar owing to the constant closing of the gate at the Nasik Road railway level crossing for shunting;

(b) whether they propose constructing a bridge over the said level crossing?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: (a) Yes.

(b) The proposal to construct an overbridge in place of the level crossing is under consideration.

CANAL WATER SUPPLY PANCHAYATS

Rao Saheb R. V. VANDEKAR (Nasik District): Will Government be pleased to state whether they intend to form Panchayats to make allotments of canal water to irrigators in the Deccan?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: Experiments in connection with the self-management of distribution of water by Panchayats in the Deccan were commenced in 1922. In two cases the results were not satisfactory and the experiments were stopped in 1925 and 1927. The other experiments, two on the Pravara Left Bank Canal and one on the Nira Left Bank Canal, are still in progress and results are being watched.

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN: Will you kindly permit me to put my questions, Sir?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I have given a ruling in this session.

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN: We have got one hour for questions and only 20 minutes are passed.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The principle has to be adhered to. Honourable members should be in their places at question time.

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN: Please give me indulgence this time, Sir.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: No, I am sorry.

[Further consideration of clause 6 of Bill No. IV of 1928 (Non-Agriculturists' Loans Bill) resumed.]

Question again proposed.

" Add sub-clause (3) to clause 6, as follows :

' The rule so made shall be subject to the condition of previous publication and to the further condition that the rules so made shall be laid on the table of the Bombay Legislative Council for one month previous to the next session of the Council, and shall be liable to be modified or annulled by a resolution of the said Council tabled at such next session.' "

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The Honourable the Revenue Member.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: Mr. President, as I have already indicated when I spoke first on this amendment immediately after the honourable mover had moved it, Government do not find it possible to accept the amendment as it stands. They have given full consideration to the matter and they have come to certain conclusions which I wish to explain to this honourable House.

The amendment proposed by the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale proposes to give to the Council full discretion in the matter of regulating the subjects which are referred to in clause 6 of the bill. If this amendment is carried, the Council, when the rules proposed by Government are laid before them, will have power to modify them in any way they consider fit and such modifications must stand as the statutory rules. It will not then be within the power of Government to introduce any modification into them. This is a position which Government are unable to accept, whether generally or in regard to the present case. As I have already pointed out, these rules will provide for very important financial matters, which will impose upon Government certain definite financial obligations which may be of a far-reaching scope. I drew attention to certain particular points which appeared to me to be of special importance. I will refer to them again: The principal one is the question of the rate of interest which these loans to non-agriculturists shall bear. There is also the regulation of the period within which repayment shall be made. A third point is the fixing of the instalments by which repayment shall be made. Government cannot accept the position that these matters should be left to the unrestricted control of this House. These questions are financial ones and constitutionally it is objectionable that Government should be deprived of their powers in the way that it is proposed they should be. There is a further objection in principle to the amendment, and that is that if it is accepted, it leaves out entirely the control which under the Government of India Act is conferred on the Governor to certify or veto provisions in an Act passed by the Council or to call upon the Council to reconsider any provision that they may have passed. That is to say, so far as rules are concerned—and in this case the rules are an extremely important part of the whole enactment—the Governor will be definitely deprived of his statutory powers. This again is a position which Government are entirely unable to accept. I therefore propose to lay before the House certain modified proposals which I trust that the House will be induced to accept.

[Mr. J. L. Rieu]

I have indicated the specially important points which are among those proposed to be regulated by rules. It is now proposed to place these in a substantive provision of the Act. With regard to the remaining points, it is proposed to modify the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale's amendment in such a way as not to deprive Government entirely of its discretionary powers in regard to the acceptance or non-acceptance of rules modified by the Council. The amendment which I wish to lay before the House, as an amendment to Rao Bahadur Kale's amendment, is as follows:

"For clause 6 of the bill substitute the following: '6 (1) The Local Government shall by general or special order determine the rate of interest to be charged on loans drawn under this Act and the instalments by which the debts on account of such loans shall be repaid'."

The first sub-clause therefore provides that Government under a substantive provision of the Act shall have power to act in respect of these matters. Sub-clause (2) of the clause which I propose reads as follows:

"The Local Government may from time to time by notification in the Bombay Government Gazette make rules prescribing the manner of making applications for loans, the officers by whom the loans may be granted and such other matters as may be necessary for carrying out the provisions of the Act; such rules when made shall be laid on the table of the Bombay Legislative Council for one month previous to the next session thereof and shall be liable to be rescinded or modified by a motion of the said Council tabled at that session. If any rule is modified the local Government may accept the modification and re-issue the rule accordingly or may rescind the rule."

That is to say, the Legislative Council will have power to modify the rules in respect of those matters which still remain to be regulated by rules, and Government will then be left with the option either of accepting such modification or of rescinding the modified rule altogether. The sub-clause does not give the Government the power to modify a rule once modified by the Council. They must either accept the rule as modified or rescind it entirely. And I trust that the position of Government having been explained to the Council, this House will be prepared to accept this modification. As I have already said, Government find it impossible to accept the honourable mover's amendment as it stands. I would emphasize again that such acceptance would involve the delegation to the Council of very important financial powers which it is impossible for Government to divest themselves of. And I would also point out, as I observed on a previous occasion, that even by accepting the amendment as now proposed to be modified, Government are making a large concession in favour of non-agriculturists. As this House is aware, the rules which govern the granting of loans to agriculturists are not subject to the control of this House in any sort of way; they are promulgated entirely by Government on their own authority and it is entirely within their discretion to repeal or modify them from time to time. And therefore by granting the Council an opportunity of revising the rules in respect to loans to non-agriculturists, Government are making a very substantial concession to this Council. I trust, therefore, that the Council will appreciate this point and will be willing to accept the modification of the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale's amendment which I now propose.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I should like to understand the position clearly as regards the procedure. I find that this amendment which the Honourable the Revenue Member proposes as an amendment to the amendment of the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale goes a little beyond the amendment of the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale.

The Honourable the Revenue Member wishes practically to withdraw clause 6 as it stands at present and substitute another clause in its place. The honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale wants that clause 6 should stand as it is, but desires that a further sub-clause should be added to it. The amendment moved by the Honourable the Revenue Member goes further than the amendment originally moved, although it includes in an amended form in the last sentence, the amendment proposed by the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale. Therefore if I understand the Honourable the Revenue Member aright, he really wishes to withdraw clause 6 and substitute it by these clauses.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : That is the effect of my proposal.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI : Sir, can an amendment to an amendment be moved now ? Yesterday we had reached the stage at which the honourable mover of the amendment had replied and we were on the point of voting. The honourable member in charge of the department had also replied.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : No. He had not.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI : At any rate, we had reached the stage at which an amendment to the amendment could not be moved. A fresh amendment at this stage will reopen the whole question in debate.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Sir, may I suggest that the way out of the difficulty would be for the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale to withdraw his amendment, and then it will be possible for me to propose the amendment which I have now proposed.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : Sir, I am not prepared to withdraw my amendment in the light of the statement made. If I am given an opportunity, I will make a statement giving the reason for which I am not prepared to withdraw before I understand how the new amendment stands.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The position is certainly unusual and does present some sort of difficulty.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : All I wish to say is that I am quite willing that the honourable mover should be given an opportunity of fully discussing my amendment. I have not the least intention of shutting out discussion on the subject.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : If this amendment is ruled to be in order, if we call it an amendment to the amendment, it will certainly re-open the whole question, and the House will be entitled to go into discussion over it. But the point on which I wish to be satisfied is whether this is an amendment to the amendment. But another point of order has been raised than an amendment to the amendment cannot be moved now at this stage when the amendment before the House has been discussed and closed. On this point, I do not know if honourable members have enlightened themselves as regards the procedure of the passage of a bill in the House of Commons. There the whole House sits in committee, and when a clause is taken into consideration and there is a reasonable amendment or modification to be made, opportunities are given to move the amendment irrespective of the particular stage at which the bill has reached, if the best interests of the intentions of the bill are thereby contemplated. I think the House will agree that in such cases a way should be found to allow alterations of clauses practically at all stages. But I do not accept this (the amendment moved by the Honourable the Revenue Member) as an amendment to the amendment, because it goes beyond the original amendment and proposes the withdrawal of clause 6.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Sir, I can see the inconvenience of the present position. There is another way of getting over the difficulty in the manner that I would venture to suggest. It will be possible, for instance, to move that " the consideration of Clause 6 of Bill No. IV of 1928 be postponed " under the Standing Orders. If that is done, then, Sir, a fresh amendment can be moved. The motion that is placed before this House by the Honourable the Revenue Member is not an amendment to the amendment. It merely divides clause 6 of the bill. Anyhow, I say, Sir, that if we postpone the business of this House only in respect of clause 6 of the bill, the technical difficulty can be got over. That will give an opportunity to the House to debate on any amendment that may be moved before the House.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I think the Honourable the Leader of the House refers to Standing Order IV (4).

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Yes, Sir. I refer to Standing Order IV ; clauses (3) and (4) may both be used in this instance. Clause 3 says :

" The President may adjourn any meeting or business to any future day and hour or to any part of the same day without discussion or vote."

You can under the powers given to you under these Standing Orders postpone the discussion till say an hour hence. Clause 4 can also be used.

Sir, I would rather rely upon Clause IV (3) alone. That can I think be done by you, Sir.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I would draw the attention of the Honourable the Leader of the House to clause 4 (2).

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : I have seen it, Sir. It says :

[Sir Chunilal Mehta]

" The President may disallow any motion for the adjournment of any business if, in his opinion, such motion is made for the purpose of securing the adjournment of the meeting.

I am not asking for the adjournment of the meeting at all.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : To my mind that involves the principle that the President cannot do it arbitrarily. He has to take the House with him if the suggestion made has the effect of stifling the efforts of a section of the House. Here the intention implied in the suggestion is apparent. However, I would like to hear honourable members opposite with a view to take the House with me in the matter of the proposals made by the Honourable the Leader of the House. I would therefore ask Rao Bahadur Kale to give his views on the point.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Sir, may I suggest a method to get over the difficulty ? The position is this. An amendment has been moved by my honourable friend, Rao Bahadur Kale. In reply to that amendment, the honourable member in charge of the bill suggests another method of meeting the wishes of the opposite benches. The opposite benches think that no opportunity will be given to them to speak on the amendment put forward by the Honourable the Revenue Member and they would not get an opportunity of pointing out to Government any defects that may be in that amendment. What I would suggest is this. Rao Bahadur Kale should withdraw his amendment, with an undertaking that if the opposite side is not satisfied with the amendment proposed by Government, he would be allowed to move his amendment again. If that is done, the whole question will be solved.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Quite so, if rules of procedure would allow it.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : I think it is.

Mr. BALAK RAM : Sir, I beg to submit that the amendment of the Honourable the Revenue Member should be taken as an amendment to the amendment of Rao Bahadur Kale.....

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Sir, I rise to a point of order. You have already decided that it is not an amendment to the amendment of Rao Bahadur Kale. May I therefore know whether the honourable member (Mr. Balak Ram) is right in addressing the House on that point ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I suppose he is developing the point of the procedure suggested by the Honourable the Leader of the House. And as such the honourable member is right in arguing that point.

Mr. BALAK RAM : Sir, clause 6 of the bill is about the rule-making powers which are given to Government. Rao Bahadur Kale's amendment says that the rule-making power should be left to the House entirely. If you look to the amendment of the Honourable the Revenue Member, you will find that it suggests that the " rule-making power should be given in certain respect to Government and in other respect to this House." The proposal therefore suggests a position between the two extremes, and though there may be a technical objection to its wording it should be allowed to be treated as an amendment to the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale's amendment.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I think I have the situation now well before me. This is not strictly an amendment to Rao Bahadur Kale's amendment. It has a double aim. It proposes to withdraw clause 6 of the bill and substitute a new clause instead. I have nothing to do with the merits of the original or this amendment. What I am concerned with is the procedure ; and I must follow the proper procedure. If it is possible for honourable members to assist me in that respect, I would be prepared to hear the views of this House. The opportunity to be given to the whole House to discuss the merits of this proposal is not denied either by the Honourable the Revenue Member, nor am I going to withhold that. But I should like, if the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale has got to say anything on this point, to hear him before I definitely hold one way or the other.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : Sir, as I understand the position taken up, the proposal is somewhat like this, that my amendment is before the House and there is another amendment also from the Honourable the Revenue Member which is also before the House. The two amendments are, as it were, relating to the same subjectmatter and they can be discussed together as it were. That is to say, the discussion may proceed on either amendments, not as if the Honourable Mr. Rieu's amendment is an amendment to my amendment. I take it his is an independent amendment. Mine is before the House. Then, another amendment proposed by the Revenue Member is before the House also, and it is in the discretion of the Chair to allow both amendments to be discussed together, if you consider that the subjectmatter covered by the amendments is the same. Then, in that case, I certainly am prepared to agree to that course. Therefore, I think it will be open now to all honourable members to discuss the amendment that is newly proposed in the light of the amendment which has already been debated upon. Now, Sir, I would certainly point out with reference to the last observation of the Honourable the Revenue Member that the old Agriculturists' Loans Act.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order. I would not allow honourable members to enter upon the merits yet. The Honourable the Revenue Member has given a reply to Saturday's amendment, and that matter ends there. Now in the reply there is a fresh proposal. I have heard all possible sides and I disallow this as an amendment to the amendment of the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale. I would, now, therefore, put the amendment of the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale to vote. I do not think I can exercise the power as suggested by the Honourable the Leader of the House under clause 3. The honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale's amendment should be dealt with independently and disposed of in whatever manner the House is prepared to dispose of it. Then, I would take the other as an amendment coming by itself from the Honourable the Revenue Member.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : But, Sir, when that amendment is passed, if it is passed, there will be difficulty, and we were suggesting, Sir, that in this difficult situation you might exercise your power and find a way out. It is agreed both by the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale and ourselves that opportunity should be given to the House to discuss both the points of view. We do not for a moment suggest that the Honourable the Revenue Member's amendment alone should be before the House. We are quite agreeable to the suggestion that both the original amendment (Rao Bahadur Kale's amendment) as well as the new proposal which the Honourable the Revenue Member makes should be both before the House which, after the discussion of the merits of both, can come to a decision. I am hoping, Sir, that in the discussion Rao Bahadur Kale and his friends will be convinced that the proposal suggested by Government is the only possible proposal that can be accepted, and as a result of that discussion either Rao Bahadur Kale will withdraw his amendment or the Council will dispose of it. The situation just now is that neither side has had an opportunity of considering both the amendments. We wish that the House should come to a decision after understanding and discussing the merits of both the proposals. If the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale and we are agreed about that, we would request you to try and find out a way to regularize the procedure. (An Honourable Member : How can the procedure be changed ? The procedure is there already ?) The Honourable the President may even take the assent of the House, Sir, for a change in the procedure which he may wish to make. I feel quite certain that the House would give its consent to the President if he so desires it. I submit, Sir, that this matter is of considerable importance. It does not relate to this bill alone ; it is a question of the powers of the Council in future also, and I think it is a very important question, and the Council would do well to have the merits discussed from both points of view and help the Honourable the President to find a way out. Your suggestion that a solution ought to be found will certainly meet with response from both sides of the House.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI : You have already ruled, Sir, that the amendment given by the Honourable the Revenue Member is not an amendment to the amendment moved by the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Quite right.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI : If it is so, how can both the amendments come before the House at all ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I did not understand the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale particularly to mean that he is agreeable to the procedure suggested by the Honourable the Leader of the House ? Is that correct ?

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : I only want to make it clear, Sir, that if both the amendments are before the House, I have nothing to object to the debate that may be raised upon the Honourable the Revenue Member's amendment. That is all I say.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Then, there is a great deal of difference between the honourable member and myself. He seems to be in favour of discussion of the merits of both the amendments. I am not concerned with the merits ; I am concerned only with the procedure and the procedure suggested by the Honourable the Leader of the House is a novel one, and I do not know whether I would be right in following it.

I would, therefore, put the amendment of the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale to the House, and then consider whether this amendment of the Honourable the Revenue Member can be taken into consideration. The amendment that I now put to the House is, therefore, the one by the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale, which runs thus :

" Add to clause 6 a further clause (3) as a sub-clause that rules so made shall be subject to the condition of previous publication and to the further condition that the rules so made shall be laid on the table of the Bombay Legislative Council for one month previous to the next session of the Council and shall be liable to be modified or annulled by a resolution of the said Council tabled at such next session. SUPPLEMENTARY ESTIMATES

Supplementary demand, covered by re-appropriation, from 47, Miscellaneous-Reserved, to 24, Administration of Justice, for temporary appointment of an Assistant Judge in Sind..... Rs. 7,205.

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: Sir, I move for a supplementary grant of Rs. 7,205 for a temporary appointment of an Assistant Judge in Sind. The facts are very simple, and are stated in the note* that is before the House. There has been a very considerable increase in the judicial work in Sind, and since 1924 we have constantly been obliged to provide an Assistant Judge in Sind in addition to the number formerly posted there. We hoped at the time of framing the current year's budget that necessity would come to an end, and that after the middle of last year (1927) there would no longer be any such necessity. Unfortunately, our expectations have been disappointed. So far from a reduction in the work there is a constantly increasing volume of work, and we have had to keep this Assistant Judge for the whole year, with the result that the budget grant has been exceeded. I do not think that my honourable friends, especially those from Sind, will have any doubts that Government have done the right thing in this matter, and I ask that the grant be given.

Question proposed.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District): Sir, with regard to this demand, I have to make a few observations. It has become the policy of Government to ask, from time to time, supplementary grants to provide for additional or temporary assistant judges or other officers, on the ground that the work has increased. I wish to ask whether there is any supervision or any inspection of the work of these judicial officers,

*Appendix 4.

[Rao Bahadur R. R. Kale]

namely, the subordinate judiciary as well as those who do the work of Assistant Judges or District Judges, to enable the higher authorities to come to the conclusion that they have been really working for full time in disposing of the cases that come before them. I submit that if strict supervision and inspection take place, it may be possible to find out that really the work is not increased in such a manner as to require the addition of extra officers, and it will be possible to see whether, with the officers that we already have, it is not possible to get more work done. In this connection, I might mention that inspection work is somewhat difficult. We have got as inspecting judges judges from the High Court, to supervise and inspect the work in the presidency proper, and in Sind I suppose the Judicial Commissioner's court takes the place of the High Court, and the Judicial Commissioner's court supervises and inspects the work of the District and Assistant Judges in Sind. I submit that the procedure and the records of the courts must be carefully examined, and it can be done so by those who are acquainted with the inner working of the courts, I mean persons who are familiar with the vernaculars of the district, so that they can examine the cases, the documents that are filed in the cases, and I remember Sir John Heaton, when as Inspecting Judge he came to inspect the courts in the mofussil, remarking that it is the Indian judges who can have a better insight into the work of the subordinate courts, because an Indian judge has the advantage of being able to go through the records of the cases, not merely the depositions which are no doubt recorded in English, but the other documents exhibited in the case ; an Indian judge has the advantage of reading for himself the records of cases, and he really is in a better position to check and find out whether the District Judges and Assistant Judges have put in full work while they are hearing cases. I submit, therefore, that Government should, for the future, direct supervision and inspection of this kind more closely, so that they may be in a position to know, whenever assistance is asked for, whether it is really needed. I find that when a District Judge or an Assistant Judge says that the work has increased and therefore more assistance is required, that assistance is given. Now, I do not know whether any effort is made by Government to satisfy themselves that really the work has not increased in such a way as to require an additional hand. I know there may be fluctuations. Sometimes the work may be little, and sometimes it may increase, but I do not think that, as soon as there is a little congestion extra temporary appointments should be made. I submit that it is due to this want of thorough inspection that this kind of demand comes to be made. I would, therefore, request the Honourable the Home Member to see that in future the inspection of these courts is carried on in an effective manner.

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : Sir, the inspection of these courts and the supervision over the work of the Judges and the Assistant Judges and the magistracy is already, in the opinion of Government, very efficiently performed both in Sind and in the presidency proper ; in the presidency proper by the High Court and in Sind by the Judicial Commissioner's Court. The Judicial Commissioner, last cold weather went on a tour of inspection through Sind and saw the courts on the spot in working order. Over and above that, they are constantly examining the records of the work done by each Judge and Assistant Judge. It is not the case, as my honourable friend seems to think, that every time we are asked for additional establishment we give it. That is very far from being the case. We examine the facts on which any such demand is based very carefully before we agree to it.

I might add that there are special reasons for the increase of work in Sind. There has been a great deal of criminal work. It is impossible to say why there are waves of crime, why in one year, or two or three successive years, more murders and more serious crimes are committed than in other years; but that has been the case. In addition, there are a very large number of land acquisition cases coming from the Barrage Canals, which have had to be decided by the Judges and the Assistant Judges. In 1923, the amendment of the Criminal Procedure Code, section 110, transferred a number of appeals which used to be heard by the District Magistrates to the Sessions Judges. My friend the honourable member from Satara, judging from the conditions that prevail in the presidency, probably does not realise what an immense difference that makes to the work of the Sessions Courts in Sind. In Sind, cases under section 110 of the Criminal Procedure Code are very much more numerous than they are in the presidency proper, and the additional work that has fallen on the Sessions Judges there is very much greater than has been the case in the presidency proper. As I have stated, we have been very careful indeed in scrutinising the reasons for which this request is granted, and I very much doubt whether it would be possible to do anything more than is being now done in the way of seeing that the courts are doing their work properly. I do not exactly understand why my honourable friend proposes that the Judges of the Judicial Commissioner's Court should take up the records of individual cases, and examine them and the documents in them, and see whether the documents have been properly admitted, and so on. This they can do in any particular case in which there is reason to think that the correct procedure has not been followed or that unnecessary delay has occurred. But I think it is obvious that if the judges took such action in a large number of cases they would themselves be responsible for great waste of time and labour.

Supplementary grant for Rs. 45,000 for fees in criminal cases by transfer from 47, Miscellaneous to 24. Administration of Justice.

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: Sir, the next item is a demand for a supplementary* grant of Rs. 45,000 by transfer from 47, Miscellaneous to 24, Administration of Justice on account of fees in criminal cases. This item is a fluctuating one. If I remember rightly I was obliged last year to ask a supplementary grant in the same connection. We are now obliged in preparing our budget to cut down our figures as far as we possibly can and to observe the greatest economy in proposing our requirements. Sometimes we find that we have underestimated these requirements. It is not within the power of Government to decide what cases shall come forward or in what cases fees shall have to be paid. I have more than once informed the House that my friend the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs has given this matter his close attention and has done his very best to reject as many as possible of the demands for special counsel in criminal cases, wherever it can be done, and to keep the fees payable to our prosecuting staff at the lowest minimum consistant with justice and efficiency.

Question proposed.

Mr. M. D. KARKI (Kanara District): Sir, I wish to speak some words on this motion. Before I do so I wish to bring to the notice of this House a very serious illegality which has been committed by the District Magistrate in Kanara at the instance of the Deputy Superintendent of Police of that district. A second class magistrate who is an experienced and at the same time an intelligent man has been illegally and unnecessarily brought into troubles. Not on account of his inability to discharge the magisterial duties, not because.....

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: I fail to see how this arises on the present motion.

Mr. M. D. KARKI: Before I begin to speak on the motion I wish to bring to the notice of this honourable House a very serious illegality at a very early stage.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member must bring it within the scope of the grant.

Mr. M. D. KARKI: The demand for the grant is before the House. I can speak.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: On what?

Mr. M. D. KARKI: The illegality committed by the District Magistrate. I therefore proceed Sir. Not because of his inability to discharge magisterial functions or misconduct in discharging them.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: It is distinctly going beyond the demand made. The honourable House has been informed before that when demands for supplementary grants are made no general policy of the department concerned can be discussed, unless remarks are made within the scope of the supplementary grant asked for.

Mr. M. D. KARKI: This relates to the administration of civil justice and I am entitled to speak when that demand for grant is made about a particular grievance in my district. Though it seems somewhat irrelevant, it is not so. I am entitled to speak.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: How can the honourable member make it relevant?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: On a point of order. This demand is limited only to the payment of certain fees for criminal cases.

[Sir Chunilal Mehta]

It has nothing whatever to do with the Administration of Justice or conduct of any particular judge in any particular debate.....

Mr. M. D. KARKI: This is part of Administration of Civil Justice

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: The demand for grant for Civil Justice is not before the House. This is a particular limited item. It would be impossible to get through any of the supplementary grants if the whole working of the department is brought under discussion.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I think the honourable member is out of order in referring to this particular instance. He may speak on the grant if he likes.

Mr. M. D. KARKI: I am sorry for your ruling.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. The honourable member should withdraw that statement.

Mr. M. D. KARKI: I withdraw it, Sir. I must bow to your ruling.

On the motion I have a few remarks to make. In mofussil there are pleaders appointed by Government to conduct cases in their behalf. I think the grant that is demanded is to cover the expenses incurred by them to pay legal officers of Government in the mofussil. In my own district I find that in Government cases, that is, cases started by Government after sanction under section 195 of the Criminal Procedure Code, police prosecutors are generally engaged. Formerly, it was the practice of Government to engage Government pleaders in prosecuting criminals in such cases; but very recently there has been a change in that practice and police prosecutors are being employed to conduct such cases. In Honavar there is a Government pleader, a pleader appointed by Government, to look after Government cases, but in one or two cases that were started after sanction was granted under section 195 of the Criminal Procedure Code, the Government pleader was not at all engaged. The police prosecutor was engaged and he conducted the cases. If police prosecutors are engaged in such cases, I think they are not paid extra remuneration for conducting them. That being so, there must be no increase under the head 'payment of fees for law officers.' Therefore, I want to know whether Government have decided now-a-days to appoint police prosecutors to take the place of Government pleaders in the mofussil. If they have not done so, then I want to know why in two cases in Honavar the Government pleader was not engaged by the Government and why police prosecutors only were engaged to prosecute the cases. For this reason, I rose to speak on the motion and I want to be enlightened on this point by the Honourable the Home Member.

Mr. V. N. JOG (Dharwar District): Sir, with reference to this demand I have to bring before the House the way in which the services of law officers are lent in certain cases. I cannot, I must say, follow the arguments of my honourable friend the previous speaker. My point in criticising this demand is to make it clear that I do welcome the services of the police prosecutors where they can be done with economy. We find in several districts police prosecutors have been appointed by Government, and my complaint in regard to that matter is just the contrary to that of my honourable friend who spoke just before me. I have come across in my district very trivial cases being handed over to public prosecutors. There are certain cases under Excise and Forest relating to trivial offences —sometimes illegal possession of ganja which the accused was not entitled to possess—petty cases in which public prosecutors or their assistants are engaged. Sometimes, when cases are conducted in mofussil courts and public prosecutors or their assistants go there, the scale of fees is higher per day, although in the district courts it is only Rs. 15 per day. Whenever a Government pleader from the district town goes to the mofussil courts his fee is enhanced. I submit, therefore, that the District Magistrate, or the person responsible for lending the services of Government pleaders, should be very careful to see that the importance of the case deserves the help that is given by the District Magistrate. I submit, Sir, that this additional amount which has swollen to Rs. 45,000 must be the result of indiscriminate help given by the District Magistrates. It has been the fashion of the Forest and Excise Departments, whenever they launch a case, to think that the police prosecutor will not be equal to the task, and to send a report to the District Magistrate that the case is an important one and that the services of the public prosecutor should be given to them which is easily accepted. I therefore submit that the Honourable the Home Member should give directions to the various District Magistrates to see that the importance of the cases should be considered before the services of the public prosecutors are lent.

Then, I come to certain cases in my district where the assistance of the public prosecutor was given to certain officers of Government to explain their conduct, so to say, by prosecuting those who had defamed them. No doubt, such cases as the Harvey-Nariman case are world wide known. But there are certain instances in my district where the services of the public prosecutor were given in cases which are little noticed by the outside public and all of which after all failed. I want to refer to that particular case, which the honourable member the Home Secretary will remember, which was launched by a sub-inspector in the Dharwar taluka. It was a case of defamation in which the complainant had been accused of bribery. The case was conducted before the bench magistrate, and I am told that more than one hundred adjournments were taken. In that case the services of the public prosecutor were engaged. The result is we see how the bill has been swelling up. In the bench court the Government servant succeeded, but when the case went up to the Sessions Judge the accused was acquitted. Thus, the Government servant lost the case. Not being satisfied with that, the case was taken to the High Court and in the High Court the judgment of the Sessions Judge was confirmed. When the Sessions Judge had given a judgment for acquittal, why was the case taken to the High Court unless a strong opinion was given in regard to the success of the case?

[Mr. V. N. Jog]

I do not want to go into the merits of that case here, but I only want to urge that before action is taken to conduct a prosecution proper enquiry should be made to find out whether the case would be a success. Before the time of the first trial, no doubt, all the records and the materials may not have been before Government, but when all the records and materials come to Government, it is for the legal officers of Government to say whether an appeal is likely to succeed and money will not be wasted. There is also another instance in which a case was started against a gentleman under sections 182, 211 and 500, Indian Penal Code, and was taken to the High Court under section 182 which quashed the prosecution under section 182. Other cases on the same material were started after that judgment against the same gentleman under section 211. Even this case the Honourable the Home Secretary must be aware of. In the Sessions Court, the gentleman was acquitted and in spite of this, the case was taken to the High Court with the same result. I am told now that the Sub-Inspector is prosecuting the gentleman under section 500, Indian Penal Code, with the help of the Public Prosecutor. My submission is that whenever cases are launched, before help is given to Government servants all the materials and records should be properly scrutinised to see whether there is a good prima facie case. Sometimes, it is said that Indians are litigious and the agriculturists waste their money in litigation. In the case of Government at least, I would suggest, that they would be well advised to see that cases are not taken to the High Court without proper enquiry. With these remarks, I resume my seat.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA (Bombay City, North): Sir, I rise to oppose this grant. In the first place, Sir, I have to mention that we have not been told or given any particulars of the heavy expenditure that has been incurred in the districts on this account. It is very difficult for the honourable members of this House to deal with the question without full particulars. For myself, I do not know what the cases are in which eminent counsel have been engaged. Without that information it is not possible for me at all to criticise as to whether in a particular case the expenses incurred by Government were necessary or not.....

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : On the point of explanation, Sir, I may inform the honourable member that this demand is not for fees for special counsel, but it is for fees payable to the ordinary law officers of Government.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA : Sir, I have not followed what the Honourable the Home Member said.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The Honourable the Home Member says that this grant is not for special counsel but it is for the Government ordinary law officers.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA : I do not know for what it is. Without knowing for what purpose this expenditure is incurred, it is impossible to criticise the grant.

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : Sir, I understand that the honourable member wants to know for what purpose this amount is required. I may tell him that this grant is a demand for law officers such as Public Prosecutors and Assistant Public Prosecutors, who are engaged in conducting cases. This is not for special counsel brought from Bombay or any other place.

An Honourable MEMBER: Does it vary every year?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: Yes, of course, it varies from year to year.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA: May I know if public a prosecutor does not get permanent fee from Government?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: The public prosecutor gets a small retaining fee from Government, but he is also paid separate fees for conducting cases.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA: May I take it that this grant is meant for separate fees to be paid to public prosecutors?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. I think honourable members know the purpose for which they allowed a grant of Rs. 1,71,000 last year. If honourable members will look to that item in the current year's budget, they will, I suppose, be able to get details therefrom.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA: Sir, it is not right that honourable members should not get full particulars from Government, when they make a demand for a grant.....

The THAKOR OF KERWADA (Northern Division): Sir, I would like to ask one question to the Honourable the Home Member.....

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM (Eastern Sind): Sir, may I know who is in possession of the House?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Mr. Ginwalla is in possession of the House. But as he is busy finding out some references, the honourable member (The Thakor of Kerwada) has asked a question.

The THAKOR OF KERWADA: May I know from Government whether this grant is required for payment to the permanent staff?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: I thought that honourable members understood the system. But apparently they to not. So, with your permission, Sir, I would explain the position. In each district certain law officers receive retaining fee. But for each day's work they receive further fees. When the cases are numerous the fees they receive are naturally greater. It has been found by Government that in the current year cases have been unexpectedly numerous, and in order to meet the extra fees to be paid to law officers, they have had to make this demand.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA: Sir, at page 108 of the White Book, I find that the fees in criminal cases paid in the year 1927-28 came to Rs. 1,71,200 and the amount asked for in this year of 1928-29 is Rs. 1,96,700. I do not know why this increased amount is required for this year. Why Government should allow more fees to counsel in the current year?

[Mr. F. J. Ginwalla]

Government has not given us sufficient reasons for the same. The Honourable the Home Member told us that there would be a greater number of cases and therefore they had to pay more amounts. But he has not told us what increase in the number of cases he expects to have. I am not at all satisfied with that.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM (Eastern Sind): Sir, I am encouraged to make a few observations on this subject by the statement made by the Honourable the Home Member in putting his motion before the House. He has given reasons as to why he has to make a demand for this grant. He has explained to this honourable House that it was his desire to cut down expenditure and economise, which led him to under-estimate this demand last February. Since the Honourable the Home Member is anxious to make reduction in expenditure, we will probably be justified in suggesting to him a few additional items for economy. There are public prosecutors and assistant public prosecutors in various districts in the presidency. In Sind we have got an extra officer,—a public prosecutor for Sind. The fee paid to the public prosecutor for Sind is naturally higher than the fee paid to an assistant public prosecutor. In order to secure economy in expenditure, I would suggest that where ordinary criminal cases are to be conducted in Karachi district the services of an assistant public prosecutor should be utilised and not of the public prosecutor in Sind. I am not sure whether I am correct in the figures I shall quote now. But as far as I know, the daily fee that is paid to the public prosecutor of Sind is Rs. 150, whereas that of the assistant public prosecutor is only Rs. 50. The train leaves Karachi somewhere in the evening, and that makes one day, and the day on which work is done in a mofussil court, makes the second day. The returning train starts somewhere in the early morning, and that makes a third day. If the cases which are to be tried in the mofussil courts are similar to most of those which are being tried in Karachi city,—and in these cases the assistant public prosecutors are generally engaged,—then there is no justification for engaging the public prosecutor for Sind for mofussil cases, excepting in very important ones. I am making this suggestion to the Honourable the Home Member since he is anxious that we should economise public money.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI (Kaira District): Sir, I have one observation to offer. The Honourable the Home Member just stated that these public prosecutors are given a daily retainer (the Honourable Mr. J. E. B. Hotson: No, monthly retainer), a monthly retainer and daily fees. In that connection, Sir, I have heard lot of complaints from the public. In the first instance, if the public prosecutor happens to be the favourite of the Collector, then special fees are given to him, that is, over and above the ordinary fees, special fees are given. For example, if he draws ordinarily about Rs. 20, then Rs. 20 extra is given and the amount is made up to Rs. 40, and in this way the bill of the public prosecutor rises in a single case up to Rs. 8,000 or Rs. 9,000, where an ordinary pleader would have charged only Rs. 1,000 or Rs. 2,000. And these fees are allowed by the Collector. So, if my honourable friend the Home Member is really desirous of cutting down the expenditure on these public prosecutors and is willing to economise in the matter, then here is the scope for him to economise. If the public prosecutor occupies the post of a public prosecutor, he clearly understands that he is to be engaged for a whole day and he is to get only a particular amount. He is a hired servant of Government, after all, and he cannot expect any additional amount or more amount than that what is already fixed for his fees. So, I bring to the Honourable the Home Member's notice that no special fees should be given by the Collector to these public prosecutors.

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR (East Khandesh District): Mr. President, I wish to make a few observations with regard to the way the business of mofussil courts is arranged. In every district there are police prosecutors as well as one public prosecutor and one more assistant public prosecutor. In many cases I find that with the sanction of the District Magistrate the public prosecutor is asked to work in the mofussil, where the work is to be done by the police prosecutor himself. Government ought to inform all District Magistrates and Sessions Judges that as a matter of economy, as far as possible, the services of the public prosecutor should not be utilised for conducting ordinary cases in the mofussil. Another curious way is, and I refer to one particular instance in my own district. In the district of East Khandesh there is at present one police prosecutor; there is one assistant public prosecutor, who is an LL.B., and was formerly a member of this House. There was not a very serious case, but an ordinary riot case, to be tried at Jalgaon, and for this purpose they wanted and imported a police prosecutor from Poona. I think it was absolutely unnecessary. There was a protest from the whole bar in East Khandesh, and I think the very statement that was submitted by the prosecutor himself was submitted before the District and Sessions Judge of that place. In view of all these things, I really fail to understand why Government should consider it desirable to bring an ordinary police prosecutor from Poona to conduct such an ordinary case. He was appointed a temporary public prosecutor for that district and the case was conducted by that man. I think it must have involved Government in some additional expenditure. As a matter of fact, the procedure is highly derogatory to the dignity of the public prosecutor as well as that of the pleaders in the whole of that district. I submit that no such instances which entail unnecessary expenditure in the way of fees to be paid to these law officers should happen in future.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: Mr. President, because I was a public prosecutor for several years, I think I can speak with some authority upon the question which is being raised. In the first place, I could not at all follow my honourable friend Mr. Ginwalla because he does not know the practice in the mofussil. There is a certain retainer paid to a public prosecutor or to a Government Pleader, and then for every day that he works he is paid separately, and I can tell this honourable House that the retainer or the fee which is paid by Government is so poor that simply because the pleader gets a certain status, that is the only inducement for a man to be a public prosecutor. Otherwise, the fees which are paid by private parties are considerably higher than those which are paid by Government.

Mr. N. B. CHANDRACHUD : What about the civil work ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : Even as regards the civil work, as regards land acquisition matters, when Government found that the percentage came to be very high, then they only paid Rs. 25 a day for every working day. When they found the percentage was low, they chose only to pay the percentage rate. But in these land acquisition matters when Government found that several cases were grouped together and the fees came to be very high, then Government thought it more prudent to change the rule and pay only Rs. 25 a day for every working day. So, it was also in the interest of Government to change that rule. Then, one honourable member could not understand, when a demand is made for Rs. 45,000, as to why this amount is being claimed ; as if the Honourable the Home Member must know beforehand how many criminal cases are going to be heard in the whole of the presidency, for how many days they are going to be heard and how many appeals are going be heard.....

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN : Then, how do you put down this definite figure ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : By the experience of the previous three or four years. Then, my honourable friend Rao Saheb Dadubhai Desai said that the District Magistrates give higher fees to their favourites. In the first place, let me tell him that even when the old rules stood, the trying court had to certify that it was a very important case and it was conducted with very great ability and care and then only excess fee could be allowed. But now even that power is taken away, and it is now the Legal Remembrancer who sanctions the higher fee. Originally, the District Magistrate with the concurrence of the trying Judge before whom the case was conducted, could sanction enhanced fee only up to a particular limit. Now, with regard to the third observation which was made by my honourable friend Mr. Pataskar, I think, if I remember aright, it was an assistant public prosecutor from Poona who went to Jalgaon.....

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR : No ; police prosecutor.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : Oh, I see.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI (Western Sind) : Sir, reading the note as it stands, I think it is due to the House to have more particulars from the Honourable Member in charge. The note as it stands runs thus :

" An additional grant of Rs. 45,000 has therefore been sanctioned to cover the anticipated excess expenditure up to the end of the current financial year."

The sanctioning of the amount rests with the Council. Now, what the Honourable the Home Member says is that he is unable to determine the exact increase that will take place up till the 31st March. But this House is entitled to know, either in the revised budget estimate or by figures outside this book from the Home Member himself, what has been the actual expenditure up-to-date and what is going to be the future expenditure for the next two months ? We have got on page 108 some figures. The fees came to Rs. 1,71,200 in the current year. In the revised budget estimate column there is no figure mentioned at all so that the House is not in possession of any figures whatever as to the actual expenditure incurred up to the present date and is not in a position to know what items or claims are still awaiting disposal up to the 31st of March. Therefore, to place this simple note before the Council and to state that 45 to 50,000 rupees more will be needed up to the end of the year is hardly fair to the good sense and the commonsense of the Council. This Council is entitled to know how much above Rs. 1,71,000 has been actually spent. This Council is entitled to know what more, during the next two months will be spent, and this Council is entitled to know what claims arising up to 31st March will remain undisposed of. In short, this Council is entitled to know as far as possible the amount that will be needed up to the 31st of March. Certainly, what is more is that though we know that for the last two years the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs has taken unto himself the power of enhancing the fees and therefore greater care is exercised in enhancing fees, yet there are certain cases in which the Legal Remembrancer or the Home Member can easily exercise powers of scrutinising the demand to see whether the enhancement should be granted or not. I do not deny the necessity of enhancement of fees in a great many cases, yet the procedure of giving extra fees should be carefully regulated. At least so far as this Council is concerned to-day, it is entitled to know what these cases have been either in the Presidency or in Sind where enormous, unprecedented delay has taken place, and after knowing that this House will be perfectly justified in allowing the grant.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Sir, I am very much surprised that in this matter a very scandalous state of affairs has been brought to the notice of this House. A demand is made for additional amount for fees in criminal cases. These cases are conducted by public prosecutors and assistant public prosecutors who I find draw regular salaries.....

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: No, no.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: I think there would be many pleaders who would like to do the work if salaries are paid. I cannot understand why in addition to salaries high fees should be given.....

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: I may tell the honourable member that it is as a Government Pleader that salary is allowed and over and above the salary, in civil cases, fees are allowed per case, but to public prosecutors no salary is allowed and they are given fees per day.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: You will see from the budget that Rs. 47,000 was provided last year for Government pleaders and public prosecutors. I think in this matter Government should take special care to see that money to be paid for the work done by public prosecutors should be given with care and caution and that more money is not spent on persons who are in the good graces of the local officers as at present.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: That is repeating arguments in a small matter like that and I would not allow it.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Therefore, Sir, there is great scope for saving in this matter and Government should be well advised to reduce a great deal of their expenditure in the payment of fees of this character.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK (Surat District): Sir, in this connection I have to make one observation about my district. There was a case called the Surat Riots Case recently tried and the Honourable the Home Member as well as the local officials know that Surat has got a Government Pleader, one of the best lawyers of Surat and also an assistant Government pleader and also a Public Prosecutor. In spite of the fact that Surat has also got an eminent advocate, Government sent for a lawyer from Bombay on special terms.....

Mr. BALAK RAM: No, no.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: From Ahmedabad. It is true that these fees are sanctioned by the Legal Remembrancer but that is done on the recommendation of the District Magistrate generally, and usually the District Magistrate recommends for special fees to be sanctioned. This practice should be discontinued especially in a district like Surat where able lawyers are available to conduct cases and it should not be necessary at least in Surat to import lawyers from Ahmedabad or Bombay by giving special fees.

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: Sir, I think the procedure in appointing and the method of paying the public prosecutors have already been sufficiently explained, but as my friend, the honourable member Mr. Swaminarayan, refers me to page 108 of the White Book, B-3 (1) Pay of Officers — I ask him to observe that there are 26 Government Pleaders and the Public Prosecutor, Karachi, who have to share among them a total of Rs. 46,800 altogether for the year, which gives an average of a little over Rs. 1,500 per annum. In fact, the retaining fees which they receive are in some cases Rs. 100 and, if I am right, the maximum is Rs. 200 per mensem.

I have been asked why it is that we have only entered Rs. 1,96,700 in the budget estimate for 1928-29. The actuals in 1924-25 were rupees two lakhs thirteen thousand and odd, in 1925-26 two lakhs seven thousand and odd, in 1926-27 two lakhs twenty-five thousand and odd. We drew up an estimate on that basis which came to something over two lakhs, but we were asked by the Finance Department to cut it down and we did cut it down hoping that we might be able to realise a saving. The same thing has happened again with regard to the next year's estimate.

[Mr. J. E. B. Hotson]

We have again cut down the estimate below what we think will be required if the previous year's figures were closely followed, but we still hope that by the exercise of economy we shall contrive to bring it down. If the cases to which my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Naik referred had been given to local officers, instead of a saving under this head, we should have had another increase in the charge under this head. The fees in the cases to which he refers were paid from a different head of account and not from this head of account.

My honourable friend from Sukkur would like details. I am sorry I have not got full details up to date, but within the first six months of the year the expenditure was Rs. 1,12,000 out of a total estimate of Rs. 1,71,000, and on that average we should require Rs. 2,24,000 for the whole of the year, but we are hoping to get on with Rs. 2,16,000. Day by day demands are coming in from all districts of the presidency, asking for supplementary grants because the grants already given have been entirely used up or because they are within a few hundred of rupees being used up. These grants are being given as carefully as possible, but when we have exhausted the amount given to us by the Legislative Council, we cannot give any more unless the Legislative Council sanctions it. If the Legislative Council were not to sanction it, the result would be not that these fees would not be payable, but that we could not pay them this year and we should have to pay them next year. That would be the only difference.

As regards the public prosecutors and police prosecutors, the police prosecutors are very few and are employed in the magistrates' courts. It is the rarest possible thing for a police prosecutor to appear in a sessions court. Even for the magisterial courts there are not enough police prosecutors to go round. If there are several important cases going on in different courts in a district at one time, then the police prosecutor and his assistants, if he has any, will all be employed in the several courts, and however much the District Magistrate may desire economy, he has got to call in the only other men available, that is to say, the public prosecutor and his assistant. The police prosecutors are not ordinarily qualified to conduct cases in sessions courts and it is necessary to employ the public prosecutors. However, whatever can be done in the way of economy has been done and I am sure will continue to be done.

I may say that excise cases, though often trivial in themselves, sometimes embody very important points of principle which it is necessary to fight out and in such cases it becomes necessary to employ the best legal talent available.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: What is the total expenditure?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: My honourable friend was not in the House when I told the House that, in the first six months, Rs. 1,12,000 were spent; I have not got the later figures here.

In the particular case referred to by my honourable friend Mr. Pataskar, he seems to think that the course adopted by Government was with the intention of increasing expenditure. I cannot imagine why Government should be supposed to wish to increase expenditure, but if they did, they signally failed, because, in that case, there were no fees paid at all, neither to the local man nor to the man from Poona, because the man from Poona was in receipt of his regular pay as a Government servant, and he was not entitled to fees and he did not get any fees.

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR : Even when he was appointed prosecutor, he got no fees ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : He got no fees. I think these are all the points that have been raised which it is possible for me to answer.

Question put and carried.

Supplementary demand, covered by reappropriation from 47, Miscellaneous—Transferred to 41, Civil Works—Partly Reserved and partly Transferred, for grant-in-aid to the district local boards, Hyderabad and Thar Parkar, for repairs to roads..... Rs. 75,000.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Mr. President, I move for a supplementary grant* of Rs. 75,000 to be reappropriated from 47, Miscellaneous to 41, Civil Works. These Rs. 75,000 are to be given as a special assistance to the district local boards of Thar Parkar and Hyderabad for repairing their roads which have been damaged by the floods.

Question proposed.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : On a point of information, what is the length of the roads in these two districts for which this money is asked, and what is the nature of the roads ? Are they metalled or fair weather roads ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : The roads in these two districts have been washed away by the recent floods, and the money is intended to assist the local boards concerned to repair their roads.

Question put and carried.

Supplementary grant, covered by reappropriation from 41, Civil Works, to 31, Education, on account of stipends to graduates in Civil Engineering.....Rs, 11,000.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Sir, I move for a grant† of Rs. 11,000 to be added to the provision under 31, Education of Rs. 1,91,36,000. The item relates to stipends to graduates in Civil Engineering. It is a mere adjustment item. Up to now these stipends were provided for under 41, Civil Works, but the Accountant General ruled that the expenditure was properly debitable to 31, Education, and as a transfer of funds from one grant to another is not feasible, the amount of Rs. 11,000 has been allowed to lapse and a supplementary grant of equal amount under 31, Education is now asked for against the earmarked saving of the same amount under 41, Civil Works. I therefore submit to the House that the grant should be made.

Question proposed.

*Appendix 6. †Appendix 7.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Sir, I want some information on one point. Are these graduates required to prosecute further studies in Civil Engineering during the time they are receiving these stipends just as students in the Arts and Medical Colleges. Are these stipends paid in the shape of scholarships or are they fellowships requiring some sort of work to assist the staff on the part of the recipients ? I should like to be enlightened on this matter.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: Sir, these stipends are in the nature of fellowships to graduates who are working in the college and are helping the staff.

Question put and carried.

Supplementary grant,* covered by reappropriation from 57, Miscellaneous—Transferred to 6, Excise, for extension of the Nasik Distillery water works for the supply of water to the Nasik Central Jail.....Rs. 68,200.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: Sir, I request that a sum of Rs. 68,200 be transferred from 47, Miscellaneous to 6, Excise. The House is aware that there is a central jail shortly to be opened at Nasik near the distillery. The distillery has got water works ; water has to be provided to this jail, and it is more economical to furnish it from the water supply of the distillery. Now, the distillery being a commercial concern, the necessary charges will be levied from the Jail Department. It has been arranged that the water should be charged for at the rate of 14 annas per 1,000 gallons, but if after the completion of the work, it is found that the rate is to be less, it will be adjusted. This amount will carry interest, and this is the most economical way of supplying the jail with water.

Question proposed.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI: On a point of information, I should like to know whether there will be any additional return over and above the interest.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: At least 6 per cent. clear we must get. For the present we have decided that we should charge 14 annas per 1,000 gallons, but if after adjustment, the rate works out at a less figure, it will be adjusted.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI: I cannot understand the necessity of providing this extra water-supply.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: Otherwise, the jail will have to start a water works of its own at a cost of several lakhs of rupees. The water works are already there, and we are only supplying water to the jail by the provision of one more settling tank.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA (Bombay City, North): Sir, I think we should not let this item pass in the absence of fuller information. The Council is asked to sanction a sum of Rs. 68,200 for a settling tank, filters, etc. But before we are asked to sanction this item, we must be told what the details are. We do not know what amount is to be spent for the filters ; we do not also know whether the filters are to be of Indian make or of foreign

*Appendix 8.

[Mr. F. J. Ginwalla]

make. We do not know what the estimate is. Therefore, before we are asked to give a blank cheque, I think it is necessary that we should be supplied with more details. I would therefore ask the Honourable Minister to give more details.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : The additional purification plant at the distillery will consist of one Jewel filter Rs. 31,100 ; additional compartment for the slump tank Rs. 26,100 ; two more compartments for the filtered water Rs. 11,000 ; total Rs. 68,200.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA : Is that to be at the distillery or the jail ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : At the distillery ; it is over and above the expenditure which the Jails Department has to incur : preliminary survey Rs. 6,400 ; elevated service tank Rs. 20,000 ; distribution system Rs. 49,200 ; works establishment Rs. 3,300. The expenditure on the first items which I have read out is to be made by the Excise Department at the distillery, and the distributory system, the elevated service tank, etc., are to be put up by the Jail Department.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA : Are the articles of local manufacture, or are they to be brought from England ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : Most of the articles will be of local manufacture, but the Jewel filter will have to be ordered out from England.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : Will the expenditure that will have to be incurred for the laying out of the pipes and the service tank be borne by the Jails Department or by the Excise Department ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : That will be borne by the Jail Department. The latter expenditure on preliminary survey, the elevated service tank, etc., will be borne by the Jails Department ; the expenditure on the Jewel filter, the additional compartment for slump tank, etc., will be borne by the Excise Department.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : Will this water be chlorinated ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : Yes.

Question put and carried.

Supplementary grant for Rs. 2,93,000 by way of transfer from 52-A, Capital Outlay on Forests to 8-A, Forest Capital Outlay charged to Revenue.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : Sir, I ask for a supplementary grant* of Rs. 2,93,000 by way of transfer from 52-A, Capital Outlay on Forests to 8-A, Forest Capital Outlay charged to Revenue. Originally this House sanctioned last year Rs. 3,15,000 under 52-A, Capital Expenditure on forests. The Secretary of State has made certain rules as regards expenditure to be charged to capital. One of the rules is : " Expenditure which is less than five lakhs cannot be charged to capital unless it is shown as a paying concern." The forest railways, roads and bridges are paying concerns. But no particular profit can be put down as profit to a particular project. Therefore this amount which was sanctioned under 52-A has to be transferred to 8-A.

*Appendix 9.

[Mr. G. B. Pradhan]

Question proposed.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District): Sir, this sum of Rs. 2,93,000 is proposed to be transferred from 52-A. But I wish to point out that the sum allotted under 52-A is to be met from loans. The Honourable Minister has told us that the Secretary of State does not allow this amount to be spent from loan account. Therefore the Honourable Minister wants that this should be spent from the general balances. Another thing is that it is stated in the note that it is not productive. Lakhs of rupees are being spent year after year. It is again stated that commercial account cannot be maintained by the Forest Department. One of the tests imposed by the Secretary of State is that the loan is not available to capital expenditure on works which give a profit below 6 per cent. Another test is that a commercial account should be maintained for those works. None of these three tests are fulfilled in this case. When the finances of the presidency are so heavily taxed and when expenditure on very important heads is required I desire to have an explanation from the Honourable Minister whether this sum should be spent from the ordinary revenue.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI (Western Sind): Sir, I oppose ths grant. The budget provision for 1927-28 was Rs. 3,15,000 and the details given are—I am only referring to major items only: roads, bridges and railways Rs. 1,87,000; buildings Rs. 6,500; other works Rs. 8,000; working plants Rs. 10,000; discretionary grant with the Chief Conservator of Forests Rs. 70,000. This was to be met from the loan account and the Honourable Minister now wants that this should be charged to revenue including the sinking fund and interest charges. First of all we want to know whether this amount has actually been spent and whether it has been held in suspense. If nothing can be spent, then it is not necessary to sanction such a large amount from this year's closing balance, as we have a deficit budget. Especially in a supplementary grant of this kind, the House is entitled to know whether the money has actually been spent or has to be spent hereafter. All these matters have to be fully explained when such a huge amount is to be charged to current revenues. The House should not sanction the amount if money has not been spent. If it has not been spent it is not necessary to spend this provision which may be omitted. The House should know what amount has been spent, what amount can be spent and what amount will remain.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Sir, I wish to know whether the major head 52-A is to be closed down as it does not appear in the budget. If that is to be omitted how Government will meet the expenditure on works which will cost more than Rs. 5,00,000 ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: Sir, as regards the objection raised by my honourable friend Mr. Deshpande that this expenditure is not brought under any of these heads to show that it is productive, I want to bring to the notice of this House the income from this department from 1921-22 to 1926-27. Every year from the Forest Department there has been a surplus profit of Rs. 31 lakhs, Rs. 27 lakhs, Rs. 32 lakhs, Rs. 33 lakhs and so on. The difficulty is that a particular profit cannot be put down to a particular work.

The honourable member Mr. Pahalajani wanted to know whether the amount has been spent. Last year the Council sanctioned under 52-A a sum of Rs. 3,15,000. Out of that amount Rs. 2,93,000 have already been spent. The details are : roads, bridges, and railways Rs. 1,21,000 ; purchase of tools and stores Rs. 23,890 ; buildings Rs. 4,727 ; survey Rs. 4,000 and so on. Only Rs. 2,93,000 was spent which was debited to 52-A. A book transfer has to be made and this amount will be credited to 8-A, because the Forest Department is not able to show that a particular profit has been realised for a particular expenditure. So, the amount is spent already. The whole of the amount is not spent ; otherwise I would have asked for the transfer of the whole amount. This is only a book entry. Of course, Government have approached the Secretary of State for a change in these rules. I may assure my honourable friend Mr. Deshpande that I agree with him that such expenditure should be charged to capital, but as the rules stand at present the transfer should be made. Attempts are however, being made to see that the rules are changed.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Is the major head 52-A wholly abolished ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : I wish to be enlightened on this point whether the major head 52-A is altogether closed ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order. The honourable member never listens to the command of order but goes on speaking. I must call his attention to this very particularly.

Question put and carried.

Increase in the amount of provisional payment to be made to the Sangli State for the lease of its abkari revenue.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : Sir, I request for an additional grant* of Rs. 30,450 for 6, Excise. The note which has been placed in the hands of honourable members makes the reasons quite clear. The contract with the Sangli State expired on the 31st July 1924, and therefore an agreement for another ten years was entered into on the 1st August 1924. At the time when the agreement was made the average revenue for the three years prior to that date was to be the payment. A provisional figure of Rs. 1,15,000 was fixed, but the actual amount works out to Rs. 1,24,000 in round figures. The arrangement is that the payment is to be the average for the previous three years, and if this exceeds the provisional sum fixed, the balance should be given to the State. As the provisional amount was Rs. 1,15,000 and the actual is Rs. 1,24,000, we have to pay to the State the additional amount due to them.

*Appendix 10.

[Mr. G. B. Pradhan]

Question proposed.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR (Karachi City): Sir, I rise to oppose the demand made by the Honourable Minister for Excise. At the time when the budget was being discussed last year, we were complaining about the growing revenue from Excise which should really go down, and we expected that the Honourable Minister would follow some policy whereby, if he cannot totally abolish the drink traffic, at least reduce it to an extent that will give satisfaction to this House.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: Sir, I rise to a point of order. Is the honourable member in order when he discusses the policy of the whole Excise Department? Here I am only asking for an additional amount to be paid to a particular State which has a legitimate claim to it.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR: Sir, if you will permit me, I wish to point out that it is because the revenue is growing that the Honourable Minister is compelled to give an excess amount to the State as its legitimate share. I want him therefore not to increase the revenue, so that he may not have to make such a demand for an extra amount to be paid to a State. He must try to reduce the consumption and so reduce the yield in revenue derived from that source. That was the point I wanted to make. In this connection, since there is no likelihood of our carrying out the policy of prohibition, at least the Government carrying out the policy of abolishing this drink traffic, before a particular year, will this Council be justified in allowing this grant. If we allow this grant to be made, it means that we shall become parties to this drink traffic. Sir, we have so often expressed in this House.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. The honourable member has heard the ruling before this to-day and knows what the ruling was in the last session. The Honourable Minister has also pointed out that he has to confine his remarks to the demand made and not enter upon a general discussion of the excise policy of the Government of Bombay. He would be out of order, if he did that.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR: Then, it is only a matter of figures. Since the Honourable Minister has placed the figures before us, it means that we have got merely to sanction it. That is what it comes to.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: There was a general discussion of the budget for three days, and further there are items coming before the House later on, and occasions would arise for honourable members to speak about the prohibition policy.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA (Bombay City, North): Sir, I rise to oppose this grant. In doing so, I want to draw the attention of the honourable House to page 39 of the Blue Book where an explanation is given of the policy of compensations. In paragraph 25 of the Blue Book it is stated that the increase of five lakhs in the ensuing year's estimate as compared with the current year's revised estimate is due to the provision made for this liability. From this paragraph it appears that the principle is :

" In the case of those Indian States whose abkari administration is managed by Government the entire revenue collected within the State limits is made over to them."

That means to say, that Government do not deduct anything for the collection charges incurred by them. Surely, if we collect revenue for some body else, we must get the collection charges. Why should the British Government be so liberal to the Indian States that they should hand over the whole amount to them ?

The next point is, it is further stated in this paragraph :

" The country spirit consumed in these territories is supplied at the rates charged to retail licensed vendors in the neighbouring British districts. These rates are somewhat higher than the actual cost to Government. It is now proposed to pay to the States in question the difference between the rates charged to the retail vendors and the actual cost (including all overhead charges) to Government and to bring this change into force from the year 1925-26. It will therefore be necessary to pay to the States the excess amount for the years 1925-26 and 1926-27. The increase of 87 in the revised estimates as compared with the current year's sanctioned estimate is due to this cause and to the increase from 1,15 to 1,24 per annum of the amount of the provisional payment to the Sangli State for the lease of its country spirit revenue. "

It goes on to state :

" The Indian States whose abkari administration is managed by Government are as a rule paid a provisional amount fixed with reference to the average revenue of the three years preceding the commencement of the current lease. This payment is subsequently adjusted with reference to the actual revenue realized, if this is in excess of the provisional amount paid, the adjustment taking place at the end of the third, sixth and tenth year of the lease. The current leases of most of the States commenced from 1st August 1924 and the first adjustment has now to be made. The increase of 5,08 in the ensuing year's estimate as compared with the current year's revised estimate is due to the provision made for this liability. "

Sir, the net result is that the Honourable Minister wants to make a present of five lakhs to Indian States. The Council is not aware of the reasons of the principle on which Government propose to make this grant. They propose to pay to the States the difference between the rates charged to the retail vendors and the actual cost (including all overhead charges) to Government. I therefore want to know from the Honourable Minister why he proposes to make a present of five lakhs more to Indian States in addition to the 13 lakhs compensation which he already pays. I think, Sir, that in these times of retrenchment something should be charged to the Indian States towards the cost of managing the excise administration of their territory. It is of course true that we have taken over their administration for the purpose of carrying out a certain policy of ours, but all the same, in fairness to us, the States must agree to give us some portion of the revenue for the purpose of managing their affairs.

Mr. HOOSEINBHOY ABDULLABHOY LALLJEE (Bombay City) : Sir, I oppose this grant. I am not satisfied with the reasons given by the Honourable Minister. I find, Sir, that nearly Rs. 9,000 more are to be sanctioned for the Sangli State as regards the consumption of liquor. I would like to know from the Honourable

[Mr. Hooseinbhoy Abdullabhoy Lalljee]

Minister if the average revenue from this source is increased within the last three years, how is it that it will also be the same in the next three years? I should also like to know from the Honourable Minister whether any steps have been taken consistent with the policy that Government intends to adopt with regard to rationing, or whether the abkari officers in the States are given a free hand to go on increasing the consumption of liquor. It so happens that these abkari officers more than the Government themselves, especially in the Native States, go on increasing the consumption in order to get more revenue. Sangli State is very near the Satara district where Government want to introduce the policy of prohibition. Therefore, Government should try to check the consumption of liquor in this State. We find that Indian States go on increasing their consumption of liquor by 10 per cent. every year. I should certainly like to know from the Honourable Minister as to who is responsible for this increase of consumption. I submit, Sir, that if we go on giving the States more money, they will go on extending the consumption of liquor in their States. I therefore oppose this increase in the grant.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Sir, I am opposed to this grant, because I know that this Government is always in the habit of pleasing the princes. They even go out of the way at times and allow a Principal to lodge a Prince as a boarder in a Government bungalow. Government are very solicitous in doing service to the princes.

Sir, we find that a gratuitous work is being done by the Government of Bombay who say that the entire revenue is given away to the States. The Government further say that they have entered into a contract for ten years. I would like to know from the Honourable Minister whether the revenue of the State is calculated by the officers or there are other officers engaged by this Government to take out an estimate of revenue. I want to know in what way they are calculating revenue. Have they employed any men for the purpose of the excise administration in the States? If Government is giving a blank cheque to the officers of the State and at the same time if they are giving them a certain amount as compensation, then I may submit, Sir, that Government should discontinue such a practice and they should not do this gratuitous work at all for the States. What Government should do is this. They should adopt the prohibition policy in the districts as well as in the States. Government should try to have control on the consumption of liquor in the Indian States.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Sir, I should like to say a few words with regard to the observations made by the honourable member from Ahmedabad (Mr. J. C. Swaminarayan). In the first place, I repudiate the insinuation of fraud against the Indian States. Even if they attempt to do so, Government will not allow themselves to be defrauded by them. Government manage the whole liquor administration and compensate them in proportion to the liquor consumed in their areas. My honourable friend says " if Government would give a free scope to the States in the consumption of liquor, it would come in the way of Government in adopting the policy of prohibition which is their aim." I may submit, Sir, that it is nothing of the kind. Our policy of prohibition has nothing to do with it. We have no control over the liquor policy in the States. If we do not stick to the present arrangement, the States may manufacture their own liquor and sell it at reduced rates and thereby increase drunkenness among their people and ours, and this may also lead to smuggling and may also affect our revenue. We have been charging in the States the same price that is charged elsewhere. Whatever the consumption is, we pay in proportion. If there is a reduction in the consumption, then we pay less.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI (Kaira District): Sir, I would like to point out to the Honourable Minister with regard to the supply of liquor to the Indian States, that since we have adopted the policy of prohibition, I cannot understand why the Minister does not induce the Indian States to assimilate our policy. On the contrary, Sir, we have been the indirect means of increasing the consumption of liquor in their territory. (Moulvi Rafiuddin Ahmad: How?) Because, if the consumption of liquor in their territory is more in the subsequent three years, then for the previous three years our distilleries would supply to them an increased ration, that is only an increased quantity is consumed by them. We should not be a party to this sort of encouragement in an evil which we ourselves have decided to prohibit in our own country. So, if the Honourable Minister just brings it to the notice of these States that it would be far better on their part to assimilate the British policy than come to the British Government and ask for more liquor, that would be right and proper. In this connection I may point out an instance, that of the British Parliament. The British Parliament, in order to introduce their foreign liquor in Chinese territory, they may have been swayed by pure motives, but the British Parliament induced the Indian Government not to do any opium business with the Chinese Government and obliged the Indian Government to such an extent as to forego six crores of revenue, on the ostensible ground that it was not fair on the part of the Indian Government —which after all was a subordinate of the British Government— that China should be poisoned and demoralized by a dependency of theirs, that is India. So, if this principle is logically extended, if this principle is followed by this Government, they can very well ask the Indian States to assimilate our policy of prohibition. In any case, I would not be a party to supplying liquor to these Indian States so long as the policy of prohibition is our guiding policy. I was asked to propose an alternative, and I have just brought this to the Honourable Minister's notice.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District): Sir, I had no intention of taking part in this debate, because I think it is a simple question. That the administration of the Abkari Department of the Indian States should, as far as possible, be in the hands of the British Government, is a self-evident proposition. If we want to introduce uniformity, and if, as has been resolved by this House, prohibition is our goal, then the administration of the Abkari Department in the Indian States also, as they are situated in the middle of the British territory, should be in our hands. But I think the policy which has been introduced in the British districts with regard to the rationing of liquor ought to have been introduced in the administration of the Abkari Department in the Indian States also. I am not sure whether His Highness the Chief of Sangli has given his consent or has accepted the policy of gradual prohibition. But I know for certain that the Chief of Aundh has expressed his desire that he would like that his territory should be made dry along with the neighbouring British territory. I should like to know whether the rationing in the Aundh State is reduced by 10 per cent. as is the case with the district of Satara. If rationing is not brought in operation in Aundh, Sir, then we are not following the right policy. If we are allowing the Indian States to consume as much liquor as they like, when we are going to reduce the consumption in the British districts, the natural consequence would be for people living in the contiguous territory to cross the border and consume as much liquor as they like in the other territory. Well this will certainly come in the way of bringing about prohibition in our territory, which has been the policy which has been settled by this House and also accepted by Government. As I said just now, it is necessary that this grant ought to be made because the demand that is made by the States is just and we have to take this fact into account. But I want to criticise the policy of Government in not introducing the rationing policy, which is the recognised policy in the British territory, into the Indian State territory, and therefore, I hope that in future contracts, whenever any will be made, the condition of rationing should be put in them. I am sure that the enlightened Chiefs of Indian States would readily accept the suggestion and thus try to save thereby their subjects from the evils arising from larger consumption of liquor. I see several honourable gentlemen on the opposite side shaking their heads. But, with all deference to them, I shall say that the rulers of Indian States have the welfare of their subjects very much at heart and, therefore, they ought to be credited with the desire to improve the lot of their subjects. I am very sorry the Honourable the Education Minister is not convinced by this argument, as I see him shaking his head. Perhaps this may be due to his knowledge of the Chiefs on his side. But he will allow me to tell him that I know some of the Chiefs in the Central and Southern Divisions, and I have got a better opinion of their solicitude for the welfare of their subjects. I suggest therefore that whenever agreements may be made in future, it will be much better, and I think it will be more dignified for Government, to introduce the condition about rationing and in this way gradually bring about prohibition or, at all events, moderation in the consumption of liquor in the Indian States as far as possible.

Mr. J. MONTEATH: I move the closure.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I accept it.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : Mr. President, I would first of all answer the last points of my honourable friends Rao Saheb Desai and Mr. Jadhav. Now, I can assure this honourable House that we approached almost each and every Indian State to permit us to introduce rationing and also restriction of shops. Excepting only two, so far as I remember, none agreed. These two also laid down certain very difficult conditions.....

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : Who are these honourable two ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : I think one is Aundh, and I do not remember the other. Most of the States said that " We are not going to allow you to interfere with our excise administration if you are going to dabble like that. " They said " It is practically because you want to follow a particular policy that we are allowing you to handle our excise administration ; otherwise we are not prepared to renew the contracts. Also.....

Mr. HOOSEINBHOY ABDULLABHOY LALLJEE : What policy are you following ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : Let my honourable friend be patient. Two honourable members wanted to know as to why we make these contracts with the Indian States. By making these contracts with the Indian States we prohibit them from manufacturing liquor within their territories and smuggling it in our territory. We sell their shops, we manage everything for them ; otherwise if we do not do so, then they manufacture liquor, and that liquor crosses our frontier. That liquor finds its way to the British territory. So, in order to follow the policy of prohibition.....(Interruption by two or three honourable members).....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The Honourable Minister does not yield.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : My honourable friend Mr. Swaminarayan wants to know what are our inspectors doing ? They are doing their duty. But it is impossible for the inspectors or any amount of staff to guard the whole frontier in such a way, especially when there is liquor, specially cheap liquor, manufactured in Indian State territory, as to prevent it from pouring into the British territory. That is why the British Government thought that it was more prudent and in the furtherance of the policy which they have adopted that the excise rights of all these neighbouring States should be taken by them, that none of those States should be allowed to manufacture their own liquor or to sell liquor at lower prices because we are asked to make the liquor dear. The whole administration of excise is taken by the British Government and all these shops are sold by them, the whole administration is run by them and that is why they do not charge anything for administration charges. My honourable friend Mr. Ginwalla wanted to know why we do not take even the expense of management. My answer is that because we stop them from manufacturing their liquor, we stop them from lowering prices and we stop them from sending liquor into our territory.

[Mr. G. B. Pradhan]

The honourable member Mr. Hooseinbhoy Lalljee wanted to know whether the money would be employed in extending the consumption of liquor. If he will read the second note, he will find that what we have got to pay is actually regulated by the amount of consumption which they show during the last three years of the preceding lease.

My honourable friend Mr. Swaminarayan again started the same question and he said that Indian States are deceiving the British Government. I suppose he thinks that the British officers concerned with these States are all boobies to allow any such thing like that. The liquor is supplied by the British Government, there are no distilleries there, we know exactly what quantity we supply ; all the shops are sold by us. Where does the question of deceiving come in ? The whole administration is in our hands. I submit that the Council will be pleased to sanction the grant asked for.

Question put and carried.

(After recess)

Payment* of ' Gain on liquor ' to Indian States whose abkari administration has been taken on lease.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : Sir, I make a demand :

That Rs. 57,000 be debited from 47 Miscellaneous Transferred and added to 6, Excise—Transferred for payment of ' gain on liquor ' to Indian States whose abkari adminstration has been taken on lease.

This amount will be Rs. 57,000 representing the gain on liquor as I explained to this honourable House at the time of the general budget discussion. I then told this honourable House that we sell liquor to our shopkeepers at a certain rate. That rate does not actually represent the cost of manufacture. Over and above the cost of manufacture, we charge a certain profit and we charge the same rate for the liquor which we supply to the Indian States. The Indian States now contend that that which we charge as an extra amount over and above the cost of manufacture for the liquor which is consumed in their territories legitimately belongs to them and this right of theirs was supported by all the political agents and the claim having been found to be equitable and just, Government have had to admit it and so for the years 1925-26 and 1926-27 we have got to pay Rs. 57,000 as the extra amount for gains on liquor. The arrangement is that if during the previous three years it is found that the contractual amount which we pay to the State is more than the amount which would be legitimately due to that State based upon the consumption, then we deduct the gain on liquor from the excess amount which we pay. Then we do not pay, so that we only give this excess amount to the States where the legitimate share of revenue allotted to them is equivalent to the previous three years which they can claim.

Question proposed.

Mr. HOOSEINBHOY ABDULLABHOY LALLJEE (Bombay City) : Sir, I rise to oppose this grant. In opposing this grant I wish to place before this House certain facts to show that we are really losing all this money because the policy which our Government has laid down does not seem to have been faithfully followed. We have laid down a policy that we should reduce our liquor consumption by five per cent. every year.

[Mr. Hooseinbhoy Abdullabhoy Lalljee]

Now, Sir, what does the present demand mean ? It only means that in our British territory we reduce our consumption by 5 per cent. every year, but at our next door we allow the Indian States to consume as much liquor as they like ; we supply them with as much liquor as they want, with the result that we reduce consumption in our shops, whereas the Indian States increase it in their shops. That is to say, we are actually losing this money and it is paid to the Indian States. It has been stated that if we do not supply the Indian States with the total quantity of liquor that they require, they will not agree to the arrangement that has been going on for so many years, that they will manufacture cheap liquor, and they will smuggle it into our territory. I ask Government in all earnestness, how was it that they are able to manage to get these people, I mean Indian States, to agree to place their abkari administration under our control ? It was because the British Government thought that it was wise that these small States must not smuggle liquor into British territory, and they must follow a policy which is not inconsistent with the policy of the British Government ; and if Government can prevail upon these States to forego making cheap liquor and give the administration of their abkari arrangements, in the interest of their people, to us, Government can equally well ask the States to follow the same policy which is being followed in British India. If that cannot be done, I say we ought to take steps to stop smuggling. We can do it, because we know that the Indian States cannot grow opium, nor can they bring opium into British territories. We also know that arrangements are in existence to stop the smuggling of salt. However, if we cannot do that, I should certainly say that all that we are doing for a reduction of consumption by 5 per cent. every year is simply a farce, that we are actually losing our revenue, and that the people of this province as well as those of the Indian States are as hard drunk as they used to be. Sir, we are not charging them anything for entrusting us with the administration of their abkari department, and now they come forward and say " Give us the profit out of the liquor trade." If we allow them this latitude, it only means that we encourage increased consumption of liquor in Indian States, and we encourage the rulers of those States to go on increasing their liquor traffic. So, it must now be clearly stated by Government whether we can control them or not and if we cannot control them then we ought not to follow the policy that we have adopted, and we should tell the public at large that we are helpless, that the policy we have laid down is not the correct policy in the opinion of Government and that it is a farce. I should certainly like the Honourable Minister to tell us frankly whether he can follow the policy laid down by this House effectively. It is no use reducing consumption by 5 per cent. from our shops at the border and giving to the Indian States that quantity or any quantity they like. There is no restriction there ; we can reduce here by 5 per cent., and they can increase it by 10 per cent. Therefore, we are actually losing money. Let Government say they are unable to do anything. Having once laid down the policy, it is no use doing like this. For these reasons, it is high time that the Honourable Minister should clearly tell the House what our actual position is, rather than lead the people to believe that we are following an effective policy, whereas in reality we are following a policy which is not in effect a policy which would save our finances or our people from drink, vice and ruination.

[Mr. Hooseinbhoy Abdullabhoy Lalljee]

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA (Bombay City, North) : Sir, I also rise to oppose the demand, for the reasons which have been more or less advanced by my honourable friend Mr. Hooseinbhoy Lalljee. Sir, at one time we were told by Government that they are going to follow the policy of prohibition. Assuming that by following this policy we make British India dry in twenty years, then the question arises, what about the Indian States. If Government are not going to bring pressure to bear upon the Indian States to follow the same policy which is followed in British India, it comes to this, that British India is going to be dry, but all the drinkers will go to the Indian States. Therefore, the question is this : are Government going to encourage the Indian States to continue to remain wet when British India is becoming dry ? I say, this charge is admitted by Government on the ground of equity, fairness and justice, but, at the same time, they are not prepared to force the Indian States to accept our policy, namely, that the States also should go dry. If the States adopt a recalcitrant attitude, then I would ask the Honourable Minister to take up a strong attitude and tell them " If you are not prepared to fall in line with our policy, then we are not prepared to pay you anything." Unless and until Government take up a strong attitude, I do not believe the Indian States will come to their senses. I therefore hope that the House will try to strengthen the hands of the Honourable Minister by refusing this grant.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Sir, the terms of the contract which Government had with the Indian States before 31st July 1924 were changed. Now, when they changed these terms and admitted a fresh claim on the part of the Indian States it was necessary for them to come before this House and to take its verdict, whether we desired that these new concessions should be given to the Indian States or not. But even while entering upon a far-reaching change in the terms in the matter of renewing the leases, Government have not come to this House and taken the House into their confidence. Now, when payment has to be made, they come before the House and ask the House to give them this amount. Did they, when admitting a fresh claim in 1925, tell us that they had admitted this additional claim on the part of the Indian States ? No. They sat silent for three years, and now they come forward and tell us to sanction this additional amount of money on account of the new conditions introduced into the leases. This is not the way in which they ought to have done this business involving a change of policy.

[Mr. J. C. Swaminarayan]

When Government take over the abkari administration of these States, I want to find out what benefit they get. The Honourable Minister ignores that deceptions and frauds are going on. I have got experience of it in Mahi Kantha Agency, and I have had instances of certain States actually putting pressure on Government for extra compensation. Therefore, Government ought to prevent money leaking out in this way. They have to enquire into these matters. But they do not care to enquire into these matters; they merely sit here without any enquiry, and we are not properly heard when we make any suggestions from our own experience gained in the course of our tours and travels. They bring forward such matters before the Council and our criticism is not cared for. However, on the ground that the Government did not care to take the House into its confidence when making contracts on the new basis, I think it would be wise on our part to reject this claim on the part of the Indian States.

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR (East Khandesh District): Sir, I wish to offer a few remarks with regard to this item which has to be considered with the previous item. The whole question has to be considered from the point of view of utility. In the first place, we find that we have to give these States whose abkari management we have undertaken; and that we have to give the difference between the cost price of the liquor manufactured and the price at which it is sold to the States. As a business proposition there is absolutely no margin to this Government. The Honourable Minister stated that the only consideration was that otherwise the State would manufacture liquor cheaper and import it into British territory. If we are in a position to take up abkari administration of all the Indian States bordering on the British territory, it would have been an acceptable proposition. But as a matter of fact many of the bigger States are not willing to enter into any contract with this Government and States which have entered into contract are petty States. So, supposing a time comes when this presidency adopts the policy of prohibition we cannot enter into any such contract. There is no gain by these contracts with the Indian States, except the idea to prevent their importing into British territory. I think it would be better to take steps to prevent such importation than to take up the administration which is no gain to us. I hope this view will be accepted.

An Honourable MEMBER: I move the closure.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I accept the closure.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: Sir, with regard to the point raised by my honourable friend Mr. Hoosseinbhoy Lalljee as a matter of fact the leases from the Indian States were taken up even before the policy of rationing was adopted by this Government. Then Government adopted the rationing policy and for three successive years rationing was applied to the Indian States also. Then the Indian States kicked up a row and stated that they were not going to allow any rationing and that they were going to have a free hand. Then the question before the Government was whether to enter into contract with them or to allow them to have their own excise administration, with the result that they might manufacture any liquor with liberty to send it to our people. Government after considering the matter made the rationing 15 per cent. in the States, while it was 25 per cent. here. The Indian States insisted that rationing should not exceed that figure in their territory.

As regards the action of petty officers in Indian States raised by the honourable member Mr. J. C. Swaminarayan, I do not think it is possible to make any inquiry unless the honourable member brings to my notice any specific instance. The second point raised by the same honourable member why Government should not take this House into confidence with regard to the claim for gain on liquor, I may state to the honourable House that the correspondence with regard to the claim was started only last year. Some correspondence went on and after considering the pros and cons of the question it was found that the claim must be allowed. The claim has not yet been paid. So, before the claim is paid we want to bring it to the notice of the Council. Their claim for last two years was worked out at Rs. 57,000. Government have further decided that in the case of those States for which provisional payment has been fixed at more than the average annual revenue of the three preceding years, the gain on liquor should be reduced by the difference in the amount between the amount of the provisional payment and the actual revenue.

Question put and carried.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Before we get on to the next item, I wish to point out to the House that we have to get through 12 more items of supplementary grants. I doubt whether it would be possible to get through all of them to-day. If it cannot be finished to-day, I do not know whether the House would like to come to some agreement with the Honourable the Leader of the House as to whether the supplementary demands should be continued to-morrow, or whether the budget demands are to be taken up to-morrow, so that the remaining items of supplementary grant may be taken up on some other Government day.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: With regard to what you said, Sir, we allotted three days for Government business, before demands for grants are taken up. This is the third day and we have taken up such bills as were absolutely necessary. In view of shortness of time we then asked that the supplementary grants might be taken up, because they must be disposed of before the year ends. There are yet 12 items to be dealt with. One of them, I understand, is important which will take some time. I may explain to you and the House that I have just received a note from the honourable member Mr. Pahalajani that the consideration of the statutory motion No. XI on the agenda is most important. I cannot take up the statutory motion until the supplementary grants and Government Resolution No. 10 which is to be moved by the Honourable the Revenue Member for railway expenditure in Sind are disposed of. That resolution must be passed by the House so that we may inform the Government of India that the railway may be undertaken. The Government of India have informed us that they consider it most urgent and want a reply as soon as possible from this Government. Therefore the House will see that the supplementary grant and Government resolution No. 10 must be disposed of within the three days of Government business plus an additional day that was allotted for emergency. It is for the House to consider how they will deal with these urgent matters and whether they would like to continue the supplementary grants to-morrow in case they are not finished to-day. I am told by some honourable members that the supplementary grants may be continued to-morrow. (An Honourable member : 14th). It will be very difficult to allot any more days. I am sure honourable members will feel pretty tired at the end of one month the Council will be in session. It is for them to consider how much time they will give. The important point I wish to know is whether they want to make to-morrow a Government day or whether demands for grants may be taken up to-morrow, because I am told that many members want that supplementary grants should be finished to-morrow.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District) : Sir, some members have gone to attend Local Board elections. As originally arranged it would be better to take up the remaining supplementary grants on the 14th. If necessary Government must give one more day. The sense of the House that the supplementary grants should be adjourned to the 14th should be adhered to by Government.

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO (Larkana District) : Sir, I would like to make one suggestion. In Government business there are many important matters, which have got to be discussed just as statutory motions of which the honourable member Mr. Pahalajani and the honourable member Mr. Jairamdas have given notices. Therefore they may be taken up to-morrow. I am sure after three weeks of Council session it is very likely that many members would like to return home. I therefore think that Government business should be taken up to-morrow. I therefore think that the House may agree to allow Government to take supplementary grants and other Government business to-morrow.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Do I understand the honourable member correctly, that he proposes that the supplementary grants should continue to-morrow ?

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO : Supplementary grants and other Government business.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : I do oppose the proposal. I do not think, this House can arrange that. According to the rules the days for voting of demands are fixed not by the House, not by the Government, not by the Chair, but by His Excellency the Governor. Now these days have been fixed, and the particular days, twelve days, are there, and that being so neither this Council nor the Government nor the Chair can change the dates fixed.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Sir, may I ask the honourable member whether the dates are fixed by His Excellency or only the twelve days ?

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: The dates are fixed according to the notice we have got. According to the notice, from Tuesday, February 28 right up to Tuesday March 13, voting of demands for grants continues. That is the programme that has been sent to us. You have got a copy of it.

Rule 29 says:

"(1) Not more than twelve days shall be allotted by the Governor for the discussion of the demands of the local Government for grants.

"(2) Of the days so allotted, not more than two days shall be allotted by the Governor to the discussion of any one demand....."

So that, with due deference to Government, I may even go further and say that when His Excellency the Governor once fixes the dates, he is functus officio and cannot change them. Every other business must give way to that business. If Government wants they can extend the number of days and take up this business on the 14th, 15th or 16th. It is for His Excellency the Governor to extend the number of days. But so far as the twelve days that are already fixed are concerned, they have been fixed under the statutory rules made by Parliament and not under the Standing Orders made by us, and therefore they cannot now be changed.

Then, as a matter of principle also, on behalf of the elected members, I object to any change being made. We are strongly against any change in the dates for voting of grants. Those are important and we cannot afford to change our programme and allow Government to change the days for the most important business. Does the Honourable the Leader of the House mean that the Governor can go on postponing these days further and further? (The Honourable Sir Chunilal Mehta: Yes, The Government can.) That is absurd: that is not intended by the Rule.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: May I say, Sir, in reply to the honourable member for Sukkur, that Rule 29 simply says that the Governor shall fix the number of days.....

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: And allot the days.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: "Days" and not "dates." The wording is "not more than twelve days shall be allotted." Read that, Sir, with Standing Order IV (1) at page 238:

"The Government may arrange Government business in such order as it deems fit; Government business shall be deemed to include statutory motions."

Sir, on this question, as you are aware, there was a long discussion between Government and the Honourable the President, and in consequence of that it was ruled that the arrangement of dates as sent out is only provisional subject to any changes that Government may desire to make. Government have in the past, as you are aware, declared on the day previous what business they would take up the next day. Government are entirely, under both the Rules and the Standing Orders, possessed of the power of arranging their business in any way they like. They have always tried to meet the wishes of the House. In this case also, we do not in the least wish to inconvenience the House, but I do not think that I on behalf of Government can give up the power which Government now possess. There are certain matters which are most urgent and which Government must get through within a certain time, and if power was not given to Government to alter the arrangement of business in a way that will allow these matters to be disposed of, then the House can spend an inordinate amount of time on certain questions and crowd out the matters that are important. That, Sir, should not be allowed and hence the wording of the Rules and the Standing Orders.

[Sir Chunilal Mehta]

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : The President can regulate it.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : It is not for the President, if I may say so, with great respect ; it is for Government ; it is not even for the Governor.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : It is not Government business.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Supplementary Demands are Government business,—I am talking of Supplementary Demands now,—and so is the Government resolution standing in the name of the Honourable the Revenue Member. I cannot divest Government of the power that they possess. But I mention this point just now in order that we may be informed what would suit the convenience of the honourable members of the House. Government will then come to a decision as it may deem fit. There are several honourable members of the House who desire that the supplementary demands should be taken up to-morrow. There is another section which wishes that the supplementary demands, if not finished to-day, should be taken over to the 14th. It will be for Government to come to a decision in this matter, but I must resist any attempt on the part of honourable members to deprive Government of the power that they now possess.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I wanted to save time, but this discussion itself is taking much time. There is no doubt that the Rules and Standing Orders read by the Honourable the Leader of the House do not mention " dates " but " days." At the same time, the honourable member Mr. Pahalajani is perfectly right in saying that so far we have had from His Excellency the Governor a programme of work, if I may call it so, where actual dates have been given.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Not from His Excellency, Sir.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : I am not very definite about it, but I have received a programme where the dates are mentioned ; it is stated that a particular kind of business will be taken up on certain days. I believe, it is not from the Government, but from the Governor.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : Sir, it is the Governor who prepares the programme of the Council.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I shall have to refer to that paper. I want to find out the source through which this office has received that paper.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: Sir, so far as the budget demands are concerned, it is not for Government to regulate the work, but the Governor in his personal capacity alone can do it. Rule 29 makes it quite clear that "not more than 12 days will be allowed by Governor" (and not by Government). This is the position.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: We cannot go beyond the rules laid down in the Standing Orders. What I understand from the Honourable the Leader of the House is this. He does not dispute about the number of days allotted for the discussion of the demands for grants. He wishes to draw a distinction between "days" and "dates." That is "days" should not to be mixed up with "dates." At the same time I may say that the honourable member, Mr. Pahalajani, is perfectly correct that this Council as well as the honourable members do receive a paper—call it an "agenda" or a "programme"—indicating the work, which will be taken up on particular dates. I have sent for that paper to see whether that communication is made by His Excellency's office or Government.

The important question with which I am concerned is this. Do I understand from the Honourable the Leader of the House correctly that he wishes to obtain the wishes of the House as to what they would like the Government to do? If that is expressed, do I understand that the Honourable the Leader of the House is prepared to accept it? If that is so, I shall find out the opinion of this House.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: It is certainly an important factor to which due weight will be given. But I submit that Government cannot bind itself to follow any wishes that the House may express either by majority or unanimously.. ....

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM: Then why should you take the opinion of this House?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: When the question of interpretation of the rules of the Standing Orders is being discussed, I cannot for a moment agree to any suggestion that would deprive this Government of the power that they possess. We shall, no doubt, give the utmost consideration to the wishes expressed by this House. In this House there are various sections. I understand there is one section which is quite desirous of continuing to-morrow the supplementary demands and there is another which says that they should be postponed till the 14th of March next. Therefore, I say that Government will give consideration to the wishes of honourable members but it cannot bind itself to accept that opinion.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I have got here the paper which fixes the dates and to which the honourable member, Mr. Pahalajani, refers. That has been forwarded by the Chief Secretary. It is stated there:

"Copy forwarded to the Secretary, Legislative Council, for necessary action with an intimation that the programme has been approved by His Excellency the Governor. By order of the Governor in-Council."

[The President]

The paper is sent by the Chief Secretary and not by the Private Secretary. Besides, it says :

" By order of the Governor-in-Council."

Therefore, I do not think that this House or myself will be right in disputing the statement made by the Honourable the Leader of the House. I now want to know from the Honourable the Leader of the House whether he is prepared to abide by the opinion of this House, if I ask the House to express it.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : We cannot abide by their opinion. We shall give it our due consideration.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Is this question to be determined by the majority of the House ? I take it from the statement of the Honourable the Leader of the House that he would give due consideration to the feelings of the sections in this House and abide by it. Is it so ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : No. That is not so. I think we need not further discuss the point. I simply want that both sides of the House should come to an agreement and we should clearly understand what we have to do to-morrow. The Honourable the Leader of the House has made it quite clear that he does not give up the right of Government by accepting the opinion of the House one way or the other. He, however, says that he will give his due consideration to the wishes expressed by this House. I want to know if the House desires me to take its opinion and find out what their wishes are.

Honourable MEMBERS : No. no.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : It seems that the House does not wish to express its opinion. I, therefore, leave this question to the Government Benches to settle.

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : Sir, I ask for a supplementary* grant of :—

" Rs. 15,000 from 47-Miscellaneous Reserved to be transferred to 24-Administration of Justice—Law Officers—High Court Pleaders– Contingencies."

This is as a result of certain heavy expenditure incurred on appeals in the Khoti suits with the history of which the House is well acquainted. This is merely a book item. It will be spent on court-fees and will be received as court-fees. So, there is nothing in the way of actual expenditure. I, therefore, hope that the House will agree to this grant.

Question proposed.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District) : Sir, may I speak on the point of information ?. I want to know from the Honourable the Home Member that if Rs. 15,000 are paid in the way of the court-fees, there will be a proportionate increase in the fees to be paid to the Government pleader. If that is so, then that expenditure will be in addition to this item.

---

* Appendix 12.

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: There may be further expenditure in that respect. But it does not follow that there will be.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA (Bombay City, North): Sir, I rise to oppose this grant. You will see, Sir, that in this item we find that Government have incurred heavy expenditure on appeals in Khoti suits. But if you go to another item what do we find? The next item says:

"In February 1914 Government prescribed new forms of kabulayat for the district. Certain khots refused to pass the new kabulayats and their villages were consequently attached in 1916."

Now, Sir, we all know that Government had to incur this expenditure for which this grant is demanded, on account of filing 76 Khoti suits. I want to know from the Honourable the Home Member as to who is responsible for this litigation. Sir, I am unable to understand why when certain khots refused to pass the kabulayats their villages were attached in 1916. I want to know, who is the officer responsible for these despotic methods? That is an answer I want to know, not from the local officers but from the Honourable the Home Member, as to who is the gentleman responsible for this measure and who was the Legal Remembrancer who advised Government to attach these villages. We do not know why Government and public moneys are wasted in this fashion. At least the legal advisers of Government should know better that these methods are wrong, and they should know what are their rights before launching into suits. And in the next item, the Honourable the Revenue Member asks another demand, item No. 10, also for a similar purpose. Therefore, I say, Sir, that this House insists and warns the executive that "if you make such mistakes and follies, this House is not going to endorse the follies." Therefore, I say this expenditure is not justified, and a vote of censure should be passed on the honourable members who are responsible for the prosecution of these khots and this House should throw out the demand.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District): Sir, I want to know whether this amount is actually spent from the Miscellaneous Reserve. Rs. 15,000 have been debited to that head, and so, how is it a book transaction? I wish to understand it from the honourable mover of the demand. Again, one thing more, Sir. After filing these suits against these khots, Government have put themselves into heavy expenditure. The cases were remanded by the High Court to the district court, and after the decision of the district court, that for a paltry thing of mesne profits this Government should again file an appeal is strange, and in that case if the appeal is decided again against Government, this House will have to go in for another expenditure. So, before filing such appeals Government may have been taking legal opinion of the Legal Remembrancer and others, but we find that Government could not have received proper advice. If Government were well advised in filing appeals, I think Government would have saved a useful amount. So, I think some explanation is necessary in regard to this demand.

Mr. S. K. BOLE: Sir, I rise to support this grant. I am afraid that the activities of my honourable friend Mr. Ginwalla are only confined to the city of Bombay. He is watching the interests of tenants of the city of Bombay. But he does not know what is happening outside Bombay. In Ratnagiri and Kolaba it will be seen that these khots are harassing the poor tenants, and Government received several complaints about the harassments of the tenants and they wanted to ascertain what was the clear position of these khots, and therefore, to ascertain that position, they filed these suits in order to safeguard the interests of the tenants. Government therefore filed suits against the khots but unfortunately they failed. Under these circumstances I think it is but right that the expenditure that is incurred in this connection must be sanctioned by this House.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: Mr. President, as the suits relate to Kolaba district, I know something about these suits. These suits originally referred to certain kabulayats to which the khots objected. Government attached their villages. Then, there was a suit or several suits by the khots to get it declared that Government have got no right to ask the khots to pass such kabulayats. They lost in the original court, the lower court, but in the High Court, on appeal, the decision of the lower court was reversed. Then, as the villages were attached, the suits were remanded by the High Court to the district court for ascertaining the mesne profits. So, these appeals relate to the mesne profits. Now, the original court, the District Judge of Thana, passed certain orders as regards the mesne profits. Naturally, as Government did not accept the decision of the original or lower court, they appealed against the decision to get them modified. The note says: "Apeals have been ordered to be filed against the decrees of the District Court in respect of the balance still due." In certain cases Government do not accept the decision of the trial court as regards the mesne profits in respect of the kabulayats which had been decided by the original court, and so this expenditure has cropped up.

Mr. S. A. SARDESAI (Bijapur District): Sir, I think I must oppose this demand because it does not appear to be an innocent one. The Honourable the Home Member in making the demand says that it would mean an increase of revenue to Government because the court-fee stamps are to be purchased. Of course, that is quite true, but the drafting of memos. of appeal is not the final thing. Government have to carry on litigation further and a good deal will have to be spent as lawyers' fees, etc. Therefore, this demand does not seem to me to be an innocent one, and so on principle it must be opposed.

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: I have nothing further to say

Question put and carried.

Damages awarded in remanded Khoti Suits

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: Sir, I move a demand* for Rs. 80,515 to be provided by transfer from 47-Miscellaneous—Reserved—to 5-Land Revenue. This demand arises out of the same litigation as has been just referred to, and it is only a question of paying into court the sums decreed by the District Court of Thana, pending appeals against the decrees. If we do so, we avoid recurring charges of interest. It is to avoid this interest that it is proposed to make this payment and in order to make the complete payment of the sum due this provision of Rs. 80,515 has to be made.

*Appendix 13.

[Mr. J. L. Rieu]

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA (Bombay City, North): Sir, I rise to oppose this demand. I have explained, Sir, before the reasons for opposing the demand. I should like to know from Government the information I asked for when discussing the last grant. Since the Honourable the Home Member has chosen to remain silent, I cannot know it. On certain points I asked for information, as to who are responsible for launching these suits involving Government into the expenditure of this large sum. Who advised Government, whether the Legal Remembrancer's advice was taken, who was the law officer who advised Government and whether that officer is still in service and whether Government want to take action against that officer. Sir, in this particular case heavy damages have been awarded. The suits were remanded by the High Court to the district court for ascertaining the amount of mesne profits due to the khots in respect of khoti faida. The amount of faida was Rs. 2,51,396-2-11, japty expenses were Rs. 24,209-9-4, Government's share in the fee ordered to be paid by the court to the Commission appointed for calculating the faida and japty expenses was Rs. 50 and forest damages were Rs. 25,814-11-11 making a total of Rs. 301,470-8-2. This is an amount which the exchequer of this presidency has got to pay for the folly of Government especially at a time when there is the greatest need for retrenchment. Therefore I hope that this House will be well advised to throw out this grant.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District): Sir, I merely bring to the.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Loudly, please.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE: I merely bring to the notice of the Honourable the Revenue Member that Government will be well advised, in view of the High Court's orders, in expediting the matter of these kabulayats. I have put a question on the point and I hope that there will be no more delay.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Sir, I am at a loss to understand why Government did not appeal to the Privy Council when this was a very important matter and had for its object the delivering these tenants from the oppression of the khots. The attachment of these villages was the right thing which Government did in order to deliver the oppressed tenants from the tyranny of the khots, but I am very sorry that Government did not fight out the case to the last.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: Sir, I have nothing more to say

Question put and carried.

Subsidies to Taluka Development Associations

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: Sir, I ask for a grant* of Rs. 21,000 under 34, Agriculture, for subsidies to the Taluka Development Associations.

*Appendix 14.

[Mr. G. B. Pradhan]

This House is aware that there are taluka development associations started by non-official members. Now, Government in their G. R. No. 3378, decided that they would bear half the cost of development up to a maximum of Rs. 1,000. These taluka development associations are rapidly increasing in number and during the last year a provision was made for Rs. 30,000. As these associations increased in number to 74 last year, an additional amount of Rs. 21,000 is required. More will have to be spent under this head as the associations go on increasing.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI (Belgaum District): I want to support the grant and I am sorry that the amount provided is not large enough. Rs. 1,000 per development association is nothing.

Further what I want to bring to the notice of the House is that, in the matter of supplying boring machines to the rural public, the Agricultural Department has been competing in a way with the operations of these associations. The rates of the boring charges as levied by the Agricultural Department are far less than the rates charged by these associations. Hence the associations are handicapped in their working by being put to a loss by the department of Agriculture which the Honourable the Minister, the mover of this demand, is also controlling. What he wants to promote in one Department is being retarded by another department under his control. That is the experience I have had in the Belgaum district. The association in the Chikodi Taluka has been working with great effort to meet the wishes of the public but is handicapped for want of money. What is absolutely necessary is that the Agricultural Department should not be allowed to give these boring machines to people at a lower rate than this body, or Government should give the latter more money so as to enable it to meet the demands of the public without being put to any loss.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA (Bombay City, North): Sir, in regard to this item my complaint is that we want more information than has been vouchsafed to us in this brief printed note. We have not been told when or where these taluka development associations were formed, whether in the year of Grace 1928 or 1927 or 1926.

The second point is we have not been told whether the taluka development associations are of the Government Agricultural Department or whether they are conducted by the co-operative societies. I would ask for more information.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: Only one point, Sir. I am sorry that my honourable friend Mr. Ginwalla does not know the A.B.C. of these taluka development associations. These are started by non-official people. These people are clamouring for money. The honourable member Mr. Chikodi said they wanted more money. With the greatest difficulty we could give Rs. 21,000 over and above the amount which we have sanctioned. Then the honourable member Mr. Ginwalla further says he does not know where these associations were formed, what they are, and when they were formed. I submit he should read the report of the Agriculture Department.

[Mr. G. B. Pradhan]

Question put and carried.

Temporary Appointments of Special Magistrates

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : Sir, I ask for a supplementary grant* of Rs. 6,560 to be transferred from 47, Miscellaneous, Reserved, to 24, Administration of Justice, for temporary appointments of special magistrates.

Special magistrates have been appointed to try cases arising out of riots in two places. The honourable members are well aware of the fact there was also a very large gang case in the Ahmednagar district. As the printed note points out, if these cases had been entrusted to ordinary revenue officers invested with magisterial powers, there would have been great delay, and considerable inconvenience would have been caused to every body concerned.

Question proposed.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA (Bombay City, North): Sir, I rise to oppose this grant. My reasons for opposing this grant are that we have been asking for retrenchment. And here Government gives it as a reason for appointing special magistrates that the cases should be disposed of expeditiously. Suppose they were not disposed of expeditiously, were Heavens going to fall, I ask the Honourable the Home Member. If Heavens were not going to fall, where was the necessity of burdening the already heavily taxed public with this additional expenditure. So much for the riot cases of Surat and Larkana.

Now, I see that a special magistrate was also appointed at Ahmednagar to try a Bhamta gang case in which a very large number of witnesses had to be examined. The reason given for this appointment is that if the case had been entrusted to an ordinary revenue officer invested with magisterial powers, the case would not have been disposed of for several months. What would have been the consequence ? Very dangerous ? Would there have been a revolution or riots or unrest of a severe kind ? I ask the Honourable the Home Member. The printed note states further that the extra expenditure on account of these three appointments and the clerical and menial establishments entertained for them amounts to Rs. 6,560 and it is proposed to meet it by re-appropriation from the reserve at the disposal of the Finance Department.

This is the way Government are carrying out retrenchment ! Are they really serious in their retrenchment professions and policy ? By this kind of behaviour, Government are making their professions of retrenchment ridiculous. I hope this House will throw out this grant.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (Karachi City) (Addressed the House in Urdu): Mr. President, I join my honourable friend Mr. Ginwalla in opposing this demand. Sir, part of the money now asked for is in connection with the expenses for the trial of the persons concerned in the Larkana riots. If Government wanted to do so, they could have arranged for the trial of the cases by the existing magistrates. After all, the persons concerned were involved in minor disturbances.....

*Appendix 15.

[Mr. Haji Mir Mahomed Baloch]

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: I rise to a point of order. The case is still pending in the Sessions Court. Is it in order for the honourable member to go into the matter?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: As the case is sub-judice, the honourable member cannot touch on the merits of the case.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH: My remarks are not against either the judge or the magistrate.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member cannot make any remarks on the merits of the case.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH: I bow to your ruling, Sir. I find that Government are always increasing the expenditure, and this can easily be seen from the dozens of supplementary grants that are placed before the House to-day. When they start making retrenchment, it is the peons and clerks that are touched first and not the persons who are in the museum—I mean the highly paid officers—They are not touched at all. My submission to Government is that they must try to retrench in the way of reducing the number of the highly paid officers.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK (Surat District): Sir, although the honourable member who spoke last supported my honourable friend Mr. Ginwalla, I rise to support the demand made by the Honourable the Home Member. As far as Surat is concerned, it was very essential on the part of Government to appoint a special magistrate. There was some tension between the two communities: A special C. I. D. officer was appointed by Government to investigate into the matter and it was necessary that Government should do everything to expedite the trial of persons concerned, and therefore they appointed a special magistrate. So, as far as that is concerned, Government are quite justified in asking for the grant.

Question put and carried.

Supplementary grant, covered by re-appropriation from 60—Civil Works to 60A—Other Provincial Works not charged to Revenue, for resumption of plots in connection with the Artillery Maidan Development Scheme, Karachi..... ....Rs. 38,000.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: Sir, I move a demand* for Rs. 38,000, under 60A—Other Provincial Works not charged to revenue. This sum, together with a sum of Rs. 12,000 which is already provided, is required to complete the payment which Government have undertaken to make to the Government of India in consideration of receiving the military lands comprised in the Artillery Maidan.

Question put and carried.

Supplementary† demand, for additional funds required for the Lloyd Barrage and Canals Construction Scheme.....Rs. 14,19,000.

* Appendix 16. † Appendix 17.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: Sir, I rise to make a demand of Rs. 14,90,000 to be added to the demand already granted by this Council, of Rs. 2,01,45,000. The statement placed before this House is very clear indeed. Honourable members will remember that for the last few years, at the request of the Finance Department, we have been cutting out a sum of Rs. 25 lakhs from the estimates submitted by the Chief Engineer for the Lloyd Barrage and Canals Construction project, and it has always been understood that if, during the year, work progressed to an extent which required more money than that granted by this House, the department was to come for a supplementary demand. Sir, the work has progressed a little more than was anticipated, and therefore we have to come to the House with this demand. In works we require Rs. 11,55,000 more. The suspense account has also been increased, the reason being a simple one. If and when stores are required, they will be removed from the suspense account and debited to the proper head. As to pensionary charges, which is a new item, honourable members have already heard, during the general discussion, that, under the orders of the Auditor-General, pensionary charges are now debited to each separate head and not one general head as they used to be in previous budgets.

I have no further remarks to make. I will ask for the demand.

Question proposed.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I have received from the honourable member Mr. Khuhro notice of a motion on this demand, but I find that it is a motion for total omission. He cannot move it; he may oppose the total demand if he likes.

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO (Larkana District): Sir, in rising to oppose this demand, I should like to make a few observations. I find from the budget that every year the amount sanctioned for the Sukkur Barrage has been in excess of actual requirements, and the funds made available to Government it has not been possible for them to utilise. The result has been that Government have had to pay interest on funds borrowed in excess of their requirements. Therefore, it is necessary for the Honourable Member in charge to see that the funds that are actually borrowed every year from the Government of India are really absorbed.

I do admit that the work has been more than anticipated; the last two inundation seasons being unfavourable, they have been successful in doing work more speedily than heretofore. At the same time, there is also an apprehension in my mind that all this money that will be required, namely, Rs. 2,96,00,000 may hardly be absorbed during the course of 12 months. If the inundation is good and if there is water for a longer period, the work of excavation for the barrage itself is not likely to be carried out throughout the year.

Besides I find that money spent on establishment is much in excess of the requirement.....

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: I rise to a point of order. It strikes me from the remarks that the honourable member is discussing next year's budget. We are on the current year's budget and this is a supplementary grant in the current year's budget.

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO: I thought it was a grant for next year.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: This is a supplementary grant relating to the current year's budget.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (Karachi City) (Addressed the House in Urdu): Mr. President, I rise to oppose the supplementary grant. I fail to understand how this excess expenditure over the budget provision has been incurred. This is a work that will continue for some ten years. When such is the case what urgency has arisen to incur this excess expenditure? The Public Works Department is very capable in preparing estimates and plans of works. The Chief Engineer is supposed to be an expert as he has been placed in charge of the biggest engineering work in India. In spite of all this the excess in expenditure has occurred. This extra expenditure has been incurred in regard to the works establishment and pension charges. Is it so very impossible for the Chief Engineer as to not to be able to make provision for pension charges and establishment? Are these charges not known to him? How could he have incurred this extra expenditure if he had carefully prepared the plans and estimates and the establishment and pension charges? In view of this extraordinary expenditure that is being incurred every year it is absolutely necessary to go into the whole matter. Nearly 28 per cent. of the expenditure is incurred in the establishment only. Is it fair in proportion to the estimate of the works? Is it not abnormally high? Matters should not be allowed to drift in this way long. Before it proves another Bombay Development, it is absolutely necessary to investigate the whole matter. We do not want that Government should send some members on a pleasure visit as they have done now. Of the members that were invited to pay a visit to the Sukkur Barrage works only one European member having no or very little experience has painted a rosy picture and has published it in the newspapers and the other members have not yet made any report to Government. We want a competent committee to go into the whole question and report so that the work may efficiently and economically be completed. There is no good appointing a committee after this too has shared the fate of the development scheme. Where is the good of any enquiry after everything has proved a failure? There are many merchants in Bombay, and they know that when they import goods worth five or ten lakhs from foreign countries they spend only one per cent. or so on getting them from there. Here Government spend 27 or 28 per cent. over supervision.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: Sir, may I ask the honourable member to explain. Did he say that 28 per cent. is spent for ordering out stores?

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH: On establishment charges for works.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: On establishment charges, 28 per cent. ?

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH: Yes, I can prove it.

Then, there are many buildings put up in Bombay of beautiful architectural design. How much do they spend for survey, plans, estimates and supervision charges ? Six or eight per cent. at the most.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I am sorry to interrupt the honourable member, but is he likely to take much longer ?

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH: I will take still half an hour.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member need not take half an hour over a supplementary grant; he can speak exhaustively in the course of the debate on the demands for grants.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Sir, I do not know whether the honourable member's eloquence will be exercised some two weeks hence to the same extent as it has been to-day, but Government have considered the proposal that was made as to what should be the course of business for to-morrow and have come to the conclusion that the demands for grants will be taken from to-morrow.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: What is the order in which the demands for grants will be taken ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. That was what I was going to ask the Honourable the Leader of the House.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: I thought I had explained that the demands for grants would be taken from the end.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The House is now adjourned till one o'clock to-morrow, Tuesday, the 28th February 1928.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. Demands for grants.

DEMANDS FOR GRANTS

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Sir, I beg to ask for—

"a demand for Rs. 52,42,000 under the head 'Loans in advance bearing interest—Reserved.'"

Question put and carried.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Sir, I beg to ask for—

"a demand for Rs. 18,62,000 from Famine Insurance Fund—Reserved."

Question proposed.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I find that there is a cut to be moved by Rao Saheb Desai. I am sure honourable members are aware that it has been the practice of this House that when a small cut of Re. 1 is tabled, it means that the honourable member intends to move a vote of censure, and, therefore, he is not permitted to move the cut, only to discuss the general policy of the department : I think the honourable member remembers this practice and I hope he will proceed in accordance with that practice.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Sir, I would like, with your permission, to give a little explanation to this House. I may point out to the House that this does not deal with any question of Famine Relief or of the Insurance Fund. It is entirely concerned with the loan from the Famine Insurance Fund that will be required next year for the flooded area. The Council will remember that a sum of Rs. 80 lakhs was sanctioned by it last year to be met from the Famine Insurance Fund. As I have explained in my budget speech the original amount of Rs. 80 lakhs is likely to be exceeded and will amount to Rs. 85,22,000. This year Rs. 66,60,000 are being met from the Famine Insurance Fund. With some recoveries, an additional sum of Rs. 18,62,000 will be required during the next year, which will bring up the total to be met from the Famine Insurance Fund to Rs. 85,22,000 against the original figure of Rs. 80,00,000. Therefore, I cannot understand the reason why the honourable member has tabled a motion to reduce this grant by Re. 1. I fear that there is some misapprehension on the part of the honourable member and I have, therefore, explained the situation.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI (Kaira District) : Sir, my idea in moving this cut of Re. 1 was to get an opportunity of speaking on the general policy adopted by Government in granting loans to the agriculturists in the flooded area. I, therefore, hope that I will be permitted to discuss the general policy.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Honourable member should have tabled in that case a bigger cut, say a cut above Rs. 100. He would then have got an opportunity of discussing the general policy. As it is, he cannot do so.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : Sir, I may be allowed to take up for discussion the cut of Rs. 100, which is the third item in the list.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The practice has been as I have stated. But as there is no other motion tabled, I find that the whole question would drop if I did not allow the request of the honourable member. I, therefore, would allow the honourable member to take the third item that stands in his name in the list, namely,

[The President]

"Reduce by Rs. 100—Total Votable Demand under Famine Insurance Fund—Rs. 39,85,000."

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI: Sir, I would not move the first two items, but move the third item.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I believe Rao Bahadur B. R. Naik has no objection to that.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: No, Sir.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Rao Saheb D. P. Desai is not going to move the first two items. He is moving the third item and I am giving him permission to discuss the general policy.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Sir, I may point out that this demand for Rs. 18,62,000 deals with quite a different item from that of Rs. 39,85,000 to which the third cut of Rs. 100 refers. I fear, Sir, that the present item before the House is only a demand for Rs. 18,62,000 and it has nothing to do with the administration of loans. All I am concerned with is this. This is a loan taken from the Famine Insurance Fund. I, therefore, ask this House to sanction the amount for giving loans to cultivators. I am not at all concerned with the administration of loans. That is dealt with by the Honourable the Revenue Member and it belongs to some other item and not the present demand.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: That is perfectly correct. I think the point raised is right and I do not think this would be the proper moment for the honourable member to discuss the general policy.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI: Will I be permitted to discuss all these matters when the other item comes up?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: That will have to be seen at the moment as to how it fits in. I cannot give a binding at this moment.

Question that a demand for Rs. 18,62,000 from Famine Insurance Fund—Reserved be granted, put and carried.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Sir, I now beg to move for a grant of Rs. 4,79,000 for payment of commuted value of pensions—Reserved.

Question put and carried.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: Sir, I move for a grant of Rs. 4,12,000 under 60-A, Other Provincial expenditure not charged to Revenue.

Question put and carried.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Sir, I move for a grant of Rs. 43,82,000 under 60, Capital Outlay, for Civil Works. I should like to say a word, Sir, before the grant is placed before the honourable House. Out of this Rs. 43,82,000, we propose to spend Rs. 12,15,000 for communications which have already been sanctioned by this honourable House, because they are works in progress. Now, deducting this Rs. 12,15,000 from Rs. 43,82,000, there remains about Rs. 31 lakhs.

[Sir Ghulam Hussain]

Out of this Rs. 31 lakhs, we propose to spend Rs. 7,49,000 on the acquisition of the Sailors' Home which has been sanctioned by this honourable House. The remaining amounts are to be spent on works in progress pertaining to the various departments—Revenue, Judicial and Medical. The honourable members of this House will agree with me that, if we do not proceed with the works in progress, it will be a penny wise and pound foolish policy. If I remember rightly the words of the Retrenchment Committee, they advise us to concentrate on our works in progress and expeditiously carry them to completion, and we are acting up to that advice.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Sir, I want to move:

"That the total demand under 60, Civil Works not charged to revenue be reduced by Rs. 10,00,000.

Because a particular expenditure has to be met from capital, we need not be lavish in spending money. If we look to the expenditure for this head that was incurred last year, we shall find there was a difference of Rs. 16 lakhs between the amount budgetted this year and the revised estimate of last year. Last year we sanctioned Rs. 44 lakhs and the actual expenditure is Rs. 38 lakhs. That is to say, Government have spent Rs. 6 lakhs less than the budgetted expenditure. This year Government demand more than 54 lakhs. Though there is financial stringency and though the presidency is overburdened with debts and taxation, Government are still incurring more debt and this capital expenditure is increased. On the other hand, we must decrease this expenditure. If we look to 1926, we find the expenditure is Rs. 36 lakhs; in 1927-28 it is Rs. 38 lakhs; while this time they wish to have Rs. 43,82,000 under works, the total demand is more than 54 lakhs under 60, Civil Works. Government should cut down expenditure in all directions and have a good budget which would save the taxpayers instead of having a budget which will be the ruin of the presidency by their incurring heavier expenditure in various directions. Sir, I could make suggestions in various ways. Though the Council has passed the grant for the Sailors' Home, it may be acquired and a new Council Hall may be built, but we are ready to build this much later after many years as a self-denial when our finances may improve. For a more luxuriant Council Hall Government need not spend all at once. We are quite content with the Hall in which we are working. If they are committed to the Sailors' Home, let them acquire it, let them rent it out and get as much rent as possible for it, and not proceed with the building of the new Council Hall just now. When better times come and when we have better finances and when the presidency has been relieved of the burdens which have been entailed on it by the policy that has been pursued so far in the matter of the Bombay Development, that may be done. Till then Government should halt and desist from incurring further capital expenditure. Government may have an idea of building the Council Hall when it will be possible for the finances to meet it. But just now they may cut down from the budget the large expenditure of Rs. 7,36,000 which has been put down in the current year for that item. Similarly, in other works in progress, they may not proceed as rapidly as they intend, and they can cut down at least Rs. 10 lakhs from this budget, because last year they have spent Rs. 38 lakhs only and this time also the expenditure may not be more than Rs. 44 lakhs. If a higher amount is allowed, Government will be inclined to spend lavishly. Therefore, this House will be well advised to give them less money than they demand.

We know that the Public Works Department are in the habit of over-budgetting. If only they would be careful in spending the money, they could do with 44 lakhs and therefore I ask the House to pass my motion for a cut of 10 lakhs.

Question proposed.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE: On a point of information. Out of these 54 lakhs a sum of 45 lakhs is shown for works in progress. This amount is to be spent from capital funds. I want to know whether all these 45 lakhs have been borrowed and if so, whether from the Government of India or from the Provincial Loans Fund.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: From the Government of India.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (Karachi City) (Addressed the House in Urdu): Mr. President, our budgets have been showing deficits year after year almost. In my speech to-day I wish to say something about the way the Public Works Department have been carrying on the work of the court at Karachi, in so far as it relates to the calling of tenders and so on. When the construction of the court house was commenced, tenders for its foundations were called for; tenders were also called for, for its plinth and also for its ground floor. The tenders that were the lowest were 25 to 30 per cent. less than the estimated rate. After that no tender was called for. The officers of the Public Works Department, from the lowest to the highest, gave the work to a contractor at his own rates—a work running into lakhs of rupees. After the ground floor was ready, application was made stating that the Maharaja of Jodhpur was constructing a big palace and if the Public Works Department did not come to terms with the contractor, the rates for Jodhpur stone would mount up, with the result that where one foot of Jodhpur katcha stone ordinarily costs Rs. 1-10-0 to Rs. 1-11-0, a price of Rs. 3 was sanctioned to the contractor. I leave the officers and the Honourable Minister in charge of the Department and this House to think for themselves what all this means. They may say "Oh, we shall deduct this Rs. 3 while giving out other work and thus make up for the high rate." But this will not be achieved when other contractors who have not gained will not accept low rates. Be that as it may, but my point is that other contractors would have agreed to take the work at much lower rate than Rs. 3 for katcha Jodhpur stone. As a rule, tenders are invited for work amounting to five to ten thousand rupees but in this case it was about 15 lakhs worth and was yet given away without any tender. In this instance no tender was asked for. Did the Department have only one contractor? Were there no other contractors ? Why should the Department ruin the other contractors in this manner and also waste public funds mercilessly.

[Mr. Haji Mir Mahomed Baloch]

I would venture to tell the House that the general taxpayer will suffer a great deal if this kind of policy is allowed to continue unchecked. Government do not hesitate to ask for supplementary grants. They do not scruple to present deficit budgets to the Council. And yet, their own officers go on spending money as they please with perfect indifference without even taking the formality of inviting open tenders. I would not be wrong in applying these remarks to the other departments also. The cut proposed by my honourable friend Mr. Swaminarayan should be passed by the House.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Sir, I have nothing more to say in reply than that if Government are careful in spending the money and in calling for tenders and getting the work done by contractors offering to do the work for the lowest prices, the amount of 44 lakhs will be more than sufficient for the year's needs. Therefore the cut I propose should be passed by this honourable House.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Sir, my honourable friend, Mr. Swaminarayan, complained that the Public Works Department was over-budgetting, and that it cannot spend the amounts that are sanctioned by this House. That allegation is not true. The reason why 38 lakhs instead of 44 lakhs was spent this year was that we did not utilise the six lakhs provided by this Council for the acquisition of the Sailors' Home. We thereby saved all the interest on this huge amount, for which this honourable House ought to be thankful.

It is, on this account, that instead of Rs. 44 lakhs, we have spent Rs. 38 lakhs, and saved interest on Rs. 6 lakhs.

Then my honourable friend made another suggestion. He says that there is no necessity for the Sailors' Home to be turned into the Council Hall. I am afraid this House will be stultifying itself ; having sanctioned that amount, we cannot go back upon it.

Then, coming to my honourable friend from my part of the country, this House may like to hear the history of these judicial courts in Sind. I myself, the representatives from Sind in the pre-Reforms days, the Chamber of Commerce, the Indian Merchants' Chamber, all of us were trying to have a decent Judicial Commissioner's Court in Sind, and when Government provide the money to finish that court, here comes my honourable friend and complains. I can assure him that we have invited tenders on more than one occasion, and we are satisfied with the work of the contractor. We have given him only reasonable rates, and I challenge my honourable friend to show that he can get more favourable terms than those. We have accepted the lowest possible tender.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : Tenders are not invited for all the work.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : They were invited. They were invited for the plinth and the first floor ; you cannot go on changing the contractor every day. Is that businesslike ? It is all very well to smile.

[Sir Ghulam Hussain]

Now, what is the position? They say, cut down the grant by Rs. 10 lakhs. That means leaving the building half finished, and thus wasting public money. I, therefore, strongly oppose the motion for reduction.

Question put and lost.

Question that the grant of Rs. 43,82,000 under 60, Capital Outlay for civil works be granted put and carried.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: Mr. President, I rise to make a demand of Rs. 47,84,000 for 59, Development. The budget provides for works on the Back Bay reclamation as settled by this honourable House this time last year. But I would like to bring two matters to the attention of the House. I do not propose to go into any of the provisions in the budget, as they have been very fully explained in the Blue Book.

In presenting a demand for a supplementary grant at the October sessions, one of the items necessitating additional funds was an excess of Rs. 2·43 lakhs on the budget provision for dry filling of block 8. Since that date, there has been a further settlement of the wet filling, requiring, according to the most recent surveys and calculations, additional murum filling amounting to 7·14 lakhs of cubic yards, and estimated to cost an extra Rs. 9·07 lakhs. This necessitates the continuance of dry filling operations in block 8 during the next financial year, and will bring the total excess in the cost of topping block 8 to Rs. 11·5 lakhs. Another result of this further shrinkage of wet filling is that the murum topping will not now be completed by the end of next month, as was contemplated at this time last year. Every effort is being made to expedite the work and the consequent transfer of the area to the military authorities. In this year's budget a credit of Rs. 2,20,70,000 was taken as the value of block 8, excluding the recreation ground for which a credit of Rs. 11·39 lakhs had been assumed in the revised budget estimates of 1926-27. The recreation ground area was not transferred, however, till November 1927, and on measurement was found to be equivalent in value to a sum of Rs. 20·74 lakhs, which has been set off against previous borrowings from the Government of India. The remaining area, according to the most recent surveys, is estimated to be worth Rs. 205·22 lakhs, for which a credit is taken in next year's budget receipts. The total receipts from the transfer of block 8 to the military authorities are thus assumed to be Rs. 225·96 lakhs, as compared with the estimate of Rs. 239·09 lakhs at this time last year. The decrease is due to a difference of 13·56 acres between the area of block 8 according to the recent surveys and the area assumed when the transfer was arranged in 1921. With these remarks, Sir, I ask for the demand.

Question proposed.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: There is an amendment of the honourable member Mr. Nariman to reduce the demand to 40. Do I understand that the honourable member wishes to reduce the amount to Rs. 40 lakhs?

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN (Bombay City, South): Yes, Sir, my motion is to reduce the total demand to Rs. 40 lakhs. I move my motion, namely:

"Reduce to Rs. 40 lakhs, Total Rs. 41,79,000."

In the first place, Sir, this reduction is a reasonable one; it does not contemplate the reduction of the total demand to Rs. 40 as appears in the printed paper. I am sure the Honourable the General Member will agree that the reduction I propose of Rs. 1,79,000 is not a large reduction, because I do not wish this reduction to apply to this particular item. The reduction relates to the suburban activities of the Development Department. In speaking on this motion I wish to refer to the suburban development. I want an explanation from the Honourable the General Member with regard to it. He gave us to understand that the Development Department, with regard to its activities outside the reclamation branch, was abolished. But we find that the Development Department, so far as the suburban area is concerned, is still allowed to subsist, and there are officers of the Development Department in the suburban schemes although we were given to understand that the Development Department outside the reclamation had no existence any further. I want to know from the Honourable the General Member the reason for retaining that part of the Development Department, when the larger activities of the housing and industrial schemes have been abolished. I know the explanation will be that certain parts of the suburban areas have to be developed. But I may tell the House the difficulties under which the suburban residents are suffering on account of this Development Department. I do not say that the activities of that department are not necessary but what I say is that it can be transferred to the district public works department. It is not necessary to continue that establishment. I will give an instance how the suburban residents suffer. They complain and have been complaining for a long time about the water charges. I think it is a just complaint from the suburban residents. We from the Bombay municipal corporation supply water to the Development Department in the suburban area at the rate of 5 annas per thousand gallons while the Development Department recovers at the rate of Re. 1 per thousand gallons from the inhabitants, thus making a profit of 11 annas. If there had not been this intervening agency of the Development Department I am sure the suburban residents' legitimate complaint would have disappeared. Imagine, Sir, they are making a profit on the supply of water, the first requisite in life, which is supplied not by any human agency but by nature. In that we are not entitled to make any profit, but we can only recover the amount we spend on our water works. It is inhuman to make a profit on water supply. We expect the Development Department to give as many facilities as possible to the residents in the suburban area. I am not at present going into the other grievances caused on account of the intervening agency of the Development Department. The residents complain rightly that they would not have to pay that much for water if they had had direct negotiations with the Bombay municipality; and they would have got it for not more than 8 annas or 10 annas. The Bandra municipality has direct negotiation with the Bombay municipality and it gets water at the rate of 8 annas or 10 annas. Two or three miles away from Bandra for the same water the Development Department charge Re. 1, because it has no direct communication with the Bombay municipality. I know that an explanation will be given that because they have to lay the water main they have to charge more. Even then does it justify a difference of 11 annas ? It is a monstrous charge which must go. When the whole department has been done away with, there is no justification for this small establishment costing about Rs. 2,00,000. It is with that object I have moved this small cut. I do not say that the amount spent on the development of the suburban areas should be reduced ; on the other hand I consider the expenditure incurred on the development of the suburban areas is in the right direction and not like the one on the reclamation. I do not think it necessary to retain any more that establishment and it should be abolished.

Mr. R. D. BELL : Sir, the honourable member who has just spoken is under a misapprehension regarding the abolition of the Development Department in the suburban area. Probably what he is thinking is the arrangement made in 1926 whereby the technical control of the development works in the Bombay suburban area was transferred to the Public Works Department. If the amount of work remaining to be done at the present time in the suburbs had been slight, it might have been possible to dispense with an entirely separate staff. But there is still sufficient work going on in the suburban area, which includes Ambernath, to require a full time executive engineer and two assistant engineers. Honourable members will find that the details are given on page 241 of the Blue Book. The engineering establishment in the suburban area now consists entirely of one executive engineer, two assistant engineers and one station engineer. This staff is under the control of the Superintending Engineer, Public Works Department, for technical purposes but they are under the control of Government in the Development Department for purposes of general administration.

The other matter to which the honourable member referred is the water charges in Salsette. Perhaps he has not read in the local newspapers the correspondence that recently appeared on the subject ; otherwise he would have been in possession of the information which he now seeks. It is quite true that the Development Department pays 5 annas per 1,000 gallons to the Bombay municipality for the supply of water at the municipal main and charges the consumer one rupee per thousand gallons for water drawn off at the consumers' taps. Between the Municiaplity's main and the consumers' taps there is a distribution system. The cost of the water charged to the consumer must, in addition to covering the five annas paid to the municipality, pay the interest and sinking fund charges on the capital cost of the distribution system which has been put in by the Development Department. So far from any profit having been made, as was suggested by the honourable member, the accumulated losses on distributing water in the suburbs up to the end of the last financial year is Rs. 2,95,000, or almost three lakhs of rupees. I think this fact effectively disposes of the charge that the Development Department are profiteering on the supply of water in the suburbs.

Mr. LALJI NARANJI: Sir, will the honourable member explain how that loss occurred ?

Mr. R. D. BELL: The loss occurred thus. When these schemes are initiated, a forecast is prepared, which is considered in the Development Department and in the Finance Department. It usually happens that in these areas which are under development, the forecast shows a loss for a number of years at the outset, and the schemes are not approved by the Finance Department unless the Finance Department is satisfied that after a reasonable number of years, three, four or five, as the case may be, the schemes will pay. Most of the schemes are still young, and, therefore, they are not in the paying stage. Some of them lose less than others, but I think at the end of the last financial year none of them had a balance to its credit, although some of them, at least one, was beginning to make up the deficits of previous years.

Mr. LALJI NARANJI (Indian Merchants' Chamber): Sir, I support the motion before the House for reducing Rs. 1,79,000 for the following reasons. This proposition has to be considered not from the point of view of either the suburban scheme or the Back Bay scheme individually, but from the point of view of the Department as a whole. I think if a real effort is to be made by Government to wind up this Development Department, they can make a very good beginning by accepting the moderate reduction proposed. In keeping this Department separate, Government are acting counter to one of the resolutions that I placed before the House in 1924 recommending the amalgamation of this department with the Public Works Department. If they want to do it even now, it is quite possible for them to make a beginning this year by accepting the reduction of Rs. 1,79,000 which can be made in the following way. You will see, Sir, that at page 244 of the Blue Book, the expenditure on establishments is divided into the following heads :—

	Rs.
Salaries	3,36,228
Establishments	3,15,003
Allowances	1,43,746
Contingencies	51,800
Total ..	8,46,777

From this they have deducted Rs. 1,42,346 on account of recoveries to be made from other departments, reducing the total to Rs. 7,04,431. I think Government should now make a serious attempt to wind up this department. If the Honourable the General Member does not do it now, as a matter of business necessity, Government will have to do it in the near future helplessly without any grace. Instead of doing it all at once they are proceeding in a gentle way in order to keep up their pride. What is the use of doing it in a gentle way when it has been proved to the satisfaction of everybody and that it is no use carrying on this department as a separate unit ? Under one item alone, " Allowances, " Rs. 1,43,746 is provided. These allowances are paid because this department is maintained. Out of that nearly Rs. 52,922 is to be paid for leave allowances to be paid in England. Now, you will see that this department is proved to have been in incompetent hands, and still we are made to pay leave allowances for officers who are enjoying their time in England after having managed the department in the way they did and left us the legacy of a big loss running to seven crores. Under " travelling allowances " alone Rs. 29,000 is provided ; " duty allowance, " Rs. 12,000 " house rent allowance, " Rs. 14,000. Now, if this department is closed down, they can save Rs. 1,43,000 alone under allowances, or at least a considerable portion of it, not to speak of what they can save by curtailing the establishment on the Suburban Scheme or by curtailing other activities. Now, what is the use of keeping a big secretarial-department for the Suburban Scheme when the real activity is to be only the Back Bay scheme. If Government are serious and are not proud of their voting power in this House, they should accept the modest suggestion made by the honourable member Mr. Nariman.

I have only pointed out one item from which this modest amount can be reduced. There are other items also from which reductions can be made, if the Honourable the General Member is serious. The total demand is Rs. 47,83,000 ; out of that Rs. 32,50,000 is provided for the Back Bay Reclamation. Even assuming that all the works to which the Honourable the General Member has committed himself have to be continued, still there are other items from which he can certainly save Rs. 1,79,000. I will now point out other things apart from this amount of Rs. 7,04,000 for establishment and contingencies. In the separate note given to this House, honourable members will see " Item No. 2 under " Works and Acquisition, Part I "—The provision of Rs. 92,500 for sea wall on rubble mound is made for providing a parapet wall as early as possible on the sea wall in front of block No. 1 to protect the filling behind the wall from being scoured to any appreciable extent by waves breaking over the wall. "

I refer to this because I want to show to the House that this is the sort of recurring unproductive expenditure that they will have to provide by preparing block 1 and block 2, chances for the sale of which are very remote. Although Government promised that block 1 would be ready by this time this year, they now tell us that it will take one year more. The House will understand what that one year means. It means extra expenditure in the way of establishment, contingencies and repairs, etc. Now, I come to another item in the same note, No. 18. The sum of Rs. 3,25,000 provided under this item includes Rs. 54,000 for pitching the bund along the storm-water drain between blocks Nos. 2 and 3, and this expenditure is incurred on the assumption that after filling blocks 1, 2, 7 and 8 other blocks may be taken up. Otherwise the strong water drains for Block No. 6 and No. 3 would not have been necessary.

Now, in the suburban scheme Government are providing one item of Rs. 61,070 for another white elephant which is known as Salsette Railway. This House will remember that only we have spent Rs. 75 lakhs on this Railway but over and above that we have to spend this further amount. We are not going to get anything from the Salsette Railway. It is run by the G. I. P. at our cost, whether there is any profit or loss....

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: Is it run at a loss?

Mr. LALJI NARANJI: I do not think there is any profit derived from that Railway. So, you will find it is run at our cost without affording any profits. From the report that is available we find on page 3 that we have to spend Rs. 61,000 to make it workable on the assets which has cost us roughly Rs. 75 lakhs with no hope of making it productive. That is the way in which, in spite of warnings and appeals of this House, Government is carrying. They have not succeeded to dispose of all unnecessary items and thus stop further recurring expenditure. We have made appeals to the Honourable the General Member, but no heed is being paid to that, because the Honourable the General Member holds a very strong position for commanding such departments as he possesses.

As regards the water supply, I may mention that it was not quite clear, when honourable member, Mr. Bell, said "There is not profit but loss." The very fact that they take at the rate of annas 5 charge annas 16, shows that there is a profit of annas 11. If that is the case, how can we say that there is a loss? I think they have taken the loss that has incurred on the Ambernath water supply scheme. How can one believe that in a small place like Khar, Santa Cruz and Andheri, water supply will cost so much that it will take away or eat up all annas 11 profit? If there is any loss, then I must say that the reason must be owing to the heavy cost of pipes that have been laid there. This point was not clear and that is the reason why I interrupted Mr. Bell, as I wanted to know from him what the reason was for the loss Rs. 2,92,000 to which he has referred.

On the same note that I was discussing, you will find the percentage of establishment of works being given. It is stated there the percentage of 32½ which was in 1926-27 on the Establishment of Works, has been brought down to 15½ per cent. So, the percentage at present is 15½. And this is for what? It is for doing nothing. This work relates to reclamation and all the activities in this connection are stopped. That is the unnecessary item, which the Honourable the General Member can allow to continue, but he cannot accept the cut to Rs. 41,79,000 for which a demand has been made by my honourable friend, Mr. Nariman.

On the last item it will be seen that Government have made a comparison of superior staff and subordinate staff of both the Reclamation Scheme and the Housing and Suburban schemes. They have shown there the percentage of reduction in 1928-29 as compared with actuals of 1926-27. Though all the major portions of the activities are stopped, we find that there is only a reduction of 39 per cent. in the superior staff and 21 per cent. in the subordinate staff. I think this reduction is not quite sufficient, and if genuine efforts are made by the Honourable the General Member, I am sure he will be able to make further reduction. I, therefore, support the cut moved by Mr. Nariman.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD (Central Division): Sir, I am tempted to rise to speak because of the observations just now made by the last speaker (Mr. Lalji Naranji) who said that "the position of the Honourable the General Member in this House is very strong and the honourable members support him blindly and therefore he carries his vote." Sir, this is a very strong remark to make, and I am sure all the honourable members will try first to understand the question fully, though some cannot and others will not do so.

The honourable member is an expert. Unfortunately there are other experts and they differ so hopelessly that it is very difficult to give preference to one or to the other, and therefore sometimes we laymen commit mistakes. The honourable member also pointed out the errors committed by the Honourable the General Member. He demands the total abolition of the Development Department. But may I ask whether the whole presidency will gain by the total abolition of the activities of the Development Department? A given course may be the best course, but people do not seem to understand that it may not always be possible or simple. I know the Department. It is doing its best, though its best is bad. There is no doubt that the Honourable the General Member is sincere and we know he would not deliberately commit a mistake. If he commits an error, it may be that he is misled into an error by an expert....

Mr. LALJI NARANJI: He relies on the wrong information supplied by other officers in the Department.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: The information supplied to him may be wrong. But I do not think that he would deliberately commit a mistake. It is for the honourable member, Mr. Nariman, to convince the House that it is a question of "a blind leading a blind." I do believe, as an eminent citizen of this city, as an experienced member and minister he would give us the right lead in this matter. Sir I support the motion.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR (Karachi City): Sir, I rise to support the cut moved by my honourable friend, Mr. Nariman.

I personally think that the activities of the Development Department should be entrusted to the Public Works Department. The Development Department was created originally because the magnitude of the task was so very great that it was probably thought that the Public Works Department would not properly and easily carry out the work. But, now, Sir, having had such bad experience of this whole development bungle, this Back Bay scandal, which has been the ruin of this presidency, it is high time that this Council should turn a screw upon the expenditure which is being lavishly made in the maintenance of what is called the Development Department. Sir, if you will analyse the strength of this department, you will find that, apart from the full-time Secretary in Mr. Bell, you have got a chief engineer, you have got two executive engineers, you have got assistant engineers and such a battalion of officers that I think it will be hard lines on them to really find out the work to justify their own existence. Sir, therefore, just as Government, in spite of the repeated requests made by the Bombay municipality to transfer the Bombay Improvement Trust to the municipality, did not listen to them for many years and ultimately realised that the Bombay municipality was in the right and that they were in the wrong,—Lord Willingdon ultimately handed over the department to the municipality, and that municipal department is going on very well indeed. Now, here again, you come to the same question. You are having department within the departments themselves. Now, I am personally quite satisfied that if the whole of this amount and the whole of the activities of the Development Department are transferred on to the Minister who is responsible to this House for the P. W. D. work, things would be much better. As a matter of fact, we are robbed of the opportunities by making so many items non-votable in this matter and it is a travesty of the intentions of the whole of the Government of India Act and the reforms by making this department unvotable and putting it on the reserved half. That was a complaint that has been made from year to year, with no result. But now, Sir, since the Development Department's activities have been curtailed with the exception of the small filling up of the reclamation, I think this House should insist that the big and lavish establishment in order merely to maintain the number of officers be done away with and they should hand over the whole of the department to the Honourable Minister in charge of the P. W. D. work. Sir, every officer like the executive engineer in the P. W. D. is able to manage work to the extent of Rs. 30 lakhs, and I ask you, Sir, whether all these officers who are now engaged under the Development Department have really got the requisite work according to the P. W. D. Code. I can prove, Sir, by facts and figures that it is not so. Still all these officers are maintained! We have one officer, an executive engineer, to merely look after the repairs of the chawls which have been built at Worli and elsewhere. Now, I ask whether you require a big officer like that to look after the chawls which have been only so recently built. It either follows that the chawls are so badly built that you do require such an officer to look after them, or you are merely maintaining an office in order that somebody may continue to have a job. Now, that is not the way in which the House should allow the Government to carry on the Development Department and, therefore, I trust, as has been said by the representative of the Indian Chamber of Commerce, that this will not be made a party question or that members will not be swayed in their feelings of support to the honourable member who may be in charge of that department, and that they would try to put their foot down upon this extraordinary expenditure that the Council is asked to sanction from year to year. Sir, I listened very closely to the remarks made by the Honourable the Leader of the Opposition, who, as I said last year, hardly opposed the Government, and if you analyse his speech from beginning to end, to my mind it came to nothing. All the observations made were non-committal, of a general character, and in the end he ended up by saying that the Honourable the General Member will kindly justify the demands made. Sir, I fail to see whether there is anything in this world which a man proposes which he cannot somehow or other try to justify, and if you only want to go on by the reasoning and the premises then the Honourable the General Member should justify expenditure, I can tell my honourable friend in advance that the expenditure will be justified in a minute or two. But, is that the position which he, as the representative of the people, who are to pay the taxes ultimately, is prepared to take ? We know from year to year, and the proceedings of the House show to us, that there has been great leakage, there is a lot of expenditure that is unnecessarily incurred, and that as a result of it this presidency has lost crores and crores, which the posterity will have to pay for, and if we do not try to remedy matters by taking time by the forelock, I am sure this presidency will be incurring expenditure which is paralysing to all the nation-building departments. Whenever we ask for any work even Rs. 5,000 or Rs. 2,000, or even Rs. 500 we do not get it, and for the sake of even Rs. 200 a school for the depressed classes is closed, for which classes the Government has developed suddenly a certain solicitude, and yet we are asked to sanction expenditure which is absolutely useless and worthless. I therefore hope that this House will make up its mind to give some kind of indication of its strong desire that we do not want to carry on this expenditure in the manner in which it is being incurred.

Mr. D. R. H. BROWNE : Sir, I should like to say a few words to correct an impression which seems to be in the mind of my honourable friend from Karachi that the officers employed on development work now are doing nothing ; that they have nothing to do, nothing to fill in their time. He mentioned that there was an Executive Engineer in charge of chawls and he thought that looking after the chawls was his sole work. I may tell the honourable member that that executive engineer is employed in looking after all the suburban schemes of the Development Department,—those schemes which two or three years ago constituted a very full charge for a Superintending Engineer. That Executive Engineer has his hands absolutely full. Amongst other things he is looking after the chawls, and there can be no charge whatsoever brought that any officer is not doing a full day's work, as far as I know. The particular officer in question is under the P. W. D. There are other misconceptions which I think I read into the speech of the honourable member, but I do not think I should try to deal with them in detail. I notice a tendency to consider it a qualification to make long speeches on the Development Department not to know details of the subject. I know a great many details about it myself, but I feel I should not trouble the House at any length at the moment.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI (Kaira District) : Sir, let us see whether this expenditure could not be saved. If the Honourable the General

[Rao Saheb D. P. Desai]

Member refers to the special memorandum, he will find that the capital expenditure incurred on these water works up to now is about 14 lakhs of rupees. The interest on 14 lakhs comes to about 81 thousand rupees and the receipts from the sale of water come to about Rs. 2,86,000. Out of the other expenditure incurred on the establishment in the secretariat and on the works and for other sundry expenses, Rs. 1,78,000 is spent on the works alone. Cannot the Honourable the General Member just see his way to reduce this expenditure ?

Mr. R. D. BELL : I might clear up a misapprehension at once, Sir. That charge includes the payment to the Bombay Municipality for the water they supply at the rate of five annas per thousand gallons.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : Even so, very little establishment would be necessary for this water works scheme. By charging five annas the Bombay Municipality meets the interest on the capital and working charges while the Development Department cannot run their small establishment in the Salsette even by charging five annas. It would therefore be far better to curtail this expenditure in the suburban area. Even if it is not possible to do so, I think it would be advisable to do so because the financial success of the whole suburban area depends upon the rates we charged to the inhabitants and so if you were to charge indirectly water and other cesses at such high rates, how would it be possible for people to take up developed plots in those areas ?

Mr. P. J. MARZBAN : (Bombay City, South) : Sir, I am afraid the honourable members who have spoken have not clearly defined as to how retrenchment and savings are to be effected. What I understood....

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : The secretariat charges and other charges debited to this particular scheme could be saved.

Mr. P. J. MARZBAN : My honourable friend Mr. Nariman spoke rather vaguely when he said that this expenditure could somehow be reduced. I think it would have been a better plan for this honourable House to give a sort of a mandate to the Honourable the General Member that this House is anxious to get the establishment charges of the Development Department reduced by 10 per cent. in view of the lesser activities of that department.

After this, I just refer to one remark from my honourable friend from Karachi, Mr. Bechar, that it would be better for the interests of all concerned if the Development Department were to be transferred to the Bombay municipality. I may inform the honourable member that the Bombay municipality is absolutely fed up with this sort of thing now. They have already their hands full up with the Improvement Trust and I should think that if the Government of Bombay or the Government of India were to transfer to the municipality the Development Department, the first thing the Bombay municipality would do would be to close down the Development Department, all at once, the moment the department was transferred to them. However, I do hope that the Honourable the General Member will concede that with the somewhat slackened activities of the Development Department now, a very substantial reduction can be made in the establishment charges, and if this cut suggested by my honourable friend Mr. Nariman is passed, I hope the Honourable the General Member will apply that cut only to the establishment charges and to nothing else.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE (Bombay City, North): Sir, I have to take part in this debate to once more clamour for retrenchment in the expenditure incurred by Government year after year, especially in the Development Department which is a veritable white elephant eating into the vitals of this presidency. There is no doubt that every section of this department is a failure and has become a heavy burden on the whole presidency for the launching of the development schemes has handicapped the nation-building departments. If you look to the expenditure proposed this year by the Honourable the General Member, you will find that nearly Rs. 3,81,700 has been put down for the maintenance and repair charges. I do not understand for a moment why so large an amount is required for the purposes mentioned. Is the land in the Back Bay scheme in need of repair and maintenance? The same remark applies to the suburban district. Except the building of chawls, what has been done? Do the chawls require such a large amount for maintenance and repairs? Are not the chawls lying vacant because the people for whom they were built cannot pay the high rent that is charged? Last year also I pointed out in this House that if the rents for the development chawls and other properties were reduced to normal.....

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: I rise to a point of order. The chawls are not in this budget. There is a separate budget this year for the chawls. Therefore, if any cut was made in this budget, it would not come out of the provision for the chawls.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE: I merely want to show how that cut can be accepted without the slightest difficulty if necessary action be taken.

As for the reclamation of the Back Bay, we found in the September session at the time of the supplementary grant for extension and repairs that the (shrinkage) shown was horrible. Such (shrinkage) is never allowed on any contract work. I had told so to the Council on that occasion. And yet I was not given any reply either by the Engineer in charge or by the Honourable the General Member. Sir, the shrinkage was then shown as about 20 per cent., and the amount was already sanctioned. I would request the members of the Advisory Committee for that department to take care to see how these things happen. I am quite sure that a very large amount has been spent after filling in the area. At first money was spent for wet filling by dredgers. After that dry filling was commenced, and yet there is not a single inch of land which is ready to be handed over either to the Government of India or to the public for their use. I am sorry that we have been spending a lot on the suburban schemes; and may I ask what benefit the public have derived from these schemes? There also is another great failure. The land is lying idle and unwanted. We know that even in the heart of the city of Bombay where the municipality has launched its improvement schemes, the lands have been lying vacant for lack of buyers; there is not a single buyer, even though the rates have been reduced for land in the heart of the city. That being so, I do not understand how it would be possible to find people to buy land in the suburbs. I say, therefore, Sir, that it is not possible. I would bring to the notice of the House that they have to suffer a great loss on account of the launching of these schemes all at once. This ought not to have been done. Now look at the Ambernath scheme. What benefit has been derived from it, and who is going to purchase lands there? At present, only the match factorywallas and other factorywallas have taken up some land there; I do not think the public of the presidency would go and purchase land there. Sir, this department has been a white elephant to this presidency, and the House should be alert to see that these grants, which are increasing every year are not sanctioned. With these few remarks, I support the motion.

Mr. S. A. SARDESAI (Bijapur District): Sir, I am inclined to support the motion for the reduction of this demand, after hearing so many speeches of the Bombay experts. Referring to page 228, there are nearly 19 items covering the total demand, and the motion is for a modest cut of Rs. 1,79,000. I doubt neither the sincerity nor the ability of the Honourable the General Member. I think he is fully capable. What I think is that he has been deluded into the belief that these expenses are quite necessary for the purpose of carrying out the items mentioned on page 218. I think, Sir, the biggest item in this total demand is the Back Bay Reclamation, and there are also some five or six other items for which big sums have been provided. But to my total disappointment I do not find any details for several items. For instance, repairs and establishment charges are mentioned, which is very vague, and a full explanation is necessary from the Honourable the General Member on this account. Sir, there is also the opinion of several expert members from Bombay that a good deal can be cut out from the Back Bay Reclamation. I therefore think that this modest sum of Rs. 1,79,000 can be cut from the total demand, if the Back Bay Reclamation is judiciously reconsidered by the capable General Member. With these remarks, I support the cut.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District): Sir, it has been admitted that a large amount is being spent on the Bombay Development Scheme. I wish to point out how far the burden of this expenditure lies on the provincial revenue. On page 278 we are told that only Rs. 48 lakhs are required for the Bombay Development Scheme, but on reference to page 227 of the Blue Book we find that a sum of Rs. 1,79,16,000 is required for this purpose. I might further point out that these Blue Books are not available for the previous years, but only for the current year. The Civil Estimates are the only books that are available for reference in the library. But in the Blue Book before us we find that the total amount that is to be spent on the Bombay Development Scheme is Rs. 1,79,46,000. And what are the items of expenditure ? I might point out that Rs. 1,09,00,000 represents the interest on the scheme.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : No, no.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : We find it on page 227.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : This includes loans to local bodies.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : It is interest ; it is so stated there. I will state all the facts as stated there. Under expenditure, interest is shown as Rs. 1,09,00,000 and odd ; sinking fund investment account Rs. 13,25,000 ; appropriation for reduction or avoidance of debt Rs. 12,000 ; reduction or avoidance of debt Rs. 7,90,000. The total of this is Rs. 1,30,63,000. Apart from this, under head 42, we have Rs. 21,30,000 as interest to be paid on this account, and sinking fund of Rs. 1,15,000. If we add all this together, it comes to Rs. 1,53,08,000 ; that is the amount of interest and sinking fund.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : May I rise to a point of correction. Some of this interest is not paid by the department, but is paid by the Port Trust, the Improvement Trust and the Bombay Municipality. The honourable member is calculating everything together.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : I am coming to that. Out of this, it is stated here, Rs. 48,04,000 are credited as interest under head 16, and this is the interest that is recovered from the Bombay Municipality, the Port Trust and the Improvement Trust ; there is no other sum that is to be recovered. Another sum of Rs. 7 lakhs is the amount that is to be recovered as rent from the chawls. Deducting these amounts, which come to Rs. 55 lakhs, the remainder is nearly a crore, which we have to spend. The total borrowings for this year, as mentioned on page 227 are Rs. 74,08,000, and the actual works for the current year are Rs. 48,83,000. That means, out of the total borrowings Rs. 48 lakhs are to be spent on actual works, and Rs. 25 lakhs are to go for the payment of interest.

That is, we have to pay a sum of Rs. 74 lakhs as interest on the Development Scheme from our balances. That is not an imaginary figure. Referring to page 278 of the Civil Estimates you will see that ; " deduct interest advances from ordinary revenue Rs. 79,26,410." In the year preceding also the figure is shown as 76 or 74 lakhs. So, I say that such a large amount of nearly three-fourths of a crore is being spent from the ordinary revenue towards the cost of the Development Scheme every year. Whenever any demand for a small expenditure of some thousands is made and the assurance of Government given in various Government Resolutions that such and such an amount should be spent on particular heads we are told that they have no funds ; and that they cannot spend it. I hope therefore the honourable member will give his kind consideration to this matter and give up all further activities as soon as possible.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN (Bombay City, South) : Sir, in reply I have nothing further to say except that there was not a single dissentient voice with regard to this small cut with the exception of the honourable member Mr. Marzban on this side of this House.

Mr. P. J. MARZBAN : A personal explanation, Sir. I am not against it.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN : I am glad then that the opposition is unanimous in demanding this cut. But I want to point out the mentality of Government. This is a very moderate demand on the part of the opposition, a cut of Rs. 1,79,000 out of a total demand of Rs. 41,79,000. The leader of the opposition, if I may be permitted to call him so, who always sides with Government, has supported the cut, if I understand him rightly at the end of his speech. When the opposition has made a moderate demand unanimously there is not even a gesture from the Government side to concede this demand. My honourable friend Mr. Marzban wanted me to point out the place where this cut can be effected. I wish him again to realise that where we point out a cut there it cannot be carried out. Half of the expenditure is reserved and we cannot touch it. Whatever we would like to touch we have no power to do so. What best we can do is to leave it to the department as to where the cut should be applied, as they are the best judges as to where this cut should apply. I may suggest that for repairs and maintenance a provision has been made for the Bombay Reclamation. I fail to understand that so far as Back Bay is concerned there is hardly any land which is ready developed. We are still in the process of reclamation and I fail to see where there is need for maintenance and repair for which a sum of Rs. 74,000 is required. (The Honourable Sir Cowasji Jehangir : The details are given there.) I can understand this provision if the land has been reclaimed and money is required for development. The reclamation is still going on and yet Rs. 74,000 is provided for maintenance and repairs. Rs. 64,000 is provided for maintenance and repairs for the suburban development. We were given to understand that the housing and industrial schemes were going to be given up. We do not know which are going to be denotified. If the schemes are to be given up, we can take out a small amount from the amount set apart for general acquisition. We can in this way point out generally but we cannot point out definitely. Though the opposition is unanimous on this small cut there is not even a gesture on the part of the Government to accept this cut.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Mr. President, in replying to this debate may I be permitted to congratulate my honourable friend who has moved the cut. If ever he has made a speech in this honourable House, which can be said to be constructive, or one to which he can be said to have devoted reasonable attention, it is the one that he has made to-day. Now, Sir, this is a very good sign for the future and we may in the future be exchanging places. (Mr. K. F. Nariman : Oh, no. You are welcome here, but I will never go there.) Don't be too certain. More extraordinary things than that have happened in this world. Now, Sir, the first point that my honourable friend took up was the control of the Public Works Department with regard to the suburban establishment. He could not understand why the Development Department is still connected with Suburban activities. The point of technical control has been explained by my honourable friend the Secretary of the Department; all the staff which is looking after the suburbs has been handed over to the Public Works Department. But the secretarial work is being done in the Development Department. When the Development Department was brought into existance it did two kinds of work. It did the work of the Secretariat: and it did the work of the administration. The abolition of the Development Department involves a separation of these two duties.

In the case of the Suburban Development, the separation has taken place. It is the Public Works Department that actually does the work; but the Secretariat part of the work is still being done in the Secretariat of the Development Department. That is exactly what has taken place up till now. My honourable friend (Mr. Nariman) and also my honourable friend the representative of the Indian Merchants' Chamber have more than once impressed upon Government the necessity of the abolition of the Department, and I can assure my honourable friends that their advice has not fallen on deaf ears, that the abolition of the department has had the very careful consideration of Government. But it is not such a simple matter as my honourable friends seem to believe, because it is not going to effect retrenchment. Up to now, as I have informed the honourable House, the Development Department has been doing the secretarial work as well as the administrative work. My honourable friend who sits behind me to-day (Mr. R. D. Bell) is Secretary to Government in the Development Department; he is the Commissioner of the Suburban Division; he is Land Manager to Government in the Suburban Division. Now, Sir, if this Development Department was abolished, the work, which is now being done by him as Commissioner of the Suburban Division, would have to be done by somebody else; his work as Land Manager would have to be done by somebody else. Therefore, it is not such an easy matter as my honourable friends think to abolish the department with one stroke of the pen. They may find their budget going up instead of coming down. If the abolition of the department could be effected with retrenchment, Government would not have hesitated to do so. It is because it is difficult to effect retrenchment at the same time, that Government are still further considering the matter. It is not a question of handing over the whole department bodily to the Public Works Department. Other departments are concerned. Certain parts of the work would have to go to the Revenue Department, and the Revenue Department in the Secretariat might require strengthening up if they were to do all that extra work. The Collector of Bombay would have to do some part of the work; and the administrative officer may require his staff to be strengthened. And then the Department in the Secretariat which will take over the work now being done in the Secretariat of the Development Department might ask for extra assistance. We may have not only to transfer the whole establishment bodily to the different departments, but in addition we may be asked to provide additional staff in the Secretariat itself. It is possible that if the Development Department is really abolished, we may have to add another Secretary to Government. Therefore, we will abolish the Secretary to Government in the Development Department and add a Secretary to Government in some other Department. If there is work to do, somebody must do it. By abolishing the Development Department you do not abolish the work.

Mr. LALJI NARANJI: If you will study the Retrenchment Committee's report you will find enough reasons for abolishing several posts of Secretaries in the Secretariat.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: I am not concerned just now with retrenchment in other departments in the Secretariat: I am now discussing the question of the abolition of the Development Department. For the last few months—I may say for the last one year—Government have been considering this question, and they are still considering it. My only object in giving you these details and these explanations is to show that it is not such an easy matter as my honourable friends seem to imagine. I take it that one of the main objects of this honourable House is retrenchment, but if the abolition of the department cannot be effected with retrenchment, what will the honourable House have to say?

Mr. N. A. BECHAR: Better leave it to us.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: I hear an interruption "Leave it to us" and that comes from my honourable friend Mr. Bechar who delivered a most interesting speech from which we learned a good deal.

Now, Sir, my honourable friend Mr. Lalji Naranji has alluded to pride on the part of Government. I do not know what exactly he means. But believe me, there is no question of pride on the part of Government. The Development Department is not maintained on account of prestige if he means that. If we could have abolished the Development Department with economy we would have done so, and Government would have been only too pleased. Therefore, my honourable friends will dismiss from their minds the bogey of prestige. If it is not possible to abolish the department plus retrenchment, it is not a question of prestige.

Now, Sir, my honourable friend Mr. Lalji Naranji pointed out two items in the explanatory note that has been circulated to all honourable members, where retrenchment could be effected. One was item No. 2 about the parapet. I do not see what has alarmed my honourable friend. In block No. 1 a parapet has to be constructed and the reason for constructing it next year is explained in the note. It is to protect the filling behind the wall from being scoured to any appreciable extent by waves breaking over the wall. I do not see how that can be dropped out. Then my honourable friend referred to item No. 18 in the descriptive note which has been circulated to all honourable members. There is a provision of Rs. 3,25,000. Now, my honourable friends are aware of the fact that we must finish block 1, block 2 and block 7. In order to finish off blocks 7 and 2 the bunds between blocks 7 and 6 and between blocks 2 and 3 must be provided with pitching. Then, Sir, the rest of that item is for the extension of Church Gate Street up to the sea. Unless that is done Government will not be able to sell a square yard of land. Therefore, I think honourable members would be well advised to urge Government to finish this road and ought to thank Government for proposing to finish this road quickly.

Now, Sir, we have heard a great deal about establishment. This note also gives a few facts about retrenchment in establishment. Compare the actuals of 1926-27 with the budget of 1928-29. In the superior staff of the Reclamation there is a reduction of 39 per cent.; in the superior staff of the Housing and Suburban Circle there is a reduction of 64 per cent. In the subordinate staff of the Reclamation there is a reduction of 21 per cent. and in the Housing and Suburban Circle there is a reduction of 61 per cent.

Now, my honourable friend, Mr. Marzban, says that this proposed cut should be utilised in getting further reduction in the establishment. Let my honourable friend glance at page 244 of the Blue Book. He will find there that the voted grant for 1927-28 was Rs. 8,79,298, whereas for this year we are only asking for Rs. 6,04,712. It means that there is a reduction of about Rs. 2,75,000, which comes to more than 25 per cent.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR: Is it a fact that you pay more to your engineers than the P. W. D. engineer?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: No, it is not a fact. As a matter of fact both the Engineers we have got are from the P. W. D. Sir, I may tell this House that as regards the establishment, during the last five years there has been nothing but retrenchment from year to year. Every year we have been able to put up an explanatory note showing the reduction in establishment. This year also you will find the reduction effected from page 244 of the Blue Book.....

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: What is the total amount of retrenchment?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: We have reduced from Rs. 8,79,298 to Rs. 6,04,712.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: For doing no work at all.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: My honourable friend, Mr. Pahalajani, says that this expenditure on establishment is incurred for doing no work at all. I may tell him that we are going on with the Reclamation; the housing scheme and also suburban schemes have to be maintained. You will find the whole list given in the Blue Book as to the maintenance charges.....

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Sir, from page 244 we observe that there is a decrease in expenditure on voted items whereas there is an increase in the non-voted items. May I know the reasons?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : That is due to the fact that one officer has gone on leave and his leave salary has to be provided for. There is no other item in the Development Department which is non-votable, except the salaries of the two officers. The salary of my honourable friend here (pointing to Mr. Bell) and that of one more officer is non-votable ; the other items are votable....

Mr. P. J. MARZBAN : On a point of information, Sir. Will the honourable the General Member kindly inform us whether the amount of Rs. 6,04,712 is an irreducible minimum ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : At present it is an irreducible minimum. We will, however, try to reduce it every year. As far as the suburban schemes are concerned, we cannot reduce any further. My honourable friend will realise that for the suburbs there were four Superintending Engineers ; but we have cut this down and now we have got only one Executive Engineer.

Now, Sir, I shall turn to the remarks of my honourable friend, Mr. Nariman, regarding acquisition. Mr. Nariman pointed out that certain amount of money was provided for acquisition of land. Yes, it is provided for. That amount is provided for making payments for land that was acquired, perhaps, some years ago, which the Development Department took possession of and which has not yet been paid for. I may tell him that some part of this amount is also meant for denotification, if any claims are made. I will remind this honourable House that Government during the last three to four years have denotified something like 3,000 acres of land.

Mr. Nariman said that the whole House is in favour of the cut moved by him. I submit, Sir, that it is not difficult for the Government to accept it. But I may inform this House that if Government fall short of money, they will have again to come before this House for a supplementary demand. Last year we accepted a cut in the Budget session and what was the result ? The result was that we had to come before this House with a bigger supplementary demand in the October session.

Mr. President, we have not the slightest intention of displeasing this honourable House. I will accept this cut, provided that this honourable House will give my successor a supplementary grant, if he comes forward and asks for it between now and next budget.....

Honourable MEMBERS : If we found it proper.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : I accept this cut on the understanding that all honourable members opposite will give my successor a sympathetic hearing and that they will consider his supplementary demand.

Honourable MEMBERS : Certainly.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : On that understanding I will allow this cut to be made. (Hear, hear). We will try and see what we can do in respect of retrenchment. But allow me to tell you once again that I might be taking a risk. I trust nobody will accuse me of taking the risk, because there is no chance of my being here next year to explain the situation.....

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE: On a point of information, Sir. May I know from the Honourable the General Member whether I was right in quoting the figure of Rs. 74 lakhs charged to Revenue ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: No. I could not follow the honourable member. But I can say that nothing is charged to Revenue except what is mentioned in the Honourable the Finance Member's speech.

Question put and carried.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I want to know from the honourable member, Mr. Nariman, whether he wants to move the next item.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN: No, Sir. I do not want to move it. I shall move item No. 9.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN (Bombay City, South): Sir, I move:

"That the Total Voted Rs. 47,84,000 be reduced to Rs. 45,00,000."

Question proposed.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI (Western Sind): Sir, the last cut which the Honourable the General Member accepted was with reference to the figures shown on page 228 of the Blue Book. The Honourable the General Member, if he reads it, will see that that motion was to reduce to Rs. 40 lakhs total demand of Rs. 41,79,000 shown on page 228. This relates to works, repairs, and maintenance and land, Rs. 41,79,000 does not include any charge for establishment. This is included in the Civil Estimates on page 230 of the Blue Book which represents the total votable expenditure upon the Development Department, i.e., Rs. 47,83,700. It is the votable expenditure on the whole of the Development, reclamation, the suburban works, suburban acquisitions, suburban development, excepting the industrial housing scheme, which is transferred to head 42 of this budget. Therefore, the total expenditure for which a demand is asked is indicated on page 230 of the Blue Book. The expenditure shown on page 228 of the Blue Book is not the total expenditure on the Bombay Development, but it represents only the amount payable for works, repairs and maintenance and land, excluding establishment. Therefore, Sir, while the Honourable the General Member has accepted a cut of Rs. 1,79,000, that cut he can only make in the works, not on the establishment. This cut of Rs. 3 lakhs or rather Rs. 2,83,000 relates, therefore, to the administration of the whole of the Bombay Development including the back bay reclamation, the suburban development, all the works, repairs and maintenance, and everything, Sir, that is connected with it. If you turn to page 230, there are different heads given under which the totals are made. Works in progress,—that is, the Bombay reclamation,—is the very first. These reclamation works in progress are given in detail on pages 234 and 235 of the Blue Book. That is to say, reclamation works Rs. 36 lakhs and odd, are given on pages 234-35 of the Blue Book, and you find, Sir, on page 237 in the right side column, total Rs. 36,01,291, works of the Back bay reclamation. Then, Sir, the Bombay city schemes are also given on page 236 and onwards, except, the repairs and maintenance, which you find under each head which are given in appendix E on page 240. So, Sir, the Rs. 47 lakhs expenditure includes the works, which is Rs. 36 lakhs or so, the repairs and maintenance charges Rs. 4,12,000 and includes establishment which is 704 lakhs. Now, by this motion is intended to ask that the Honourable the General Member should allow a lump cut of 6 per cent. or 6¼ per cent. on the whole expenditure upon this budget in addition to Rs. 1,79,000. As the establishment has not been touched by the last motion, let us examine the provision for establishment. Turning to page 241 of the Blue Book, you will find that for reclamation alone you have got a chief engineer, a deputy chief engineer, you have another deputy chief engineer, you have got two assistant engineers, you have got a dredging master, a deputy dredging master, six superior engineering staff for dredging, and one marine surveyor....

[Mr. B. G. Pahalajani]

Mr. R. D. BELL: Deputy Dredging Master is abolished.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: Now, all these seven officers that are mentioned there are required for what? There are two dredgers, the Sir George Lloyd, which since last year has been literally resting on its oars, and the other is Kalu, together with its booster Jinga. Only one is working. For Sir George Lloyd Rs. 1,93,000 are required for the purpose of putting it in order that is overhauling. It is not working. Last year from the honourable member's speech it would be seen that for 1927-28 an amount of Rs. 4 lakhs and odd was required for dredging and for putting the Sir George Lloyd in order. This time again Rs. 1,93,000 is required for putting the same Sir George Lloyd in order. The same budget, Sir, contains on page 234—provision for dredging plant last year Rs. 4,62,700; which this year is Rs. 1,93,431, page 235. If all these officers, the chief engineer, the two executive engineers, two assistant engineers, six superior engineering staff, and marine surveyor, are all required for the working of the Kalu, only to empty the earth on the different parts of the back bay, we have a separate establishment from the P. W. D., for which there is a separate provision. I will put it to the Honourable the General Member: Is this the irreducible minimum for reclamation? Is this number of officers, the chief engineer, two deputy chief engineers, two assistant engineers, six superior engineering staff, and one marine surveyor, is this the irreducible minimum with which he wants to carry on?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: Will the honourable member explain what he thinks this Rs. 1,93,000 is for?

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: I know it is for reconditioning the dredger "Sir George Lloyd." This dredger is not working. Only "Kalu" is working. For these two dredgers is provided the whole establishment of one chief engineer, two deputy chief engineers, two executive engineers, two assistant engineers and six superior officers necessary for the purposes of the reclamation, for pumping wet earth into plots 1, 2, 6 and 8? Is this the irreducible minimum? Is the Honourable the General Member prepared to say it is? Is he prepared to say that nearly two lakhs is needed for dredging work establishment? Could not he reduce it?

[Mr. B. G. Pahalajani]

Could not he look into this matter himself and take the House into confidence and say that he will try and reduce this expenditure and accept the cut ?

On page 242 there appears an item of Rs. 1,06,256 for reclamation establishment, there is another item of Rs. 56,200 for Housing and Suburban Circle establishment, Rs. 20,973 for Land Manager's office establishment, Rs. 39,444 for the office of the Land Acquisition Officer for the city of Bombay and other items. On page 241 we find one assistant land manager, one executve electrical engineer, executive engineer, two assistants, one station engineer, one personal assistant to Land Manager, one land acquisition officer and other officers as mentioned there. I ask, Sir, if this is the irreducible minimum ? This includes again the works given on page 234, this includes Rs. 1,93,431 for overhauling the "Sir George Lloyd." Is it necessary to waste about two lakhs on reconditioning the "Sir George Lloyd" which was in equally bad order during the last budget session when the Honourable the General Member asked for the budget grant. I would refer the House to page 678 which contains the debate on this item. I ask again, is it necessary to spend Rs. 1,93,431 ?

Now turn to page 240, maintenance charges, Rs. 4,12,137. I ask, the maintenance and repair charges of what ? The Back Bay Reclamation totals Rs. 73,917. The suburban schemes total about 3½ lakhs for maintenance charges which are actually a drag on the finances of this presidency and which are actually costing Government heavily. Why spend nearly four lakhs of rupees on maintenance and repair charges ? The revised estimates for 1927-28 are Rs. 3,95,625. The budget estimates for 1928-29 are Rs. 4,12,137.....

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Has the honourable member read the explanatory note ?

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : I have, but that does not show what amount is recoverable from other authorities.

Turning again to page 242, we find the following items :—

	Rs.
Travelling and fixed conveyance allowance ..	29,060
Duty allowance	12,240
House rent allowance	14,468
Compensatory allowance	9,240

I will only put to the Honourable the General Member that going through the figures for establishment that he has placed before this House, can he not reduce these expenses and also the work which extends to 36 lakhs so far as the reclamation loan is concerned ? Can he not reduce out of the total of 35 lakhs a sum of three lakhs of rupees, namely, only six per cent. of the whole not on establishment only, not on repairs and maintenance but upon the reconditioning of the "Sir George Lloyd" ? I ask the Honourable the General Member to say solemnly that the establishment and other works mentioned on page 234 are the irreducible minimum beyond which he cannot go.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (Karachi City) (Addressed the House in Urdu): Sir, for the last one year I have been observing that expenditure is being incurred in a chaotic manner, in an absolutely blind manner, with no proper check at all. I may tell the House that the Reclamation Scheme has two black elephants, viz., the dredgers "Kalu" and "Jinga" eating into the heart of the citizens of Bombay. The moment I think of this blood rushes into my eyes. The officers claim that what these dredgers pump into the plots contains 80 per cent. water and 20 per cent. earth. I have seen some of the stuff pumped by these dredgers and can say that not more than five per cent. of earth comes along with about the 95 per cent. of water. In fact there would be no exaggeration if I said that these dredgers do nothing beyond pumping sea-water from one part of the bay into another. Since eighteen months, they have been lying idle and expenses of chowkidars and others are being incurred. I sometimes feel that it would have been better if these dredgers had been shipped to Egypt, following the footsteps of their designer and planner. Although the dredgers "Sir George Lloyd" and "Colaba" are not capable of doing any work now, still money has to be spent over establishment for them, as chowkidars have to be provided to keep watch over them. As regards the "Kalu" and the "Jinga" we have not been told what is the cost of 100 cubic feet of material dredged by them. Sir, I have seen dredgers at work in connection with the Sukkur Barrage, and I am quite sure that even though the "Kalu" and the "Jinga" were to work to their fullest capacity, they cannot equal the performance of the Sukkur Barrage dredgers. For, look at what they have been able to do. Only 17,50,000 cubic feet of material was dredged in four years, and if you take the cost at Rs. 10 per 100 cubic feet, it will come to Rs. 170,000 or an average of Rs. 42,000 a year; and for dredging material worth Rs. 42,000, the establishment charges come to more than Rs. 42,000. I will read out the establishment charges. One Dredging Master Rs. 11,000. Last year it was Rs. 15,000, but this year it has been reduced to Rs. 11,000, probably on account of the agitation of honourable members on this side of the House. Then there is the superior engineering staff for the dredging section, namely, two Chief Engineers for dredgers, two second engineers and two assistant dredging masters; the expenditure on this account is Rs. 7,800, including the charge for one marine surveyor. Then there are of course the house rent and other allowances. The total expenditure in this way comes to a lakh. So, it really comes to this, that for dredging material worth Rs. 42,000, the establishment charge is Rs. 1,00,000. Sir, these facts are very well known to the Honourable the General Member; they are known to the Secretary of the Department also. If you add to this, the interest charges, the expenditure will still further increase. My suggestion to the Honourable the General Member is that this staff should be dispensed with; the dredgers also may be scraped. He should not care for the sentiments of those either above or below him, and all his energy should be directed to saving this drain on the revenues of this presidency.

[Mr. Haji Mir Mahomed Baloch]

The next point is the officers kept on this work. For next year, the charge on this account is a little less than it was during the current year, but the charges during the current year were greater than those in 1924.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: Will the honourable member scrutinise the figures?

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH: I have gone through them. Last year the establishment charges were more and the work done was less.

Mr. President, let us now consider the extent of the work that is going on with regard to reclamation. I think the area covered may be taken to be 2 miles long and half a mile wide, and for this the staff engaged is 1 Chief Engineer, 2 Deputy Chief Engineers, Reclamation Branch, and 2 Assistant Engineers. I know how the work of the Public Works Department is going on in Sind. In Sind, which covers such a vast area, there is only 1 Superintending Engineer, with 5 to 6 Executive Engineers under him, and each Executive Engineer has 4 to 5 Assistant Engineers under him. And yet for work on such a small area Government are required to engage the services of 1 Chief Engineer, 2 Deputy Chief Engineers and 2 Assistant Engineers. Expenditure is being increased in this way. In accepting the cut of Rs. 1,79,000 the Honourable the General Member stated that it may be necessary for him to come to the House for a supplementary grant as a result of that reduction, and he asked for the indulgence of the House when the time came. Another point is the secretariat establishment. There is provision for the Secretary to Government of Rs. 36,000; deputy secretary to Government and assistant commissioner Rs. 18,000 and assistant secretary to Government, Rs. 11,400. Besides this there is provision for the establishment separately made. Over and above this there is provision made for travelling allowance, house-rent allowance, compensatory allowance and so many other allowances. I hope the Honourable the General Member if only he determines to effect retrenchment there is ample room for it. He must not show his liberality and must be very strict in effecting these retrenchments. Unless he does that, the Council will not vote a single pie.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District): Sir, the House has agreed to proceed with the reclamation of blocks 1, 2, 7 and 8. What has tempted me to take part in this debate is that when increased demands are made by way of subventions from our ordinary revenue at a time when our finances are in straitened circumstances, I wish to know if it will be possible to suspend further reclamation of these blocks without detriment to the work already there, so that we may resume it when our general finances improve. This is one way of doing justice to the complaint that has been made. I simply wish to know whether it is not possible without detriment to the work already there to suspend further operations for a few years, because a demand is made by way of subsidy from the general revenues.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE (Bombay City, North): Sir, the cut has been proposed with reference to the establishment of the Development Department. As the proposer of the cut has pointed out it is a cut proposed from the whole amount. I would like to suggest one thing whether it is necessary to have so many highly paid officers to look after such a small work in a small area. Even an ordinary man with any commonsense would say that it is not necessary. There are seven officers carrying a salary of Rs. 14,000. The official staff of the secretariat in the same branch is costing about Rs. 6,000. I do not see any reason why such a big staff should be retained, when as the Honourable the General Member has stated, half the work has been stopped.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: This is repeating arguments. I must bring it to the notice of the House that when there is a discussion on cuts, the speeches must be within the scope of the cut proposed. If in the discussion even arguments are repeated, it will impede the progress of the House in the voting of demands for grants. I do not see why I should not check hereafter speeches more strictly than I have done hitherto. I would request the honourable member to argue fresh points.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE: I bow to your ruling, Sir. I have not repeated any of the arguments that have already been advanced. I wish to point out how retrenchment in this case can be effected. I have listened to all the speeches that have been made on this subject and no honourable member has referred to this. I want to point out that these seven officers are not necessary and they might be reduced to a smaller number. If this had been acceptable to the Honourable the General Member it would satisfy the House. With this suggestion I support the motion for cut and resume my seat.

Mr. R. D. BELL: Sir, there are one or two main points on which I would like to give a little information to the House. The honourable member from Sukkur made special reference to the establishment charges and asked for some kind of assurance that these have been reduced to the minimum. Now, it may be admitted that when retrenchment is going on there is often, just before an officer's services are finally dispensed with, a short interval of a few weeks or it may be a month or two, in which he is not so busy as when the work was in full swing; as for instance, when dredging finally stops, probably at the end of next season, say, on a Saturday afternoon it is quite impossible to ask the whole staff to go on Monday morning. Things have to be wound up and the work does not stop abruptly but tails off. That state of affairs has practically come to an end, and at the present time, if you take the engineering establishment, it has for all practical purposes been reduced to the bare minimum. In the Reclamation Branch, for instance, there were at one time four deputy chief engineers; now there are two. One of these is a specialist in dregding, and while dredging continues, his services must be retained. If the honourable member will turn to the budget relating to the establishment of the Reclamation Branch, he will see that two executive engineers have been retrenched last year. One of these was in the dredging section and he was retrenched when the operations of the "Sir George Lloyd" ceased. I may refer to the staff actually engaged on the dredger "Kalu."

[Mr. R. D. Bell]

It has been several times asked whether it is really necessary to have six superior engineers on the staff. The dredger works all the 24 hours of the day and there are only two assistant dredging masters taking turns. It is perfectly obvious to any layman that this is the bare minimum. There is another point in this connection. The dredgers are insured. If an accident occurs owing to the negligence of a member of the staff, the insurance company is liable; but if an accident occurs due to the negligence of the employer (in this case, Government) the insurance company is not liable. When the "Sir George Lloyd" broke down at the end of 1926, one of the questions raised by the insurance company was whether Government were not liable, because they had been negligent as an employer by over-retrenching. This is one of the points on which Government are bound to meet the insurance company. There is not the slightest chance of the staff on the dredger being reduced, and if the insurance company said they were dissatisfied with the number of the staff they would have to be added to.

Mr. LALJI NARANJI: Is there any agreement with the insurance company that the dredger will be properly manned.

Mr. R. D. BELL: There is no such formal agreement. I think honourable members will be satisfied if I say that Government are in correspondence with the insurance company.

Now, at the head of the staff there is the Chief Engineer. Until the revised project estimate is prepared and sanctioned and this is very necessary from many points of view and it will be an advantage to this House also—until the revised project estimate is sanctioned in accordance with the curtailed programme which has been in operation since last year's budget, it will be necessary to have a Chief Engineer. Not only so, but subsequently it will probably be necessary to give the Chief Engineer some kind of assistance in preparing the revised project estimate. When the dredging finishes, the dredging staff will be retrenched, but these will then come along to the work of development, and in place of the dredging staff we will probably require an executive engineer for making roads, laying water mains, sewerage pipes, etc.

These are the main facts, which I think, will convince any layman that at the present time the Reclamation Staff has been reduced to the bare minimum.

As regards the Housing and Suburban Circle, which has been transferred to the Public Works Department, Mr. Browne, who is in charge of the technical operations of that staff, has assured the House that it is fully worked at the present time.

Another point which arose was as regards the re-conditioning of the "Lloyd" for which a sum of Rs. 1,93,000 has been provided. I would invite the attention of honourable members to the five-page note which has been circulated. From the note on item No. 14, it will be seen that this expenditure is ultimately recoverable from the insurance company. If the "Sir George Lloyd" is not re-conditioned, it can only be sold as scrap metal.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: What was done last year ?

Mr. R. D. BELL: The reconditioning of the "Sir George Lloyd" was delayed pending the settlement of the question of the liability of the insurance company. That has now been settled and the reconditioning has begun.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV: Did the insurance company accept the liability ?

Mr. R. D. BELL: The insurance company have admitted their liability.

There was also a reference made to the cost of repairs and maintenance, the figures relating to which are given at page 240 of the Blue Book. I would like honourable members to look carefully at the way in which the amount of Rs. 4,12,000 is made up. There is a sum of Rs. 73,900 for Back Bay Reclamation Scheme. Details of that scheme are given in the five-page note which has been circulated. By far the greater amount—more than half—is for Salsette Water Supply. And honourable members will realise that as that supply increases, amongst other items, more money has to be paid to the Bombay Municipality for the water which is received from them. That expenditure is taken under repairs and maintenance.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV: Has the reconditioning commenced, or will it commence next year ?

Mr. R. D. BELL: The reconditioning will partly begin this year, but it is not expected that any bills will be received this year.

These are the main facts.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN (Bombay City, South): Sir, only on a point of information. I expected in the course of this debate a point to be cleared up. The Honourable the General Member stated that last year or the year before there was a serious accident to one of the dredgers the "Sir George Lloyd," costing some 30 or 40 lakhs—it may be 20 lakhs, I do not know exactly. The question then raised was how the accident was caused, whether it was due to the employment of incompetent dredging masters or engineers, and there was a dispute between the insurance company and Government. The insurance company refused to pay the losses because they alleged that it was due to the employment of incompetent dredging masters who were unfit to take charge of the dredger. Is that dispute involving several lakhs still pending between the insurance company and Government ? I expected in the course of the debate that important point to be cleared up. We would like to know from the Honourable the General Member whether that dispute is settled and whether the insurance company has accepted liability or whether that loss of 20 lakhs is to come on the rate-payers of Bombay. I would like to know whether the allegation that the accident was due to the employment of incompetent staff is correct. There must have been enormous losses also owing to the staff remaining idle while the dredger was lying useless. That point might be cleared up before the debate on this motion is closed.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Sir, it will not take two minutes for me to explain it. I am sorry I cannot accept the cut. This is rather amusing, because for the last three or four minutes the honourable member the Secretary of the Development Department has been explaining the point raised by the honourable member. Probably, the honourable member did not hear him. But practically the last three or four minutes were devoted by the honourable member the Secretary to explain that point.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN : Have they accepted the liability ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : They have accepted the liability. The estimate of damage comes to Rs. 2,63,000 and the insurance company have accepted liability. It is also stated in the note in the Blue Book that the money will be returned to us.

I do not think there is any other point. The honourable member the Secretary has explained the question of staff on the dredger. It is impossible to reduce the dredging staff any further. If we do so, we will be running great risks.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : What about the staff for the Suburban Scheme ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : The honourable member the Secretary of the Development Department has assured the honourable member that they are working right up to the collar. They cannot be retrenched further.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : When will the staff put the dredger Sir George Lloyd in working order ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : That has been discussed. I think it will be wasting the time of the House to explain that further.

Dr. M. K. DIXIT : When will the dredger be in working order ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order.

Question put and lost.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order. The next item is No. 10 which stands in the name of Mr. Nariman. That is, I understand, in connection with a minus item. I want to know how the honourable member considers it to be in order at all.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN : I quite appreciate it, Sir. In view of the fact that other members have also given notice of small cuts, I do not want to move it.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : No, that cannot be the reason for not moving the cut. The cut proposed is not in order.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Sir, I move :

" Reduce by Re. 1 Total Demand on the Bombay Development Scheme. "

Sir, the Bombay Development Scheme is a scheme which ruins this presidency. In the year before the last the subsidy was twenty lakhs. Last year, you will find, that the subsidy came to Rs. 27,50,000 and this year the subsidy has gone up to Rs. 32,05,000. In this way, the whole presidency has been practically ruined by this scheme. Even Government may be forming expectation of earning some benefit in the course of time from this scheme, but I venture to say that they are mistaken in their expectation. Sir, last year a negative entry was shown in the budget in order to mention that what has to be recovered from the Government of India would be duly recovered from them. But during the whole of the last year, that is, during the whole of the current year the land has not been ready for being handed over to the Government of India and hence that amount could not be recovered from them.

The Honourable the General Member pointed out the reasons as to why Government were not able to make that land ready. The reasons given by them was that there had been greater shrinkage than was expected and further layers of muram had to be put. Even now we are told that the land will not be ready for another month. So, you will find that all the calculations of the Department have been upset. In not a single instance they have succeeded in showing advantage in the scheme. The dredgers that were bought have not given satisfactory service as was expected. There have been accidents and thereby heavy losses have been caused on account of heavy damages, due to those accidents. In fact, it is like the Bombay Government making a pile of rupees and allowing it to be squandered and plundered away by others. If such a thing had happened in any Western country, I am sure the people who were responsible for this loss would have found it very difficult to protect themselves from the wrath of the infuriated people. But unfortunately here, the officers who ought to be responsible to the public, have been irresponsible to them. They have squandered crores and crores of rupees and just now they are asking for lakhs and lakhs of rupees in the form of subsidies from the provincial revenues.

This year, we require an additional grant of more than Rs. 34 lakhs for the primary education. There the Government cannot make provision while the Development Department devours more than 32 lakhs as a subsidy for 60 years. We were told by an honourable member from Bombay that the land which the Improvement Trust had at its disposal was not being sold. The prices have fallen down, and therefore, every year we have to see in this budget nothing but heavier and heavier subsidy to be paid from the general revenues of this presidency.

Sir, I have to point out one more fact, namely, that in order to make this budget appear palatable, they do not put down interest together with the expenditure they are going to incur during the next year side by side. If they put down both the things, then they would have to demand a much heavier amount than they are actually demanding. They are demanding Rs. 48,83,000 for the prosecution of the development scheme. But if they put down the interest that they are to pay, then the House would be in a position to see how much money is being taken away from them. These interest charges are a regular charge on the expenses that have to be incurred in connection with the scheme. But in order to make an appearance which will mislead the House they are not putting down the interest that they have been paying on the same page. So, they demand this amount of Rs. 48,83,000. The way in which these figures are arrived at is, that they put down Rs. 2,08,76,000 as probable payments which are to be made by the Government of India for the land which we are to supply to them for military. Now, what they do is this ; that Rs. 48,83,000 will be spent, while Rs. 2,08,76,000 will be received. Now, therefore, they say they will have a negative amount as expenditure in this budget. That is to say, Rs. 1,59,93,000 will be utilised for reducing the debt. But in putting down that item, minus Rs. 1,59,93,000, they do not put down the interest that will have to be paid. Also on page 217, in Bombay Development Scheme, they put down the negative entry minus Rs. 98,30,000. Really speaking, the difference between these two negative entries represents the interest charges which this Development Department has to pay and these interest charges work out to be Rs. 61,63,000. Now, if they had put down the figures side by side on the same page, the House would have been in a position to see what enormous losses this presidency is suffering. But, unfortunately, the Government go on with this venture, and do not stop it and still put more and more money on it. The dredger Sir George Lloyd, which was bought at the greatest expense, is not working for the last year and a half, and, Sir, we know the paltry amount we are to receive for the damage to that dredger from the insurance company. We are to get Rs. 2,63,000 only. Perhaps in repairs Government may have spent a much more amount than what they are going to get from the insurance company. I should like to know the amount for which it was insured and why the damages were ascertained to be so small. Just now it was told by the Honourable the General Member that he received from the insurance company Rs. 2,63,000 for the damage caused by the accident.....

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : I did not say we received. I had better contradict that statement at once. I did not say Government had received. I said the damage done to the dredger was Rs. 2,63,000 and that the insurance company had accepted the liability. That is to say, they would pay the whole amount.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : I should like to know now what Government has spent in repairing and reconditioning the dredger.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : I have given the figure of the estimate. The estimate of the damage is Rs. 2,63,000.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Has the whole amount been accepted by the insurance company ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : The insurance company is liable to pay the cost of the repairs.

Mr J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Sir, it is necessary to make a searching enquiry into the activities of this department and to put a stop to all the mismanagements that have taken place so far. Government allowed Mr. Harvey to prosecute Mr. Nariman, a member of this House, for the evidence that he gave before a committee of the Government of India. They went out of their way and made a decision in which Government would bear the cost of the expenditure of prosecution themselves before the case would be won. Generally speaking, they ought to have allowed Mr. Harvey to go to the court at his own expense. Instead of that, they said Government would bear the cost, and if the case was lost, they would be recovering the amount from Mr. Harvey. Now, the case has been lost. Of course, the matter is going to come before the House at a later stage, and I do not want to dilate upon it just now. But I may be allowed to say that there are disclosures during the prosecution of that case and those disclosures have damned the department, and I think nothing can save the reputation of that department. In spite of those disclosures, Government have taken no action on the disclosures that were made during the prosecution of the case. Have they brought to book the contractors and also various other officers who were responsible for negligence of duty? When there was no necessity of paying anything, still even heavier payments were made by even adding ciphers at the end of figures. That is, Sir, if you add two ciphers, the payment becomes hundredfold. And it has been brought to the notice of the court during the prosecution of this case that even hundredfold payments were made in certain cases. Have the officers who were responsible for such action been brought to book? Have Government taken any action for improving the conduct of the whole department? They are doing nothing; they are sitting silent; and they are allowing the same things to go on. And it is necessary that this rupee cut should be carried by this House in order that Government may be compelled to set their House in order and to save this presidency from complete ruin by bringing the offenders to book.

[Mr. J. C. Swaminarayan]

Question proposed.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN (Bombay City, South): Sir, I rise to support this motion. Every year the Development Department budget is being discussed in this honourable House and every year I have moved a cut of a similar description as a vote of censure against the department. In the discussion of those budgets my position was not the same as to-day. I moved that cut as a vote of censure merely on hearsay information and merely on such materials as were in my possession, but to-day, Sir, when I rise to support this motion, I am in a better position than I was before in asking this honourable House to support this motion which certainly is to be construed as a vote of censure not only against the Development Department but against Government. I am able to say that if ever there was any department of Government, if ever there was any Government in any part of the world that so richly deserved a vote of censure, it is the Development Department of the Government of Bombay and it is the Government of Bombay that very well deserves such a vote of censure. I will go further and say that this vote of censure is indeed a very very mild action on the part of non-official members of this House because, as the powers of the House are very limited, the only thing that we can do under the circumstances is to propose a vote of censure. Supposing similar circumstances had been brought to light not in this country but in any other civilized country of the world, I ask the honourable members of Government who come from a country which they call free, namely, Great Britain, supposing one-tenth part of these disclosures had been brought to light, would that Government have survived that disclosure ? It would have ceased to function at once as a result of the disclosures of such irregularities, the heads of departments would have had to resign, public indictments would have taken place for much lesser irregularities, much lesser jobberies than those that came to light in this particular instance. Still, in this country we cannot unseat the Government, we cannot even ask the honourable members responsible for this state of affairs even to resign, but we can only move a vote of censure and even in the case of such a mild action, I know that we cannot be at all certain that it will be carried. But whatever the result, I do not mind. This is the first occasion which has presented itself when we, as representatives of the taxpayers and ratepayers, have a right to call upon the Government benches, the honourable members on the other side, for an explanation of the state of affairs that has existed in the Development Department for several years past. We ask the honourable members of Government, standing face to face with them, not behind their backs, to render explanations of the state of affairs that has been existing and has been permitted to exist in this Development Department for years past.

I ask honourable members to realise what was the state of affairs that has been existing and has been permitted to exist for years past. What has been the state of affairs ? I do hope that the honourable members have realised to what extent public moneys have been wasted so far as the Development Department is concerned. Every time that I spoke on this Department I made it very clear—I am prepared to be called an extreme critic, to be described as an unreasonable agitator, as an extremist agitator—that I am prepared to prove that all this wastage is due not merely to errors of judgment, wrong calculation, incompetence or to any other honest errors. We are prepared to concede and to forgive that knowing that human beings, however clever, are liable to err. But what we wanted to know was whether it was really honest error or something more than honest error. We are in a position to say now that a great percentage of this huge wastage of public funds was not merely due, as they tried to make out hitherto, to mistakes in the calculations or to honest errors of judgment but that this wastage of public moneys is due to corruption, fraud, deliberate corruption and fraud, that has been going on in the Development Department for years past. I am prepared to be indulgent to a reasonable degree, but in spite of my readiness to be so, I must say that it has been proved that this wastage of public moneys has been due to deliberate fraud on the part of the " trustees " of public moneys who had committed criminal misappropriation of those public moneys, and that therefore so far as the honourable members on the other side of the House are concerned, they deserve no indulgence and no consideration. I want the honourable House to realise to what extent public funds have been wasted. Honourable members must have seen that in a prosecution of this description we cannot bring out all the facts and materials at our disposal—not even one-tenth of the materials in our possession can be brought out—owing to technical objections and on account of the necessity to conform to the requirements of law and restrictions of court procedure. But I ask honourable members "what next"? Are we going to sit quietly here and allow things to go on in the same way as they have gone on in the past? The officers concerned have departed, other officers are likely to depart, it may be said that nothing more can or need be done and that therefore let us stop and do nothing more. Is that going to be the position? I ask honourable members to consider that it has not been a case of, as it were, a fraud here and a fraud there, or a jobbery here and a jobbery there, but it has been one systematic fraud going on on a very large scale resulting in an enormous wastage (at least 30 to 40 per cent. of it) of public funds due not to mere errors of judgment or wrong estimates but to deliberate fraud in the department. I have said it before and I will say it again that the honourable member, the self-appointed leader of the opposition (Laughter)—he seems to think that because he is occupying a seat which should be occupied by a leader of the opposition, that he automatically becomes the leader of the opposition—does not seem to know his own mind when he says that other honourable members may not be knowing their own minds and that they appear to be in need of his advice and guidance. He got up to support the vote of censure but we found him resuming his seat after a couple of minutes after supporting the Government. That is the position in which the honourable self-appointed leader of the opposition finds himself. In a speech lasting 5 or 10 minutes we will find him performing mental somersaults. I would ask the House not to support this motion without facts or figures as the honourable member, the self-appointed leader of the opposition tried to do, nor without knowing my own mind (because I know my responsibility) but I can point out a few instances which will illustrate to you the real state of affairs as they existed and were allowed to exist in the Development Department for a number of years.

I say with all the responsibility at my command that no honest man either inside or outside commercial circles could have any dealings with any section of this department who was not prepared to have such dealings on the terms and conditions as laid down by the departmental officers themselves. Numbers of merchants I can produce for the satisfaction of the Honourable the General Member even to-day. Honest merchants will come and tell him that in spite of offering low and reasonable rates they could not secure contracts from departmental officers except on terms and conditions laid down by those officers and unless they were prepared to grease the palms of those departmental officers. Numerous merchants, respectable and honest merchants, will come and tell the Honourable the General Member that they could not deal with the Development Department because they could not be prepared to grease the palms of the departmental officers. That was the position, no man who was not prepared to deal with the department on the terms laid down by the departmental officers, could have any dealings with that department. In every part of the activities of the department, I can point out, whether a small or a big activity, a small contract or a purchase order, no transaction could be put through unless there was some private and secret arrangement between the officer and the person dealing with him. What was the result of that state of affairs. I will cite the instance of coal supply. Honourable members no doubt know that the Government of India have an officer called the Mining Engineer whose business it is to supply coal to the Railway Board and to all Government departments at fixed rates from the collieries and other parts. A similar arrangement was made with the Development Department and the Mining Engineer was to have supplied coal to the department at a fixed rate to any extent the department required. But because the private and secret arrangement could not be made with the Mining Engineer (who was an official of the Government of India), the coal supplied by him was rejected by the officers of the Development Department as not coming up to the required standard and the departmental officers placed orders with private firms for the supply of their requirements of coal at much higher rates. There were instances brought to light in the course of the proceedings in the court.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: Will the honourable member give me the date of that mining engineer's arrangement with the Development Department? When did the specific instance that he quotes occur?

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN: I am giving specific instances. Coal which was offered to be supplied by a particular firm at a much lower rate was rejected by the officer. But this gentleman, Balkisondas, took possession of the very coal which was rejected by the officer, he offered that very coal in his own name to the very same officer at a higher rate, and though it was rejected by the officer and when offered at a lower rate by another person, it was accepted by him at a higher rate. It was the very coal, the very same lorry, the very same quality, the very same stuff, but only a change of name of the person who offered it. The position was this, that whoever wanted to deal with this Reclamation branch could not do it, unless they could do it through this Balkisondas.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: On what date was this particular instance?

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN: In 1922-23-24. I will supply the particulars and details if the Honourable the General Member wants them. But this is a fact that it was not possible to have any dealings with the department except through Balkisondas. These gentlemen who wanted to supply materials to the Development Department entered into partnership, so that Balkisondas started two firms, one as working contractor in the name of Balkisonseth & Son, and another as supplier in the name of B. Balfour & Co. Balfour & Co. became the sole suppliers, and anybody who wanted to be a supplier had to go through Balkisondas, if they wanted to approach the precincts of the Development Department.

[Mr. K. F. Nariman]

Instances after instances of this description can be given where this gentleman Balkisondass became the boss of the whole show, and no honest trader outside the firm of Balfour and Company could have any dealings with the Department.

Now, Sir, we know what were the relations existing between the gentleman Balkisondass and the officers of the department. It has been brought out in evidence, and it has not been challenged, that this gentleman was making all sorts of presents to the officers of the department—firs, carpets, motor cars, bazar supplies, and all sorts of things. That was done openly by this gentleman. Was it without consideration ? Was it ? Balkinsondass, a shrewd merchant spending so lavishly after the different officers, without any return ! It is impossible to believe that. In return for that Balkisondass got the contract for all the works in the Reclamation branch as well as for almost all the supplies. Instances were brought out in court where even orders were given to Balkisondass blank, without fixing any quantity, without fixing any rates. He was to fix the quantity, he was to fix the rate, and demand from the Department whatever he wanted ; and it was paid. That was the state of affairs. At least 50 per cent. less supplies were given, but payment was made in full. Now, Sir, it was also brought out in the course of questions and answers in this House that the rate of Rs. 10-8-0 for dry filling which was being paid to Balkinsondass without tenders was ultimately reduced to Rs. 2-8-0, for the very same kind of filling work. That was the enormous wastage of public funds when the work was entrusted to this gentleman at the rate of Rs. 10-8-0. That is the sort of thing that was going on so far as the Reclamation branch is concerned. I could detain the House for 12 hours in giving instances of this sort, if the Chair permits it ; but I do not wish to take up the time of the House, there are other departments of Government that have to be dealt with.

One peculiar kind of fraud that went on was that after the work started, one of the lower staff of the department resigned. After resigning from his post, he converted himself into a contractor. After he converted himself into a contractor, all the work of the branch from which he had resigned was transferred to him at much higher rates, without tenders. One specific instance of that kind I will point out. One Mr. Drake, who was a foreman in the Kandivli quarries resigned his post, and immediately became a sub-contractor for preparing cement blocks ; and the contract for preparing cement blocks was given to him at the rate of Rs. 25 per block, whereas the actual cost came to not more than Rs. 8 to Rs. 10. That gentleman knew nothing about cement block making, because he was only a foreman, but he transferred the work to another contractor, one Taj Mahomed whom he paid at the rate of Rs. 12 per block, and he pocketed the difference of Rs. 13-8-0 per block for thousands of blocks that were prepared at the Kandivli works. That was the position. Much larger quantities were prepared than were actually necessary for the works. You will find in the evidence of the engineer before the Meaṛs Committee it has been admitted that blocks of the value of £ 21,000 were lying unused, prepared for works which were not required. One could not understand why it was done. In the evidence before the Mears Committee, the engineer says "There are at present £ 21,000 worth of blocks lying at Kandivli, and, as Sir Frederick has pointed out, some of them have been there since 1923." This is only one item of £ 21,000 worth of cement blocks lying at Kandivli since 1923. It comes to about Rs. 3 lakhs, and these blocks are still lyirg there. The members of the Mears Committee could not understand, and the officer could not explain as to why so many blocks were prepared. There was an actual programme of the amount of work to be done in a year; that programme was chalked out at the beginning of the year, and only that number of blocks was to be prepared which was required for that year. Still two or three years in advance they began preparing the cement blocks, and they are lying there now. Why? Because of this arrangement between the officers of the department and the man who was made contractor, in order that profiteering may be allowed; more blocks, more profits. These are small instances here and there; I could multiply them, but I do not want to take more time than is absolutely necessary.

Sir, it has been brought out that the high officers of the Reclamation branch used to be supplied with all sorts of materials belonging to the Government. They used to be supplied with domestic servants from out of the servants who were entered on the muster rolls and who were paid by the Development Department. Their hamals, their cleaners, their drivers,—all sorts of domestic servants for them were maintained on the muster rolls and they were doing domestic work for the officers. The Honourable the General Member may be thinking of particularly one person who was a member of the staff. But I may tell the Honourable the General Member that I do not rely upon the oral statements of any member of the staff. I would ask him to look at the records in the hands of the officers themselves. I know he will say that Mr. Brooks is responsible for bringing out these facts, and he is not worthy of credit. But let me tell the House that I do not rely upon the oral testimony, but upon the muster rolls, which were admitted to be falsified, I rely upon slips written in the handwriting of the officers themselves asking for supplies from the Government Stores for their own consumption. Sir, as I said I do not wish now to touch the housing and industrial schemes. I shall touch upon that at the proper time, when I move the cut on that department. That was the state of affairs. I have pointed out only a few instances that had been going on, and still the Development Department goes on as merrily as ever, as if nothing had happened. Nobody refers to what has happened in the past; the Honourable the General Member very complacently asks for his demand once again never telling us what he proposes to do with regard to the disclosures that have been brought out and with regard to the other facts which could not be brought out in the course of the proceedings, but which will be brought out at the proper time. What does he propose to do? What is going to be his next step? The public have a right to enquire as to what he proposes to do. It is no good saying that these are all matters of the past, that the officers have left the department, and the department itself is almost closed. It is no good saying that it is not possible to recover the funds that have been wasted, and therefore the best course is to sit quiet and lament over the lossess that have occurred, and to give an assurance that such a thing will not happen in the future. This sort of statement will not satisfy the ratepayers of Bombay who have certainly got a legitimate grievance against the Development Department and against the Government of Bombay. I repeat again as the honourable member Moulvi has stated nobody attributes motives to the Honourable the General Member, who occupies the seat to-day. But so far as the public of Bombay is concerned they have a right to expect, the Honourable the General Member, a gentleman in his position, to look after the interest of the ratepayers of Bombay. We did expect that he would exercise his powers and take into consideration and enquire into any complaint that would be brought before him, as he has so often said that he would do so. He knew that a number of petitions complaining against the officers of the department were made to him. Those complaints were placed for inquiry in the hands of the heads of departments against whom the complaints were made, and they were asked to report. The Honourable the General Member relied on those reports and told the critics that the complaints were unfounded. I will give him one instance if he wants. The honourable member stated that he would make enquiries if any specific instances were brought to his notice. It was brought to his notice that after all the tenders to the department had been made, Balkisan Das was asked to put in a blank tender which was accepted as the lowest tender. The honourable member made enquiries and Balkisan Das was put on the black list. Why did he put him in the black list unless there was something in it ? He is no more on the list of contractors. If the Honourable the General Member merely relying on the report of his subordinates says that there is no truth in the allegation made by the public, that is not the mentality which would satisfy the public. He has got a responsibility to discharge towards the public. I may tell him that he is put in a position of trust and the public of Bombay has reposed trust in him that he will not allow things to go as they were actually going on. Relying on him the public have remained for so many years without taking any active steps, as they relied upon him as one coming from a high commercial community. We regret to find to-day that the trust was misplaced. The Honourable the General Member placed his trust on his subordinates which too was misplaced. He owes an explanation to the public of Bombay. I hope he will clear his position before he leaves his seat and join us as one of the agitators against the Development Department after he has vacated his seat.

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI (Bombay University): Sir, I only want to offer a few remarks on this question with as much dispassion as one can possibly command on a subject which is more or less an open sore with this presidency. I am not concerned at the present moment as to what things might have been in the past ; I am also not concerned at the present moment with the conduct which the Government in its loftiness has adopted towards my honourable friend Mr. Nariman. I am only concerned at the present moment with the purity of public administration of this presidency. I ask the honourable member opposite what has been done with the Development Department to restore confidence in the administration of this presidency? Whatever has been done by him in the past is more or less an academic interest question. But during the trial of the honourable member Mr. Nariman—which in the interests of everybody, I wish, had not been launched—many things were disclosed, and I want to know what steps have been taken by this department after the judgment was delivered. I want also to know what attempts have been made by the department to hound and persecute the persons who were guilty of dereliction of duty as my honourable friend was hounded and persecuted for the best part of last two years. It is the right and privilege of this House to be told of all this. It is the duty of Government in justice to themselves to stand before this House and say: "We have done this much to ensure that the administration of the Development Department is carried on purely and that in future it will be carried on in a proper manner."

We also want to know as regards the present administration as to what precautions are being taken to see that the same things which happened in the past have no chance of being repeated. There is one attitude which Government may take, has taken and can take. They can say: "If you deliver a speech in the Council you are protected by privilege. You dare not utter it outside, because there is the law of defamation. Unless you prove a crime to the hilt we refuse to suspect our underlings." One can understand that attitude but no one can justify it. We want the Honourable the General Member to come down from his lofty pedastal and take the House into his confidence as to what steps have been taken to ensure that things are not going in the same way as before, as to the shame which has been reflected not only on one particular department but the whole administration of the presidency. Though there is a department which everybody has been clamouring against, no attempt, no frank attempt, has been made to meet the grievances of the people. The Government have not the frankness to say: "Let any one who has got evidence come forward. We are willing to exonerate him from any civil or criminal liability. Let every one tell us as to what is exactly the charge against the officers of the department." They have got the C. I. D. to do anything for them and sometimes even more than they are entitled to do. Why has not the honourable member ordered this C. I. D. to enquire into the misdeeds of the Development Department? I repeat Sir, that this is not a question of the prestige of the Government; but it is a question of the honour of the whole administration of the presidency. "In all the ills we ever bore, we grieved, we sighed we wept; we never blushed before." But when we saw the disclosures in the Harvey Nariman case we did blush. In this flight it is the duty of Government to let go official prestige; and to take the whole presidency into confidence; to adopt rigorous measures to restore the honour of this presidency. It is a grave reflection that a department which is presided over by an Indian in whom this presidency reposed confidence should be in this unfortunate state and sooner this state of things is removed the better for all parties concerned. I appeal to the honourable member opposite not to adopt the reticent mood in which officials generally entrench themselves; and to let us know what measures are taken to see that nothing of what has happened in the past will ever happen in future.

Mr. HOOSEINBHOY ABDULLABHOY LALLJEE (Bombay City): Sir, I rise to support the motion. I am sorry, Sir, for what has happened to this department which has been under the control of my honourable friend the General Member for whom I have great regard for the last five years. Although the citizens of Bombay were saying for a long time that grave irregularities were going on in his department, Government turned a deaf ear to their voice. Nobody could ever have dreamt that the irregularities which were disclosed in the Harvey-Nariman case would have occurred in a Government Department, especially when Government's attention was being drawn to such of the irregularities as were suspected by the public. When I appeared before the Mears Committee, I placed before them the opinions that were prevalent in the city. More than once the Chairman of the Committee asked me to tell him whether as a businessman I could believe all the tales prevalent in the city. As I had no inside knowledge of the Department as an officer or as a contractor I could not tell them definitely, but I said that there must be some truth in so many stories about the irregularities and something in the nasty rumours, and that officers who seem to have paid 200 to 300 per cent. must either be fools or rogues. When I spoke to the Honourable the General Member about two years ago about that worthy Balkisan Sheth and told him that he had been tried before a court of law and convicted of fraud and that he was carrying on large contracts of various kind in the Development Department, and was not a well-known contractor or a firm of any repute or financial standing, the Honourable the General Member seems to me to be surprised. When I saw that such a gentleman was a contractor carrying out all sorts of contracts in the Development Department for three years, I thought that something must be radically wrong with the Department. I have experience as a businessman, and I know that in other Government Departments they keep a list of approved contractors, or at least a list of contractors about whom they have made some enquiry. Any businessman or even a landlord, let alone the Government who has to deal with another person, is sure to make some enquiries about the person with whom he deals with. But I find, Sir, that no enquiry was made about their contractors by the Development Department, although large contracts were given to them. If enquiries were made, or if any attempt had been made by responsible Heads, would they not have found that this Balkisan Sheth was a man of straw, a man in the Railway Service, a man who came from the Punjab and was tried in Court of law and found guilty of fraud. He was running three firms here for Development contracts under the names of D. K. Sheth, Balkissan

[Mr. Hooseinbhoy Abdullabhoy Lalljee]

Sheth and B. Balfour and Co. Sir, I cannot agree that all this was due to an innocent mistake. I believe that, as has been stated in the court, there was a ring who managed affairs as they liked.

If we go into the details of this case, I do not know what we ought to say about this Department. It is quite clear that there was nothing like an enquiry into the antecedents of contractors, or capability of contractors employed in this Department. This fact is sufficient for me to believe that the department was carried on in such a manner that no public well-known contractor could enter into their business. The result is that we have lost lakhs of rupees. I only say lakhs of rupees, but if the figures were gone into carefully it might be a crore and more.

Then, Sir, we were told, during the case that was going on, one story which I cannot digest. It was stated that many of the contractors had lost their books. Even a well-known bank was stated to have lost its ledger book, and to our surprise further we were told that files from Government Records were also missing, not only that but that the fact that important files were missing came to the knowledge of Government when this case was taken up. Is this the state of Government records in Government Departments or is this the case with this Department alone. Sir, if all these contractors had lost their books and even Government files have been missing, it cannot be all through natural causes. It may be stated therefore that some one must have destroyed them. If so, why was he or they not prosecuted ?

Then, in another instance, it was stated that the officers of the Development Department had indented for stores in anticipation of sanction for certain schemes and one of those schemes was the Dharavi Scheme. When I heard that, I must tell you that I was really taken aback, because the Dharavi Scheme was never a scheme that Government ever thought of seriously. That scheme depended on the Improvement Trust requiring those lands. All sorts of endeavours were made to get the Improvement Trust and the Corporation to accept that scheme. Although the dispute between the Improvement Trust and the landlords is still pending and has not been settled, yet we are told that Government wanted to push on with that scheme then, that is couple of years ago and therefore orders were sent out for materials to complete that scheme. I do not know whether Government had sent out orders for goods for a contemplated scheme for a road to Delhi which some day they may do. It is absurd to suggest that orders were sent out for material to complete a scheme which depended on the co-operation of the Municipality and the Improvement Trust. When such things are placed before us, we cannot come to any other decision but that it was wilfully done.

Then, Sir, I come to the question which relates to this Council. Sir, we have been told that the answers that we get from honourable members of Government can be relied upon. But certain questions that were put from this side of the House successively for three years were not answered by Government benches correctly ; not only that, but it has been found out that the replies provided to this honourable House were false in some cases. Well, I ask the honourable members on the opposite side, what sort of consideration do they expect us to give to the replies that we may receive from Government hereafter. Have they yet issued a press communique clearing up the incident about the orders for mild steel bars and government replies to questions in this honourable House. If these officers were capable of giving replies to be placed before the honourable House which are not correct, replies to be placed in all seriousness before this House, then what else could they not have done ?

Sir, I do not think that I should go on any further discussing these unfortunate things. But I will certainly make one observation and it is this. We were often told that we were led away by wrong notions, Now, I think, my honourable friend, Mr. Nariman has proved sufficiently to show that we are often right. With these words I support the motion.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD (Central Division) : Sir, before I come to the motion before this House, I should like to say a few words with regard to the personal criticism levelled against me by the honourable member Mr. Nariman. I do not know why he should have made this attack on me. I am sure I have never obliged him. As a matter of fact I supported his cut and gave him every possible help with regard to his motion. He was pleased to say " I was a self-made Leader of the Opposition. " This is untrue. I ask, Sir, " Is there any institution rightly called the ' opposition ' in this House ? Is there any party or group of parties recognised as the ' opposition ? ' " I am sure there is none. There is however, an organised obstruction, of which the honourable member is the leader. I, therefore, do not think it is right for him to talk of the leader of the opposition. He says I occupy the place reserved for leader of the opposition. My honourable friend knows that there is no place reserved for the leader of the opposition. I always occupied the second seat on this bench when Mr. Jayakar was in this Council and occupied the first seat when he left the House. And no one has disputed my possession of it. So, I really do not know what it was that made him rush to this attack. I am inclined to think that it is due to the wounded feelings under which he laboured. After appealing to the members of this House, to whatever party they may belong, to come forward and support his motion, Mr. Nariman said : " the elected members on this side of the House will do their duty. But he added they go to the other side and support Government, not because of the merit of the motion but on account of undue pressure brought upon them. That was a most unkind remark for any member of this House to make.

This motion, Sir, has given rise to an unreal debate. As Mr. Nariman, has pointed out, this is a vote of censure. If so, when carried Government ought to resign, and the opposition should take their place. Nor can we compel any honourable member to resign his seat, if the vote of censure is passed against him. I presume that the motion is a vote of censure against the Honourable the General Member, because when a cut of Re. 1 is proposed and carried it is tantamount to a vote of censure against the Member in charge. In this case I really do not know whether it is a vote of censure against the department or the Member in charge of the department.

[Mr. Moulvi Rafiuddin Ahmad]

With regard to the motion I believe, Sir, that there are no two opinions in this House about the mismanagement in the Development Department (Hear, hear). That fact nobody denies. But we have to find out whether it is the fault of any particular man, and whether the Honourable the General Member is responsible for the fault. We know that number of times motions have come before this House with regard to the mismanagement of this department. Mere carrying resolutions is not enough. What is required is to find out ways and means for putting a stop to this mismanagement. What are the measures that this House wants Government to adopt ? Honourable members, both Mr. Nariman and Mr. Munshi said " Government should come forward and suggest some ways." I ask them " What are the measures that the House wants Government to adopt ? " On a former occasion the House said : " This department should be abolished. " I go further and state that " Government should take steps to punish those officers who have proved themselves guilty of mismanagement. " " Is it not necessary for us to know what measures Government are adopting to improve this department about which so many disclosures are made ? " I, therefore, would ask the Honourable the General Member to inform this House as to what steps he has taken himself on this question since the judgment that was delivered in the Police Court and what future steps Government are going to adopt to improve this department. Until we hear this from the Honourable the General Member, it is no use passing a vote of censure against him.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED : On a point of information, Sir. The honourable member says that this is a motion as a vote of censure against the Honourable the General Member himself, that is, the Honourable Sir Cowasji Jehangir. May I have a ruling from you whether it is a vote of censure against the Member in charge of the Department or Government ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I do not think that a ruling on that point is at all necessary. The position is quite clear. The constitutional position of the reserved department is quite plain to the House. A vote of censure on any member on Government side in charge of a certain department is a vote of censure on Government in respect of the particular department of which he is a member in charge.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Is it not also a vote of censure against the member himself ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I do not think that in the reserved department an Executive Councillor exists by himself in his sole capacity and individual capacity.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : That clears the situation to some extent. The Honourable the General Member should come forward and tell this House what steps he is going to take in that direction. We are all concerned with the improvement of this department, also the finances of this presidency. Therefore, if really any substantial improvement is proposed, I think the House should give due credit to Government if they have any scheme. If the House is not satisfied, I am sure the House will not hesitate to pass this motion.

[Moulvi Rafiuddin Ahmad]

(Mr. N. A. Bechar rose).

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I should like to interfere here and say a word. The honourable House knows that we rise at 6. I may extend that period by a few minutes further in order to conclude this debate.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: No, Sir. We will all speak to-morrow we cannot conclude to-day. We have got two days for each demand.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR (Karachi City): Sir, I think the House owes a deep debt of gratitude to my honourable friend Mr. Nariman, who made the subject of the working of the Development Department one of his very close study, with the result that the criticisms that have been offered from year to year regarding its working gave to this House a kind of inkling as to how things were going on in that department. Unfortunately, Sir, the official benches thought all the members on the other side are mostly irresponsible people. And even the manner in which my honourable friend the General Member spoke this afternoon almost scoffing at the criticism that I ventured to make that the department should be transferred and the manner in which the work is still being carried on does not redound to the credit of the Government. Sir, that a supposed most scientifically organized system of Government should not know up to now of the rotten character of the department known as the Development Department and of the systematic frauds that were being played upon that department running into lakhs and crores of rupees, comes to this House as a revelation which I think condemns the Government and the rotten character of the Government wholesale. Sir, it has been pointed out by my honourable friend Moulvi Rafiuddin that this token cut of one rupee raises a question of censure on the Honourable the General Member....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: No. no. There is no such thing. I do not think that need be argued at all. The question as to against whom the censure would be, if passed, is a question which would solve itself; no decision or opinion on that need be expressed. The House need not worry on that account.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR: That is exactly what I was saying, Sir, that you gave aid to this House by saying that, so far as the Executive Council is concerned, they have to shoulder the responsibility of Government as a whole. Sir, I do not contend that the responsibility should fall individually upon the Honourable the General Member, Sir Cowasji Jehangir, who happened to occupy the office of the General Member during this period when a great scandal was perpetrated upon this presidency by people who were dealing with the department and by people who were controlling the destinies of the department. Sir, after all the disclosures that had been made, Government could go to the extent of prosecuting, rather helping the prosecution of Mr. Nariman; for the information that he gave in answer to a request made by the Mears Committee and upon that request for information the kind of particulars supplied by my honourable friend Mr. Nariman were made the target of attack upon him,—and even when he was criticising this particular department in this House, I remember at that time the officials of Government were walking out of the Council and not listening to Mr. Nariman merely because they complained he would not venture to make the same remarks outside the Council. Now, Sir, that position has been sufficiently cleared. He has been sufficiently vindicated, and what the Government benches wanted to be proved has been actually proved to the hilt, that whatever remarks Mr. Nariman made he did not do so merely to slander the Government and because he knew he would be protected by the rules of the Council, but because of facts which had come to light. Now, Sir, after having got all these facts, it is certainly due to this House that we must know from Government as to what action they propose to take in this matter. Sir, if any individual had behaved in this manner, I am sure he would have been indicted long ago, and Mr. Nariman, for the few remarks that he made in this House, was persecuted to the extent that no Government believing in the bona fides of a member of this House would have done. They did their worst. They prosecuted him, with the result that when the question of prosecuting their officers is concerned, when the question of putting their own house in order is concerned, during the two days' discussion we have not heard the slightest word of regret, the slightest word of information as to what the Government intend to do. I believe, Sir, that action was reserved for this cut to be moved by my honourable friend Mr. Swaminarayan, upon which the Government probably wanted to make a reply, and this debate has been only raised only to give that opportunity because I know, even if the rupee cut is carried, none of the gentlemen occupying the Government benches will feel sensitive of their own honour to resign their posts. I am sure they will have a very comfortable time immediately they get out of this House, as if nothing has happened at all. That was the experience in the Legislative Assembly; a number of times Government has been censured and their policies have been censured, but there is not the slightest change. They have remained where they were. It is this wooden character that even Mr. Montagu had to contend against, and this is being perpetrated by the ordering out of the Simon Commission. Sir, I think if the Simon Commission wanted to judge as to how far people have progressed in their capacity to bear the responsibility of Government in their own country, I think they are entirely mistaken. I think they ought to find out rather how the Government has behaved in this country, whether that Government deserves our confidence, and whether that Government ought to be allowed to continue a day longer to rule over us. But, on the contrary, these people, who have not got the slightest power of controlling their own destinies, are going to be judged whether we deserve anything more or not. But, Sir, the cat is out of the bag.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I would not allow a discussion on the Simon Commission here. The honourable member is digressing very seriously from the point under discussion.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : I bow to your decision, Sir. But what I wanted to say was.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I do not want that repeated. What the honourable member had to say, I have stopped.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : But, Sir, what I am now trying to impress upon this House is that it is here not a question of the parties. As a matter of fact there are no real parties on the non-official side. Parties have grown up like mushrooms merely in order to get some small crumbs here and there which have really destroyed the true character of parties and which have demoralised public life in this Council.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : That again is a digression.

Khan Saheb A. M. MANSURI : That khaddar cap has demoralised my honourable friend Mr. Bechar. (Laughter).

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : Let him come out and I hope to be able to convince my honourable friend from Ahmedabad and to explain to him the truth of what I assert if he will only have patience.

At any rate, what I am saying is this : is this Council going to be satisfied by some amount of quibbling, some amount of haranguing on the part of the Honourable the General Member and then allow the vote of censure not to be passed. I think in view of these heavy losses and more so in view of the disclosures of the corrupt character of the department that have been brought to light, this Government ought to be publicly censured. My friend the Moulvi Saheb said that there is no question of prestige, but I say that in the very name of the prestige of Government they ought to prove their bona fides by indicting publicly those officers who have been proved in the court of law to have been implicated in taking bribes from people who were dealing with the department as contractors and suppliers of materials. If Government is not going to do that and if Government is going to shield those officers, it will mean indirectly that the Government themselves were a party to this fraud. Therefore, what I maintain is that Government should take and should have taken immediately some amount of action and some kind of stringent measures to restore confidence in the mind of the public. So far as we Swarajist members of this House are concerned, we have no confidence in the Government and if there is any confidence still lingering in the mind of the Moulvi Saheb and those like him I say, Sir, that to preserve that little confidence which may be lingering in the mind of a few supporters of Government both inside and outside the House, Government, for the sake of their own honour, ought to show that they are willing to take immediate action against the officers concerned. Unless and until that is done, I can assure him that although we have lost crores and crores of rupees on this Development Department, I regard the loss of character and the loss of honour is far greater than the loss of crores of rupees. I ask Government, if they have any honour left in them, to show to the House that they are willing and anxious to take every step that is possible and that lies within their power to vindicate their honour.

A reference was made to the C. I. D. As one who has taken part in political activities, I know how we are harassed and persecuted by the police and the C. I. D. who are maintained at the cost of the ratepayers They never take the trouble to find out the real culprits but they only try to find out and penalise patriotic persons. That appears to be the only duty imposed upon them by the Government with the result that the hugest scandal perpetrated in broad daylight in Bombay never came to their notice and was never brought to the notice of Government What are we going to do ? I know if Government had been responsible to us, they would not have survived for one hour after these disclosures but I know we cannot uproot them. By wasting public moneys Government have been penalising posterity and that too at the cost of the nation-building departments.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I do not think that we can go on with the discussion at this stage. I have before adjourning, one or two matters to refer to. There is a request signed by various honourable members asking me to adjourn the House on Monday, the 5th of March that being, according to this petition, the Holi holiday. But I suppose the Holi holiday is gazetted for the 6th March, Tuesday, so that the request here is that the House should be adjourned both on Monday and Tuesday. I cannot do that unless I have taken the sense of the House with sufficient majority to guide me in that. I should like the Honourable the Leader of the House to give me his views.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : I understand that the proposal which I heard only just now, is that the Council should not sit on Monday at all and that Tuesday also should be a holiday. If the Council do not wish to sit on Monday, I have no objection, but I may inform the House that we cannot extend the time of the Council and they must either take eleven days for the demands for grants or they must take one day for private business.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM : When in the case of the Ramzan and Nama we extended to our Moslem friends the concession they wanted, I cannot see why we Hindus should not have this concession in the matter of the Holi holiday.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : I am afraid my honourable friend is entirely incorrect. Every year the Holi holiday has been gazetted for one day only, we never had two holidays for that occasion and the ordinary holiday has been as usual gazetted for the 6th. This is an additional holiday that the Council asks for, but there is no question of any comparison with the Ramzan or anything else.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM : The Holi falls on the 5th and not on the 6th.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: I am sorry to say that it would be impossible for Government to sit from 12 noon as has been suggested. We find our regular work being greatly interfered with already having to sit at 1 o'clock and I think it will be impossible to accept the proposal that we should sit from 12 noon as suggested.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: One thing I want to be informed about and that is: Is it, as the honourable member Mr. Mukadam has stated, that although the Holi falls on the 5th the holiday has been gazetted for the 6th.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM: Dhulwad, the next day, falls on the 6th.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: So it is the same this year.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The only point I have to determine is whether the majority of honourable members desire a holiday on the 5th in addition to the holiday on the 6th. They must understand however that the Honourable the Leader of the House, on behalf of Government, does not make any concession because of that. After knowing that it is for honourable members to decide for themselves whether they would like this holiday on the 5th or not.

Mr. V. N. JOG: An alternative proposal would be, Sir, that the holiday should be observed on the 5th instead of the 6th.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: We cannot really do that. The 6th has been gazetted a holiday. It will be observed by the commercial community and everybody and it really will be impossible to alter the holiday because certain honourable members forsooth want to have a continuous holiday.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The position is that the Honourable the Leader of the House states that because of this concession there would be no additional day given either for Government business or private business. It is left to the honourable members either to take eleven days for Government work or one day for private business. If they are not agreeable to accept that, it is now my question to the House that that being the fact, are there any honourable members still who would like to have the 5th as an additional holiday? Those who desire it should please stand up in their places.

(No one stood up).

There is none. The 5th of March will not be a holiday.

The second point is that there is a Government House party on the 1st of March. That is fixed at 5 p.m. It has been usually the custom to adjourn the House a little earlier to afford facility to honourable members who wish to attend the party. An invitation to a Government House party is taken as an invitation from the highest quarters which honourable members in this House have, in the past, respected. The House has, therefore, to decide that on the 1st of March they will adjourn at 4 o'clock. I shall decide that matter to-morrow. I have only brought it to the notice of the House, and as usual I would feel inclined to adjourn the House at 4 o'clock on the 1st of March.

[The President]

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : There is loss of time on the days for demands for grants.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : We will decide that matter to-morrow. The two hours the House would lose may be made up in other ways. There is time enough to go into that question to-morrow.

The House is now adjourned till 1 p.m. to-morrow, Wednesday, the 29th February 1928.

repairs were carried out. In the next part of the reply he says : " The land has not been taken in possession. " The fact that repairs were carried out has been admitted by the Honourable the General Member, and in the face of that he cannot say that he is not aware of it.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : I do not think the honourable member is quite correct in his interpretation of the reply. The reply says that the tank was repaired. The land on which the tank is dug did not belong to the man named by my honourable friend (Mr. Bandacharya Annacharya). The land which is to be acquired under the Land Acquisition Act is land which will be submerged and not land which is connected at present with the tank. The repairs were carried out on the tank. That is what I understand. From the papers that I have seen the answer is correct.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI : Then, why was compensation paid to him ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Because his land was submerged. The very fact that compensation was paid shows that it was not taken possession of.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI : If the repairs or any other construction had been done on the land, and if these are now removed by the owner, because the land does not belong to Government, then who is liable for the loss ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : I cannot admit that any repairs were undertaken on the land. If the honourable member says definitely that they were, then I will make further enquiries.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI : When was compensation paid for the submergence ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : It was for submergence during the rains of 1926. It must have been paid on some date after that.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI : Was it during the last month ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : I do not know. The reply is : " Compensation has already been paid to the owner separately for damage done to his paddy crop by submergence during the rains of 1926. " So, Compensation must have been paid after the rains of 1926.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI : I want to know when the amount was paid ? Was it this year or last year ; six months ago or two months ago ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : I will ask for notice of that.

PRIMARY EDUCATION : SALARIES OF TEACHERS

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that the Sathe-Paranjpye scheme, which was adopted by the Legislative Council in 1926, has now been abandoned by Government as unworkable ;

(b) whether they intend to substitute any other scheme for the Sathe Paranjpye scheme ;

(c) whether they are aware that dissensions among the teaching staff are created by the allowance system;

(d) whether it is a fact that Government teachers whose services were lent to local boards had to suffer in point of pay even though they were better qualified ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) and (b) The whole question is at present under consideration.

(c) Yes.

(d) Government are not aware of any such cases. They are not likely to happen in view of the provisions in section 8 (1) and 8 (2) (b) of the Bombay Primary Education Act, 1923.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : The matter was under consideration for the whole of last year. A similar answer was given in the last session. May I know what has been done during the interval as regards (a) and (b) ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : During the last year figures were examined on the basis of the scheme which Government has sanctioned with reference to the Ahmedabad city municipality, and it was found that it would cost a very large amount which Government in their present financial condition could not find. Consequently the figures are being again examined to see whether a scale could be laid down which would be accommodated in the amount spent for headmasters allowances.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : I want to know when the consideration will be completed.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : The data have to be collected from every local authority in order to find out how many teachers of how many years' standing there are of the third-year trained, second-year trained and first-year trained classes separately. Consequently that would take some time. The Director of Public Instruction has been specially expedited to hurry up this matter.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM : May I know if the Honourable Minister for Education will take at least one year more for its consideration ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : About three or four months more, I believe ?

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM : Will it be over before the next session ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I should think so.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : If there are dissensions among the teaching staff, are Government going to continue the dissension ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Government say they are not aware of any dissensions.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : They say " Yes " to my question (c) " whether they are aware that dissensions among the teaching staff are created by the allowance system ? "

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: Of course, there is dissatisfaction among the teachers, but that is due mostly to the way in which transfers happen at the hands of schoolboards in some of the local authorities.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE: Have Government enquired as regards (d) whether some teachers whose services were lent to local authorities had to suffer in point of pay?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: We are not aware of any such cases.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE: Have you enquired?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: No: we have not enquired.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE: Will you?

Mr. B. V. JADHAV: Were any complaints made by teachers?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: No.

Dr. B. R. AMBEDKAR: Is the Honourable Minister aware that not a single teacher of the depressed classes has got the benefit of these allowances?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: I am not aware of that. The rules are there; everybody is subject to the rules.

Dr. B. R. AMBEDKAR: Does he know that not a single depressed class teacher has got the benefit?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: I am not aware.

Dr. B. R. AMBEDKAR: Will he make redress if cases are brought to his notice?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: I will try to do so if I can consistently with the rules.

CIVIL COURTS, SATARA DISTRICT: SHORTHAND TYPISTS

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether shorthand and typist clerks are employed in any of the civil courts in the Satara District;

(b) whether such clerks do the work of shorthand and typing in addition to their ordinary work;

(c) whether such persons are given any extra pay.

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: (a) Yes. One.

(b) Yes.

(c) Yes. Rs. 15 per mensem.

DIRECTOR OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION'S DECISIONS ON FINANCIAL STATUS OF KONKANI MARATHAS

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District): Will the Honourable Minister for Education be pleased to place on the Council Table a copy of the rules made for the guidance of the Director of Public Instruction in deciding whether a Konkani Maratha family is poor or well-to-do ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : The following rules made by Government on the subject are placed on the Council Table :—

(i) All families in receipt of an annual income from any source not exceeding Rs. 720 should be treated as poor ;

(ii) All families paying an assessment not exceeding Rs. 50 per annum should be treated as poor.

LINKED COURTS, KARAD AND PATAN

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that Government intend to abolish the system of linked courts in the Bombay Presidency ;

(b) whether it is a fact that the linked courts of Karad and Patan in the Satara district are to be abolished and replaced by a single court at Karad ;

(c) whether they are aware that the civil work of the Patan court has gradually been increasing so much so that a separate court for that taluka is necessary ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : (a) There is no proposal to this effect before Government at present.

(b) A suggestion that this should be done is under consideration.

(c) It is not sufficient to justify the creation of a separate court at Patan.

CASH ALLOWANCES : DEDUCTION OF INCOME TAX

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) if their attention is drawn to the practice said to be based upon a circular of the Commissioner, Central Division, prevalent in the mofussil of deducting income tax at the source when making payment of cash allowances to the holders thereof when the amount of such allowances is less than Rs. 2,000 ;

(b) if the Government is aware that such practice is contrary to the provisions of section 18 of the Indian Income Tax Act XI of 1922, as subsequently amended ;

(c) what steps they intend to take to cancel the said circular to avoid their being involved in civil litigation ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) and (b) Yes. The circular was issued before the Income Tax Act of 1922 became law, and is not in conformity with it. It has since been cancelled, and a fresh circular in conformity with the law has been issued.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH : You say that Muhammadans do not join the service or leave after joining. Will you give some instances ?

ROBBERIES OF KANTHIS, GODHRA

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(d) whether the crime has been detected by the Police ?

(c) The facts are as stated, except that in this case also no force was used.

(d) The Police are making enquiries. These two cases illustrate the danger, which has often been remarked upon in many different places, of allowing small children to wear valuable ornaments while playing unattended in the streets. Cupidity has often led, in similar cases, even to murder, and there seems to be no good reason to attribute these particular crimes and others like to them to communal hostility rather than to the motives which ordinarily prompt such thefts. The remedy is in the parents own hands.

MISCHIEF TO INJURE RELIGIOUS FEELINGS, GODHRA

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware that for the last six or eight months organised efforts are being made by some Muhammadan agitators of Godhra to send batches of young school going Muhammadan boys with galols in the Hindu localities of Godhra to kill birds like sparrows, etc., from the verandahs and balconies of Hindu houses in order to injure the religious feelings of the Hindus ;

(b) whether they are aware that an old Jain lady named Parsan was hit on the eye by one of the stones thrown by Ghanchi boys with galol on the 11th December 1927 ;

(c) if they are not aware of this, whether they intend to make enquiries into the matter ;

(d) if they are aware of this, what efforts have been made and what steps have been taken by the District Superintendent of Police, Panch Mahals, to put a stop to this sort of mischief ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : (a) There is no evidence to show that organised efforts were made by the Muhammadans to send boys to kill birds in Hindu localities with catapults.

(b), (c) and (d) Yes. The unfortunate occurrence appears to have been an accident. As the injury was only slight, the Police warned the inhabitants of the locality against the careless use of catapults. There have been no further incidents of this kind reported to the Police.

DEVELOPMENT DEPARTMENT STORES

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN on behalf of Mr. G. I. PATEL (Ahmedabad Millowners' Association) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether certain stores were deliberately over-ordered for the Bombay Development Department, from 1922 to 1927. If not to state any cases that may have been lately traced to have been of that nature ;

(b) whether any cases of illegal gratification or secret commissions have been so far traced or suspected by them affecting the staff or officers of the Development Department both past and present. If so, to place full details on the table.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : (a) In his judgment in the Harvey-Nariman case the Magistrate has observed that mild steel bars required for foundation piles for reinforced cement concrete chawls were ordered of a wrong size and in excessive quantities. The Magistrate has, however, held that on the evidence recorded there was no justification for the allegation that the stores were deliberately over-ordered with a view to obtain secret commission from the manufacturers.

(b) Instances of illegal gratifications or secret commissions alleged to have been received by certain officers and members of the staff under the Development Department have been cited by the Magistrate in his judgment in the Harvey-Nariman case. A copy of the judgment* has been laid on the Council table.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will the copy of the judgment in the Harvey-Nariman case be supplied to every individual member of this House ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : No. It is a very lengthy judgment and therefore it cannot be supplied.

* Kept in the Secretary's Office.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI (Belgaum District): May I know if the copy of the judgment that has been laid on the Council table will be included in the proceedings of the Council session ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I find that documents which are sent by honourable members on the Government side are in the possession of the Secretary of the Council, that is, in the possession of the House. Those documents which are short are printed and if they are lengthy, they are not printed and they remain with the Secretary.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI: If such important documents do not appear in the proceedings of the Council, then it is very difficult to find out a reference in future.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: We shall look into this matter.

Mr. LALJI NARANJI (Indian Merchants' Chamber): Do the Government not think that in view of the important conclusions arrived at by the Judicial Court, the copy of the judgment should be given to the members of this House ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: We will certainly consider the wish expressed by the honourable member.

Mr. LALJI NARANJI: Do Government agree to give the copy of judgment to honourable members ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: We must consider the request made by the honourable member for getting the copy of the judgment printed.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI (Surat District): Did the magistrate hold that the mild steel bars were deliberately ordered ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: The answer to that question is included in my reply to (a). I have said "The magistrate has however, held that on the evidence recorded there was no justification for the allegation that the stores were deliberately over-ordered."

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government tell us as to what has been done with the mild steel bars that were over-ordered ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: They were sold.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District): What is the loss to Government in selling these mild steel bars ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: I shall ask for notice.

Mr. LALJI NARANJI (Indian Merchants' Chamber): Were the mild steel bars ordered wrongly ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: The indent was made out by a mistake.

Mr. LALJI NARANJI: May I know if Government agree that it was a mistake ?

(No reply.)

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. When honourable members are told that the judgment is kept on the Council Table they should refer to it, read it, make sure of the question and then ask the Government Benches to reply to questions put by them.

Dr. M. D. GILDER (Bombay City North): Do Government propose to make any enquiries or have they already instituted enquiries into the question of illegal gratification, etc. ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: If my honourable friend will have a little patience, he will get an answer to his question. It is very difficult to answer that question in a short space of time. I will have to explain the whole situation.

Mr. D. A. JANVEKAR (Southern Division): What steps do Government intend to take against officers who received illegal gratifications ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: You have repeated the question put by the honourable member Dr. Gilder. I would ask you to have a little patience to get a reply to that.

REFORMS COMMISSION : COMMITTEE OF THE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they have received from the Secretary of State for India or from the Government of India any despatch or communique stating the exact functions, powers, duties and status of the Committee of the Legislative Council to be elected in accordance with the scheme and procedure outlined by Lord Birkenhead in the House of Lords in connection with the Statutory Commission ;

(b) if so, whether it will be placed on the Council table ;

(c) if the answer to (a) is in the negative, what steps they have taken to get those functions, powers, duties and status clearly defined by the proper authorities ?

The Honourable Sir C. V. MEHTA : (a) No. The status and powers of the Committees to be elected by the Local Legislative Councils are explained in the announcement made on the 7th February by the Chairman of the Indian Statutory Commission which was published in the papers.

(b) and (c) Do not arise.

VERNACULAR FINAL EXAMINATION : LEVY OF FEES FROM GIRLS

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that they have decided to levy an admission fee of Rs. 3 from girls appearing for the Vernacular Final Examination from the year 1928 ;

(b) if so, why ;

(c) the amount which is estimated to be realised from the fees ;

(d) what the number of girls who appeared for the examination last year was ;

(e) whether they are aware that generally poor girls appear for this examination, and that the levy of the fee will cause great hardship to them ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) Yes.

(b) In view of the increasing number of girls appearing for the examination, Government considered it necessary to levy an admission fee.

(c) Rs. 5,700 in 1928.

(d) The number of girls who appeared for the examination held in April 1927 was 1,277.

(e) No.

PENSIONS : DATES OF PAYMENTS

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that since the issue of Government Resolution, Financial Department, No. 676, dated 21st February 1884, many improvements have taken place in the presentation of pension bills, the system of accounts and the general working of treasuries ;

(b) if so, whether they have considered the advisability of modifying the abovementioned resolution, so that at least in places where the rush of pensioners is not great, the payment of all pensions may be made much earlier than at present ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : (a) and (b) The honourable member is referred to the answer to his previous question asked on 27th February 1927. The terms of Government Resolution, Financial Department, No. 676, dated 21st February 1884, are not such as to cause undue delay in the payment of pensions, and Government have satisfied themselves by enquiry that Collectors are alive to the necessity of seeing that payments are made as early as is consistent with the efficient working of their treasuries.

TRANSFERS OF PROPERTY : TAX ON STAMPS

Mr. Syed Munawar on behalf of Mr. HOOSENALLY M. RAHIMTOOLA (Bombay City) : Will Government be pleased to state for the year (a) 1925-26 and (b)1926-27—

(1) the number of properties sold in the city of Bombay ;

(2) the total amount of sale price ;

(3) the amount of tax realised by way of stamp ;

(4) the number of properties that were sold by forced sales by mortgagees, the Official Assignee and by order of the Court ;

(5) the total amount of the sale price of such properties ;

(6) whether the increase of stamp duty on transfer of property from 1½ per cent. to 3½ per cent. has had any effect on the sales of properties ;

(7) if so, what ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (1), (2) and (4) to (7) The attention of the honourable member is invited to the replies given to these clauses at the last session : they are printed at page 893 of Part XIII of Volume XXI of the Legislative Council Debates.

(3) It is understood that the honourable member desires to know the amount of tax realised under the Bombay Transfer of Property Tax Act which came into force on 1st April 1926. The amount realised from this date from the sale of special adhesive stamps affixed to deeds of transfer of lands was as under :—

	Rs.
For nine months from 1st April 1926	3,42,982
For the calendar year 1927	5,91,562

Besides special adhesive stamps, stamped papers are also sometimes used for deeds of transfer of lands, but it is not possible to give the amount of receipts from the sale of these papers as the purpose for which they are purchased by the public is not stated in the sale register. The receipts from this source are probably very small.

Mr. SYED MUNAWAR : In answer to part (3) it is stated that the receipts from this source are probably very small. Are the receipts so infinitely small as not to be mentioned in this answer ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I have stated definitely that it is not possible to give the amount of receipts from the sale of these papers as the purpose for which they are purchased by the public is not stated in the sale register. I do not know what the honourable member wants.

Mr. SYED MUNAWAR : The last sentence here runs : " The receipts from this source are probably very small. " Are they so infinitely small as not to find a place in this answer ?

(No reply.)

(e) There was.

(f) Yes.

(g) The school is attended by over 100 children of various castes.

(h) Yes. There is a Gujarati teacher who does five hours' work per week according to the last Inspection Report.

(i) and (j) Do not arise.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI: With regard to (e), does the answer given mean that Government have decided not to convert this English teaching school into an Anglo-Vernacular school ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: The school is going to continue as an English teaching school.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI: Has a permanent decision been arrived at ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: Yes; I think so.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI: My information is that it is decided for one year only.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: The decision is to continue it as an English teaching school. I cannot state the time just now.

MANEKPORE VILLAGE TANK

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI (Surat District): Will Government be pleased to give the following information about the tank in the village of Manekpore in the taluka of Bardoli in the Surat District :—

(a) the area of the tank;

(b) the area of the land assessed to it for himayat;

(c) the himayat assessment on the tank;

(d) whether the embankment of the tank is in good condition;

(e) the number of pipes on the tank and the condition in which each is at present;

(f) whether the tank is at present deep enough;

(g) when was the tank last repaired, what repairs were done to it at the time and what was the amount spent on those repairs;

(h) what is the condition of the tank at present;

(i) whether complaints have been received from the people about this tank;

(j) whether Government have decided to put this tank in a good state of repair;

(k) if so, when will they repair the tank and what repairs will be done and how much amount will be spent on these repairs ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: (a) 26 acres and 31 gunthas.

(b) 33 acres and 7 gunthas.

(c) Rs. 73-14-10.

(d) Yes, except at the places where breaches have been made by the villagers in the monsoon to remove surplus water from the tank, as the existing open ground waste weir does not discharge the water properly.

(e) There are four pipe outlets to the tank and all of them are in working order.

(f) Yes.

(g) The tank was last repaired in 1925-26 at a cost of Rs. 122. The repairs consisted of strengthening the bund.

(h) The tank is generally in good condition.

(i) Yes.

(j) and (k) Yes. In order to remedy the defect mentioned in the reply to clause (d) above it is proposed to construct a clear overfall masonry waste weir at a cost of about Rs. 351. The work will be taken in hand in 1928-1929 after the plan and estimate which have already been prepared are sanctioned.

TODDY SHOP, MANDVI

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI (Surat District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) how many times the toddy shop at Mandvi (Surat) for the year 1926-27 was put to auction;

(b) when each auction was held;

(c) what the last bid in each of these auctions was or if no bids were received, why no such bids were received;

(d) why no bid was accepted at each of these auctions;

(e) whether the shop has been given to anyone during the current year;

(f) if the answer to (e) is in the negative how much loss has been caused to Government Revenue;

(g) the reason why this shop could not be given out;

(h) whether it was due to the Collector wanting too much for this shop ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: (a) Three times.

(b) On 28th June 1926.
8th July 1926.
26th July 1926.

(c) The last bid at each auction was below the upset price fixed for the shop. The actual sum offered cannot be ascertained.

(d) Because the price offered was below the upset price.

(e) The shop was not taken up during the year (1926-27), which was the current year when the honourable member sent in his question.

(f) Rs. 3,900, being the upset price fixed for the shop.
(g) Because no adequate price was offered for it.
(h) No.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI: With regard to answer (c), why cannot the actual sum offered be ascertained ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: Because there is no record. As all the bids were below the upset price fixed, the details were not required.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI: What do Government propose to do to the Collector for causing loss of revenue ? Government admit that a sum of Rs. 3,900 has been lost as the shop was not taken up ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: Is it the Collector's fault that there were no bidders ?

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI: If the Collector fixes an unduly high upset price and therefore the shop is not taken up owing to that, does it not mean that the Collector is responsible for that loss ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: The Collector did not fix an unduly high upset price, because it was Rs. 5,000 previously and he reduced it to Rs. 3,900.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI: When the last bid at each auction was below the upset price, does it not show that the upset price fixed was unduly high ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: I can tell the honourable member that there is a combination in this case, and out of the ten shops only two shops were sold and the other shops were not sold. Bids up to a certain figure were made, but no one would raise it up to the upset price. Then, the auctions were withheld. Then, they came to terms and took seven more shops.

Dr. M. D. GILDER: I want to ask the honourable member, in view of the policy, accepted by this House, of prohibition, whether the amount of the loss due to failure of selling shops is the chief thing or the stopping of liquor consumption is the chief thing.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI: Not to give out a toddy shop at auction does not reduce consumption of toddy ; it only causes loss to Government.

CHOWKIDARI TAX, UTELIA ESTATE

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that Mr. Nagbhai Meghabhai, the karbhari of Utelia talukadari estate, served notices dated 28th June 1927 on Sipai Amji Dosa, Sipai Nura Sera, Pagi Bhala Vaja, Pagi Pana Hari, Pagi Gaga Nathu and Pagi Visa Natha, threatening them to pay Rakhopa (chowkidari) tax on pain of the said tax being recovered from them by force ;

(b) if the answer to (a) is in the affirmative, who invested the said karbhari with the power of recovering taxes by force and under what section of the Land Revenue Code that power was granted to the said karbhari ;

(c) the year in which the power of recovering taxes by force was granted to the karbhari of the said estate ;

(d) whether Government have taken any steps or intend to take any steps to withdraw the powers from the said karbhari ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Yes, the notices were issued under the misapprehension that the chowkiat tax was recoverable as an item of land revenue or rent.

(b) A commission under clauses (a) and (b) of section 88 of the Land Revenue Code was granted by the Commissioner, Northern Division, in December 1921 to the karbhari in respect of the villages held by the Thakor of Utelia in the Ahmedabad and Kaira Districts. This does not empower the karbhari to recover the land revenue or rent by force.

(c) No such power has been granted.

(d) The Karbhari has been informed that the above commission does not entitle him to recover the chowkiat tax. Government do not intend to withdraw the commission.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : In answer to (a) it is stated that the notices were issued under a misapprehension about the rights under the commission. How is it that Government do not intend to withdraw the commission ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Because, as is explained in the answer, it was purely a misapprehension, and that was not a sufficient reason for withdrawing the commission.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Will he not, then, make the same mistake again ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Presumably, now that he knows that the commission does not entitle him to recover the chowkidari tax, no mistake will be made again.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : What further action does Government intend to take ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : No further action is necessary at all.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Why ? Has Government brought to his notice that he would be liable to the forfeiture of his rights if he does a similar mistake again ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Certainly, the local officers have informed him of the reasons, and presumably he will have the sense to infer from that that he must not repeat the mistake.

REFRESHMENT BAR LICENSE, AHMEDABAD : LICENSE FEES

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether Mr. P. F. Khambatta of Sugar Lane, Ahmedabad, who is a Refreshment Bar Licensee paid Rs. 4,000 as license fees during each of the years 1925-26 and 1926-27 for his refreshment bar license in which he sold about 1,000 gallons of foreign liquor during each of the years 1925 and 1926;

(b) whether Messrs. E. R. Fanibanda and Sons of Kapasia Bazar, and lately of "Fanibanda Building" near Saher Kotda Police Chowky, Ahmedabad, who are Refreshment Bar Licensees paid Rs. 4,000 as license fees during each of the years 1925-26 and 1926-27 for their refreshment bar license in which they sold about 3,700 gallons of foreign liquor during each of the years 1925 and 1926;

(c) if the answers to (a) and (b) are in the affirmative, why the licensee referred to in (b) who sells 3½ times as much as the quantity of liquor sold by the licensee referred to in (a) pays the same license fee of Rs. 4,000 for his refreshment bar license;

(d) whether Government intend to control the sales of foreign liquor in refreshment bars or to charge a license fee in proportion to the sales, in order to safeguard the interest of the licensees whose sales are comparatively much lower and who are consequently handicapped and also to safeguard the interests of Government?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: (a) Yes.

(b) Yes.

(c) In accordance with the existing classification for the licensing of foreign liquor shops, the highest class for refreshment rooms in the mofussil is "A" class on which a license fee of Rs. 4,000 is levied. Both these licenses are in class "A" and therefore pay this fee.

(d) Yes. Under the new scheme which will be introduced from 1st April 1928 foreign liquor licensees will be required to pay fees mainly on the basis of actual sales.

FOREIGN LIQUOR "ON" LICENSE: GOVERNMENT POLICY

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether in view of the policy of the Excise Department which has always been not to allow foreign liquor drinking shops or taverns in the mofussil in accordance with Government Resolution, Revenue Department, No. 292 of 12th January 1909, they do not issue a new "On" license in the mofussil;

(b) if the answer to (a) is in the affirmative, the reasons why they allow the issue of refreshment bar licenses which are in practice "foreign liquor drinking shops" and are refreshment bars only in name?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: (a) No "On" licenses are issued in the mofussil.

(b) Government are not aware that refreshment rooms are in practice foreign liquor drinking shops.

Dr. M. D. GILDER: Will the Honourable Minister kindly state what is the difference between a refreshment room and a refreshment bar?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : In a refreshment room some other eatables are also supplied, not merely foreign liquor.

REFRESHMENT BARS : USE AS " ON " LICENSED PREMISES

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether in view of the words " Refreshment Room " denoting that it must provide food over and above foreign liquor and that foreign liquor should be served only to those who take refreshments, any undertaking is taken from or obligation is imposed upon the licensees of refreshment bars that they may not convert their refreshment rooms into a mere foreign liquor drinking shop which, it is the policy of the Excise Department not to allow in the mofussil in accordance with Government Resolution, Revenue Department, No. 292 of 12th January 1909 ;

(b) if the answer to (a) is in the negative the reasons why no such undertaking is taken from, or obligation is imposed upon the licensees of refreshment bars in order to prevent them from converting their licenses into mere " foreign liquor drinking shops " in practice ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : (a) and (b) No undertaking of the nature referred to in clause (a) is taken from, and no similar obligation is imposed upon the licensees of refreshment rooms. Government have however issued orders directing the discontinuance of the grant of a license to a refreshment room, if it is nothing more than a liquor shop, and to the restriction of licenses to places which bona fide supply other refreshments besides liquor.

Dr. M. D. GILDER : The Honourable Minister just said, in reply to a supplementary question, that some other eatables are supplied in addition to the liquor. But here he says : " No undertaking of the nature referred to is taken from, and no similar obligation is imposed upon, the licensees of refreshment rooms. " Why ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : If the honourable member will read the whole reply, it is clear that he will find that orders have been issued directing the discontinuance of the grant of a license to a refreshment room if it constitutes nothing more than a liquor shop.

Dr. M. D. GILDER : Will the Honourable Minister say what constitutes or what is considered sufficient to distinguish a refreshment room from a liquor shop ? What eatables should be supplied in the shop ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : I cannot give details as to what eatables should be provided ?

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Then, what steps are you going to take to prevent this ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : When the practice of selling only liquor, in open day light, is brought to notice, steps are taken.

REFRESHMENT BAR LICENSE : REASONS FOR GRANT

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether Government are issuing Refreshment Bar Licenses which are in practice foreign liquor drinking shops in the mofussil as in the case of the refreshment bar license of Messrs. E. R. Fanibanda near Saher Kotda Police Chowky, Ahmedabad, in order to escape from the obligation imposed upon them by Government Resolution, Revenue Department, No. 292 of 12th January 1909 ;

(b) if the answer to (a) is in the negative the reasons why a refreshment bar license was granted to Messrs. E. R. Fanibanda and Sons of Saher Kotda Police Chowky, Ahmedabad, which has been since its grant a foreign liquor drinking shop in practice and which has frustrated the object of the government policy laid down in Government Resolution, Revenue Department, No. 292 of 12th January 1909 ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : (a) and (b) The Honourable Member is referred to the reply to the previous question which explains the policy adopted in issuing Refreshment Room licenses.

PASTURAGE, VIRSAD

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that the total area of Narva land in the village of Virsad in the Kaira District is 3,226 acres and 16 gunthas ;

(b) whether it is a fact that there are only 68 acres of Government pasture in the said village ;

(c) whether the people of the said village are entitled to at least 160 acres of Government pasture according to the Land Records and Registration Law ;

(d) if the answer to (c) is in the affirmative, what steps Government have taken or intend to take for the purpose of providing the people of Virsad with Government pasture in accordance with the requirements of the Law ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Yes.

(b) Land measuring 65 acres and 32 gunthas has been assigned for grazing and cattle stand.

(c) No.

(d) Does not arise.

PROHIBITION IN SATARA

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they have decided to formulate a scheme for the purpose of bringing about complete prohibition in the district of Satara as an experimental measure ;

(c) from what date they intend to put the said scheme into force ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: (a), (b) and (c) The Honourable Member is referred to the reply to the question asked by Mr. Jairamdas Doulatram in the current session.*

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Mr. Jairamdas Doulatram did not ask his question and you did not reply to him.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: The answer is that Government found that it was not possible to adopt the experiment.

Dr. M. D. GILDER: The Honourable Minister says it was not possible to adopt the prohibition policy in this district. Will he be pleased to give reasons?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: There are innumerable reasons. One is, it is on the border of the Kolhapur State, the excise rights of which we have not taken. Then, in those cases where excise rights are taken, only the liquor rights are taken; as regards other intoxicating drugs, there is no such right. There are several other reasons, and it is impossible to give them all now.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE: Will the Honourable Minister be pleased to place the papers relating to this subject on the table of the House?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: If the honourable member gives notice; I have to collect the reports; I have received several reports.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Will the Honourable Minister state whether he will not treat them as confidential and will place them on the Council table?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: They are not confidential. They will be placed on the Council table but I have got to collect them.

PROHIBITION IN SATARA AND AHMEDABAD

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the reasons for selecting the district of Satara for bringing about a complete prohibition as an experimental measure;

(b) the reasons why the district of Ahmedabad was not selected for the purpose mentioned in (a) though prohibition in Ahmedabad city would do immense good to the families of mill labourers who are mostly addicted to the evil habit of drinking?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: (a) Satara was selected as a district in which the possibility of making this experiment could well be investigated as its excise revenue and per capita consumption of liquor are small.

* The following question and answer were printed in the seventh list of Questions and Answers:—

PROHIBITION IN SATARA DISTRICT

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM (Eastern Sind): Will Government be pleased to state what decision they have arrived at in regard to the contemplated prohibition experiment in the Satara District?

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that any orders have been issued directing the stoppage of any future admissions to the Mahaluxmi Female Training College of Ahmedabad ;

(b) if so, who issued those orders ;

(c) whether those orders were issued after due consultation with the Honourable the Minister of Education and after receiving his orders ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) and (b) Provisional instructions to hold up admissions to certain classes in the college, pending Government orders on a reference made to them, were issued by the Director of Public Instruction.

(c) No.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Has the Director of Public Instruction power to issue orders of such a far-reaching policy without consulting the Minister ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: They are not orders of a far-reaching policy but they are purely orders which he is authorised to issue pending receipt of confirmation from Government.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Can he issue such orders of refusing admission in Mahalaxmi Female Training College without informing the Honourable Minister?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: Yes, he can, as the head of the department in a matter like this and then obtain final orders of the Minister.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: (a) The possibilities of manufacturing Brandy, Rum and Rectified spirit at the Nasik Distillery have been explored.

(b) Government are aware that foreign spirit is manufactured by the Alembic Chemical Works Company, Limited, at Baroda.

Question again proposed :

Reduce by Re. 1, total demand on the Bombay Development Scheme.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI (Western Sind) : Sir, this is a department whose inception and termination both seem to be very unfortunate. The department was started in 1920 by the last Governor in a special meeting of this Council with high hopes of its success and with high hopes of its turning out to be of financial benefit to the exchequer of this province. Sir Chimanlal Setalvad in the first meeting of this Council repeated the assurance given by His Excellency in 1920, but after that first assurance in 1921 there has been a continual failure of undertakings given by the Government. The department was handed over to Sir Lawless Hepper as its Director and committees were appointed to inquire into this matter in one of which Mr. Baptista was also a member. Finally the Mears Committee was appointed to report upon the activities of this department and the desirability of its continuance. The Mears Committee report has been before the public and one fortunate—the Government may call it "unfortunate"—incident of the appointment of the Mears Committee was the evidence given by my honourable friend Mr. Nariman and still more fortunate even for the country was the sanction of the prosecution of Mr. Nariman given by the Government without sufficient care being taken as to the rottenness that prevailed within the department. The result of that prosecution is now before the public and the masses Government has no reason to be dissatisfied with the judicial findings of the Presidency Magistrate after a trial extending over eight months in which evidence of all sorts was produced by both the prosecution and the defence. The whole House and the whole public are aware that in the court of the magistrate evidence was taken under a special protection given by the Evidence Act but that protection could not be extended by the magistrate to people who still were beyond the circle of witnesses in his court, and therefore, Sir, the disclosures that were made under protection from the court in the Harvey-Nariman case were not many But there is enough ground for the Government to conclude—enough ground for the masses and the public at large (to whose opinion this Government usually pretends to be very sensitive) for a full and complete enquiry into the administration of that department. I have no intention of blaming the present General Member. His position is as good as the position of his predecessor, his predecessor's position was as good as the position of Sir George Lloyd when he initiated this scheme, but so far as the administration of the department is concerned and so far as the working of the department by its officers, high and low, is concerned, there cannot be, there shall not be, any difference in the mind of Government or the public or the non-official side of this House that there has been a disgraceful and scandalous maladministration in that department. Government cannot get over the findings of its own court. Government does not challenge the findings of its own court and its own court has judicially ruled that even from the evidence before it there were reasons to suppose and to hold that there has been considerable corruption in that department. If so, I do not think anything that the Honourable the General Member now may bring forward for the defence of the good administration of his department can avail Government much. Government cannot challenge the judicial findings of its own court and if, Sir, both the public and the Government agree that there has been considerable corruption and maladministration in the management of the department, does not that Government owe a duty to the public whose moneys have been so ruthlessly squandered ? Is it not the duty of Government as a representative and a democratic, not an autocratic, Government to attempt to remove the blot that has been thrown upon its administration by a regular judicial finding of its own criminal court ? Does not this Government therefore owe a duty to the public to clear itself or to clear up the allegations and the aspersions that are made against the dishonesty and the corruption that were prevailing in that department ? If, Sir, the Government and the people at large agree that the management of the department in any of its activities was scandalous, if they both agree that there are other reasons to believe that there was still more corruption and mismanagement than what has been disclosed in the court of law, then, Sir, the public is entitled to know, the non-official side of this House is entitled to know what are the Government's intentions as regards the future working of the department, the Government itself, for the sake of its own fair name, ought to lay all its cards on the table, not only to show that the Honourable the General Member has, during his administration, taken all steps to make private and even confidential enquiries into the honesty or dishonesty of the departmental officers, but it is the duty of Government now to come forward and tell the Council and the public at large that it will hold an open and non-official enquiry into the corruptions that have been rampant in that department. It is the duty of Government to clear its own character, I would say it is the duty of Government to clear itself of the charges of maladministration and the only way that that can be done is by volunteering (this ought to have been done by the Honourable the General Member himself long before this) at least now, in response to the demands of this Council, to appoint an independent committee with full powers

[Mr. B. G. Pahalajani]

[Mr. B. G. Pahalajani]

to go into the question of corruption and maladministration and with full powers to condemn the administration and the Government itself from the highest to the lowest. It should be a fully independent committee with full powers to protect and give full protection to the witnesses and the public at large to come forward with all the evidence in their possession. If need be, the fullest possible protection should be given by means of a special Government Resolution by virtue of which no persons should be afraid to come before this committee, so that the Government may know and the Honourable the General Member himself may be in a position to know that the public of Bombay is prepared to support him in his laudable object of clearing the bad name of Government. I submit this is a proposal that in any democratic government would find favour. And fortunately, this morning we find in every newspaper the result of the findings of the committee appointed by the Prime Minister of the United Kingdom whose position corresponds to that of the Honourable the General Member as head of a department, to inquire into the allegations made against three servants of Government collusively carrying on speculative transactions in foreign currency. The result of the enquiry of the committee appointed by the Prime Minister has been that one of the persons has been dismissed, another has been compelled to resign, and the third has been reprimanded and reduced in rank for three years. That is the action which the Government of England have taken for the sake of its good name and to clear itself of the charge that its officers have been allowed to carry on speculative transactions merely against departmental rules. Therefore, if this Government does care at all for public opinion—and I must warn Government that the public of Bombay will assert itself, whatever this Council might do, after all the disclosures in the criminal trial, which Government cannot now defend because it had ample opportunity of defending itself in the criminal court which it has failed to do—if Government in any way regards public opinion as having any effect on its conduct, if Government is now prepared to yield to public opinion, it is but fair that the Honourable the General Member himself and every other Member of Government should voluntarily propose the appointment of an independent committee, giving full protection to every person who comes forward before the committee to give evidence. That is the course that the Government has to take. It is no use for the Honourable the General Member to defend the administration of the department, which has been condemned by a judicial trial. No person in the outside public is prepared to listen to any explanations that he might give; no honourable member in this Council has a right to listen to any explanations that the Honourable Member may give as regards the corruption that has prevailed in this department. The facts are there; the scandals have been exposed; Government cannot whitewash the scandals that have been disclosed. The scandals being there, whitewashing is impossible. The only question is, what is the remedy. What is the remedy that the Honourable the General Member proposes to adopt? Does he simply intend to get a vote of confidence from this Council that the administration has not been bad? If this Council, which consists of official and other members, by a majority determines that Re. 1 should not be cut from his demand, will he be satisfied that that is the opinion of the public outside, that the administration of his department has been good? Can he himself say that the administration of his department has been good? He may have taken, with honest motives, all precautions to conduct private enquiries before all these disclosures were made in a court of law, but that does not defend him. Therefore, the only course that can be adopted is for him to volunteer to appoint an independent committee to carry on investigations. An instance of this kind has occurred in the days of the pre-reformed Council, when the elected members were in a minority and the nominated and official members were in a majority in the Council. The late lamented Mr. Bhurgri compelled—I say compelled—the Government of those times to appoint a special committee consisting of members from Sind and elsewhere, headed over by a judge Sir Maurice Hayward, to hold an enquiry into the problem of corruption in Sind with regard to rasai, lappo and cher. It was not corruption in money, it was not corruption in gold and silver; it was corruption with regard to food materials and travelling and other conveniences that had to be given to Government officers from the highest to the lowest, from the Commissioner and Collector to the lowest village officer. When that committee of enquiry was appointed, in response to a resolution passed in the pre-Reforms Council, Government issued a resolution promising protection to every person that came before the committee to give evidence, and we had people serving in Government departments coming forward to lay before the committee books of account showing the materials which were supplied to Government officers. With that promise of immunity, Government secured all the evidence that it was possible to secure, and Government on the strength of that evidence passed a resolution—it may not be entirely satisfactory—which is having a beneficent effect in the province of Sind. Now, Sir, if the Rasai Committee, which was a committee to look into the question of lappo for the lower class of officials and rasai for the higher clasis of officers, served its purpose—and that committee was appointed by Government in response to public opinion,—is it not fair to ask that in regard to the administration of the Development Department, which has cost about Rs. 27 crores, the public should have full evidence before it, and the public should know whether Government is prepared to prosecute or punish the people who have cheated them? Is it not fair that the public should know whether Government is prepared to punish its officers high and low without exception, who have taken bribes. If Government are not prepared to do that, then, Sir, the public must suspect that there is something behind, and that the Honourable the General Member is trying to protect the officers so concerned. Sir, at one time he was a member of the public; the public is clamouring for an enquiry, and if he is true to the people of his presidency, then my request to him is a perfectly fair one, that an independent committee of enquiry should be appointed to enquire into these matters, and after that enquiry all the people concerned must be punished, not departmentally, but by criminal prosecutions, wherever sufficient evidence is forthcoming, for the sake of the good name of this presidency, which has rarely been spoiled before. This is the appeal that I am making to the Honourable Member. If the Honourable Member does not wish to hear this appeal, if he does not care to respond to this appeal, if he challenges the House to go to voting and even if he gets a vote of confidence, then that vote will not be the vote of confidence of the public, will not be the voice of the public outside that is clamouring for justice being done. It is in that spirit that I appeal to the Honourable Member in the good name of this presidency to accept the suggestion that I have made.

[Mr. B. G. Pahalajani]

Mr. R. D. BELL: Sir, the mover of the cut principally referred to matters of administration, but the most serious charges which have been made during the course of the debate are those which were made with his characteristic force by the honourable member Mr. Nariman, and it is to these charges that I propose to confine my remarks. I do not seek, Sir, to minimise in any way the gravity of certain conclusions of the learned magistrate in the case in which Mr. Harvey prosecuted Mr. Nariman for defamation. (An Honourable Member: "The honourable member Mr. Nariman.") The honourable member Mr. Nariman. But I venture to think that the honourable member Mr. Nariman on this occasion would have been better advised if he had not travelled beyond the limits of these conclusions of the learned magistrate. He has gone far beyond these limits to the extent of stating, for instance, that he has not disclosed one-tenth of the information regarding corrupt practices which is at his command. The impression which he may create, and perhaps which he desires to create, is that the Development Department is still thoroughly tainted with corruption and that no officer in it can be trusted. (Mr. B. G. Pahalajani: Not the present officers.) I desire to present to the House the other side of the picture by stating simply and quite directly that nothing is so abhorrent to a permanent servant of Government as to find it proved that his department has been tainted with dishonest practices. There is no evil, Sir, which the permanent servant of Government is more desirous of eradicating than such dishonest practices. And so far from being charged with leniency in this matter, it is a more common accusation against him that in his overzealousness he is occasionally inclined to punish subordinates for alleged offences of this kind without the amount of proof which would be regarded as sufficient in a court of law. It is a fact, and it is a fact that I hope will be regarded with satisfaction by honourable members of this House, that no permanent servant of Government has been implicated by the judgment in the Harvey-Nariman case, and, so far as I know, there is no permanent civil servant of Government against whom any serious accusations have been made which have not been disproved.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: Is there any permanent servant in the Department at all?

Mr. R. D. BELL: Mr. Browne is a permanent servant of Government. Rao Saheb Adwani who is in charge of the Suburban scheme has been with the department since its inception.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA: (Made an interruption which was inaudible).

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order.

Mr. R. D. BELL: Now, Sir, on that point, I wish to quote to the House what the learned magistrate said:

"Though I hold that the complainant ordered excessive number of bars and of a wrong size it does not necessarily follow that he did it out of corrupt or dishonest motive. It may have been due to error of judgment, incompetency, carelessness or negligence or wrong calculation or because he acted on the slip of Hamid. Only if the proposition advanced by the accused that there was a combination or conspiracy on the part of these higher officers, viz., Sykes, Harvey and Hamid, could it be held that it was done out of corrupt or dishonest motives.

"The evidence before me is not sufficient to warrant such a conclusion. There may be suspicious circumstances but they could only be matters of vague suspicion, not entitled to any serious consideration.

"The theory rests practically on the broad fact that certain group of officers who were working together at the Delhi Imperial Works, came to occupy the practically same position here."

I shall omit the next paragraph:

"The second suspicious circumstance pointed out by the accused is that in some cases certain officers were influenced or guided in certain matters by some of the other officers. There is nothing definite about this. But assuming it to be so, it is not matter of any surprise. It is but natural for one officer to trust his colleague or his immediate subordinate and rely on his judgment or recommendation to a certain extent.

"I find nothing adduced before me to show that there was a combination or group of officers who took secret commission from merchants and shared in the secret profits.

"Nariman has proved that some officers of the department were corrupt, and some of the witnesses do state that these officers said that they had to charge a high commission as it had to be shared by higher officers.

"The latter statement, if believed, would be only hearsay evidence against the higher officers. At the same time it is also a matter of common knowledge that a corrupt subordinate often assigns this reason as a motive for extorting a higher commission. Apart from this, not one of the several witnesses called by Nariman make any allegation of corruption against the complainant personally.

"On the contrary, Jal Chichgar, says that when he and his master went to give bribes to Hamid or others, they used to carry a promissory note form. The object in carrying these forms was, in case they were detected giving the money, by a superior officer, to enable them to say that they had gone there to make a loan. 'Our object,' he says, in carrying such a note was to protect ourselves against Burra Sahebs like Harvey or such other person coming down upon us.'

"This would show that Harvey at any rate had nothing to do with Hamid in the matter of bribes in regard to transactions referred to by this witness.

"I hold, therefore, that there is no evidence to prove any such conspiracy or combination or association of higher officers including Harvey."

I read that passage, Sir, because it shows that the higher officers realised their responsibility for checking dishonest practices so far as it was in their power and that their attitude was well-known both to the contractors and to such members of the staff as were weak enough to succumb to temptation. I make these remarks because I think the House will welcome an assurance that the permanent servants of Government are just as desirous as honourable members of the House for maintaining the highest standard of integrity among public servants.

Now, Sir, I come to another matter.....

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: How many Government servants were there in all?

Mr. LALJI NARANJI: On a matter of information, Sir. Was Sir Lawless Hepper a permanent servant ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order.

Mr. R. D. BELL: I have already stated that I do not seek to minimise the gravity of some of the conclusions of the learned magistrate. But we must judge facts fairly and not indulge in exaggerations. And I fear that the honourable member Mr. Nariman's words yesterday did not follow this line. It is my purpose now to explain to what degree the principal allegations made yesterday by the honourable member Mr. Nariman have been investigated and appear to be exaggerated or quite unfounded and therefore prejudicial to the very cause which he professes to have at heart.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: A little louder, please.

Mr. R. D. BELL: The honourable member Mr. Nariman's charges fall into four groups. The first group of allegations has reference to contracts given to Mr. Drake. His statement was that Mr. Drake had been given orders for an unnecessarily large number of cement blocks and that blocks to the value of £21,000 were thereby lying unused. It is true that there are a large number of unnecessary and unused blocks which are there because the work on the Reclamation was suddenly curtailed at the wishes of this Council. (Mr. K. F. Nariman: There is the annual programme). But the extent of the contracts given to Mr. Drake were given last October in answer to a question in this House. They amounted to Rs. 1,03,000 spread over three years and of this amount only Rs. 49,000 was for cement blocks.

The next charge which Mr. Nariman made was with reference to the supply of coal by a firm called Balfour and Company. Since last night I have made the best enquiries I could in the matter, and I find that no transactions were made with this firm by the Reclamation staff. Up to 1925 all the coal, except perhaps a casual supply, which was required by the Reclamation staff was purchased from the Mining Engineer by the Materials District. The only transaction that we had with the Balfour Company was in September 1922 when we ordered 30 tons of coal and in October 1922 about 20 tons of coal. I can give the name of the officer who effected this transaction with that firm. He is an officer against whom no allegations have been made at all during the proceedings of the court.

The third allegation made by Mr. Nariman is what is mentioned in the evidence of the foreman Mr. Brookes. In making this allegation, Mr. Nariman said "He was aware that the credibility of Mr. Brookes might be questioned." But Mr. Brookes was his chosen instrument for giving sworn testimony in support of his allegations. It has been alleged by him that the officer in charge of the department was in the habit of using departmental coolies for his own private purposes and putting their names on the muster roll, thus making payments to them as wages from the Government funds. I also made enquiries in this matter and so far I was unable to find that this was being done by the officer accused of it.

[Mr. R. D. Bell]

I may inform this House that Mr. Brookes early in the last year was found to have misappropriated a large sum of Government money.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA : Sir, I rise to a point of order. Honourable member has been repeatedly using the word " coolies " in his speech. I think that word is not parliamentary and is against the Indian sentiments.

Mr. R. D. BELL : It was found that Mr. Brooks had misappropriated a large sum of Government money. His case was very carefully considered by the Chief Engineer and myself and it was decided that his services should be retrenched and he should be allowed to pay up the amount which was misappropriated by him. At the end of his service, his pay was stopped by Government, as he had not paid up the misappropriated amount. He, therefore, came to me and made various threats. Those threats were in the matter of supplying information regarding the Department to Mr. Nariman.....

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA : On a point of order, Sir. I find that the honourable member Mr. Bell, when referring to Mr. Nariman, uses the words " Mr. Nariman. " I think he should refer to him as " honourable member from Bombay. " I want your ruling, Sir, if the honourable member is right in this expression.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Yes, I think that is the correct and better form of expression and honourable members should use that form.

Mr. R. D. BELL : I may inform this House that eventually Mr. Brookes had to leave the service on account of his conduct. He subsequently came to me one day in a state of distress and demanded some money from me. I, therefore, gave him some money out of charity. From these facts, you will be able to judge the character of Mr. Brookes, who had sufficient courage of a kind to state in the Court that this amount, which was paid by me out of charity, was paid to him to prevent him from giving information to Mr. Nariman. If you will refer to the cross-examination of Mr. Brookes in the Court, what you will find in one case is this. He admits that the Executive Engineer had asked him to send two labourers to his bungalow for the Executive Engineer's private work, but at the same time he says that the Executive Engineer had given the wages for payment to those labourers.

The other allegation that has been made against the same Executive Engineer is that he was in the habit of taking coal for his personal use from the Government supply without paying for it. But so far as I can make out I find that the Executive Engineer was taking a supply of coal in this way, but at the same time he was paying for it. I saw one of the bills made against that officer and I found that he paid for coal at Rs. 30 per ton. So, there should be no charge of this sort against him.....

Mr. K. F. Nariman : That is an incorrect statement.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I think every honourable member has a right to address this House in any way he likes and as the honourable member, Mr. Nariman, was listened to very patiently throughout, he should give a chance to other honourable members to address this House. It may be possible that several statements made by one honourable member may not satisfy another honourable member, but that does not give a privilege to honourable members to get up and interrupt the speaker every now and then.

[The President]

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN: Is it not the right and duty of an honourable member to correct the statement made by another honourable member, when he knows that that statement is positively incorrect?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: If that is the case, it can be contradicted by speakers who follow or by the honourable mover in his reply.

Mr. K. F. NARIMAN: On a point of explanation, Sir. As I have already addressed the House, I have no right to speak again and therefore I cannot correct the statement made by the honourable member.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: That does not give the honourable member a right of getting up every now and then and interrupting the speaker.

Mr. R. D. BELL: My object in keeping all the statements before this House is to enable it to give assistance to Government in their investigations. I have not had time to make enquiries into all the allegations, but I have made enquiries into the principal allegations. I am, therefore, putting before the House all the facts that I was able to gather. I do submit that Mr. Nariman is spoiling a good cause by needless and harmful exaggerations and that he is unnecessarily impeding the work of Government officers, who are anxious to assist the House in eradicating the practices of corruptions.

As regards the allegations made by Mr. Brookes in connection with the receipt of commissions, etc., by Government officers, I may tell this House that one gentleman has written to me from Calcutta, denying the truth of evidence given to the effect that furs, carpets, rugs, and jewels were given as bribes to officers.

Presents were given to his sister and sister-in-law, he said, which were made in cash, and that his brother, who was in the department, paid so far as he knows, by cheque. The matter of this officer has some significance for myself. It so happened that he was an officer with whose work I did not come in contact, and I did not know him personally. But I was asked by Mr. Nariman in court whether I was aware that about the 24th of March 1924 this officer received a cheque for Rs. 2,500 from a contractor named Balkissondas Seth. My answer was no. Sir, that question and that answer were published, I think, in every newspaper in Bombay and travelled the world over. The officer himself wrote to me. Perhaps the House would like to hear what he said. I omit some of the stronger language in it.

"You are perfectly at liberty to call for a detailed paying-in-slip from such and such a bank in Bombay and such and such a bank in England, with whom I had an account in 1924, if you consider it necessary."

[Mr. R. D. Bell]

It happened, however, that I was able to ascertain that that officer did receive a cheque for Rs. 2,500 on that date from Balkissondas Seth and that what he did was this. He wrote to the Audit Officer and said:

"Herewith I enclose a cheque No. so and so dated so and so for Rs. 2,500 on account of the cost of 30,000 cement bags sold to Mr. Balkissondas Seth. Please send official receipt.....Necessary adjustments have been made in this office accounts for the currenet month".

It was some months, I think, after the allegation had been made in the form which I have explained before the official receipt was produced in the court. And no newspaper took notice of that fact. I mention the matter because it illustrates very well that a good deal of the allegations which have been spread about are based on very slender foundations. In the case of the two officers, about whom I have spoken, they appear to have had private enemies. I do not know whether they were dismissed subordinates or disappointed contractors. But information from them directly or indirectly reached Mr. Nariman and was represented in this form. Now, I do say, Sir, that the constant repetition of allegations of this kind does no good.

The last item which I desire to explain has reference to an allegation, so far as I can make out, that this contractor Balkissondas Seth at one time got a rate of Rs. 10 for work which was gradually brought down to Rs. 2-8-0. There is also a connected allegation about irregularity in dealing with tenders. Now, these allegations were made by Mr. Nariman before the Mears Committee. I think I am taking up too much of the time of the House. So, I shall not, as I intended, read the relevant part of the evidence before the Mears Committee. The allegation was that an engineer of the department had secretly given information to Balkissondas Seth about the lowest rate which was contained in the tenders received, and that Balkissondas Seth had then put in a tender at that lowest rate and presumably his tender had been accepted. The Mears Committee was satisfied that that was quite impossible. It may perhaps convince the House sufficiently that the allegation was untrue when I say that Balkissondas Seth's tender was not the lowest one. Now, that allegation has been repeated, and it has been repeated along with the other allegation made before the Mears Committee about the rates for trucks. The whole of the original files giving all the contracts in the Back Bay Reclamation were placed before the Mears Committee, and if any member of the House cares to turn up the evidence before that committee, he will find a complete list of the contracts showing the rates of Balkissondas Seth and other contractors, and they can judge for themselves whether any improper favour was shown to that contractor. I have to mention this matter, Sir, because the allegation was made before the Mears Committee, it was fully investigated and, so far as the department can make out, it rests on no foundation. And it serves no good purpose, it makes the situation more difficult, when such unfounded allegations are repeated. I say this with the object, Sir, of assuring the House that wherever there has been a case for suspicion, the case has been investigated with all seriousness and to the best of their ability by the department. There have been black sheep in it, I do not deny.

[Mr. R. D. Bell]

But, if matters are tackled in a spirit of co-operation rather than in an atmosphere of hostility only, then do I assure the House that the work of investigation can be performed expeditiously in any cases where malpractices are prevalent.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM (Eastern Sind): Sir, I have listened with great attention and, if it is believed, with a real desire to accept so far as I could what has been said in defence of the Development Department. But as I listened to the speech of the honourable member, Mr. Bell, I was struck with the great contrast between the manner in which things are managed here and the manner in which things are managed in his own country. I do not think that one would expect the Secretary of an important department in England to shirk enquiry by a committee,—not an enquiry by his own department,—if such serious allegations were made as have been made in this case. I do not, like the honourable member Mr. Bell, want to distinguish between the permanent civil servants and the temporary civil servants of government. If it is suggested that Government are not concerned with the conduct or misconduct of their temporary employees, then I must say that we will be laying down a very dangerous principle. I would expect Government to be as keen about the conduct or misconduct of their temporary employees as about the conduct or misconduct of their permanent employees. I am therefore surprised that a point was made that the officers who were concerned in the recent disclosures were only temporary employees.

It has been said that every case which has been brought to the notice of the department has been investigated. Is that the reply which the Secretary of the Foreign Department gave in England when a law court investigated into the facts of a suit and found that certain acts which were held to be objectionable were done by some civil servants? Was he satisfied with a departmental enquiry? Did he not feel that in response to public opinion he ought to appoint an independent committee and was not a special board of enquiry asked to conduct investigations? More than once the honourable member Mr. Bell has said here, "so far as I have been able to investigate into the matter." We do not want the results of an enquiry conditioned by the limitations of time or opportunity, nor is it our intention that the enquiry should be by one superior officer into the actions of his subordinates. Unless there is an independent enquiry, I do not think that public opinion will be satisfied. Sir, as the honourable member Mr. Pahalajani informed the House, serious allegations were made both with regard to lower and higher officials several years ago relating to certain illegal gratifications demanded and received in Sind, and unless there is now a committee of a similar nature to the one appointed on that occasion which is competent to take evidence and cross-examine witnesses, I do not think that we will be able to get at the truth of all that has been publicly alleged. I look upon this matter from a point of view which is different from that of Government. It is probably the belief of some that if this vote of censure is defeated, it will be established that Government have not deserved condemnation. In my opinion, however, if, by their standing majority, Government defeat this vote of censure, they will probably have risked the judgment that they have really earned censure, and it is with a view to see that Government dissociate themselves from any action of their departmental officers that we have pressed that Government should institute a proper and thorough enquiry through an independent committee.

Mr. J. B. PETIT (Bombay Millowners' Association): Sir, I rise to address the House on this question with very considerable diffidence first, because I had for years been a member of the old Advisory Committee of the Development Department and am now a member of the committee which has taken its place; and secondly, because of the fear that this cut may be construed by the Honourable the Member in charge of the department as a personal reflection upon himself. I therefore wish to assure him not only for myself but also on behalf of a large section of the members of this House, that nothing is further from our mind than to embarass the Government or hurt the feelings of the Honourable the General Member. It is however clear that this debate has been raised in order to enable the House to give very emphatic expression to its feelings of indignation on the affairs of this Department and particularly on the question of the very serious disclosures which have been made in the Harvey-Nariman Case. There was a time when the public, or at least the thoughtful section of it, was very willing and ready to believe that most of the allegations against the Development Department consisted merely of the misfortunes and mishaps of the Department arising mostly out of miscalculations or errors of judgment which, however unfortunate in themselves can always be excused in any department of State. But, Sir, the conclusions arrived at by the learned magistrate in the case I have referred to already in the course of which, very serious allegations of a different character were made and held as proved, have brought to light very ugly facts which have set the public seriously thinking about the affairs of this Department and the complacent attitude of Government on this important question. It is therefore that I feel that the time has come when even those who have always been anxious to co-operate with the Government should sound a note of warning as to the attitude which the Government should now adopt in this matter. I personally feel that the Government would do well to accept the proposal of my honourable friend from Sukkur and dispel all doubts that honourable members of this House may have upon this question and upon the attitude of the Government in this matter. Speaking personally for myself I may say that I myself also always readily and willingly believed that the misfortunes of the Development Department consisted very largely of miscalculations and errors of judgment which, however unfortunate in themselves, could not always be put to the door of the officials directly in charge of the department concerned. It must however be borne in mind at the same time that any one taking any intelligent interest in the affairs of that department, could not possibly escape the conviction that everything was not well with the department. I shall give only one or two instances to show that, in spite of the best of will to co-operate with the Government and the Department at least in my case this conclusion was more than justified. As a member of the advisory committee, it happened to be my duty on one occasion to visit a railway that runs through the Sahar village, which had been brought into existence in the early days of the Development Department, I then happened to make an enquiry as to the cost of that railway. When I say that it was a tiny miserable tumble-down thing, a veritable toy-railway, I am not exaggerating, but it took my breath away when I was told on inquiry that the department had spent as much as forty lakhs on it. But I now understand that the total cost up to date is something like 80 lakhs for a railway the length of which hardly exceeds ten miles, which amount works out at over eight lakhs per mile—a figure, far in excess of what experts had to spend in the old days, viz., Rs. 1 lakh per mile on broad-gauge railways like the B. B. & C. I. and the G. I. P. with all their heavy charges, including the erection of bridges, culverts and the value of rolling stock. Possibly the cost has now gone up owing to the rise in the cost of production and the value of materials and for other reasons. But, to tell us that a tumble-down railway of this character, should have cost more than eight lakhs of rupees per mile, is a circumstance which ought to make everybody apprehensive of the management of the Department; and it is all the more deplorable when we realise that this huge expenditure of eighty lakhs of rupees was so light heartedly incurred on a small railway of ten miles by a department, presided over by a railway expert in the person of Sir Lawless Hepper! It is unfortunate in the extreme—I make no reflection upon anybody; but the fact remains that the supervision exercised by the department even in such simple matters was so hopelessly slack that such things were made possible even under the very nose of no less a railway expert than Sir Lawless Hepper.

There is another instance to which I may refer in passing. You, Sir, will remember the time when the Government appointed a small committee at the instance of this honourable House for the purpose of ascertaining whether the scheme was going on along right lines and should be allowed to continue; or whether it was working unsatisfactorily and should be held up. A special committee was appointed for the purpose including the members of the advisory committee and some members of this Council. I also happened to be a member of this committee. The first point that the committee was anxious and took good care to ascertain was whether the output of the dredgers was up to the mark, in order to enable them to see whether the scheme could be completed in time and whether the Department should go on further with that scheme. We were seriously assured by the department presided over by Sir Lawless Hepper that everything was all right, that the output was up to the mark and that we would be perfectly justified in making a recommendation to the House that the department should go on with the scheme and complete it as fast as possible. Two of the members of the committee (I am not ashamed to admit that I was one of them along with Mr. Joseph Baptista), relied on the assurance of the President of that committee and even went to the length of adding separate minutes to the effect that the scheme should not only not be held up but that it should be pushed on as quickly as possible, and completed at the earliest possible moment. After the publication of the report, however, we found that the calculations had all gone wrong, that the dredgers were not giving the output that they were expected to give and that therefore the scheme would not come off in time and would cost several times more than was originally estimated. The advice, which we were induced to give in the report, was based on inaccurate data and was therefore altogether wrong. I therefore went to Sir Lawless Hepper and asked for an explanation about the information he had supplied to the committee on the strength of which we had gone out of our way to add separate minutes to the effect that I have already described. The only answer given was that the output was only an estimate, that he was not aware of the actual facts, that he did not consider the output of the dredgers to be unsatisfactory; that the details of the output that were then placed before him, though of an apparently unsatisfactory character, were in his opinion only temporary and therefore unreliable; that he had no reason to think that everything was not going on well, that it was only a temporary set-back or failure on the part of the dredgers and that therefore he did not think it right to place this side of the matter before the committee and thus unnecessarily alarm them. Needless to say that I was not at all satisfied with this explanation. Personally, I felt that it was not quite fair to treat the members of the committee in that way; and told him whatever I had to say to him in the matter. I merely quote these two instances, in passing, to show that the kind of supervision which should have been exercised was not being exercised in the department; and that possibly the scheme would have shown a very different result, had the department been better worked and supervised than it was.

Now, Sir, that we have got the recent authoritative judgment before us, with its amazing disclosures, I think the Government should take the House into their confidence, and appoint a committee of enquiry, as has been suggested by my honourable friend from Sukkur (Mr. Pahalajani). It will help the public and the members of this House to co-operate with the Government still and to devise ways and means of getting out of this unfortunate position. If such a step does not completely reinstate the confidence of the public in the Government, it will at least convince them that the Government are serious and determined to root out all evils that might exist in this department. Sir, it was never expected that the Honourable the General Member or even his superior officers should sit in judgment over the estimates or reports of experts. As a matter of fact, they would not be competent to do so. I am sure this honourable House would have blamed them, if they had taken it upon themselves to over-rule the calculations of experts. They were perfectly right in the attitude taken up by them. I think that was the only correct attitude to adopt. If any blame attaches to the estimates and calculations of experts, they and they alone must bear the responsibility thereof. But when allegations of the character made in the recent Police Court case and the various irregularities brought to light on the occasion, many of which have been clearly held to have been proved, are concerned, I would say with all the emphasis that I can command that it is due to the Government themselves that they should come forward and tell us that they are willing to take the House into their confidence and appoint a committee to look into the irregularities. I admit that all the charges made, cannot necessarily be taken as proved. But, it is for the committee to go carefully into all of them, and to make their recommendation only if and when they consider them proved. When that stage is reached and the House is possessed of the report of the committee, the Government should come forward and tell us that they are determined to punish all persons proved to have been guilty of frauds or irregularities; and that no one, however highly placed he may be, will be allowed to go scot-free. If this is done, the Government will set themselves right with the public and do justice to themselves. I accordingly request my honourable friend, the General Member, and the Government to agree to the suggestion made by my honourable friend from Sukkur. In such a case, I think the House would do well to allow this motion to be withdrawn, because the purpose for which the cut has been moved, will have been more than served. The honourable member for Bombay (Mr. Nariman) in supporting this motion, stated that he wanted to raise a debate on the question and to get an authoritative declaration from the Government regarding their future intentions. That is what we also want, a definite declaration of their policy; and, if it is vouchsafed and a committee is appointed, my advice to the honourable mover of the cut is to withdraw his amendment.

Mr. LALJI NARANJI (Indian Merchants' Chamber): Sir, in suporting this motion I want to put two broad facts particularly before this House, and those facts are regarding the explanation given by the honourable member the Secretary of the Development Department (Mr. Bell). He said that the past administration was responsible for not bringing all these misdeeds of the department to light. I will say what the honourable member Mr. Nariman rather hesitated to say, that the present administration is not less responsible for it, and I will just explain to the House why I say so. The present administration, instead of helping members of this House to know the truth, have, up till now, even up to the last session, been withholding the information that really ought to have been within the reach of the members of this House. When I say so, I am referring to the proceedings of the Public Accounts Committee. Since the last session, several meetings of the Public Accounts Committee were held, and those of the non-official members who are members of that committee will bear me out when I say that all attempts were made on the part of the Honourable the General Member and the Government Department not to allow any information to be made available to us, and deliberately they put every obstacle in our way. After the exposures in the Harvey-Nariman case, certain members of the Public Accounts Committee insisted that Mr. Harvey should be called, and he must give personally explanations with regard to certain items. Those items were about some contractors, about which evidence was produced in the court, Mr. Kapur and other contractors. I wanted to get explanations with regard to them. Not only that, but I wanted to get information, which was not given to me in the sessions previous; it was given to the members of the Public Accounts Committee long afterwards, that is in the October sessions, and the object of the delay apparently was to prevent Mr. Nariman getting the information earlier. I did express my view in the committee that Government should bring forward Mr. Harvey to explain matters.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: Sir, I must deny these facts. I will have an opportunity of speaking again, but I must deny these facts now.

Mr. LALJI NARANJI: Let the Honourable the General Member deny it, but those proceedings are on record, and copies of the report have been given to the members of the committee.

I will quote another instance to enable honourable members to compare the action of Government with regard to the Development Department with their action in reference to other departments. There was one small item in which Dr. Mann was concerned, and we wanted to examine Dr. Mann on the matter. Government did not prevent him from coming before the committee, but Mr. Harvey was not ordered to appear before the committee. In spite of our warnings that Mr. Harvey would go away if the case went against him, and there was no guarantee that he would come back, Government did not agree to allow Mr. Harvey to come before the committee. And our warning at the time has now proved a fact. Against these facts, how can we absolve the present administration from blame when they are trying to prevent all these facts being brought forward and which are necessary to be brought forward in the interest of the public taxpayer, whose moneys are being wasted as is being done to-day? Sir, I challenge the Honourable the General Member when he says that all these facts that I am telling are incorrect. I waited, not for one session but for two sessions, andthis matter was postponed for two sessions, and still that matter is not finished. I only see promises that Government could bring forward before the Public Accounts Committee Mr. Harvey. What wrong would have been done if Mr. Harvey had been brought there and allowed to give information about a matter which came entirely within the purview of the Auditor-General and the Accountant-General whose duty it was to expose it after two years? Honourable members will remember that it is not possible to bring up these matters at once, and not even after the lapse of one year. The Public Accounts Committee have dealt with the details of the report for 1925-26. Since then what has been done we do not know. Sir, I am leaving aside the question of the judicial decision of the magistrate, because the House has heard enough about it. But I am referring to the views of the Accountant General and the Auditor-General who have brought within the purview of the Public Accounts Committee these facts, and yet Government have shielded those officers. That being so, how can any member of this House who is a non-official not support this motion, which is a vote of censure, and properly a vote of censure on the department ? I do not want to mince matters. While on this question, Sir, I should expressly say that the Honourable the General Member is strictly and rigidly honest ; so far as his honesty is concerned, there is nothing against him. But from his experience of mercantile affairs, he must know that in the articles of association it is expressly provided that the managing agents are removable in 24 hours if they commit frauds, or if negligence amounting to fraud is proved. What does it mean, Sir, if not negligence on the part of Government ? He has disregarded all the solemn warnings that have been given by the non-official members of this House. And what has he done ? He has behaved in a way in which the Honourable the General Member, who is at the head of this department, ought not to have done. He has helped the prosecution of the honourable member of this House. It has now been proved that in certain matters there was corruption in the department, and he has taken steps to assist an officer of that department, by providing him with funds, to prosecute a member of this House, against the desire of this House that that officer should not be assisted in that way. It was only my honourable friend Mr. Nariman who was able to fight the case successfully. There is no shame in my confessing that had I been in his place, I would have pleaded inability. I have not got the energy and the knowledge to understand the details and the legal aspects of the case. No other member of this House would have been able to stand the ordeal that the Honourable the General Member inflicted on the honourable member Mr. Nariman. But the point is that even after the irregularities and corrupt practices were exposed, the department wanted to shield Mr. Harvey and not help honourable members of this House who are members of the Public Accounts Committee to get at the facts, so that they may not only stop the robberies but set an example to other departments of the Government. There has been no effort on the part of the Government to show that they want to bring all these offenders to book.

They have done nothing up to now. If they hesitate to adopt the very modest suggestion made by the honourable member from Sukkur, I do not think they can, even if they escape the vote of censure, feel themselves absolved. They must realise that if they attempt to divide the House on this motion and gain a victory, it will provide a lesson to the Simon Commission as to how this House is composed. This House is composed in such a way that Government have 28 solid votes always at their command ; and they can also get other members to vote as they like, for one reason or other. So that, even if they get a majority, it will not be a real majority. If the motion is not carried, the blame will not lie on the House : it will lie on Government.

I want to bring to the notice of the House how Government have treated the House. The honourable member Mr. Petit referred to the single item of railways. That affair was mismanaged by the officers who are now drawing allowances in England. This affair was mismanaged by Sir Lawless Hepper. No enquiries were made into that. What is the chief function of Government ? It is to punish those who commit fraud and ruin the finances of the country. Government have not performed that function.
